Greetings!

DR. J. L. JARMAN

TO OUR NEW STUDENTS:

Just a word to freshmen and other new students to say we welcome you to our college with its many opportunities. Most of you are new to college life, and to make the transition from school to college or from home to college requires a little time for adjustment. It is surprising how quickly the adjustments are made. That is because of youth.

Put your regular work first and start with the determination to do your best with it. Then find an opportunity to develop your special talents, for you have different talents. Identify yourself with one of the extra-curricular activities in line with your particular gift or talent. Wholehearted participation in at least one of the many student activities on the campus will give added zest to your regular work and will do much to develop your personality. Remember that you are among friends. Everyone here—student, faculty, administration—is eager to help you find your place in college life.

J. L. Jarman

President.

Five Instructors Join Faculty For This Session

Changes in Library, Home Ec, And Commercial Depts.

To our present faculty has been added five new members, Miss Ruth Gleaves and Miss Margaret Sprunt Hall in the Home Economics department, Mrs. Willa Boysworth in the Library, Miss Virginia Richards, part time instructor in music, and Norman O. Myers in the commercial department.

Home Ec Gains Two

Miss Gleaves, who graduated from this school, has since taught at Richmond and at Radford in the Home Economics department. She received her Master of Arts degree from Columbia University and she has also done graduate work at the University of Chicago.

Because Miss Gleaves was Longwood's first hostess and the innovator of the original Longwood bun, she holds a special note of interest. Happy to be back in Farmville, she said it "felt like getting back home again."

Librarian Has Assistant

Mrs. Boysworth received her Bachelor of Arts and Library of Science degrees at the University of North Carolina where she had experience with the press there. Additional experiences has included work in organization of high school libraries. Thrilled with both the library and Farmville, Mrs. Boysworth expressed her delight at being assistant librarian here at Farmville.

Miss Margaret Sprunt Hall, who is new in the Home Economics department, is from Wilmington, North Carolina, and is a graduate of Farmville. She will be the instructor in charge of the practice cottage.

Commercial Department

Mr. Myers, originally from Buffalo, New York, is a graduate of Groves City College in Pennsylvania where he was assistant typewriting instructor. From the position of secretary to the general superintendent, he went to Grove City High School as instructor of shorthand and typing. At the University of Pittsburgh under the supervision of Mr. D. D. Lessenbury, Mr. Myers received his masters in commercial education. This summer he was graduate assistant in the secretarial department. Mr. Myers was especially generous in his praise of the opportunities the commercial department here offers.

Needless to say, Miss Richards is quite well known to all students here, having graduted from Farmville last year. She is part-time instructor in music.

Freshmen Number 335; More Students Expected To Enter

Students, Faculty Lead Orientation, Guidance Program

Nine hundred and six students registered at the end of the first week of the fifty-eighth session of Farmville State Teachers, according to information released by the office of the registrar. This is approximately the same as the enrollment of the 1940-41 session when 935 students were listed. Indications are that the total enrollment will equal or exceed that number.

Increased Enrollment

The total number of freshmen this year is 335 as compared with 325 last year. Exact information as to student transfers could not be obtained, but the number was approximated to be 50.

Students have matriculated from 89 counties in Virginia, ten other states, District of Columbia, and Pureto Rico.

Freshmen Oriented

Classes conducted by student orientation leaders began Monday, September 22, and ended Thursday, September 25. The general plan being used this year is the same as the program initiated last year with the exception that the orientation and guidance go through the sophomore year. The present sophomores have the advisers as last year.

Faculty Assist

To help each student take better advantage of her college opportunities, and to give each student someone to go to for advice without the feeling that she is imposing upon her adviser are the two main purposes of the guidance program.

There are twenty-two faculty advisors, ten having been added this year. Each adviser has two student leaders, one senior and one junior, and approximately twenty-five students.

The faculty advisers who have served two years and have as their senior and junior assistants this year are Miss Virginia Bedford with Ellen Royall and Kitty Parrish; Miss Pauline Camper with Nancy Dupuy and Anne Elliott; Miss Alice Carter with Louise Phillips and Brookie Benton; Mr. M. B. Coyner with Betty Peerman and Charlotte Gresham; Miss Helen Draper with Margie Rice and Nancye Allen; Mr. R. H. French with Elizabeth Gunter and Mary Frances Bowles; Mr. S. M. Holton with Mary Hunter Edmunds and Leona Moomaw; Miss Lucille Jennings with Peggy Hughes and Elizabeth Bernard;

Dr. Helen Todd Is New Physician

Infirmary Rules Modified; Mrs. Lee Is Resident Nurse

Dr. Helen B. Todd, a native of New London, Connecticut, who has been connected with Bowling Green University at Bowling Green, Ohio, for several years will be resident physician at Farmville State Teachers College during the 1941-42 session.

Dr. Todd has her M. D. degree from Boston University School of Medicine. She succeeded Dr. Anne Swing.

Mrs. Willard Lee, a graduate from Stuart Circle Hospital in Richmond, will fill the vacancy created by Miss Willie McKee as resident nurse. Miss McKee is away on leave of absence.

Regulations Changed

Changes have been made in the infirmary regulations to the effect that girls will be allowed to visit friends in the infirmary from 4 p. m. until 5 p. m. and from 7 p. m. until 7:30 p. m. This privilege will be granted only on the condition that students sign the guest list and do not exceed the five minute visiting limit. Longer visiting hours may be secured with special permission from Dr. Todd. A second stipulation is that not more than two people, will be allowed to visit a patient during the same hour.

Office Hours

Dr. Todd will have office hours every morning except Sunday from 9:15 a. m. until 10:30 a. m. On Monday, Wednesday, and Friday she will be in the office from 4:00 p. m. until 5:00 p. m. and on Tuesday and Thursday from 7:00 p. m. until 8:00 p. m. Office hours for Sunday are from 10:15 a. m. to 10:45 and from 7:00 p. m. until 8:00 p. m. In case of emergency Dr. Todd may be called any hour.

Short Story Contest Terminates Oct. 10

October 10 will be the deadline of the Colonnade Short Story Coutest which is open to all students. Prizes of $5, $3, and $1 are being offered for those who place first, second, and third respectively.

The winning short stories will appear in the issues of the colonnade magazine throughout the year, the first of which will be released in November. Stories will be judged on the basis of creativity, style and theme, presentation, and clarity. There are no requirements as to length.

Many Changes Highlight Campus

Improvements Also Made At Longwood

Students returning for registration for the fifty-eight session of Farmville State Teachers College have found the college better equipped and arranged than ever.

Four new tennis courts, built at an approximate cost of $3,000 have been constructed on the old hockey field. The new athletic field which lies behind the new tennis courts is now complete.

In the home office, the whole telephon system has been reconditioned. Junior Parlor has been converted into an office for Miss Mary White Cox. The gymnasium and eight classrooms wear new coat of paint. The basement of the training school has been plastered and the cafeteria remodeled.

At Longwood landscaping has been the theme. A new circular driveway replaces the old one. Brick walks lead to the house, and here and there boxwoods have been moved to fit into the place of the formal garden.

Engleby Names Hall Presidents

Jane Engleby, president of the House Council, has announced hall presidents for the present school year.

Senior appointed for service in the Senior Building and Senior Annex are Norma Bowles and Katherin Hawthorne, first floor; Polly Keer, and Jo Ware, second floor and Harriette Walker and Virginia Alexander, third floor.

Junior selected for the Junior Building are Charlotte Gresham and Betty Sexton, first floor; Charlotte Phillips and Ann Ware, second floor; and Eveline Looney, third floor.

Helen William will be hall president of second floor Student Building while Frances Strother will serve on the third floor of that same building. On Annex, Betty Overcash will have first floor; Mildred Droste, second floor; and Natalie Carroll, third floor.

Betty Pentiz and Nelle Quinn were chosen for second floor Main, and Jane Smith and Mary Elizabeth Grizard have charge of third floor Main.

The Rotunda Offers Apprenticeship

Tryouts for positions on The Rotunda staff will begin tonight, October 1, at a meeting scheduled for 7 o'clock in the publication office, Student Building. Tryouts will continue over a period of four weeks before selections will be made.

Students, old and new, who are interested in newspaper work are requested to come to the meeting tonight. The positions open on the editorial staff include straight news, features, socials, sports, and make-up. The business staff offers advertising, circulation, photography, typing, and proof reading.

Fall Cotillion Set For Nov. 15

November 15 is the date that has been named by the Cotillion Club for its annual fall dance. This is the first dance held by the club each year.

Anne Boswell, president of the Cotillion Club, has announced that Harriet Cantrell will head the music committee and that Polly Keller, Margaret Wright, and Sarah Wade Owen will serve on this committee.

Each club member has one dance ticket for her date, and may also invite one girl in school. The dance will be in the gymnasium and many alumnae are expected to attend.

81 Freshmen Sign For Apprenticeship In Dramatic Club

Eighty-one freshmen and new girls signed up for the apprentice period in the six departments of the Dramatic Club Monday night.

Twenty-eight tryouts are in the acting group under the direction of Jane McGinnis, and twenty are with Mary Lou Shannon, head of the make-up group. Lucy Davis, head of staging, has eleven working with her, and Louis Phillips, property group head, has three new girls. Ten are enrolled in the costume department, under the instruction of Gene Hardy Kilmon, and nine will study stage lighting effects with Miggie Mish.

For membership new girls must serve apprenticeship until February. Bids will then be extended to girls showing interest.

Dramatic Club Adopts British Baby To Aid in Giving Refugee Relief

By LILLY BEC GRAY

This year the Dramatic Club has a new project. It has adopted a beautiful, five-year-old British child, Violet Burgess. Heavy bombardment has forced Violet to leave her native Bristol for a quiet place in the country, but her nerves have not been greatly affected by the shock.

The affectionate and lovable little Violet is the second youngest in a family of ten. Throughout the bombing, evacuation, and separation from her family, the Dramatic Club's "god-child" has remained her bright and cheerful self.

Violet

Beautiful blonde curls form a background for her wistful face and twinkling, blue eyes. All through the year, the Dramatic Club will keep in touch with Violet through letters, birthday cards, and Christmas boxes. This adoption will provide the unfortunate little English girl with so many of the things she has been deprived of and needs so much the coming year.

The Dramatic Club adopted Violet for this year through the "Save the Children Fund", an organization for child relief in Britain. This instance of an attempt to aid the refugees is typical of many similar ones throughout the United States and Canada.

Many trying to help relieve Britains great war load, have taken British children in their homes, supplying them with a normal, home-like environment. Broad-

NYA Allots $9,180 To S. T. C. This Year

To provide employment for eighty-nine students, Farmville State Teachers College was allotted $9,180 for the 1941-42 period, by the National Youth Administrator, George J. Oliver. Dr. Oliver is director of N. Y. A. student work in Virginia.

In addition to these girls who work for the heads of the department and teachers, there are forty-two girls who work in the dining room.

This year the number of student workers has decreased as compared to last year. In the beginning of the year, S. T. C. was alloted $11,205; but later more money was given because some schools did not use the money. This money was then returned to the state and reappropriated, making a total of 120 N. Y. A. students and $12,660 for S. T. C.

College—So What?

In these times of strain and stress, fear and uncertainty, change and flux, it is comforting to know that our college is not only holding its own, but that it is continuing to make progress with precisional regularity. With world conditions then as they are, it is good for us here at Farmville to take account of the advantages offered and straightway determine to derive full values.

Various media for the enrichment of the mind and body are available. Some find these in the classroom, others discover them in the extra-curricular activities. However, it is axiomatic that a combination is the answer to the student who would build for whatever kind of a tomorrow that may await.

Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president of Washington and Lee, told the opening Washington and Lee student assembly that "resources stored in the mind, competence to do the complicated task, personality that will prove influential, strength of devotion to ideals"—these are the factors that spell success in life and assure a useful and happy existence.

When we next sing the melodic strains, "Thy daughters true, faithful, and loyal will be," let us know that we are doing "this day's work, this quarter's work, this year's work" to the best of our ability.

S. O. S.

A much neglected student service is the Letter-to-the-Editor column. Why not let the complaints and criticisms you make in bull-sessions and casual conversations assume a written form where the possibilities of getting results are far greater than in your immediate circle?

To each suggestion or criticism submitted, careful consideration and thought is directed to the attention of the head of the organization which it directly concerns. In this manner your remedy may be analyzed and, if sound, it can be utilized toward making Farmville more natural and more enjoyable.

On the other hand, if there is something you admire about the way the school is progressing, comment on this, for it makes those who diligently work for the college's betterment know that all is not in vain.

The College Student And The War

By

James Elliott Walmsley

The college student has a different relation to the war and to war thinking from that of the man in the street. Colleges exist to develop leaders, and leaders are those who lead, not those who follow. It is not accidental that in Czarist Russia or today in Nazi Germany the college population is suspect. Universities are the first institutions to be closed when arbitrary decrees are to be issued. No fascist form of government can permit free thought on the part of college students.

Today reasonable freedom of thought exists in English colleges to a greater degree than elsewhere, nearly as great in American, and next in China. At the bottom stands college life in Germany, slightly above is Russia, and then Italy and Japan. In these totalitarian states the military organizations of ex-military nature dominate the colleges and decide what is "subversive."

What does this mean to the American college student? He is permitted to study the principles of democracy fully in order to see for himself why real college life can exist only where thought is free. When he has convinced himself that intelligent study exists only where truth and not "the party line" is the test of belief, ,then he can give himself to a fight for a democratic country.

It means one thing more. When a war is legally declared by the legislative department, the college student understands that he is to fight for a people's decision, not for the will of an executive. Then, and then only, can he and will he pledge to his country his life, his fortune, ,and his sacred honor. In the meantime, if he is a democratic college student, man or woman, he trains his body, he prepares his mind, for any and every form of defense that his country demands. He sacrifices cheerfully his time, his convenience, ,his luxuries, all his service to the country that gives him the right to think freely and courageously.

The college student, then, should be a more loyal citizen than the average citizen because he more fully understands what democracy demands.

We Say So, Too . . .

Since our advent to Farmville, we have received an influx of letters from the office of education at Washington, requesting us as a college of the United States to cooperate in a nation-wide program of public discussion to develop civilian morale as a part of the National Defense Program.

"The genius of American democracy," President Roosevelt writes, "is expressed in the traditional independence and freedom of our State and local schools and school systems. Their freedom of action for educational purposes must be preserved. It is upon that freedom that we hopefully depend for assurance that the judgments of our people will be soundly based."

Because we are conscious of the fact that civilian morale is based on understanding the problems which have arisen from the world crisis, we feel that this request is a challenge and a compliment to American organized education—a recognition that in a great democracy we through education can achieve national strength. At Farmville we have organizations which have democratic discussions and study groups. However, the majority of these have limited membership.

It is our hope this year that, under the impact of the national emergency, the numerous honor fraternities on this campus will enlist in this call of President Roosevelt; that forums and study discussion groups will be inaugurated in order to give us a better understanding of the many complicated problems of these critical times.

Looking 'Em Over

AT IT AGAIN

After a summer of heart breaks, new romances, and success for some, we've settled down for a year of hard work (at least that's what we're saying.) From the looks of the Rotunda last Saturday and Sunday, it seems that S. T. C. will have another eventful year.

BANGS

....Bangs to the right of us, bangs to the left of us. Oh! how these Freshmen do get around!! Watch your men upperclassmen-competition is keen! Reports from files show that seniors had full house Sunday night.

AIN'T IT A SHAME

That Bowlie's soldier boys had to leave at 8 o'clock for Fort Bragg.

That Scottie and William are off the range and that Ann Rogers will be minus her miniature.

Nothing but a broken down car is keeping that handsome Ensign from visiting the love of his life, Grace. If you don't believe he is handsome, drop by Annex 17.

Ella Marsh might have complications this year with her Jimmy from V. P. I. since three little freshmen also know him right well.

LIGHTS OUT

Gay Ward Brown doesn't need a light to show her the way to bed because of the glitter in her eyes for Sam Jones.

MEN ABOUT TOWN

The footloose and fancy Tynes (Dot's now teaching in Jarrett) is the target of many young Farmville lassies.

Buff Gunter's air corps officer came down in a red convertible-WOW! If we all had one like that!!

HAVE YOU HEARD?

The Sophomore prexy, Dot, has selected a yankee, Walter, for fall quarter anyway.

Nothing like that Ingham girl. A summer in South America didn't slow her up. Imagine-three Tech men at one time.

Slips That Pass In The Day: Lilly Bee Gray was asked by the good Lillian "Habble Dabble Rabble Babble" Wahab to take some curtains to Charlie and have them pressed. The "Tattle-Tale" Gray, obedient to the request, lost no time in fulfilling her mission. Straightway she headed for the basement of Junior building, curtains in hand. When our lil miss gave Charlie the curtains, she was quickly told, "I don't press curtains and never have". And then the dawn came. Lillian had meant "Charlie the Cleaner."

On With The Dance: Cotillion enthusiasts are already looking around for "active and attractive" dates. However, many a lament was heard that signified that the "O. A. O." won't make it—national defense, no doubt. But to you, would-be daters, information has reached us that available men may be secured by applying to Shirley Turner who has quite a list of conquests.

Here yesterday. Gone today. That's an S. T. C. traveler for you. Girls flocked in by the bushels between Monday and Wednesday of last week from "beautiful vacations", and such, ,but by Saturday, I'll have ya know, they were buzzing around in places far from Farmville and thoughts of studying.

LOST

Why, Jerry, is it true that we won't be seeing you with Neal anymore? Oh! well, there's always George.

SOUTHERN HOSPITALITY

Well, it seems that the girls really did their patriotic duty Sunday. Mr. Reed tells us that the Army (which was stationed for the day on S. T. C.'s campus) were loud in their praises for the hospitality which was extended here.

Noticeable among the Army was Chick Tasker, last year graduate of Hampden-Sydney.

Question of the Week

Class of 1945: What was your first impression or reaction when you arrived at Farmville?

Margaret Kennedy I was impressed with the way everybody spoke and was so friendly.

Gynne Sampson I think prayers impressed me most.

Kitty Patrick The way people walk through the Rotunda just to see what's going on!

Betty Davis Goodness! I thought I'd never find my way around this place. I felt like an ant among elephants—not that I mean the upperclassmen are elephants. You know!

Elaine Bray I can't get used to being cooped up and not going down town when I desire.

Nancy Dickerson The longer I stay the better I like it—this is my reaction to Farmville.

Jean Akers One long giggle!!

Elaine Miller I just got lost in the middle of everything.

Phyllis Butler All the steps and such a round about way of getting to White House impressed me.

Edith Cassady It seemed so strange. I was really excited and didn't know anybody.

Pat Maddox Good looking girls and the beauty of the buildings struck me. I like the Rotunda and Joan D'arc, but I don like the names on it.

Mildred Cook Everybody is very accommodating; the teachers take a personal interest in you.

Marilyn Johnson The Colonnade is impressive. I like the small statue and its inscription.

Julia Glenn The upperclassmen are so nice about visiting the freshmen. It helps not sickness.

Martha Higgins The walk from the sidewalks to the Rotunda was the most unexplainable feeling I ever had in my life.

Ann Blair I thought-someday I will be somebody-a senior!

Ruth Parker As soon as I entered I was made to feel at home by the Sophomore Commission.

Jean Garland I like the library conveniences-especially the Browsing Room.

Janet Jackson—I loved it! Especially the newspapers.

Alice Wooding—I was scared to death—I liked the friendly atmosphere in the room where I got my room number—also the comfortable chairs on second floor Rotunda.

Phyllis Akers—I didn't know what the heck the Rotunda was and sure was relieved to find out.

Nancy Myers—I love the rooms and I like the way the stairs and railing around the Rotunda.

Margaret Bray—The girls are so congenial—the place has a certain atmosphere. I like the architecture, especially the columns.

Frances Wichard—It is all so different.

Martha Watson—I felt like it was old school days; I saw so many girls from my high school.

Dick Butterworth—I noticed all the rushing around.

Passers-by Are Baffled By Blitz Kreig at College

Passers-by, reports have it, are beginning to wonder if Farmville hasn't turned slightly semi-educational what with khaki-clad soldiers bedecking our fair campus and buildings. At various strategic points in front of Cunningham and the Science building, not to mention Student and Annex, they formed veritable recruiting stations. Everyone had to be on her look-out to counter-attack the attempt of blitzkrieg with conversation. For these garrulous young fellows showed no small amount of originality in their attempt at an invasion, their questions ranging from "Do we have anything in common?" to more clever attempts as "Are you from Which Chester?"

By Wednesday thirty-four thousand of the three hundred-thousand army troops headed for maneuvers in the Carolinas will have passed through our fair city. These troops come from camps in Maryland, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. Two of the contingents camped at Horse Pin Lake in Buckingham County and the third at the Prince Edward State Forest.

The soldiers were particularly impressed with the friendliness of the girls here; at least no one can say we're lacking in a good neighbor policy.

• Piercing the Points •

By SHIRLEY PIERCE

We are glad to welcome all freshmen and new girls to S. T. C. along with the many Farmville girls of '42, 43, and '44. For years our school has had girls registered from all parts of Virginia and nearby states—girls who make up the activity and life about the school. To the class of '45, we open our field of activities and hope you will join us in our work and fun.

Love Games or What?

Old girls were surprised, but delighted to see the new tennis courts which were made during the summer months. Great effort and a large sum of money was spent on this project; and it is not only requested, but required that girls use the courts according to the several rules issued. The courts are for you to play on at all times, but tennis shoes must be worn.

The tennis matches which the A. A. sponsored last Saturday sought out interested players and gave them the opportunity of playing various people, both experienced and inexperienced. Yes, the courts are yours—use them!

Attention, Freshmen . . .

Some news is good and then again some isn't, but whether it is or not freshmen must start taking the standard American Red Cross Beginners tests which will be given this quarter. It is asked that all girls who are unable to swim enter the classes given in the afternoons for this purpose. Nancy Dupuy, instructor, along with several assistants will teach the necessary requirements. Please do not wait until the last of the quarter to "learn to swim in six easy lessons". It just isn't done this way. Watch the schedule of the pool on the bulletin board for the time.

That's not all our pool offers. Several days a week there is recreational swimming and then again on Saturday nights. Use the regulation tank suits sold by the H20 Club in the locker room. And for your convenience a hair dryer has been installed. It is located at the far end of the shower room.

Freshmen, What About Those Rat Caps?

The new athletic field, which is larger and better than the old, is located in the back of the tennis courts waiting for the first string of athletes to rush out. Soon the notice will be posted, "All girls interested in hockey meet on the athletic field ready for practice." It is hoped that new and old girls will join their classes and colors in the game. And yes, shall the freshmen wear their rat caps until color rush or until Christmas? This will be decided when the big game is played between the teams. You'd all better start practice.

Two of our students, Hallie Hillsman and Sara Hardy, attended the hockey camp the week beginning September the second and ending the tenth. This camp, located at Mt. Pocono, Pennsylvania, was held under the leadership of an English lady, Miss Appleby, who first started hockey in the United States. At the beginning of camp the girls were taught the theory of hockey and stick work instruction. Later on they played games in the afternoon, competing with high schools and small colleges. Even with all the stars at the camp, our girls were told they made a good showing because of their experience and training at Farmville.

Shown here is a view of the four new tennis courts which the college has constructed on the old hockey field.

Riding Classes Begin This Week

Miss Fox Makes New Offer to Girls

Miss Stella Fox, riding instructor, is back again this year and plans to schedule riding classes this week. Girls who are interested in horseback riding may have an interview with her in the Riding Club room any day after dinner. She is there to schedule rides and give any information desired about the S. T. C. riding club, Pegasus.

A new offer is available to girls riding this year. Miss Fox is offering a one quarter ticket for $10, which offers thirteen rides, or a year's ticket for $30. Tickets are on sale in the Pegasus club room which is located just to the left in the recreational hall.

Any girl in school may become a member of the Riding Club whether she rides or not. Watch the schedule of meetings which will be posted soon for the first meeting of the year.

Swim Suits Now on Sale!

Have you bought your tank suit? It is necessary to purchase either a grey or a green suit to use in the college pool.

All old girls who wish to use their suits from last year may get their new number by signing up in the shower room. Grey suits may be purchased for 50 cents, old green suits for $1.00, and new suits for $1.65.

The pool will be opened this week for recreational-swimming in the afternoon. Classes will be taught by Nancy Dupuy, a senior at S. T. C. and an intructor in American Red Cross Life Saving and Water Safety.

Sometime in November an intructor's course in Life Saving will be taught at the college pool.

Enrollment

Each group of freshmen met with its advisor last Friday and will have group meetings again this Friday. Individual conferences when needed will be held throughout the year.

Payne Places First In Tennis Match

Second Match Set For Nov. Week

Anne Payne, freshman from Roanoke, was first place winner of the tennis matches which were played Saturday afternoon, September 27, from 2 p. m. until 4 p. m. Ruth Dugger, sophomore, and Mildred Ames, freshman, copped second and third places respectively.

The matches, sponsored by the Athletic Association, were arranged for those interested in the tennis game, and was not in the form of an elimination tournament. Each girl who entered played several games each time with a different opponent. The final winner was determined by the player winning the largest number of games.

Because of the interest shown in tennis games played in this manner, another set of matches are being planned for the first week in November. Girls who wish to enter must sign up on the bulletin board before the date of the matches.

Participants in Saturday's games were June Fortescue, Ruth Dugger Hilah Lee Parks, Helen G. Wilson, Edith Lovins, Bobbie Scott, Gloria Besser, Mildred Ames, Rachel Bourne, Dot Johnson, Ann Harrington, Anne Marterstein, Anne Payne, Ophelia Whittie, Kathryn Baker, and Patsy Connelly.

Somebody whistles a few bars of a catchy tune.
Others pick it up.
Soon the whole country's whistling it. It's a hit.

Somebody lights up a cigarette.
Likes it. Passes the word along.
Soon the whole country's smoking it.
It's a hit. IT'S CHESTERFIELD.

The big thing that's pushing Chesterfield ahead
Is the approval of smokers like yourself.
Chesterfields are definitely Milder,
Cooler-Smoking and Better-Tasting.
They're made of the world's best cigarette tobaccos
Blended just right to give you more smoking pleasure.

But even these facts wouldn't count
If smokers didn't just naturally like them.
Once a smoker finds out from Chesterfield
What real smoking pleasure is, nothing else will do.
Yes, fellow smokers, IT'S YOUR APPROVAL
THAT'S PUSHING CHESTERFIELD AHEAD.

Colonnade Short Story Contest Ends October 10

The Rotunda

EDITORIAL COMMENT: History in the Making

Volume XXI | FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA, WEDNESDAY, OCT. 8, 1941 | No. 2

V. I. P. A. Convenes On S. T. C. Campus November 7 and 8

Journalists of Note Head Discussions

Farmville State Teachers College and Hampden-Sydney College will be joint host and hostess to seventy-five out-of-town delegates when the Virginia Interscholastic Press Association convenes on this campus November 7 and 8.

Allene Overbey, president of the organization, announces that registration for editors, business managers, and staff members representing twenty-nine Virginia colleges, will begin at 9 o'clock Friday morning, November 7.

Contests Included

The registration committee will receive at this time the registration of all delegates and publications in the four contest classes which include college annuals for 1941, handbooks for 1941, magazines for 1940-41, and four consecutive copies of the newspaper published between November 9, 1940 and November 6, 1941.

Certificates will be awarded winners in the various groups.

The Colonnade for the past two years has been awarded second place in the magazine contest.

The program of events will feature well-known professional and college journalists as speakers and leaders for the discussion groups for yearbooks, magazines and handbooks, sports writing, business managers, news writing, make-up and coverage, and editorial policy.

Local committees and chairmen include registration and quarters, May Wertz and Ranny Munt; publicity, Sara Cline and Buck Crockett; banquet, Anne Ayers; meals, T. T. Atkinson; socials, Billy Trinkle; and programs, Mary Hunter Edmunds.

Library Secures Current Novels; Use Incurs Dental Lee

On the "for rent" shelf of the library many of the new books can be found. Miss Mary Snead, librarian, announces that Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings' new book "When The Whippowill - -", "How Green was my Valley," by Richard Llewellyn and "They Went On Together", by Robert Nathan, have been purchased and placed on the "for rent" shelf.

In way of historical novels there are "Theodosia, Daughter of Aron Burr" by Anne Colver and "Give Me Liberty" by John Erstine. The library has also acquired Faith Baldwin's "And New Stars Burn", and in the way of mysteries there is "Curiosity Killed a Cat" by Anne Rowe. There is also Willa Cather's "Sapphira and the Slave Girl"; "Random Harvest" by James Hilton, and a new one by Lloyd C. Douglas entitled "Invitation to Live".

In addition to these the reader will find A. J. Cronin's "Keys to the Kingdom" and "White Oak Heritage" by Mazo De La Roche.

These books may be secured at a fee of two cents per day.

Rotunda "First Class," Says Collegiate Press

The Rotunda has received word from the Associated Collegiate Press that it has been given the honor rating of "first class-excellent" in the second semester All-American critical service. This is 100 points below "All-American-superior" rating.

This is the first time The Rotunda has received this high a rating. The first semester's papers of 1940 were designated "second class—good".

The total number of papers judged in this fourth All-American critical service for second semester papers was 510. Ten other colleges with enrollments from 500-999 received the rating "first class".

Increased score ratings were given for news coverage, news writing and editing, copyreading and proofreading, front page makeup, features, and sports coverage.

"A list of those papers winning honor ratings will be published in the November issue of the Scholastic Editor and in the next issue of the Collegiate Press Review", Fred L. Kildow, director of the contest, wrote.

"Your honor rating, if your paper was entered in Critical Service No. 1 or No. 2, was determined after all the papers in your group were judged by standards set by the papers themselves. The score your paper received placed it in position for consideration and comparison with the others in its group. Minor changes may have been made in the score as a result of this comparison. Your honor rating was awarded after a careful study of the group as a whole and as a result of conscientious judgment on the part of the critics and the supervising judge," read the scorebook.

Seniors Schedule Dance For Dec. 6

Overbey Named Class Historian

Senior dance was set last night by the senior class for Saturday December 6. This dance is given each year in honor of the senior class.

Also at the meeting Shirley McCalley Miriam Hanvey, Lucie Ellen Powell, Mary Charlotte Jones, Sue Marshall, and Flora Winn were elected senior chaperons. The duties of these girls will be to accompany students to the offices of the town doctor and dentist and to Hampden-Sydney football games. The class historian will be Allene Overbey.

Senior installation has been set for Thursday, October 16, immediately after dinner. Prayers will not be held that eveing. From his time on, senior chapel will be held each Friday. The seniors march in wearing their caps and gowns, while the rest of the student body stands to sing the Alma Mater.

Ayers Sets Oct. 27-31 For Group Pictures

Anne Ayers, editor of the 1942 Virginian, announces that group pictures will be taken the last week in October. Individual pictures are being taken this week by the Gitchell Studio of Harrisonburg, Virginia.

The first subscription drive has resulted in two hundred subscriptions to the Virginian. The pictures of eight girls who will be elected by the entire student body on the basis of their contributions to the college will comprise the feature section of the Virginian.

Johnson Appoints Circus Chairmen

Dorothy Johnson, general chairman, has announced the committees for the annual circus sponsored by Alpha Kappa Gamma. The date of the circus has not been set as yet.

Allene Overbey and Nancy Naff will be in charge of class stunts; Frances Rosebro and Lucy Turnbill, animals and presentation of their stunts; Margaret Wright and Jane Engleby, decorations; Mary Katherine Dodson and Caroline Eason, selection of queen and her presentation; Sara Cline and Nancy Dupuy, parade; Elizabeth Ann Parker, publicity; and Anne Ayers, tickets.

S. T. C. To Act As Film Distributor

Johnson Will Teach Audio-Visual Class

In a state program, the Virginia Department of Education has established five centers for the distribution of educational audio-visual films to the schools within each section. There are four white centers and one colored center, the white being located at Farmville, East Radford Harrisonburg, and Richmond, and the colored at Ettrick at Virginia state College. Richmond is also the center for commercial films.

This program now covers the territory of twenty-two counties and three cities, Danville, Fredericksburg, and Lynchburg.

Films Cover 100 Subjects

Each center has films covering about one hundred subjects, which have been selected by teachers in cooperation with the state department to fit in with the curricula of the schools.

These films are available at no charge except transportation and a small insurance fee, to all schools which register. Each school is allowed thirty films a year.

This college, the high schools and the elementary schools in this district, will have the use of these films,

Johnson Will Teach

A class will be taught in audio-visual education by Mr. Johnson which will be open to outsiders and faculty members as well as students.

Granddaughters Club Inducts 42 Girls Into Membership

Forty-two members were initiated into the Granddaughters Club Monday night, October 6. Polly Keller, president, announces that formal recognition will be given these girls in the near future.

New members are Marilyn Johnson, Cecile Parr, Mildred Carter Clanton, Leone M. Rountree, Mildred D. Cook, Mary Sue Palmer, Marie Rippetoe, Ann Engart, Margaret Eppes Neaves, Virginia Lee Abernathy, Gary Page Stone, Virginia Kent Sedgley, Margaret Bear, Josephine Shaffner, and Alyce Fulton.

Mary Anne Jarratt, Mary Watkins, Peggy Becker, Ella Pool, Sarah East, Elizabeth Jones, Alice Wooding, Evelyn Baird, Carolyn Hayslett, Jean Hubbard, Molly Hardaway, Martha Hite, Mary Plummer Edmunds, Hannah Prosise, Eugenia Burke, Roberta Davis, Bernice Blair, Aille Beale, Elizabeth Edwards, Nannie Webb, Martha Upshur, Jane Brown, and Ophelia Whittle.

Colonnade Contest Closes October 10

All entries in the Colonnade Short Story Contest must be submitted to Allene Overbey, editor, or placed in the Colonnade box by Friday, October 10. All freshmen and new girls may enter the contest.

Prizes of $5, $3 and $1 will be awarded to those who place first, second and third respectively. Winning short stories to be published in one of the four issues of the Colonnade this year.

Judges for the contest are Miss Lucille Jennings and James M. Grainger, members of the advisory board; Virginia Barksdale and Mary Hunter Edmunds, staff members; and Jo Brumfield, from the student body.

Thespians To Stage "Little Minister" Here November 15

Names of Players To Be Released Soon

"The Little Minister" by the late James M. Barrie has been selected by the S. T. C. Dramatic Club and the H.-S. Jongleurs as their fall production which will be presented in the S. T. C. auditorium Friday, November 14, at 8 p. m.

The cast for the play has not been selected as yet. Tryouts for parts have been held for the past week and an announcement of the victors will be made next week.

As there is no printed dramatic version of the story, the cast is preparing the script from a manuscript which Miss Leola Wheeler, S. T. C. dramatic director, obtained. This is being revised by the substitution of lines from the book.

The play, adapted from the novel of the same name, tells the story of the trials and tribulations of a young Scotch minister, Gavin Dishart, in a little provincial village in southern Scotland. He becomes involved in an industrial riot and a love affair with a gypsy girl which brings on a church quarrel.

"The Little Minister" was made famous by Maud Adams, who played the part of Babi for a number of years. A few year ago in a cinema version of the play, Katherine Hepburn played the same part.

Last year the Dramatic Club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs presented James M. Barrie's, "What Every Woman Knows".

Miss Ida Penny Gains Recognition in Contest

By MARY PARRISH VICELLIO

Miss Ida Woodrow Penny, supervisor of the Campus Training School, won honorable mention for her article, "The Great Smoky Mountains Park," which she submitted to the travel contest of The Instructor.

Miss Penny, who lives near the mountains in the summer, was inspired to respond to the travel contest which The Instructor, one of the leading educational magazines, sponsors in order that her fellow teachers might enjoy with her the grandeur of the Smokies.

In her own words Miss Penny said, "I live near the mountains in the summer and have been to the park several times. Last spring as I was thinking in terms of vacation and looking forward to going again to the mountains, I decided to share what I knew about the Great Smokies with my fellow teachers. I wrote up the trip in the reverse order in which I had already taken it; thus almost making a new trip of it".

From the very first Miss Penny said that she wrote with no regard as to prize. Her primary motive was to share with the others of her profession the magnificient beauty and grandeur of the mountains.

Miss Penny has had other works published. In 1934 she, in collaboration with Miss Grace Mix and Miss Nancy Foster, wrote a book for teaching children's literature which was published by the Glow Publishing Company in New York. This book is now used at the Training School.

In an interview with Miss Penny about her article, she said that she described fifty points of interest. Her entire article was not published; but Miss Penny is thoroughly convinced that should it be printed in its entirely, many teachers would spend their vacations in the Great Smoky Mountains.

Soph Commission Organizes Freshman Y .W. Club Tonight

BETTY BRIDGEFORTH

Dr. Jeffers Speaks; Bridgeforth Heads Commission Group

Betty Bridgeforth, sophomore from Kenbridge, was elected by members of the Sophomore Commission as head of the organization for 1941-42. Betty replaces Dreama Waid who did not return this fall.

Members Added

Louise Bell, Faye Nimmo, and Ella Banks Weathers were victorious in the election for new commission members. These three girls fill the vacancies created by the failure of Virginia Hill, Kitty King, and Dreama Waid to return this fall.

Meet Freshmen Tonight

Tonight at 9:30 p. m. in Student Building Lounge, members of the Sophomore Commission will meet all freshmen and new girls with the purpose of organizing a Freshman Y. W. C. A. Club. Included on the program is an address by Dr. George W. Jeffers on the subject, "A College Girl's Philosophy of Life".

This club, which is scheduled to meet every second and fourth Wednesday in the month is being organized that freshmen may be orientated into the Y. W. C. A., that freshmen may have a definite part in the Y. W. C. A., and that the Freshman Commission may be trained to assume its duties.

Freshmen and new girls will be installed into the Y. W. C. A. Club Monday evening, October 13, in the auditorium. Frances Rosebro, president of the Y. W. C. A., assisted by members of the Cabinet, will conduct the ceremony.

Club Is Novel

The regular freshman Y. W. C. A. committees are being abandoned with the introduction of this club. Plans have been formulated for the club which call for a program each meeting. Faculty and student speakers will be included as features of these programs.

On October 22, a fashion show will highlight the meeting. At this time a student, whose name will be revealed later, will speak on the topic, "Making the Most of Your Appearance".

The Sophomore Commission, which was organized on this campus in 1939, is composed of seventeen members and a councelor. Eleanor Folk acts as councelor for the group. The members are Mary Keith Bingham, Louise Bell, Betty Bridgeforth, Patsy Connelly, Judy Eason, Dorothy Gaul, Helen Gilliam, Lulie Jones, Sara Jeffreys, Louise McCorkle, Faye Nimmo, Shirley Pierce, Dorothy Sue Simmons, Doris Taylor, Mary Parrish, Vicellio, Nancy Lee Williamson, and Ella Banks Weathers.

110 Degree Grads Teach in Virginia

Of the 138 graduates of the degree class of 1941, 111 received teaching positions, 13 decided not to teach, 5 are married, and the rest are either continuing their education or doing some other type of work. There were 22 seniors who did not register with the placement bureau.

The summary of calls received by the college was 4 principals of elementary schools, 112 high school teachers, 9 teacher-librarians, and 190 elementary teachers.

Fifty-seven county superintendents in Virginia and ten city superintendents asked for teachers. The cities were Charlottesville, Clifton Forge, Fredericksburg, Harrisonburg, Lynchburg, Norfolk, Portsmouth Staunton, Suffolk, and Willlamsburg. A number of calls were received from North Caroline, Tennessee, Maryland and Ohio.

Graduates of the degree class who are teaching are—

Irene Olderman, Holland; Marie Bird Allen, Norfolk County; Aselta Altomare, New York State; Louise Applewhite, Southampton County; Alice Leigh Barham, Norfolk County; Carmen Booth, Pittsylvania County.

Beorc Eh Thorn Plans Study of Pulitzer Awards and Winners

May Wertz, president of Beorc Eh Thorn, announces that a study of the Pulitzer Prize awards will be a feature of the English honor fraternity's program this year. Included in these discussions will be the authors' lives and literary contributions.

The works to be studied are Leonard Baker's poetry; Robert Sherwood's drama, "There Shall Be No Night"; Elizabeth Winslow's biography, Jonathan Edwards; and Marcus Lee Hansen's history, "His Atlantic Migration."

In cooperation with the lyceum program, Beorc Eh Thorn has also scheduled for December 1 and 2 the public appearance of Dr. Charles Morgan, novelist.

What Shall It Be?

A controversy of interest to all collegians is that over extra-curricular activities. Many students favor de-emphasizing campus undertakings of a non-scholastic nature, others feel that extra-curricular activities are a healthy and desirable phase of college life.

At Farmville we have taken an intermediate position. Last year the student body adopted a point system by which each office would carry a stated number of points and when these points had reached a certain total that person would not be allowed to accept further positions. And, remembering that scholarship should be a determining basis for participation, the plan required that a student maintain an average of not less than B in order to carry sixteen points; a student with an average of C plus could carry no more than fourteen points; and a student with an average of C could carry no more than twelve points.

As far as reducing the responsibilities of leadership from a small and select group, the program has been successful. However, we feel that another point of emphasis in accordance with the plan has been overlooked—that of selecting one major activity. Too often we dissipate our energies over many organizations when concentration would be more beneficial both to the individual and to the organization.

All organizations must have a head. This we concede. But that we are all equipped with the abilities to head several organizations is probable, but not likely. Accept interest as the prime factor; then choose your organizations and concentrate your abilities in this field—be it student government, Y. W. C. A., dramatics, music, or journalism.

Dr. Garry Cleveland Myers, autnor of a syndicated newspaper column remarks that "in most college groups, excellence in scholarship alone does not get a student very far in the estimation of his college mates. The bookworm is not important on the campus. As a result, many of the ablest scholars are wearing themselves out trying to do too many things. With only so many hours a day at their disposal, they keep up their scholastic standing, if they do, by using for study what they need for sleep or relaxation. I wish that we might persuade the youth in college to use his head and not be carried away by temporary pressures for popularity. Then he would resolve to select one major activity and try to do well in it and not dissipate his energies over many.'

History-Making

Tonight at 9:30 p. m. the Sophomore Commission will make history when it meets all freshmen and new girls with the purpose of setting up a Freshman Y. W. C. A. Club. This club will be a definite innovation in the Y. W. C. A., for it will mean the abandonment of individual freshman Y. W. C. A. committees.

Formerly each committee chairman explained the workings of her committee at a general Y. W. C. A. meeting. Then after all committees had been interpreted, freshmen were urged to sign cards designating their preference for a particular committee. Usually this meant: that the committee chairman who presented her work in the cleverest manner signed more girls for her committee. Or that the committees were explained in such a brief interval of time that the underclassman could not give proper thought before signing for a certain committee. As a result, girls joined committees that held no interest for them; and, thinking they could not change, they became inactive members.

Now the Sophomore Commission hopes to right this deplorable state. Rather than segregate girls into committees, they will work as a unit, specializing where they wish. In this way, we believe that direct results will be produced which will signify more active participation of new girls in the Y. W. C. A. and increased contributions to the betterment of college activities.

We welcome this club to the realm of Farmville's organizations, since for a long time we have felt the need of coalescing freshman Y. W. C. A. into one general body. We are looking forward to the time when the Sophomore Commission will be viewed as an instrument of Y. W. C. A. orientation.

On Undirected Leisure

National defense and welfare are dependent upon the development of a strong, healthy people. A positive program of physical, mental and social fitness is needed. This program must start in childhood and youth to lay the foundations for healthy adult life. It is a long-range program. Children, youth and adults need to learn a variety of leisure time skills, such as are offered in physical education, for use now and in the future. Frustrated, neglected, or bored people have low morale. Physical education renders an indispensable service to morale improvement through the development of leisure time skills and the opportunities which it offers for their expression.—A. C. P.

Letter: Freshman Speaks "In Defense of Bangs"

Dear Editor:

"In Defense of bangs" shall be the subject of my dissertation.

In the first place, we think bangs are cute. In the last Rotunda, upperclassmen were warned that "competition is keen", proving that the male animal agrees whole-heartedly with our statement. Maybe you've noted that 'banged" girls are generally all dated up. For example, one bang enthusiast had no less than five dates in one short afternoon. Do we need further proof that they are the thing?

Thirdly, fashion declares that one should have that "little girl" look. There are pinafores pigtails, huge bows in the hair, and knee length socks. Why not bangs to further achieve this illusion?

And lastly, don't you truly think in your secret heart that really nothing is more divine, delectable wholly darling, than a short, softly curling mass above your brows? Or that the straight variety are even more bewitching? Now, honestly, don't you agree?

Sincerely,
Fay Johnson

Looking 'Em Over

Among Things Added to Our Jewelry and Other Collections: Have you noticed Gay Ward's new Cotillion Club pin? Moomie's Sigma Chi pin? and Gracie Hutch, why don't you start a florist shop with your twenty-one roses and also gardenias. Add Polly Hughes who received red roses yesterday for her birthday—special delivery, too. Card read: Love, Dick.

"Here is Your Party": And the wires were really hot this weekend with Anne Ware and Buster, and Sadie and Bob going strong.

Disappointed: What young lady had that woeful face at the train station Saturday? Anyhow, all is forgiven now, isn't it May Winn?

Slips That Pass in the Night: Sarah Wade had her choice on Saturday night, but her friends (?) "knew what they wanted", too! (can you figure it out?) (it's in code).

Happiest People We've Seen on Campus: Eleanor Folk and Fred, Libby and Joe, Nancy and Billy, Mary Lou and D.—but this could go on forever!

Over There! Over There: We know that Dot Childress' sympathies are really with England now. In case you haven't heard, Leigh Tate has been sent to England by the air corps.

Mail Order Department: We understand that Polly Keller is an enthusiastic new customer of Montgomery-Ward these days. We were always partial to that skirt, Polly!

Indian Summer Madness: What could there have possibly been in Helen Ott's week-end madness? Ah! those Tech-men. Include the weather in this "madness". Which reminds us, have you heard the latest report from the Mexican reporter Lacucaracha, "Chile today, hot tomale."

Return of the Native: Well not quite, but anyway it was mighty good to see Mary Keith Bingham back. Include also Peggy Lou Boyette and Nancy Saunders, who were here Sunday afternoon.

Information Please: Hear Ye! Hear ye! all people interested in hearing all 'bout Ring Figures please consult Ella Marsh. She's only attending two this year.

Failed Again: Sexton's life ambition has been to attend a dance at V. P. I.—well, a'most. She arrived there all right, but the tables were turned. She ended up at a weenie-roast. Arf! Arf!

Post Office Department: Letters from Panama have been frequent to Allene, May Winn, Gay Ward, and Sadie. Rumor has it that a copy of the Rotunda found its way thither and the names were secured from it . . . Amy Read is keeping the airways from Boston busy with those air mail messages. You haven't been holding out on us, have you Amy?

Keeping Up with the Sports: Jack Hardy seen at the Duke-Tennesese game; Louise Bell at the W. & L.-Kentucky game; B. Reid in Lynchburg with that young man from U. of N. C. . . . We hope you didn't go to sleep in the movies, Betty.

Out of This World: Dawn Shanklin recently made an open declaration that "this peculiar feeling" she has been experiencing lately must be love . . . Another victim.

Bumping Along: Jerry Smith and Lilly Bee were bouncing so much from excitement of their week-end in Lexington that two wheels fell off the bus coming round the mountain on the return trip—that was a "Grand Finale."

Additional Notes: We understand that Faye Nimmo was in her glory this week-end at Tech with Jack. But the girls who spent the week-end away had absolute'y nothing on the girls in Senior Annex—they had their own Conga line!

Mary Lou and Camp Lee. Need any more be said?

Betty Youngberg and Bud. No more V. P. I., but interests may be at Randolph-Macon, as Ashland is just across the tracks.

Virginia Alexander and Bill. Gave back K. A. pin one Sunday night and received another of the same flavor Monday night.

Polly Keller and Barney. Ohio finally triumphed in the match against U. of Va.

Farmville Students Challenge Statement of Shakespeare

By JANE WARING RUFFIN

The Rotunda, The Colonnade, The Virginian. What's in a name? Shakespeare said, "That which we call a rose by any other name would smell as sweet." But students at Farmville do not believe that that which they call the Rotunda or the Colonnade or the Virginian could be called otherwise, for the names of these publications have a very special significance.

The Virginian is the oldest of the publications, the first number having appeared in 1900. Farmville at that time was the only State Teachers College. It was then known as the State Normal School for Females and because of its position was privileged to name its annual after our state, Virginia. The name has remained the same throughout the years, until now the Virginians, records of each year of college life, are the cherished possessions of every Farmville alumna.

The Rotunda, the newspaper, was the outgrowth of a desire on the part of the students in 1919 to publish a weekly instead of their customary monthly magazine. The magazine at that time was The Focus, supposedly because it focused the students' attention on school activities and interests. For sometime after this magazine was discontinued and the weekly begun, no suitable name was found for the paper and the new publication was known as The Dummy.

Then a student, remembering the significance of the name of the former magazine, pointed out that the Rotunda, the beautiful architectual design in Main Building, was the focusing place of most student activities; and that since the paper was to concern itself with these activities, the name of the weekly publication rightfully should be The Rotunda. And so The Dummy was christened.

In 1937 a new name was sought for the literary magazine. Anne Dugger, a student at Farmville S. T. C., saw a relationship between the weekly newspaper and the literary magazine. She also saw a connection between our two outstanding architectual design, the Rotunda and the Colonnade. So she suggested that since the paper was The Rotunda, the literary magazine, published four times a year, be named the Colonnade. And thus it was.

At times the two Rotundas or the two Colonnades may be confusing; but nevertheless, S. T. C. students are inclined to disagree with the immortal Shakespeare.

Gleanings

By MARY HUNTER EDMUNDS

The surprising resistance which the Russians have put up in face of the Nazi blitzkrieg, the confirmed hope of greater participation on the part of America in the present war, the underground propaganda from Moscow and London have combined to bring about uprisings among the more daring of the conquered peoples of Europe.

Certainly these present disturbances are giving Germany and Italy plenty of trouble and at a time when they can least afford it. Hitler has his hands full with Russia, fuller than he bargained for.

In Hitler's own words, his "new order" for Europe promises a "fruitful, peaceful, and harmonious collaboration between all peoples of the European continent.

New Order Is "Tommyrot"

That is a lot of tommyrot. The only way Hitler could ever achieve a so called "harmonious collaboration", as everyone knows, is by completely subjecting all the lesser peoples of Europe, by setting up Germany as a Master State with himself in sole control of the destinies of every people.

As one writer has put it: "The 'Europe' of which Hitler speaks is so'ely the 'Europe' of his paranoiac dreams—a place from which such brave men have utterly exterminated, a place peopled by none save subservient Quislings, Lavals, and Darlans, a land filled with slaves toiling to produce armaments for ultimate world-domination by a bloated German Reich."

For the Colonel's Protection?

Charles A. Lindbergh seems to keep putting his foot into it. It is interesting to note that since his public comments on the Jewish question, the officials of the America First Committee have agreed to examine all future speeches in advance to be delivered by Mr. Lindbergh. . . Maybe it is for the Colonel's own protection.

America Looms Ahead

America's engineers are on their toes these days, busily remodeling, improving, inventing. The most recent development is the assembling by the Link-Belt Company of the world's most outstanding anti-aircraft gun. It is so constructed that it can be lowered and used against tanks and can shoot higher than 36,000 feet into the air, making no bombing plane above its range . . . The United States plans to be prepared.

The American Red Cross beginners test is required of all freshmen as a part of their physical education course. "To swim with such skill and with such degree of efficiency that she will be able to take care of herself in and on the water under practically all normal conditions" is the aim or goal of this requirement.

The test which is given includes the fundamentals of beginning swimming, of the correct way to breathe, kick stroke, turn, dive, and float. The instructions to those who are non-swimmers are given on Wednesday afternoons from 4 P. M. until 5:30 P. M. at the pool. Tests may also be taken at this time. The test is not long or hard, but it is essential!

Riding Club Closes "Open Membership"—

Riding classes under the instruction of Miss Stelia Fox are in full progress. Last year the S. T. C. riding club, Pegasus, was open for membership to any girl in school, but now the organization is composed only of those who take active part in the riding program. This eliminates the group to those who really want to be members, attend the important meetings, and take an active part in the work of the club.

An important part in any game is "how it is played". Simple rules and techniques go to make up one of our famous fall sports, hockey. The afternoons have been warm and a tired feeling has been the complaint of many, but soon a brisk wind will dash about the athletic field; and then the vigorous players will put to work all those practice lessons.

Varsity Hockey Squad Will eB Selected

S. T. C. will have hockey games, and from the players a varsity squad will be selected. To reach this goal, it, of course, takes practice. Instructor and student helpers are out there to give aid and show the secrets of "how to hit the ball, when to hit it, and just where the goal is!" Girls from each class must attend all practices in order to organize the class teams which will compete on the day of the color rush.

We have at last gotten to the bottom of the tennis court make-up, and find that real work was put into the making. There is a possibility of a tennis team being organized, and with such fine material around the school it shouldn't be hard. But, it must always be remembered that proper care of the courts is necessary. Individual instruction, for the purpose of aiding anyone who may wish to learn a particular phase of tennis, will be given by Ruth Dugger on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons from 4 o'clock until 5 o'clock on the courts.

Hockey Season Opens On New Athletic Field

Varsity Team Slated To Compete in State Hockey Tourney

S. T. C. opened its hockey season of 1941 October 1 when thirty-five students reported to the new athletic field. This year Hallie Hillsman will manage hockey, assisted by Sarah Hardy and Mildred Droste.

A varsity team will be chosen this year to compete in the State Hockey Tournament at Richmond, which is scheduled for November 1. The team will be composed of the best players in each class that have the required number of practices. This is the first time since the fall of 1939 that S. T. C. has had a varsity team. Several games will also be played against other schools.

Girls who report'ed for practice from the sophomore class are Jane Hobson, Lee Foster, Dottie Sue Simmons, Ruth Dugger, Sarah Hardy, Lulie Jones, Faye Nimmo, Shirley Pierce, Vivian Gwaltney, Mildred Droste, and Dot Gaul. Junior class players are Hallie Hillsman, Anne Price, Jean Carr, Edna Brown, and Ruth Fraughnaugh. Harriette Walker and Dot Johnson represented the senior class at prac'tice.

The freshmen who appeared on the field for instruction are Betty Cross, Mary Watts, Dick Butterworth, Helen Wilson, Ophelia Whittle, Jane Moseley, Bobbie Scott, Birdie Williams, Nellie Varn, Polly Booth, Edith Sandford, Jane Ruffin, Claudia Hardaway, Joan Haddon, Nancy Hall, Alice Nichols, and Sherwood Knight.

Instructors Course Begins October 13

Announcement was made this week concerning the instructors course in first aid and in swimming that will begin at the pool the week of October 13.

The instruction will be given for the benefit of Hampden-Sydney boys as well as S. T. C. girls. Individuals planning to take the course must have fifteen hours of practice before November 28 when Max Rote, Jr., field director of the National Red Cross Association, will come to assist Nancy Dupuy, student swimming instructor, in administering the final tests.

Buff Gunter Elected Officer of H20 Club

Buff Gunter, senior, was elected secertary-treasurer of the H2O Club last Thursday, October 2. The office was formerly held by Nancy Dupuy who resigned because of the point system.

Plans are now being formulated by the club for a number of swimming events which will take place throughout this year. The tentative plans call for a varsity swimming team, water pageant, and inter-class swimming meets.

Instruction Classes In Swimming Set For Next Week

Nancy Dupuy, instructor, assisted by Dorothy Darracott and Mildred Droste, will begin instruction classes next week for freshmen and sophomores who have not passed the standard swimming test required of college freshmen.

Classes for freshmen will be arranged according to alphabetical order. The plain dive and use of two strokes are among the requirements for passing.

Nancy also announced the pool schedule for the fall quarter.

On Monday and Thursday afternoons and Saturday night the pool will be open for recreational swimming. Instruction for upper classmen will be given on Tuesday afternoon. Freshmen will receive instruction on Wednesday afternoon.

Integrated Sports Program Will Be Offered This Fall

Individual Instructions In Hockey, Basketball, Archery, Tennis and Golf Will Be Available to All Students

Individual instructions in hockey, basketball, archery, tennis, and golf will be offered by the Athletic Association beginning this week to all interested students.

New at Farmville

This feature is an innovation in the sport program at Farmville. Previously opportunities for such instruction in these sports have not been available at the same time.

Hockey instructions will be given every day at 4 p. m.; basketball for the freshmen on Monday at 4 p. m. and on Wednesday at 4 p. m. for the upperclassmen: archery on Monday-Thursday at 4 p. m.; tennis on Wednesday and Thursday at 4 p. m.; and golf on Tuesday and Wednesday at 4 p. m.

The equipment for hockey, basketball, archery, and golf is free, but students will have to furnish their own racquets and tennis balls.

Instructions in hockey, basketball, archery, and tennis will be given at their respective courts, while golf will be played at Longwood. Students may practice golf, archery and tennis at any time.

Southern Telegraphic Regional Swim Meet Slated for January

S. T. C.'s H2O Club, which sponsors the Southern Telegraphic Regional Swimming meet, announces plans for the Southern Telegraphic meet which will take p'ace throughout the month of January.

The Southern Region is composed of all the colleges in the south that can meet the pool requirements and the specifications of three judges and three stopwatches for each of the three tryouts. The best results of the tryouts will be placed in the results of the Southern Region as well as in the national results.

The 100 yard breast stroke, 40 yard back stroke, 100 yard free style relay, 75 yard medley relay, 40 yard breast stroke, 100 yard crawl, 40 yard crawl, 100 yard back stroke, and 40 yard back stroke are the events which will be offered.

Visiting Ventures—To Petersburg for the week-end went Gay Ward Brown and Alice Marie Coberly, while Virginia Barksdale and Betty Peerman treked to Danville to attend a wedding there, and Nancy Dupuy visited in Greensboro, N. C.

Homeward, ho!—Many a chronic case of nostalgia needed relief so home provided the favorite retreat as always. Phylis Akers, Esther Atkinson, Virginia Ellett, Anne Ellett, Charlotte Greeley, Martha Blake, Nancye Allen, Libby Bernard, Helen Cobb, Ruth Fraughnaugh, Jane Freeman, Dick Butterworth, and Martha Hammock saw to that.

Swish Socials
And Weddings

Those wedding bells rang their little hearts out this summer for S. T. C. alumnae-old and more recent. In June Mary Elizabeth Peticrew, class of '41, was married to Gerald Dederick in Roanoke; the same month Robin Hening, class of '43, and Robert Engle were married in White Plains, N. Y.; and one June 28 at Norfolk Jane Waller, class of '43, became the bride of Clarence St. Julien Canon. Marie Eason, class of '39, chose August 30 as the date of her wedding to Walter Taylor Reveley; while the week before Vera Ebel's marriage to Robert B. Elmore took place in Richmond. On September 17 Kay Horsley, class of '40 was married to Frank Booker at her home in Lovingston.

Others have slipped engagement rings on during the course of the summer. among those being Madge Horne, class of '40, whose engagement to Robert E. Taylor of Farmville was announced during the summer. She was married October 4 at her home in Tazewell.

Debate Club Issues Bids to Seven Girls

Ann Randolph, junior; Mildred Cerven Jane Smith, Dorothy Gaul and Josephine Starling, sophomores; and Alice Nichols and Virginia Sedgley, freshmen, have been issued bids to the Debate Club.

Try outs for the Debate Club were held on Monday from 5 o'clock until 6 o'clock. Additional try outs will be held at a later date for other girls who wish to compete for membership.

Margie Rice is president of the Debate Club.

Vogue Announces Two Career Prizes

This year, for the second time, Vogue is offering two careers in photography to one man and one woman who will be graduating from college in the class of 1942.

The contest offers two career prizes, each consisting of a six months' apprenticeship, with salary, in the Conde Nast Studios in New York. Each award carries with it the possibility of a permanent position on completion of the period of apprenticeship.

"Frankly an experiment in 1940" Vogue says, "the first photographic contest has more than justified our belief that the college campuses of this country are a rich source of fresh talent in the field of photography. The winners of the first contest, Margaret Green, Texas State College for Women '40, and Donald Honeyman, Iowa State College '40, have successfully served their periods of apprenticeship and are now full-fledged members of Vogue's photographic staff."

Vogue's Photographic Contest will consist of a series of eight problems. Problems one and two will appear in November 1 Vogue; problems three and four in December 1 Vogue; problems five and six in March 1 Vogue; and problem seven and eight in April 1 Vogue.

Any senior at S. T. C. interested in this contest may obtain the rules and entry blank from the editor of The Rotunda.

Miss Finch Attends Southern Meeting

Miss Mary D. Finch, instructor in religious education, returned Monday, October 6, from a three day joint meeting of the Southern Regional Councils of the student Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. which convened in Atlanta, Georgia.

Elected to the Southern Regional Council of the Y. W. C. A. at the summer conference in Talladega, Alabama, Miss Finch is one of two members on the council from Virginia.

The purpose of the convention was to determine the major emphasis for the southern region this year in the light of the recommendations from the National Intercollegiate Christian Council and of the knowledge of the colleges and their special needs in a war-torn world.

Alpha Sigma Tau Honors National Head

Alpha Sigma Tau Sorority entertained with a tea in the chapter room October 1 in honor of their national president, Mrs. Carrie W. Staehle, of Columbus, Ohio. All members of the Zeta Tau chapter were invited and the heads and advisers of other sororities on the campus.

On October 2, Mrs. Staehle was honoree at a banquet in the college tea room. Other guests were Dr. J. L. Jarman, Miss Mary White Cox, Miss Carolyn Cogbill, Miss Mary Nichols, and Miss Virginia Bedford.

Anne Turner made a welcoming address and toasts were given by Marie Thompson, Lucie Ellen Powell, Jean Arrington, Rachel Ammen, and Carroll Costello.

S.T.C. Girls Will Entertain Soldiers Tonight

9,000 Soldiers Camp In Vicinity Of Farmville

Town Population Doubled by Famed "First Division"

Tonight from 7 o'clock until 10 o'clock 150 juniors and seniors of Farmville State Teachers College will play the part of hospitable hostesses to soldiers of the U. S. Army at the Farmville Armory. A social, under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A., will highlight the evening's entertainment.

This is the second time this fall that the U. S. Army has camped in the vicinity of Farmville. Four thousand troops of the famous First Division of the Regular Army are bivouacing tonight at the Airport on the edge of town, and 5000 more of the same division are at near-by Bear Creek Lake in Cumberland County.

Population Doubled

The unit of 4000 at the Airport more than doubles the population of Farmville. These troops are the 18th U. S. Infantry regiment and batteries of field artillery and anti-aircraft guns. At Bear Creek Lake, the 16th and 26th U. S. Infantry regiments with field artillery and anti-craft batteries are camped.

[illegible] is headed for the maneuvers of 400,000 troops now being held in the Carolinas, and its motor vehicles travel faster than those of the National Guard or other troops. Today they came from Gettysburg, Pennsylvania.

Novelty Appeals to Girls

Entertaining these soldiers is a novel experiment to the college girls. "This project is in accordance with the national program of the Y. W. C. A. as it aims to cooperate with national 'defense'", Frances Rosebro, president of the college Y. W. C. A., said.

Polly Hughes, chairman of Sing committee, is in charge of the program.

The coming of the First Division here strikes a responsive chord in the heart of Acting Town Manager George Crichton, because during the World War in 1917 and '18, he served with that famous division of Regulars in France as a first sergeant in the 28th Infantry.

First Division Is Famous

The First Division is the only Division in the Unted States Army ever cited in General Orders. The citation was issued in France by the Commanding General, John J. Pershing, as General Order No 201. It was:

"The Commander in Chief has noted in this division a special pride of service and high state of morale, never broken by hardship or battle.

Wynne, Holton, Walmsley Teach Extension Courses

Dr. J. P. Wynne, S. M. Holton, Jr., and Dr. J. E. Walmsley are teaching extension courses. These courses, designed for those who are interested, are given by the University of Virginia in various schools of Virginia.

Dr. Walmsley is teaching a course in social problems and ethical theory and Mr. Holton is teaching the philosophy of Bode at Averett College in Danville.

Dr. J. P. Wynne is conducting a class at Boiling Junior High School in Petersburg.

Circus Breaks Tradition; To Arrive Friday, Oct. 31

October 31 has been designated Circus Day at Farmville State Teachers' College. Dorothy Johnson, general chairman, announces that the plans for the event have been completed and that this circus promises to be one [illegible] the school.

Previously the circus has been held on Saturday nights, but due to the inability of the circus committee to secure a free Saturday night, Friday was selected.

The various classes will have stunts with members of each class directing. A first prize will be given to that class deemed by the judges as having the best stunt, while a second prize will be offered to the group performing second best.

Irma Graff and Gerry Ackiss are chairmen of the senior class stunt, while Winifred Wright and Hallie Hillsman will be in charge of the junior's entertainment. Nelle Quinn will be head of the sophomore committee and Ruth Parker will act as head of the freshman stunt committee.

The present junior class as sophomores last year were judged as having the best stunt in the 1940 circus.

The identity of the circus queen and the ringmaster will be withheld until they make their appearance the night of the performance.

Y. W. C. A. Holds Candlelight Service For 300 Freshmen

Freshmen and new girls were installed into the Y. W. C. A. Monday evening, October 13, in the auditorium, where they signed pledge cards, and in Joan Court where a candle light service was led by Frances Rosebro, president of the Y. W. C. A., and members of the cabinet.

The program included scripture reading by Dorothy Childress, prayer by Lucy Turnbull, a talk by the Y. W. C. A. president, and two selections, "Just As I Am", and "God Who Touches Earth with Beauty", sung by a quartet composed of Virginia Barksdale, Nancy Dupuy, Louisa Sanford, and Mary Katherine Zehmer. The service concluded with the lighting of candles and the recessional, "Follow The Gleam", sung by the entire group.

Choral Groups Schedule Concerts With Duke, Yale

Madrigal Singers Invited to Sing At State Convention

Choral groups of S. T. C. have completed definite plans for concerts to be presented in the college auditorium and elsewhere this school year.

On Friday evening, November 21, the Madrigal Singers have been invited by Francis S. Chase of the Virginia Journal of Education to appear at the State Teachers Convention in Richmond. This group is under the direction of Virginia Barksdale, a senior at S. T. C., and one of the student directors of music.

New Project Added

For the first time the Choral Club will have charge of the Christmas concert to be given in the college auditorium Sunday evening, December 14, at which time the College Choir, A'Capella Choirs, Madrigal Singers and Choral Club will take part. Included in the concert will be solos by Sonia Essio, contralto, of New York City, who is regarded as one of the leading contralto solo- [illegible] approval for the College Choir to appear in the Duke University Chapel with Yale University Glee Club and Duke University Chapel Choir in the presentation of Brahm's "Requiem". On March 26. Yale University Glee Club and Farmville Choral groups will give a joint concert in the college auditorium.

New York Trip Slated

On March 27, the College Choir will journey to New York City to appear in a nation wide broadcast with Yale University Glee Club and Duke University Glee Club. This concert is being arranged for Palm Sunday evening, the exact time to be announced later.

Senior Installation Postponed to Later Date

Senior installation, scheduled for Friday night, Oct. 17, has been postponed to a later date which will be announced this week.

Pied Piper of Sophomore Class Will Call Rats Oct. 29

By MARY PARRISH VICCELLIO

In a not dissimilar manner from the Pied Piper of Hamlin, the lordly sophomores of S.T.C. will beguile the lowly freshman, about to become "rats", into responding to their tuneful commands and requests; for when October 29 and 30 roll around, two of the most long-cherished and eagerly-awaited-for days in a sophomore's life will have come.

For days King Rat Week and his court have been cogitating how they might treat, yet not exterminate, these schoiastic rodents. With the aid of many past masters and school officials whose music also has to be catered to, the regal rat rulers have hit upon a plan whereby, as popular report has it, they can spread their rat poison, set their traps and get their cheese eaten. Like the Pied Piper who was sincere in his request for a thousand guilders in recompense for his work, and unlike the king who refused to pay off, the dominating sophomores will be consistent all the way through, sincere in their requests for their subjects to peel like an orange or speel the sign-off backwards, and correct in their desire to provide entertainment and laughter for the whole school.

We are all eagerly awaiting the time when the Pied Piper of the sophomore class officially sounds the call of rat week and directs the freshmen into the new and intriguing land of sighs, embarrassment, and humble submission—a land where, once entered, one finds himself entreatingly ensnared, never to return adorned with his lowly subtitle, but bathed with thoughts of retaliation and revenge. "Just wait 'til next year."

Fraternity Conducts Ceremony at Chapel

Regional Convention of Group Meets October 24 at Columbia, S. C.

Joan Circle of Alpha Kappa Gamma, national leadership fraternity, tapped three seniors and one junior in its annual fall tapping exercises during chapel period this morning.

Seniors tapped were Texie Belle Feits, Boykins; Gene Hardy Kilmon, Onancock; and Mary Lilly Purdum, Danville. Only junior tappee was Amy Read, Hampton.

Caroline Eason, president of the fraternity, made the speech to the student body before the four girls were tapped. Caroline emphasized that membership in A. K. G. was not only an honor and a recognition for leadership in student affairs, but also a challenge to greater leadership in the future.

Texie Belle Feits is business manager of The Rotunda this year, and served as circulation manager last year. She is a member of Alpha Phi Sigma, Kappa Delta Pi, Dramatic Club, Choral Club, and the Baptist Student Union. She has also been affiliated with the prayers committee of the Y. W. C. A.

Elected as one of the two senior representatives to the student council, Gene Hardy Kilmon is also head of the costume department of the dramatic club, and was formerly a member of the publicity committee of the Y. W. C. A.

Mary Lilly Purdum came to Farmville as a junior transfer from Stratford College, Danville. She is the managing editor of The Rotunda, president of Pi Gamma Mu, social science fraternity, and holds membership in the Cotillion Club. Last year Mary Lilly was a member of the junior class hockey squad.

Amy Read is junior representative to the student council, chairman of the public affairs committee of the Y. W. C. A., and a reporter for The Rotunda. Last year Amy was secretary of the Sophomore Commission and treasurer of the Choral Club. Amy holds membership in Beore Eh Thorn, Alpha Phi Sigma, A'Cappella choir, College choir, Dramatic Club, Cotillion Club, and French Club.

The regional convention of A. K. G. will meet October 24-26 at Columbia College, Columbia, S. C.

Bellus, Savage Will Star In Play

Cast Announced For 'Little Minister'

Margaret Wright, president of the Dramatic Club, announces the names of the students to be cast in the forth-coming presentation of James Matthew Barrie's "The Little Minister". The Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs will join with the S. T. C. Dramatic Club in staging this production in the large auditorium Friday, November 14 at 8 o'clock.

Peggy Belius, a senior, who has been in these plays for four years, will have the feminine lead as Babbie.

Mr. Dishart, the little minister, will be enacted by Tedo Savage, a junior at Hampden-Sydney, who is entering his third year in dramatics.

Ace Livick will take the part of Rob Dow, while Lord Rintoul will

Cotillion Features Freddy Lee's Music

Freddy Lee's orchestra from Lynchburg, under the direction of Howard Baxter, will play for Fall Cotillion dance November 15.

The Lynchburg orchestra plays for the Oak Country Club in Lynchburg on Saturday nights. Howard Baxter is the soloist. They also played in Roanoke last Thanksgiving for the V. P. I.-V. M. I. dance.

This dance will be the first to be given on the S. T. C. campus this year. A second Cotillion dance is given in the early spring.

Dates to the dance will come from many schools throughout the state including Hampden-Sydney, V. P. I., Washington and Lee, Randolph-Macon, University of Virginia, Roanoke College, and University of Richmond.

Students To Select Virginian Feature Section Oct. 22

Anne Ayers, editor of the Virginian, announces that the eight students who will be in the feature section of the 1942 annual will be elected by the student body Wednesday, October 22.

Fourteen girls will be nominated by a committee composed of faculty members and students selected from each of the major organizations and publications.

Qualifications for the girls selected for the feature section of the Virginian are that each shall have contributed by service, spirit, or standards to the betterment of the college. Last year six girls composed the feature section of the annual.

Group, retake, and additional individual pictures will be made October 27-30. Proofs for the individual pictures were given out today.

For Officers—Present and Future

parliamentary law classes. These lectures are open to all members of the student body and have been designed especially for officers.

However, the fact that these classes are termed for officers does not imply merely present officers, but includes future officers. And, it is in view of this, that the entire student body should attend these discussion groups. Further, it must be remembered that parliamentary procedure is essential also to members of an organization.

A Call to Arms

It has reached our ears that there is a movement afoot for the purpose of changing the Chapel service. Such an undertaking we welcome, for we have long been of the opinion that Chapel is not conducive to a religious attitude.

In accordance with this design, we offer several suggestions. First, we would propose that the set-up of Student Day Chapel be revised. Each Wednesday a program is presented in the same conservative manner. Here is one opportunity, we feel, where students could present their own ideas and concepts from which beneficial results could issue; here originality could be employed. If Student Day Chapel is "of, by, and for the students", why don't we make it that way?

Second, we propose that a drive be made to change the belief that chapel is a recess period, extended from a ten minute interval between classes to forty-five minutes. As long as chapel is regarded as a social period for the exchange of news, progress cannot be made. The complaint that speakers cannot be heard can be remedied only if we form the habit of refraining from conversation during the speeches.

We sincerely hope that a concerted drive for an understanding of Chapel conditions will follow the reading of this editorial.

"History Repeats Itself"—But How?

By Dr. Francis P. Simkins

If we were able to get full information concerning European affairs, it would be difficult to speak with assurance concerning the ultimate outcome of the great war now in progress. For history isn't a science whose motivating factors can be measured accurately enough for predictions. The unfortunate circumstance in raising the old adage, "History repeats itself," is that everything has happened in the past, the tragic and the unhappy, the good and the bad, the predictable and the unpredictable; so that everything may be "repeated," even that of which the historian has not dreamed. But as the rough outline of current happenings becomes clear, certain experiences out of the past can be used as a basis for surmises concerning at least certain alternatives which the future may hold.

Hitler Will Suffer Fate of Napoleon

It seems clear that Hitler's victories in Russia are going to make the Germans masters of the continent of Europe in the same fashion in which Napoleon and the French once held that position. As a consequence of this apparent fact we can predict with reason that the Nazi empire will have the same fate as its French predecessor. The Napoleonic structure fell from two great causes. One was the inability of the great conqueror to follow signal military successes by the conquest of national feelings. The crushing of armies and governments in Spain and Germany created a vivid opposition among the Spanish and German people. Napoleon found himself to be master only of the ground on which his soldiers were camped. The second reason for his failure was the superiority of English industrial resources over those of France. The greatest atheist of all times discovered that God was not necessarily on the side of the heaviest artillery, but was on the side of those with the heaviest raw materials and machinery.

Will Hitler Be Worn Out Winning?

These two fundamental causes are apparently at work to destroy that which toric nations who seemingly are not better satisfied with his rule than were the Spanish and the Germans with that of Napoleon. Are not the Danes and the Dutch and the French and the Poles biding their time to rise against the foreign tyrant? And if because of the superiority of his armies they cannot do this, are they not showing a spirit of non-cooperation with his agents resulting in an industrial and social confusion which will make his domination of their lands impractical? In addition, are not the acknowledged superior resources of England and America being mobilized to destroy the man with superior artillery? Will not Germany and the German-dominated lands ultimately abandon their defense to share the good things of the earth with the rich people of the earth? Do not the ghosts of Hannibal, Napoleon and Lee walk before Hitler? Will he not be worn out winning victories?

But History Is Deceptive

But history is a deceptive science of probabilities and their opposites. There are other parallels for conquerors aside from Napoleon. Caesar and the other Roman conquerors wrought permanently, thoroughly assimilating provinces to be Roman pattern. They did this because there were no nations to conquer. Perhaps that spirit which in the last few centuries divided Europe in a series of unconquerable nations has been destroyed by the same sort of progress which knit North America into a political unit. Perhaps Europe is ready emotionally and psychologically to allow some sort of Roman conqueror to absorb it into a Roman unity, to take the place of international "anarchy" the treaty which ended the last war was sanctioned.

"History repeats itself." Yes, but human experience has been so varied that the "repetitions" may be anything. It may be a Napoleon or it may be a Caesar. It may be the nation or the empire. It may be the rich or the poor. It may be Hitler or Churchill. History merely tells us that it may be one or the other.

Looking 'Em Over

IN ANY TENSE:

Did you hear about the freshman who simply couldn't decide which school to attend so she picked Farmville "because it is so near V. P. I." (maybe we should put this in our catalogue as an added attraction).

This same freshman was heard talking to Father over the telephone. "And Father aren't you proud of me and isn't S. T. C. lucky? I've decided to stay another year and not get married after all".

Much later—this same "Rat" is ready to set the "World on Fire". She has already picked her campaign manager for the coming freshman class elections. Quote: "There is nothing which can keep me from being president"—ah ha—we'll see.

TIDBITS:

Edna Brown was right much "out of this world" on Sunday. Couldn't have been that convertible from Newport News, eh "Brun"? . . . Why did Bridget Gentile want a certain Rotunda reporter to be in her room about 10:30 p. m. Sunday night? And speaking of B. Gentile, what is this we hear about a misunderstanding over a Fordham pin? These fickle boys. . . It's not quite Rat Week just yet. What is this hazing we've been hearing about in Whitehouse kitchen? You wouldn't want to scare the children would you?

SHORT SHORT STORY:

And then there was Anne Randolph getting ready to go horseback riding.

Anne: "Where will the horses meet me?"

Replier: "Sign up in the Rotunda and you will see your callers".

Overheard:

Take it from a freshman girl, Miss Taliaferro, the postmistress The undercrassman was showing her date around the school. Among other points of interest, she showed off the post office (lights conveniently off). The following conversation ensued:

Date: Such a nice place.

Dated: Yes

Date (hopefully): Nice place to play post office. Ha! Ha!

Dated (squealing): Oh, tee hee!

A voice out of the darkness: "If you please, young ladies may not entertain their friends in the post office. There are other places to er-ah-hem entertain friends."

Bouquets to all you "glamour gals" that kept the homefires burning this week-end—As for the other five hundred—need more be said. We'll see . . .

Past Events

That old feeling having "Chubby" in Sing. Speaking of Sing, Irma and Habbie really stole the show in their latest (?) Paris fashions.

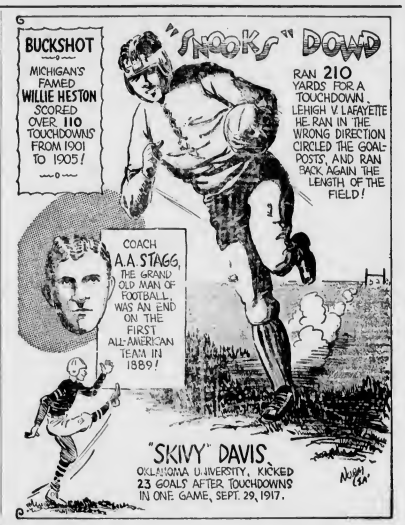
What did Andrews tell Moomaw that made her temperature go up four degrees?

Present Events

Seen in the "Rec":

Beezie Townsend's ex-Craig dating Louise Bell—"just a friend", Louise says!

Renfro leading—of all things, a barn dance!



B. Reid and a Techman—He sho' did wow 'em with the shaving lotion.

Seems as if the Army boys who wanted "to make the rounds" really reached their goal. Charlotte, Ella Marsh, and Pagie on Saturday, and Gay Ward, Jane, and Scottie on Sunday. How 'bout that! Hard to please we'd say!

Future Events

Cottie's leading Cotillion Openings at Tech may bring back memories—not only to her, but to others.

And then there's the usual crop of "smoothies" going to Pan-Hels—namely, Mep and Horace, Weller, and Clemmer, Daddy Jones and Staples.

Roosevelt Finds Competition In S. T. C.'s Honor Societies

By JANE WARING RUFFIN

Alpha Kappa Gamma, Sigma Pi Rho, Beorc Eh Thorn, Beta Pi Theta—truly, the honor societies at Farmville offer President Roosevelt competition in alphabetical combinations.

There are nine of these honor societies on the campus and seven of them are national organizations. Of particular interest to students here should be the two national organizations which grew from local societies at Farmville, Alpha Kappa Gamma and Sigma Pi Rho.

Alpha Kappa Gamma

Alpha Kappa Gamma, nation- begun in 1928 when Alpha Delta Rho, the local society, which was organized in 1925, merged with Gamma Omega Pi from South Carolina to form an organization for leadership in women's colleges to correspond with ODK in men's schools. Since Joan of Arc was already the patron saint of the school, she was chosen by the Farmville chapter as an ideal and the chapter became the Joan Circle of Alpha Kappa Gamma.

Sigma Pi Rho

Sigma Pi Rho, national honor society in Latin, was organized at Farmville in the early part of the last decade, when, because it was a teacher's college, Farmville could not be admitted to Eta Sigma Pi, the national classical fraternity. Encouraged by Dr. Bondurant, of Mississippi, the Latin department at Farmville formed a national Latin organization for teachers' colleges. In seeking a Greek letter name, the department appeald to Dr. David Wilson, professor of Greek at Hampden-Sydney, and he suggested the letters Sigma Pi Rho, which means, "We help each other in attaining Roman culture". Today, there are organizations in eight states, and The Tributum, the publication of Sodalitas Latina, the latin society which preceded Sigma Pi Rho at Farmville, has become the organ of the national organization.

Beorc Eh Thorn

Beorc Eh Thorn, the local English society, is the only honor society at Farmville without a Greek letter name. The three old English rune letters represent the literature, the inspiration, and the discipline which the sorority offers. Beorc Eh Thorn fosters creative writing of any kind and toward this end has sponsored at Farmville such speakers as Carl Sandburg, Nancy Byrd Turner, Richard Halliburton, and Robert Frost.

Gamma Psi

Gamma Psi, the local honor sorority in fine arts, was organized here in 1932, for art majors and those particularly interested in art. At the first meeting several weeks ago the project for the year was selected—the making of puppets with the possibilities of a puppet show sometime during the year.

Kappa Delta Pi

Kappa Delta Pi is the national honor fraternity in education. The Beta Epsilon Chapter at Farmville contributes to the social and intellectual life by various activities and recognizes scholarship, character, and service.

All valedictorians and salutatorians who came to Farmville belong to Alpha Phi Sigma, the national scholastic fraternity. The Delta Chapter was organized at Farmville in 1930.

Pi Kappa Delta

Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic fraternity, is one of the prides of Farmville. The debaters from the Virginia Alpha Chapter, which was organized here in 1928, have been highly successful in their trips to colleges all over the eastern part of the United States.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:—

Since your invitation last week for more letters of comment and criticism from the students at large, I have decided to take advantage of the opportunity to raise a question that has been bothering me for the three years that I have been at Farmville. Why is the Choral Department not granted more recognition by the school? We are invited to sing with such nationally known schools as Harvard, Duke, Yale, and Radcliffe; certain of our groups are invited to appear at the State Teachers Convention on a program with outstanding speakers from the state; we plan to sing in New York City this spring. Yet our own students fail to support our home concerts and show very little interest in the majority of our activities.

It was not until this year that the many hours of hard work put in by the student directors and members of the A'Capella groups were recognized under the point system.

It seems to me that the department which has done perhaps more than any other one organization on the campus to gain state-wide, and even national recognition for our school certainly deserves more recognition and support at home.

Sincerely,
Virginia Barksdale

• Piercing the Points •

By SHIRLEY PIERCE

"Athletics certainly give an excellent opportunity for learning to know people, for making new friendships!" There is absolutely nothing that makes for a better companionship than playing on a team with someone having the same interest; and too, the whole game profits by a good attitude of the players. Here at S. T. C. we always want to keep in mind our "goal" of the school—and for Blue and White we give the best at all times.

Learn the Fundamentals Now . . .

The athletic field is truly a busy place, especially on days of hockey practice. Such a large number of girls have turned out for their class practices that hopes look difficult for both sides, but right now the most important thing is the learning of fundamental principles. Both upperclassmen and freshmen are practicing the techniques of the games, including holding the stick, dribbling, positions, and lineups. All these first work-outs are by far the most important because they form the foundation of the sport. If you haven't reported for practice, there is still time. Be ready when your class reports.

New Archery Field Coming Up . . .

An archery field is now in the making! The old tennis court property is being cleared and very soon the lot will be set aside for use in archery. Targets will be set up and equipment may be obtained at any time for practice use. For the present time a portion of the new athletic field is the location of the target, and it is here that each Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons lessons of instruction are being offered by Mary Katherine Zehmer, manager. To date ten girls have joined the Robin Hood team and from the group participating, a winner will be picked when the final tournament is played.

Wednesday Afternoon Is Golf Time . . .

Instructions in golf are now being offered by Miss Iler on Tuesdays and Miss Kauzlarich on Wednesdays in the afternoon at 4 o'clock. Transportation to the course at Longwood will be provided by cars leaving the entrance outside Student Building by the gym door. The A. A. has equipment which may be used on the golf course. It takes practice and work and also your time, but if you are determined to play golf, here's your chance.

Exit Heat Wave, Enter Basketball . . .

Time nears to basketball practice. On the bulletin board and on the calendar, the report is that freshmen practice on Mondays and upperclasmen on Wednesdays. Last week due to the heat wave, a recess was announced and the regular work-out was canceled. But now the breeze reminds us that a decided change has taken place and the games must go on! The freshmen will start working on handling the ball, passing, movement, and basic principles in learning the game according to rules used here at S. T. C. Others will cover this same material and continue in a general practice.

S. T. C. and H.-S. C. at It Again . . .

S. T. C. girls and Hampden-Sydney boys can swim! They're working for the purpose of learning and putting into practice the necessary requirements to qualify for the instructors course in American Red Cross Life Saving and Water Safety. A field representative from Washington headquarters will arrive at the end of the course to instruct in first aid and give the final examination.

Attention: Post this sports calendar on your own private bulletin board so you won't forget the different practices.

Hockey Season Calls 53 Girls

Varsity Team To Be Picked Next Week

Hockey season at Farmville S. T. C. opened this week when fifty-three girls appeared on the athletic field. Instructions under the direction of Hallie Hillsman, manager of hockey, assisted by Sara Hardy and Mildred Droste are well under way each afternoon on the athletic field. Fundamentals, rules, and real workouts are in progress, and a varsity team will be picked next week from these representatives.

State Tournament Nov. 1

On November 1 the State Hockey Tournament will be held in Richmond, and Farmville will be entered in the competition. This year marks the first since 1939 that S. T. C. has had a varsity squad.

Games Scheduled

Arrangements are being made for the varsity team to play some well known colleges in Virginia. The Freshmen team will be matched against Farmville High School and possibly others. Those who have reported for practice to date are Jane Hobson, Jean Hall, Irma Graff, Spilly Purdum, Elva Andrews, Iris Geyer, Elizabeth Walls, Mary Hazelgrove, Ella Marsh Pilkinton, Ann Page Francis, Elizabeth Barlow, Rosemary Elam, Jane Freeman, Dottie Sue Simmons, and Beckey Jones.

Harriette Walker, Dot Johnson, Bet'y Cross, Mary Watts, Helen Wilson, Ophelia Whittle, Jane Moseley, Barbara Scott, Birdie Williams, Nellie Varn, Polly Booth, Edith Sandford, Claudia Hardaway, Joan Hadden, Nancy Hall, Sherwood Knight, Alice Nichols, and Jane Ruffin.

Dupuy Initiates First Aid Course

Nancy Dupuy, student swimming instructor, began preparation for the instructors course in first aid Monday, October 13 at the pool. Nancy is being assisted by Shirley Pierce and Peggy Hughes, certified American Red Cross instructors, who are preparing Hampden-Sydney boys as well as S. T. C. girls for the tests which will be given November 25.

At this time, Mr. Max Rote, Jr., field director of the American National Red Cross Association, will come to Farmville and give the final examination.

All students who have entered the course must have at least fifteen hours of instruction and hold a senior life saving certificate before taking the examination.

Night and afternoon cl asses, the time being decided by the group, are in progress. Knowledge of first aid is an essential requirement of the course and Mr. Rote will hold several classes on the subject when he arrives.

Riding Club Adds Four New Features

Advance Riders To Organize Hunt Club

Katherine Spencer, president of the Riding Club, announces that four new features have been included in the program of the club for this session.

This year the Riding Club will be composed of girls who rode regularly last year, approximately thirty freshmen and upperclassmen who have not ridden regularly before, and girls who are interested in riding but unable to ride will be taken in by election.

Plans Include Hunt Club

A Hunt Club consisting of advanced riders and twelve directors of the Riding Club will be organized later in the year. Cross country rides and jumping will compose the main activities of the club. The hurdles will not exceed the mark of three feet six inches.

In the spring the Riding Club proper plans to compete with other schools in the state. The club took part in a meet at Fairfax Hall last spring.

Miss Stella Fox, instructor of riding, who at present has five horses, plans to acquire one hurdler and one five-gaited horse for advanced riders. Miss Fox also plans to begin a class for those who are interested in ring jumping.

It was also announced that girls will not be allowed to ride on Sunday and only by appointment on Saturday.

Ladder Tournament In Tennis Slated For October 17, 18

The Athletic Association has planned a ladder tennis tournament in which any girls in school may participate. Shirley Turner, manager of tennis, requests that persons wishing to enter the tournament sign up on the paper posted on the A. A. bulletin board not later than Thursday, October 16. Games may be played off on Friday and Saturday of this week.

In the ladder tournament, a person challenges the players who ranks several places above her on the list of players. Two out of three sets are played to determine the winner of each game. By working upward to the top of the ladder, the winner is determined.

Dr. Walmsley Has Classes for Students In Parliamentary Law

Dr. James E. Walmsley will conduct the third lesson in a series of parliamentary law classes in his classroom tonight, October 15, at 8 o'clock for any member of the student body who is interested.

The purpose of these meetings is to teach the students more about parliamentary law in order that they may be able to conduct or to understand more fully the procedure of a business meeting. These classes are designed especially for the heads of all organizations.

This idea was originated by last year's Student Standards committee and has already been carried out this year by holding two meetings last week.

Honor Societies

Pi Gamma Mu

Pi Gamma Mu, national social science honor fraternity, was organized in 1924 and three years later, in 1927, the Virginia Gamma Chapter was formed at Farmville. The society aims to further the study of social problems and to learn to attack these problems in a scientific way.

Beta Pi Theta

Beta Pi Theta is a national honor society in French. The Pi Zeta Chapter was organized at Farmville in 1930. The organization has as its purpose the advancement of literary French and French literature.

Fall Fashions Possesses Chameleonic Feature In "Double-Take" Purpose

By JANE SANFORD

Fashion is doing a double-take this fall. So there will be two distinctive "you's" if you're fashion-wise: your drafted (i.e. functional) self for day; your deferred (i.e. feminine) self for evening and those more important dates.

By broad daylight, yours should be a clean-cut, trim figure in very tailored clothes. Whether you're doing your bit in preparing for one of the many conventions to meet on this campus soon, chalking up a below-par on the golf course, or plugging along to a class on Chaucer, your clothes should be casual and comfortable, geared down, paradoxically, for high speed ahead.

Suave, diplomatic Miss Wright, leaving on the right, presents a vignette of our College Girl 1941 in her mannishly tailored gray three piece wool covert suit. Her top coat and jacket have that relaxed, important look we're talking about, especially up top—the shoulders curve into the sleeves, the armholes are deeper, the waist lowered on the jacket, and on both there are deeper pockets and wider revers.

The entire ensemble is perfect for a day time week-end away from or on campus. With it she wears a softly tailored white blouse, with rows of self stitching up and down the front. Antiqued genuine alligator shoes and bag plus a lighter shade of copper colored gloves and hat, the hat with a perfectly absurd little up-to-heaven green feather, complete the costume.

Attractive Miss Goode, on the other hand, presents a not-at-all drab silhouette. In fact scenery takes a set-back when she appears in the flashy red wool skirt, perfectly pleated, and red and green plaid blazer jacket piped in the same red. Spaulding saddle shoes have become a perennial classic on the campus, and Sarah Massie wears her black and white 'uns with the newer thick white socks. To complete her ensemble she also wears a self-stitched white blouse with a convertible neck super for classes and afternoon movie dates.

Yes indeed, directness of line this fall is teamed with directness of color. You should be a chameleon for a change. And, incidentally, clothes such as these are well worth hocking one's soul for. If you've been lethargic 'bout your clothes while October was running a temperature, better come to and get going. Brisk days will be here to stay any dawn now.

Dances, Games Call S. T. C. Girls to Play

The V. P. I.-William and Mary football game in Richmond, the dance and Virginia-U. of Richmond game in Charlottesville, and the V. M. I. frosh game in Lexington caused a general exodus of S. T. C. football fans last week end. Other cities, Lynchburg, Petersburg, etc. were among the other attractions.

Nell Quinn and Frances Whichard journeyed up to Maryland for the hop at Annapolis.

Rice, Wright Take Top Honors In Colonnade Short Story Contest

Margie Rice, Margaret Wright, and Harriet Cantrell placed first, second, and third respectively in the Colonnade short story contest which ended Friday, October10.

The first prize of five dollars will be awarded to Margie for her story "In Return for My Favorite Landscape." Margie took first prize for her story "Wood Magic" in the short story contest last year.

The second prize of three dollars was won by Margaret Wright for her "Really and Truly Time". Harriet Cantrell will receive the third prize of one dollar for her story "Spring in the City."

Honorable Mention

Honorable mention was given to Anne Fitzgerald, "Blind Folly"; Louise Turner, "No Regrets"; Jane Lee Sink, "Good-bye Sandra"; and Dearing Fauntleroy, "The Contemptible Liar."

These stories will be featured in future issues of the Colonnade this year. The next issue of the Colonnade will appear the last week in November.

Judges for the contest were Miss Lucille Jennings, Prof. James M. Grainger, Virginia Barksdale, Mary Hunter Edmunds, and Jo Brumfield. This committee is composed of two members from the faculty advisory board to the magazine staff, two members of the staff itself, and one member from the student body at large.

Eleven To Attend A.K.G. Convention

S. T. C. Delegates To Lead Discussion

Caroline Eason, Jane Engleby, Amy Read, Sara Cline, Lucy Turnbull, Anne Ayers, Nancy Dupuy, Mrs. Jane Royall Pheigar, Margaret Wright, Mary Katherine Dodson, Mrs. Jane Royall Pheigar, and Miss Florence Stubbs will attend the twelfth annual convention of Alpha Kappa Gamma October 24-26, at Columbia College, Columbia, South Carolina.

"Solving Campus Problems" has been selected as the theme of the conference program. The executive committee has announced that the convention will open October 24 with a business meeting from 5 o'clock to 6 o'clock, with a picnic supper that evening at the Y. W. C. A. cabin.

Throughout the following day the various discussion groups will include "Training for Leadership," led by S. T. C. delegates; "Freshmen Orientation," by the University of South Carolina delegates; and "Over-Organization," by Queen's College delegates. A summary of these discussion groups will be given by Miss Florence Stubbs, member of S. T. C. faculty.

Other features of the program on Saturday will includes a tour of Fort Jackson, committee reports, elections, and a banquet on Saturday night. Mrs. Ould of Roanoke has been selected as the guest speaker for the occasion.

The installation of officers will take place on Sunday morning, October 26.

Latin Club Elects Walker President

Elizabeth Walker was elected president of the Latin Club Thursday, October 16. Other officers chosen for this year were Mary St. Clair Bugg, vice-president; and Eleanor Booth, secretary-treasurer. Frances Lee Hawthorne is the music chairman.

The Latin students and Mrs. Coon of the high school are invited to attend the meetings of the Latin Club, as are non Latin students of S. T. C. who are interested in Latin. Miss Rice is sponsor for this club.

Sigma Regional Meet Here Nov. 1

Program Honors Library Founding

Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority is holding six regional meets during the months of October and November. Region number one includes the colleges and alumnae chapters in the states of West Virginia, Virginia, District of Columbia, and alumnae from Georgia, North Carolina, Florida and South Carolina. This meet will be held at Farmville State Teachers College on November 1 and 2 with the Alpha chapter members as hostess.

The program at the celebration will portray the history of the John Randolph library since its founding. This will be done in dramatization and stories. The celebration will then be concluded with a party for the children, patrons and guests.

In charge of the meet is Mrs. Lyman Morrison of Toledo, Ohio, a member of the National Council of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority. Miss Mable Lee Walton, national president, from Clermount, Florida, will be present; also Mrs. L. G Carson social service chairman; Mrs. Woolcot Fenner, educational research chairman, and Mrs. Robertson Page, assistant to the national president. Mrs. Page is an aiumna of Alpha chapter. Mrs. Roy Pearson, nee Martha A. Laing, will be the city hostess.

The program includes a luncheon at Longwood, a formal dinner in the tea room, business meetings, and discussion groups led by the national officers. All the meetings wi'l be held in Student Building. About 200 guests are expected to attend.

In addition to the national officers of Sigma Sigma Sigma for the regional meet, guests at the celebration will include Mrs. Fred Sharp of Independence, Missouri, national president of Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority who will make the principle address at the celebration.

Allene Overbey, head of the Alpha Chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma, is in charge of the convention. Miss Pauline Camper, faculty advisor, is also working with Allene on the convention program.

May Day Theme To Be Colonial

Wertz Selected General Chairman; Committees Listed

May Wertz, senior from Roanoke, was elected general chairman of the May Day committee at a called meeting of the student body of S. T. C. on Thursday night, October 16.

Committee Chairmen Elected

Martha Roberts was elected business manager; Ann Bradshaw and Mary Hunter Edmunds, chairmen of the dance committee; Elizabeth Townsend, assisted by Sarah Seward and Dorothy Childress, costume chairmen; Sarah Chambers, music chairman; Jerry Smith, in charge of transporation; and Harriette Walker, staging and properties chairman.

Dorothy Lawrence and Gene Hardy Klimon have been appointed by Miss Tupper, head of the Home Economics Department, to assist in the designing and sewing of the costumes.

Theme Will Be Colonial

May Day this year will have a colonial setting. The members of the court will represent the belles of George Washington's day and will be dressed in costumes of that period. The grand finale will be the presentation of a typical cotillion ball scene of the colonial era.

The members of Orchesis and of the modern dance classes will participate in the modern dances used. Folk dances will be taught to the freshmen in dancing class in the winter quarter.

The Home Economics department, which assisted in the designing and making of the costumes last year, will have the entire management of costumes this year.

Miss Emily Kauzlarich, of the physical education department, is the faculty advisor for May Day, and will be assisted by Miss Leola Wheeler, Miss Olive T. Iler, and Miss Katherine Tupper.

Peggy Bellus in the role of Babbie, will supply the love interest in "The Little Minister", which will be presented November 14 at S. T. C.

Mardi Gras Dance Set For Feb. 14

Mardi Gras dance, which is sponsored each year by Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity, will be held Saturday night, February 14, according to a report made by Elizabeth Anne Parker, chairman of the Mardi Gras Committee.

Pi Gamma Mu has for its project this year that of presenting to the college in a permanent record form sketches of the lives of the persons whose portraits hang in the library now and also those that will be hung there this year. Members of the fraternity will do the writing.

"The Present World War and How It Affects the United States" is the general subject being used for the programs this year. Lucy Turnbull has spoken on "Hitlers New Order in Europe" and Anne Ayers spoke last night on "How A Victory for Hitler Will Affect the Rest of the World."

Emphasis of Selection Placed On Activities, Scholarship, Ability

Farmville State Teachers College will be represented in the eighth edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" by eighteen students, two of whom appeared in the seventh edition.

Those students appearing for the second time are Mary Katherine Dodson, Norfolk, and May Wertz, Roanoke. Those whose names are listed for the first time are Anne Ayers, Roanoke; Virginia Barksdale, Roanoke; Anne Boswell, Petersburg; Sara Cline, Roanoke; Nancy Dupuy, Greensboro, N. C.; Caroline Eason, Richmond; Mary Hunter Edmunds, Danville; Jane Engleby, Roanoke; Dorothy Johnson, Suffolk; Nancy Naff, Roanoke; Allene Overbey, Chatham; Martha Roberts, Norton; Frances Rosebro, Roanoke; Lucy Turnbull, Richmond; Margaret Wright, Richmond; and Mary Katherine Zehmer, Richmond.

Selected by Committee

All these students have been outstanding in college life and activities. They were selected by a special committee from a large list of eligible candidates. All the eighteen girls this year are members of the senior class.

Annually a compilation of biographies of outstanding students in America is published. Only juniors and seniors and students who are taking advanced work are selected. The main purpose of this publication is to bring the names of the outstanding students of America before the business world, and before others who annually recruit students.

Extra-curricular activities are equally important as an index to a student's ability; therefore, much emphasis of selection has been placed on that phase of college life and not on scholarship alone.

Classes Nominate Circus Candidates

Students Will Vote By Penny Ballot

Harriette Scott, senior, Sarah Wade Owen, junior, Ruth Dugger, sophomore, and Sherwood Knight, a freshman, will vie for the title of circus queen. The election will be next week. Each student will pay a penny per vote and may vote as many times as she wishes.

Irma Graff and Gerry Ackiss are the heads of the senior stunt committee. Winifred Wright will serve the juniors. The heads of the sophomore and freshman committees are Nell Quinn and Ruth Parker, respectively.

Louise McCorkle is head of the sophomore booth; Myrtle Lee Holt the freshman. Virginia Alexander, and Cottie Radspinner, seniors; and Bridget Gentile, junior, will have charge of the booth for their class.

Pi Gamma Mu Bids 8 Seniors, 7 Juniors

Fifteen girls have accepted the invitation to become members of Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity. These girl will be initiated on October 28.

Seniors who will join are Peggy Bellus, Sarah Chambers, Lillian German, Jane Lee Hutcheson, Lula Power, Julia Smith, May Wertz, and Flora Winn.

The seven juniors who accepted are Brookie Benton, Anne Eliett, Helen Wiley Hardy, Jean Hatton, Agnes Paterson, Jane Sanford, and Estelle Smith.

Fourteen Contest For Feature Sec.

Retakes, Snapshots Set for Next Week

Student Body voted today for the eight girls who comprise the feature section of the 1942 Virginian. The fourteen girls who were nominated were Anne Ayers, Sara Cline, Mary Katherine Dodson, Nancy Dupuy, Caroline Eason, Jane Engleby, Texie Belle Felts, Dorothy Johnson, Nancy Naff, Allene Overbey, Elizabeth Anne Parker, Frances Rosebro, Lucy Turnbull, and May Wertz.

These girls were selected by a committee made up of representatives from the student body and the faculty. The results of this voting will be kept secret until the annual is issued.

This week annual staff photographers will be on the campus to take snap pictures which will be featured in the snap section of the Virginian. Any girl interested in taking pictures for the annual should see Anne Ayers immediately.

All girls desiring retakes will make appointments immediately after lunch tomorrow. These pictures will be taken Monday night, October 27. Group pictures will be taken next week Schedules for the groups will be posted on the Home Office mantle and the bulletin board across from the town girls' room.

Sophomores Select Spicy Ingredients For "Rat Week Cauldron" October 28, 29

Freshmen to Wear Standard Uniforms

After innumerable attempts at a tasty rat week concoction, the sophomore dictators have stewed up a raucously gay routine for October 28 and 29. On Friday, October 24, the sophomores will don the freshmen with their rat caps.

"Rat Uniform"

The sophomores have issued an ultimatum to the effect that a standard "rat uniform" must be worn at all times Tuesday and Wednesday, October 28 and 29.

Essential features of the uniform are black stockings and a red sock and a white sock to be worn over the stockings, a short sleeved blouse over a long sleeved sweater, a summer skirt that clashes with the sweater, rubber rat and rat trap to be worn on sleeves of sweater, sign "44" pinned on shirt, glove on one hand, mitten on other to be removed in class, black under eyes, cardboard sign reading "I am RAT - - - ", no make up, no jewelry other than mismatched earrings, and no fingernail polish.

The rat's hair must be gathered straight back and tied at the nape of the neck with rubber bands.

Decrees of Sophomores

Rats can not go to post office until after chapel.

Rats must walk in single file while walking through the halls.

Rats must call all Sophomores Miss - - - - .

All Rats must convene at 12:30 and after lunch in front of the Colonnade on Tuesday and Wednesday.

All Rats must carry a pad and pencil with them at all times.

Rats must give a deep courtesy any time they pass a statue of Joan of Arc.

Rats must collect tin foil and keep it until further instructions.

They must also collect cocacola bottles and return them to the coke room.

No Rat may speak to a sophomore unless she is addressed by the upperciassman first.

"Sign Off" Required

Rats must be prepared to give the sign off at any time.

I - - - - - from - - - - - am a seditious, sciolistic freshman and seem to sense that the sensationally, sagacious sophomores surpass us scholastically and socially; for standard statistics state sophomores stand stable, steadfast and staunch since stratosphere started. Such singular stamina surely speak splendid success secured, showing sufficient, even superflous, signs of success. Sophomores should really sever all connections with the silly, shallow freshmen, because they are scrapping in a sciamachy. PRAISE '44.

Sophs Don "Rats" With Caps Friday

Tuesday, October 28

Rats must be on the Athletic field at 6 o'clock in the morning dressed in full rat regalia. Gym suits will be worn instead of skirts, sweaters, and blouses; and sneakers instead of shoes. No gloves are to be worn.

Rats must carry a broom or mop to the field with them.

All rats must talk "baby talk" throughout the day, except in classes.

While going through the halls, rats must make airplane motor

A Challenge and a Trust

Last night a group of freshmen signed the Honor Code pledge; tonight a second group will affix its signature; and tomorrow night a third group will pledge itself. To the freshmen this occasion is significant for it offers a challenge and a trust. To the upperclassmen it recalls the challenge and trust that was bestowed last year.

The challenge offered by the signing of the Honor Code is not limited, but rather it is boundless. It means more than governing individual actions, accepting responsibility for helping others to do so, and abiding by regulations. The fundamental feature is that we as a unit, have decided to restrict our actions, to live cooperatively, and to accept general rules of conduct.

And what is the result when we total these features? Democracy. Not democracy in a passive form, but in an active form. We are learning democratic experiences through the responsibility that is placed upon us, through the spirit of cooperation, through respect for individual authority, and through desire for changes in society.

Opportunity Knocks!

Thursday night, October 30, will mark the initiation of the lyceum series at Farmville State Teachers College. Present for the occasion will be the Siberian Singers, who represent the highest achievement in male choir singing. These singers are of special interest to us, realizing the present position of their native land—Russia.

These singers are not new to our campus, having appeared here for the past several years. Those who have heard them welcome their return; those who have not may look forward to a musical experience that they will long remember.

Presenting a program of liturgical music, folk and gypsy songs, the Siberian Singers offer the best traditions of Russian music. They have been praised by the critics and public alike for their genuine interpretive ability. Each event in the life of the Russian peasant from birth to death, his occupations, his oppressions and sorrows, his pleasure and his hopes will be reflected by the singers.

Russian church music has always been the admiration of visitors to Russia, and many have declared it to be the most marvelous choral music known. We are indeed fortunate to secure the Siberian Singers.

A Lesson For Us

Few teachers or administrators who have been at work during the decade just ended need be told that public education is under fire. In every community there are many sincere people who turn back in their thinking to more peaceful and happy days of yore. Not knowing that thus they are only making an effort to escape reality, they regard the old days as golden, happy, peaceful days—a veritable golden age. Everything that existed in those old days is touched with a roseate glamour that makes them seem ideal.

Thus, when the problem of supporting the school arises, there are, in every community, a substantial number of middle-aged people who are quite ready to turn against modern school practices and who bring forth many arguments to show that the ways of teaching in their youth were much superior to those of the present. Yet seriously to attempt to impose the kind of teaching that was done in 1911 on 1941 would be as futile as to attempt to abolish automobiles in favor of horses and buggies, to silence all radios, to abolish all chain stores, or to tear up all concrete highways. —Orville T. Bright.

What About the Peace?

Education seems to be developing an increasing interest in concrete plans for the world after the war, even though peace is not in sight. At the New School for Social Research, scholars of the University in Exile have for months worked on a "blueprint for peace," and now the state has granted to the New School a charter for a graduate school which in the words of Dr. Alvin Johnson "has been placed in a position to set up what is virtually an international school of political and social science closely knit to the practical, economic, social, and political problems of the times."

Other distinguished scholars continue to urge the colleges to take a long look ahead to the time of reconstruction. President Bowman of Johns Hopkins is one of these. The colleges themselves are presenting authorities in various political and economic fields to their students. And now President Wriston of Brown University who is always to be heard with respect, has urged the establishment of a new government division to study the problems of peace on the same plane that the problems of war are studied in the army and navy war colleges.

Dr. Wriston would set up the proposed new division as an arm of the department of state to act as an agency for the professional training of diplomats and other foreign service men on a level not possible in any of the existing schools of diplomacy and foreign relations.

This is all part of the growing appreciation of the importance of the tasks lying ahead of education.

Dr. Johnson has a word to say from a somewhat different point of view in the Journal of Adult Education. Dealing with youth and democracy, he asserts that "we do not have an educational setup that gives us the inherent strength to meet the forces of evil—the forces of evil revolution, rolling back toward barbarism, now abroad in the world. We are not equipping our youth to take their part in the defense of civilization. They foolishly think that there are short cuts to happiness." Thus on various fronts education is looking forward both through practical preparation for concrete tasks and through redefinition of ideals without which nothing is practical in the long run—The New York Times.

Gleanings

By MARY HUNTER EDMUNDS

When browsing through the magazine rack a few days ago, I gleaned from Forth-nightly this bit written by Miss Storm Jamerson, an English woman.

In making a peace, "we must treat ourselves as sternly as we retreat our enemy".

It is encouraging to learn that the English can think clearly on the subject of peace in view of what they are facing in the present war. It is hopeful to learn that there are some persons who realize the mistakes of the last peace and wish to profit by their knowledge.

Who Will Make Peace?

The men who make a war are not qualified to make a peace. The horror is too close; the thought of revenge is still too sweet. We know that only too well from our most recent experience.

The big question is whether there can be found men who are "sufficiently imaginative and sufficiently disinterested" to work honestly and purposedly for the reconstruction of Europe when peace is at last gained.

Upon What Basis Shall We Make Peace?

Perhaps you say that it is impossible, that it is too idealistic, that we can never secure a just peace. But the answer is that we must if the world is ever to be saved from destroying itself with wars that breed wars more terrible than themselves.

The spirit of revenge and punishment must not prevail the peace to follow this war. There must be no policy of division of spoils. Neither must we think that we can completely crush a nation. If we attempt to destroy the German people, there will only rise again another nationalist party proclaiming injustices and being more vindicative and determined than before.

Solutions For Peace—Where?

The root of the trouble must be found, and no matter what the sacrifice, it is still not too great if the world can have peace—a lasting peace.

Fear is the background of German militarism and aggressiveness. England's owning of a vast empire naturally engenders jealousy. The Germans are proud and are therefore fearful of being a second rate nation. The Germans are economically afraid.

Perhaps it will mean a division of the world's goods. I do not know. But I do know that the basis for world harmony must be laid. It will be no easy task, but it must be formulated while we are still in the heat of battle. It must not be left until the aftermath with its desire for payment in full has set in. It must be formulated by peace-loving and far-sighted men, and men who are wise.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

We, the editor of the Colonnade, wish to acknowledge, on behalf of the staff, the large quantity of fine material submitted for the recently concluded Short Story Contest.

The stories were judged primarily on creativity, clarity, structure, and theme. The report of the judges showed the following criticisms.

Some of the stories ranked high along one line, but fell down on essential points along another. Some had excellent plots but were poorly developed; some were well written, but lacked substance; a few showed little originality in style or plot. Weakness lay in trying to condense a situation suitable for a novel into a few pages, in attempting to write on something of which the author lacked technical knowledge, in laying the scene in unfamiliar surroundings, and in creating improbable situations.

Several entries were considered excellent along all lines of judgment. These have been selected for publication in the Colonnade during the year.

We appreciate the cooperation of the Rotunda staff in making the contest a successful one.

Mystery of Mrs. McCoy's Night Life In Home Office Pierced

By MARY LOU DONDLEY

When the clock has struck eleven, and the very last lights have been turned off and the radios silenced, what happens in the one remaining lighted room? Mrs. McCoy's kindness has enabled us to reveal to you the "inside dope" veiling the mystery of her night life here in the home office.

Mrs. McCoy is a very busy lady between 6:30 p. m. and 6 a. m. Every night she takes incoming calls, checks the popular ones in sees that movie-goers are in, and checks out of-town date slips. After every one else has gone to bed, she goes through the buildings checking the lights and seeing that all the halls are quiet. It is at this time that she must see about the lights that are out-of-order and supply new bulbs. Does she ever get frightened on these nightly excursions?

"No" she states, "but sometimes when I find the night lights out on the corridors, it does seem spooky"; especially on Student and third floor Annex. Sometimes a big rat runs across the hall in front of me or pushes his nose up through the papers in a trash container and this gives me quite a start and my blood pressure goes up a point".

Mrs. McCoy's tour of inspection includes all the halls in Main building, from third floor Library to third floor Student.

It isn't always routine, though. "Occasionally an S. O. S. comes in over the switchboard for Mr. Reid to come to the Senior building to find what or who is making such a queer noise in the basement or to do a little detective work in regard to mysterious foot steps heard outside the building," she added.

During the "wee-small" hours, when she has time to spare Mrs. McCoy reads, knits, or sews. Around midnight she has lunch, a salad, meat, and bread. She keeps an electric stove in the closet, and Mr. Reid brings in coffee. When 4 a. m. rolls around, she takes a siesta.

Often during the night Mrs. McCoy has to see that incoming busses and trains are met and that emergency phone calls are answered. She recalls one of these calls in particular. One morning at two, an emergency long-distance call came in from a hospital. A member of one of the student's family was supposedly very ill. The sick person turned out to be a crowd of young people on their way home from a party. "It was a real emergency, however, when the girl had talked fifteen minutes and had to pay for the call, the charges of which were reversed to her." Mrs. McCoy remarked.

Speaking of phone calls, Mrs. McCoy has found that it takes three to make an out-of-town date. Number one comes with the first omnipotent long-distance call, number two is the call the date makes when he comes into town, and number three is the call made to the girl's room when he reports to the Rotunda. "Not only doubling, but tripling our college service," continued Mrs. McCoy.

Now, when you cannot sleep, instead of counting sheep, why not count Mrs. McCoy's foot steps? There would certainly be enough of them to put you to sleep, for her nightly vigil is inclusively and competently kept.

Looking 'Em Over

It was really a wonderful weekend. What with most of the student body away—

HITHER AND YON: As far as dances go, Tech triumphed again by heading the list in attendance. A wonderful time was had by all; for further information ask that little Henry child, Helen Fuller, or maybe Cottie would tell you—(That girl is too many men's O. A. O.)

And then, too, we wonder what those Sigma Chis at Roanoke have (besides orchids). What's the answer Eleanor and Betty "Personality Plus" Blackwell?

And good old Hampden-Sydney's Pan Hels. We can't skip over them, can we Anne Boswell? We hear that "Boz" received three invites and then went out Sunday with someone else. You better watch that Billy Trinkle. She'll snake him. We also hear that freshmen Nancy Hughes and Shirley Cadmos stagged the stag line!

THINGS WE'D LIKE TO KNOW Why was Kit Zehmer running around trying to find low-heeled evening slippers? Why Anne Ayers decided to go both nights? Why Caroline Eason was so eager to learn the Conga at the Armory? Did you ever hear from your dancing instructor, Miss Eason? How Lillian Turner walks off with a first lieut's bar the very night she meets him?

And did you hear that seven boys came up to see BEE Blair the other night? And four came all the way from Arlington to see Betty Kiger.

Won't some one please enlighten us on the subject. He's a redhead named Ralph from H.-S. First he dates Roe, then President Naff, and then settles back with Polly "Popeye" Hughes. We thought there was only one main man in your life, Polly? And speaking of Dozzle, Ella Banks seemed like a pretty good substitute to us.

We hear that Chuck walks Gertrude Wright in to supper and then goes and eats his supper with Margie Rice. Is this a triangle or is this a triangle.?

We hear that Arnell Booth had a glorious week-end with a diamond as the result. And Harriette Walker was a bridesmaid in a wedding party this past weekend. Could the fun be due to the fact that Smitty was there?

A LITTLE BIT INDEPENDENT: Betty the Youngberg easily cops this title. Tommy invited her to Pan Hels, but he was so indefinite about it all that she breezed off to Tech. P. S. Not with Bud. Latest news flashes inform us that a deluge of letters are pouring in from that direction for "B."

• Piercing the Points •

By SHIRLEY PIERCE

As sadness still fills the faces of all farmers because of "no rain", gladness strikes first place with the many football fans and outdoor sport lovers. Games all over the country this past week-end gathered people from far and near. Across several fields, rather "down the road apiece", the exciting game was played between Hampden-Sydney and William and Mary, but our neighbors lost their pig-skin to the Indians 28-0.

"On to Richmond" or "On to the State Hockey Tournament!" It won't be long before November 7 and 8, at which time S. T. C. will be represented at Westhampton College in the tournament. A varsity squad, picked from the many girls who work-out each afternoon on the hockey field, will be selected this week. Practices including both upperclassmen and freshmen are at 4 o'clock on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday afternoons. A large number are out to represent their class, and soon class teams will be picked. Games for freshmen will be played with Farmville High; and sophomore., junior and senior teams will compete against each other. Earnest practice must continue for all teams in order that the excited spectators and longing frosh will have "real hockey" to gaze upon the day of color rush.

And the date of color rush? Well, that will come later.

Congratulations to the thirty-three girls taken into the Pegasus Riding Club last Friday. And speaking of horseback riding, there are many girls who rode last year who have not signed up this year. Appointments may be made for classes with Miss Stella Fox, and special riding periods may be made for Saturdays. The stables are not located where they were last year, but are situated on the road to Longwood.

Quite a group of freshmen have turned out for practice in basketball. The day of practice which was previously scheduled for every Monday afternoon has been changed to Wednesdays. Much work is being placed on ball handling and beginning fundamentals. Upperclassmen had only five representatives reporting last week as almost all of them were out on the hockey field. But the new date is now on Thursday afternoons from 4 p. m. until 5 p. m. Regular practice will be scheduled for tomorrow afternoon in the gym.

The log cabin at Longwood will be a lively place this coming week-end for the Athletic Association Council and Miss Iler. The council will leave on Saturday afternoon and return Sunday. Between this time they will enjoy a bit of rest, seclusion, and food . . .

The freshmen are certainly attentive to announcements about swimming instruction or "when they can learn to swim". It just happened that many of them misinterpreted the announcement of the swimming instructors course and showed up to enter. All very good. In order to take the instructors' course, one can be of any class; but the knowledge of swimming must already be present. Eighteen girls have signed up and now the future holds for them about fifteen hours of strict drilling on life saving and water safety along with hours and hours of work.

Iler, Kauzlarich Instruct Golfers

Basic Lessons Are Now Offered

Instructions in golf are now being offered three times a week, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons from 4 p. m. until 5 p. m. on the course at Longwood. The Athletic Association furnishes the golf clubs and balls with transportation to and from the course.

Cars leave at the side door of Student Building by the gym at the scheduled time. Lessons are under the supervision of Miss Olive T. Iler and Miss Emily Kauzlarich. Last week a large number of girls began their work at the course which consisted of handling of the club, movement of the body, and putting the ball.

Sheets have been posted on the A. A. bulletin board on which those who wish to take golf lessons may sign. Participating last week were Patricia Garth, Mary Ambler Thomason, Kitty Davis, Lindsay Watkins, Becky Lacy, Nancy Williams, Nell Shanklin, Margaret Pritchett, Sally Overby, and Sarah East.

Gwen Sampson, Connie Powell, Myrtle Lee Holt, Peggy Dashiell, Mary Wilson Colvert, Nellie Shafer, Anne Crews, Rebecca Saunders, Nancy Hurt, Kitten Easterly, Kitty Patrick, Virginia Lee Abernathy, Molly Ann Reid, Virginia Van Zandt, Louise Guerress Florence Timberlake and Mary Naltue also played.

Monogram Club Bids Six; Schedules Hikes

Monogram club bids were issued to Nell Hurt, Nancy Dupuy, Jean Carr, Hallie Hillsman, seniors; and Sarah Wade Owen and Frances Parham, juniors, Thursday, October 16.

The field house located at the back of the school is being fixed for a meeting room of the club. Members of the Athletic Association are working on its improvement and proper care. Equipment needed on the field and inside objects are being secured.

Each Saturday a hike is sponsored by the Monogram club to Longwood. Anyone in school may go if they sign up on the sheet of paper posted for this on the A. A. bulletin board. Longwood buns will be served to all who join the group leaving school.

20 Challengers Vie In Tennis Tourney

Participants in the ladder tennis tournament began their challenge games October 16, and the matches will continue until a final ending date is set.

The tournament is open to any girl in school who wishes to play. A final winner will be determined at the end of the matches.

Twenty girls have signed for this tournament.

Varsity Hockey Team To Be Picked This Week

Riding Club Elects Spicer, Berry Officers

Anne Berry, Lexington, and Rebecca Spicer, Frederick's Hall, were elected vice-president and secretary, respectively, of the Riding Club Friday night, Octobr 17.

Shirley Kersey, Betty Bradley, Jean Carter Smith, Joyce Cheatwood, Martha Higgins, Ann Martenstein, Nancy Hughes, Barbara Scott, Eugenia Burke, Kyle Barnhill, Pat McCormick, Virginia Snad, Mary Lou Tribble, Lorraine Ginsebrg, Anne Randolph, Nell Shanklin, Mai Beaven Beall, Jane Smith, and Betty Gray Smithdeal became members of the club.

Marie Rippetoe, Ann Harrington Polly Commack, Ida Billups, Katherine Greene, Emily Irby, Helen Cobbs, Sherwood Knight, Mary Sue Palmer, Virginia Barksdale, Harriet Levinson, Midge Lee, Betty Repass, and Polly Sargent were taken into the club at that time.

Freshmen Will Begin Basketball Practice

Miss Olive T. Iler and Jean Carr, manager of freshman basketball, met the freshmen who were interested in basketball Wednesday, October 15. The fundamentals of basketball were discussed and they practiced the handling and receiving of a ball.

No actual playing was done, but at the next practice they will compete against each other.

Those who tried out were Marcie Hedgecock, Ella Carrington, Rebecca Saunders, Alice Warren, Marguaritte Sizemore, Anne Crews, Florence Pettit, Edwina Shafer, Madge Sprinkle, Nellie Shafer, Anita Witcher, Edith Lovins, Cecile Parr, Betty Cross, Bobby Scott, Dick Butterworth, Sherwood Knight, Pollyanna Booth, Eleanor Wade, Margaret Bear, Jean, Eleanor Cull, and Betty Bradley.

Will Clash In State Hockey Tourney At Richmond Nov. 7

The varsity hockey team which will be selected this week will go to Richmond to the State Hockey Tournament at Westhampton College, November 7th and 8th.

The games will start at two o'clock Friday afternoon and continue on Saturday morning. An exhibition game will be played Saturday afternoon for the benefit of all the schools. These teams will be made up of the outstanding players who participate in the Tournament.

Instruction will be given by Miss Olive T. Iler on Mondays Sara Hardy and Mildred Droste on Tuesdays, and Hallie Hillsman on Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays. There will be practice from four o'clock until five o'clock every afternoon.

Register Shows That S. T. C. Girls Literally "Get Around"

This past week-end proved to be the gayest of many in the estimation of most of Farmville, for the girls from S. T. C. yelled at football games all over Virginia and tripped the fantastic up a blue dizzy at dances hither and yon.

Tantalizing Tech—V. P. I. was the most popular week-end spot with Nancy Bondurant, Marjorie Chapman, Betty Coleman, Nancy DuVal, Mildred Eades, Helen Fuller, Theresa Fletcher, Billie Grey, Ann Henry, Fannie Will Hall, Tillie Mahone, Helen Ott, Ella Marsh Pilkinton, Cottie Radspinner, Margaret Thomas, Ophelia Whittle, Charlotte Worsham, Betty Youngberg, Betty Sexton, and Dot Gaul attending openings there.

V. M. I. Spirits—At V. M. I. for a gay homecomings week-end were Ann Seay, Claire Spindler, Mary Jane Ritchie, Kyle Ainsworth, Jane Littell Coffman, Hunter Edmunds, Charlotte Greeley, Helen Gilliam, Jac Hardy, Sarah Massie Goode, Janet Jackson, and Harriet Levinson.

Sideline Bright Spots—Doris Taylor, Anne Ellett, Margaret Kitchin and Dearing Fauntleroy were among the many cheerers at the North Carolina State-Wake Forest game at Raleigh.

Treking to Salem were Leona Moomaw, Betty Blackwell, and Eleanor Folk for the opening dances at Roanoke College.

—District Daters to Washington went Mary Stuart Wamsley, Elizabeth McCoy, Jane Rogers, and Margaret Hiner, while Winifred Wright was in nearby Arlington for the week-end. Baltimore and thereabouts claimed Farmville visitors also with Ann Page Francis and Margaret Finney spending the week-end up there.

Tennessee Travelers—Still farther away to spread S. T. C.'s fame and fortune went Farmville lassies Rachel Bourne, Charlotte Corell and Mary Francis Wynne who traveled to Clinton, Tennessee.

Many S. T. C. girls evacuated the campus Friday and Saturday nights of last week to invade Death Valley, seven miles to ye south, for the Hampden-Sydney Pan-Hellenic Dances.

Those girls included Anne Ayers, Kathryn Baker, Caroline Bargamin, Peggy Becker, Mary Keith Bingham, Josephine Bishop, Anne Boswell, Betty Bridgeforth, Ruth Byrd, Shirley Cadmus, Virginia Campfield.

Betsy Davis, Lucy Davis, Ora Earnest, Virginia Mae Ellett, Elizabeth Fulgham, Lillian Goodin, Sarah Massie Goode, Polly Anne Gray, Polly Hughes, Grace Hutcheson, Nancy Hutter, Elinor Johnson.

Jane Moir Johnson, Dora Walker Jones, Nancy Langhorne, Harriet Levinson, Gwen Long, Dorothy Marrow, Martha Patterson, Mary Evelyn Pearsall, Mildred Pierce, Margaret Pray, Frances Quillen.

Anne Robins, Jean Shadle, Dawn Shanklin, Jean Shulkum, Virginia Snead, Kate Thompson, Mary Lou Tribble, Jo Ware, Nancy Watts, Jean Weller, May Wertz, Barbara White.

Dr. Walmsley Speaks To Y. W. C .A. Group

Dr. James E. Walmsley spoke on the subject "Southern Culture" at the first open association meeting of the Y. W. C. A. this afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Y. W. C. A. lounge.

At the conclusion of Dr. Walmsley's talk, the association members were entertained at a short social.

Y. W. C. A. committee meetings will be held this evening at 9:30 p. m. Rooms where the different groups will meet are published on the Y. W. C. A. bulletin board.

Rev. D. D. Holt, of Lynchburg, who spoke in chapel yesterday.

Fashion Show Slated For Frosh Tonight

Lightlight of the Freshmen Y. W. C. A. club meeting tonight at 9:30 p. m. in the little auditorium will be a fashion show indicating the right and wrong clothes to be worn on and off campus. Dorothy Lawrence will speak on "Making The Best of Your Appearance".

Those girls who will model clothes for various occasions are Caroline Bargamin and Mildred Corvin, lyceum; Mary Katherine Ingham and Elizabeth Tennent, church; Nell Quinn and Jeanette Garrison, dates; Katherine Vaughan and Mary Wilson Carper, class; Helen Gilliam and Nancy Williamson, downtown; Betty Coleman and Elinor Johnson, going-away; Broadnax Harrison and Patsy Connelly, football games.

Attention! Students

Under the Group Accident Policy we have issued the College, students can secure coverage up to $500 for any one accident, happening anywhere, during the school term. Write your parents about this at once.

Rev. Holt Speaks On World Crisis

Using a quotation from Henry Van Dyke as the theme of his message Rev. D. D. Holt, of the Centenary Methodist Church in Lynchburg, spoke to the students in chapel yesterday, Tuesday, October 21 on "Qualities We Must Have in a World Crisis."

The four qualities especially emphasized by Mr. Holt in his talk were thinking clearly without confusion, loving one's "fellow man sincerely," acting from motives purely", and "trusting in God and Heaven securely."

Mr. Holt is a popular minister throughout Virginia and has recently spoken to college students at the Blue Ridge Conference in North Carolina and at Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg.

Dr. Jarman Installs Seniors at Investiture Service Last Night

Class of 1942 was officially installed as seniors last night at 6:45 p. m. in the large auditorium when the senior installation service took place. Mr. Hollingsworth led the devotions after which the senior class led by Mary Katherine Dodson, president, and the class officers marched in, wearing their gowns with their little sisters in white carrying their caps, to the tune of "Red and White".

The little sister gave Dr. Jarman the cap, and the senior knelt for him to place it on her head.

After each senior had been crowned, Dr. Jarman delivered his address to the senior class.

Concluding the service the seniors marched out to the school Alma Mater.

For the remainder of the year, Friday has been set aside for senior chapel.

Fourteen To Attend Church Conferences

Ginter Park Presbyterian Church at Richmond will be the center of the Presbyterian conference which will convene October 24 and 25. The Farmville delegates are Hannah Lee Crawford, Julia Eason, Eleanor Folk, Dorothy Marrow, and Elsie Stossel.

The fall retreat of the state Baptist Student Union will be held at Madison College, Harrisonburg, on October 24, 25, and 26. The girls who will attend are Eleanor Boothe, Ruby Conner, Marie Davis, Marjorie Felts, Texie Belle Felts, Ellen Hudgins, Ella Poole, Carolyn Rouse, and Violet Woodall. Miss Sarah Poole, Baptist Student secretary, will also attend.

1942-'43 Convention To Meet at S. T. C.

Mary Katherine Dodson and Margaret Wright were elected national officers at the twelfth annual convention of Alpha Kappa Gamma held October 24-26 at Columbia College, Columbia, South Carolina. Mary Katherine Dodson was installed as new president and Margaret Wright as editor of the "Torchbearer" on Sunday morning, October 26.

Receive Honors

Other honors received by S. T. C. were the scrap-book award and the announcement that the next A. K. G. convention would be held on this campus next fall. The gavel was presented to the Farmville delegation at the banquet Saturday night by the dean Mrs. Childs, of Women of Columbia College and was accepted by Caroline Eason, president of the S. T. C. chapter.

Frances Rosebro, Mary Katherine Dodson, Margaret Wright, Lucy Turnbull, Anne Ayers, Nancy Dupuy, Caroline Eason, Jane Engleby, Amy Read and Sara Cline were the ten delegates selected to represent Farmville. Mrs. Jane Royal Phlegar, national secretary, and Miss Florence Stubbs, member of the S. T. C. faculty and one of the speakers at the convention, accompanied the group.

Campus Problems Discussed

Discussion groups regarding campus problems were held Saturday morning, October 25. Jane Engleby, Farmville, led a discussion on the topic "Training for Leadership".

The Queens College delegation had charge of the discussion "Over-Organization", and University of South Carolina, with Virginia Cardwell as its leader, discussed "Freshman Orientation. A highlight of these discussions was a summary talk by Miss Florence Stubbs, faculty member of S. T. C. and a founder of A. K. G.

During the trip they visited Woman's College, Greensboro, North Carolina; Davidson College, Davidson, North Carolina; University of South Carolina; University of North Carolina; and Duke University. One of the special features of the program was a tour of Fort Jackson, and also the field ground for maneuvers near Camden, South Carolina.

A highlight of the convention was the address, "The Value of Charm," made by Mrs. E. H. Ould of Roanoke.

In addition to the Farmville delegation, Queen's College, University of South Carolina, and Columbia College were represented. They will convene next year on the Farmville S. T. C. campus, with Mary Katherine Dodson, as the presiding officer.

Stars of "Little Minister" Recall Unusual Stage Debuts

By MARGARET WRIGHT

Going barefoot is one of the things I enjoy most about the "Little Minister," Peggy Bellus, who is playing the lead role of Babbie in the Fall play, disclosed in an interview last Tuesday, October 21.

Tedo

Peggy made her stage debut as a log in "Outward Bound". She barked off stage. She has had a part in six Dramatic Club productions and was outstanding as Irene Hibbird in "First Lady" and Countess de la Briere in "What Every Woman Knows."

Tedo Savage, of "Man, I Could Knock You Down" fame will portray Gavin Dishart, the little minister. Tedo's line "Man, I Could Knock You Down" as one of the high lights in Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows," was given as the fall play last year.

Although he has also had parts in "Dear Brutus" and "First Lady", besides high school plays, he always experiences stage fright.

"That is except for the skits we gave in the attic", he added, "when we wore short pants and hung a sheet over the clothes line for the curtain."

Peggy explained that the most fascinating part of working on a play, to her, is in catching on to the character and in beginning to feel the spirit of the play and the character she is portraying.

"I like the last two weeks of rehearsals best," Tedo interrupted Peggy, "because you're a part of the play by then. There's an excitement in it. It feels sort of Broadwayish".

They differed as to the type of role they preferred to play. Peggy would rather take serious parts, while Tedo preferred comedy.

"Comedy is fun, too," Peggy admitted. She has both to do as Babbie.

As the call for the second act rang through the auditorium they scrambled to their places.

"Remember how I forgot my line in "What Every Woman Knows" because I became so engrossed in the game of solitaire I had to play?" Peggy asked.

"Yes", said Tedo, "and how it took half the cast to get my riding boots on in "First Lady".

Three Girls Appointed Committee Members Of Student Standards

Frances Parham, Julia Eason, and Mary Evelyn Pearsall have recently been appointed members of the committee on the points system by the chairman of the committee, May Wertz. This committee is a part of the Student Standards program.

Girls who made less than a "C" average last quarter must drop one half of their extra-curricula activities this quarter, and, if at the end of this quarter they still have not made their "C" average, they must drop all extra-curricula work. A "B" average is required in order to carry 16 points.

Those girls who have not turned in their points are requested to do so at once.

Quinn Elected Head Of Alpha Phi Sigma

At a called meeting of Alpha Phi Sigma last Monday evening, Nelle Quinn was elected president to replace Texie Belle Felts, who resigned because she was carrying too many points in extra-curricula work.

Miss Mary Peck was elected advisor, and Frances Lee Hawthorne was made reporter to replace Nelle Quinn.

Cline Adds 16 To Rotunda Staff

Sara Cline, editor of The Rotunda, announces that six have been added to the editorial staff and that ten have been appointed to the business staff.

Marilyn Bell, Faye Johnson, Martha Patterson, Jane Waring Tuffin, Anne Fitzgerald, and Vivian Gwaltney will be members of the editorial staff.

Announcement was also made that Dorothy Gaul will be photographic editor and that Jane Smith will be copy editor. Both Dorothy and Jane have served on the staff as typist and as reporter respectively.

The names of Bobby Scott, Anne Rogers, Mary Sterrett, and Alyce Fulton will be added to the business staff. New typists include Claire Spindler, Edna Brown, and Maxine Compton.

Serving on the business staff in the capacity of proof readers will be Nancy O'Bern, Jean Goggin, Nell Holloway, and Louise Bell.

These appointments were made as a result of a four week's apprenticeship, during which time these girls were given experience in the field in which they wished to work. Tryouts for the Rotunda will be held again during the winter quarter.

Siberian Singers Here Tomorrow

Siberian Singers, a famed Russian male choir, will be the guest of the Farmville students at the first lyceum program this session Thursday October 30. Nicholas Vastilieff, distinguished young musician and outstanding vocalist, will direct.

The program will consist of the finest in church music, folk, and gypsy songs and will be presented by the singers in their authentic cathedral robes and national costumes.

Having traveled extensively through the United States, the Siberian Singers have been praised highly by the critics of outstanding American newspapers.

K. D. P. Elects D. S. Lancaster Honorary Member

Va. Superintendent To Speak Here

Mr. Dabney Stuart Lancaster, state superintendent of public instruction, has been elected honorary member of the Beta Epsilon Chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, national scholarship fraternity.

Mr. Lancaster will be initiated December 2 preceeding the organization's annual Christmas dinner, at which he will be the principal speaker.

In the chapel service, Thursday, October 23, Mary Hunter Edmunds, president of the Beta Epsilon Chapter, announced that twenty-six girls had been elected members of the local chapter.

Those girls who were elected to membership are Anne Ayers, Vera Baron, Nelle Brooke Benton, Imogene Claytor, Nahrea Coleman, Marie Davis, Anne Fiddett, Eleanor Folk, Helen Wiley Hardy, Susan Jane Marshall, Susie Lyle Moore, Agnes Patterson, Rebecca Louise Phillips, Amy Read, and Rosalie Rogers.

Other new members include Alice Seebert, Mamie Snow, Dorothy Sprinkle, Lois Steidtman, Mary Stuart Wamsley, Anne Ware, May Wertz, Winifred Wright, Violet Woodall, Flora Winn, and Emma Noblin.

Kappa Delta Pi was founded in 1909 at the University of Illinois and was organized at this college in 1928. There are now one hundred and twenty-five chapters throughout the country, three alumni chapters, and the Laureate chapter of thirty-nine members who are among the great educators of America.

"The purpose of Kappa Delta Pi is to encourage high intellectual and scholastic standings and to recognize outstanding contributors to education",

Freshmen Election Names Moore Victor

Johnson, Parker Serve Government

Class Designates French Classman

Harriette Moore, of Gastonia, North Carolina, was elected president of the freshman class Thursday night, October 23. Harriette is participating in golf, hockey and swimming.

Government Representatives

Faye Johnson, of Vinton, and Ruth Parker, of Portsmouth, were elected Student Government representatives from the freshmen class at a meeting Monday night, October 27. Faye is a member of the Rotunda staff, an apprentice in the Dramatic Club, and is going out for swimming. Ruth is a member of the choral club and an apprentice of the Dramatic Club.

Janet Jackson, of Petersburg, and Gwen Sampson, of Richmond, were elected to represent their class on Student Standards. Janet is participating in swimming, hockey and golf, while Gwen is an apprentice of the Dramatic Club and also is out for golf.

French Is Classman

Mr. Raymond French, associate professor of chemistry, will serve as classman for the Freshman class. Mr. French was the classman for the class of '41.

The vice-president, the secretary and the treasurer of the class will be elected in the near future.

Holton Attends Conference In N.Y.

S. M. Holton, associate professor of education at S. T. C., left today for New York City to attend the tenth annual educational conference being held at The Biltmore, October 30-31.

Under the auspices of many others, the Committee on Measurements and Guidance of the American Council of Education will be the group in which Mr. Holton will participate.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the guest speaker at the banquet Thursday night. Among others who will speak during the duration of the convention are E. G. Williamson, dean of student affairs at University of Minnesota, and Dean Herbert E. Hawks, of Columbia College.

Mrs. Holton will accompany Mr. Holton on the convention.

Peerman Will Direct Senior Formal Plans

Betty Peerman has been appointed general chairman of the Senior Formal slated for Saturday, December 6. Ann Bradshaw and Lena Butterworth will serve on the music committee; and Mildred Morris, Margie Rice and Buff Gunter will be in charge of decorations.

The refreshment committee is composed of Helen McGuire, Lillian Turner and Marie Thompson. The ticket committee consists of Florence Thierry, Catherine Pugh, and La Reine Thornton. Elizabeth Warner will be figure chairman.

S. T. C. Circus To Vie With Hallowe'en Ghosts and Goblins For Spotlight

Classes Clash For Stunt Prize

Take-off on Hallowe'en, a stunt program, skeletons rising from the dead, and the circus at Army headquarters are features of the class stunts which will highlight the State Teachers College Circus, an annual event sponsored by Alpha Kappa Gamma, national leadership fraternity, when it arrives Friday night, October 31, at 8 o'clock in the college gymnasium.

Dorothy Johnson, general chairman, and other committee heads, together with Caroline Eason, president of Alpha Kappa Gamma, and Miss Grace Moran as advisor, have arranged a program of gala gaiety with peanuts, popcorn, crackerjacks, pink lemonade, wild animals, and animal trainers.

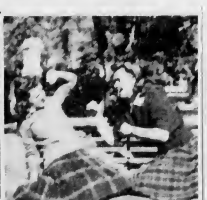
Basis for Judging

The class stunts, which will be judged by Miss Grace E. Mix, Miss Mary Nichols, and Mr. M. B. Coyner, will be the first big feature of the fun and frolic. Allene Overbey, Nancy Naff, and Mary Lilly Purdum head this committee. Gerry Ackiss and Irma Graff are chairmen of the senior class stunt which will feature the circus at Army headquarters; Winifred Wright heads the junior stunt whose nature has not been revealed; Nelle Quinn will lead the sophomores as skeletons rise from the dead; and Ruth Parker will direct a Hallowe'en take-off as the freshman stunt.



Ringmaster Unknown

Each class stunt will be judged on its originality, presentation, and appropriateness. A prize of $2.50 will be awarded to the winning class, and the stunt judged as second best will receive honorable mention.

Then will come the ringmaster, whose identity is being kept secret, and all the animals—lions, tigers, elephants, giraffes, zebras, and monkeys. All of this merry-making is building up to the climax of the evening, the crowning of the queen. The four classes have nominated their candidates. The seniors are backing Harriett Scott; the juniors are none the less enthusiastic for the victory of Sarah Wade Owen; while the sophomores and freshmen are cheering for Ruth Dugger and Sherwood Knight, respectively.

After the queen is crowned the crowd will entertain itself at the various booths which will be arranged by each class and by other organizations on campus. Virginia Alexander and Cottie Radspinner will head the senior dance booth; Bridget Gentile has charge of the junior booth; Louise McCorkle, the sophomore; and Myrtle Lee Holt, the freshman.

The names of the recently tapped members of Alpha Kappa Gamma have been added to several of the committees. Spilly

Parade Scheduled For 3:30 Friday

Parade Begins at 3:30

A spectacular parade of animals, trainers, riders, floats, clowns, and two bands will be featured on Friday afternoon at 3:30 p. m.

The person selling the largest number of tickets will receive free admittance to the circus and to all of the booths, and the person selling the second largest number will receive free admittance.

Tickets are now on sale, priced at ten cents for students and fifteen cents for all others.

This Week-end Business . . . What Are We Going to Do About It?

The joy of school has been called the joy of going home, a joy which is slowly becoming the basis of much "pro & conning" from the faculty and home heads. At every student-faculty forum, there is much discussion about this time hound that diverts the prospective student from his studies, yet no logical solution for the question has presented itself.

As it now stands, every one gets an excused cut in each class quarterly. Week-ends consisting of from Saturday after class until Sunday night are optional. But these are too frequent, protests the faculty, since they feel the exertion on the individual to be a hindrance to competent, undiversified studying.

What to do? Girls living near home feel no depreciable difference after a week-end. Others going to football games and dances feel that these diversions are a vital part of their social and school life. But moderation must be a constant factor for consideration lest the privileges which we enjoy en masse be deprived us.

It might reach the point where the gestapo will ration our week-ends according to our scholastic average, and this will probably result in many blitzkreigs launched on those in charge. But a happy medium must be met and week-ends reduced or controlled action is threatened. It is up to each individual to use discretion and judgment, remembering that much is to be gained here at college.

M. P. V.

A. K. G. Grows Up

(Editor's Note: The following is a summary of Miss Florence Stubbs' speech which she presented at the Alpha Kappa Gamma convention at Columbia College, S. C., Saturday, October 25. It is printed here because of its pertinence to our campus.)

We have come a long way in the development of the Alpha Kappa Gamma chapters. We are growing up. We have gained strength through our struggles. Today we place emphasis upon doing. In our early stages, we placed emphasis upon plan and procedure. We questioned what constituted leadership and who the leaders were.

However, names are not important to us. Psychologists find a great deal in names. We have selected great women leaders as our patron saints not because of their names, but because they represent what is supreme in guidance.

Keep On Doing

Do not do less in activities than you are doing. Look to the great leaders today. We must dream more; we must get away from the crowd. In this confused meddling world, we neglect dreaming. Look to Joan D' Arc and Florence Nightingale—theirs is not inspiration, but preparation. College must count in a way never reckoned before. We must obtain solid food—that's what the world is calling for.

Leadership—A Means

Leadership is a means. It calls for social adjustment. College is a new world to the freshman. Social adjustment and the problem of how to study are the two most critical problems of college. What can we do to teach groups how to study? This idea is full of challenge.

Over—Organization

Our organizations should be alive. We can ascertain their need by determining their functions. We check our automobile, our wardrobe, but not our organizations. There must be a trial by jury to determine whether or not an organization is essential. If an organization does not serve the community, it should be abolished. Close kin organization should be united. Over-organization is not a college problem. It dates back to 1920. It is typical of both national and international organizations. It is a fever that has caught the world.

And it was this fever that prompted Alpha Kappa Gamma to organize. We needed a hub in the wheel; the spokes were in the way. We need coorganization. Here we are today. How can we help to coordinate? Leadership is not born; the timid is untrained. We are all born with capacity. Into our halls come ability; we must give encouragement.

Gleanings

By BETTY PEERMAN

Labor and Defense

On Sunday night President Roosevelt appealed for a second time to John L. Lewis to call off a strike in vital coal mines. For the second time Mr. Lewis ignored the appeal of the President. If this practice continues our defense efforts will be crippled greatly.

In a time of national crisis everyone should put aside personal interests and work with the national government. Mr. Lewis has done just the opposite by putting the needs of the United Mine Workers above the needs of the United States. In a few weeks the lack of coal could drastically effect the vital steel industries. Whether or not this happens lies within the power of Mr. Lewis. As the world crisis hangs in the balance this is an impotrant decision.

German Reprisal in France

One hundred French hostages have paid with their lives for the assassination of two German officers in Occupied France. Unless the true slayers are captured, one hundred more hostages may die before the firing squad. To try to put an end to these slayings, Marshal Petain has offered himself as a hostage. But will this bring the French people to their knees?

When Hitler first had trouble with France he resorted to reprisals thinking that this would bring the French around. The answer, however, was more assassinations of German officers and more unrest all over the country. As a result of this the Germans have turned to mass reprisals. This has been a most ruthless and cold-blooded act because the German officials can have no doubt as to the innocence of these people.

Looking 'Em Over

It seemed like a morgue in school this past week-end what with the A. K. G. convention, football games in Lynchburg and Richmond, the A. A. Council at Longwood Saturday night; and with usual weekendings, 'tis no wonder that only a handful of the mighty 900 remained to greet those who returned on Sunday.

Idle Chatter:

But it does seem that there were a few visitors—such as Marie Utt's two seniors from Tech; Mary Lou's "De" up for the week-end; and Ace Livick here from way over Hampden-Sydney for his usual Saturday with Ann T.

Ahh—could you tell me—was that the good B. Shaw we saw with Shannon's Jack Saturday night? Could be and was--

What's this that's rumored about a certain freshman that is being escorted to R.-M. openings with none other than E. A. Parker's "Mac"? we hear it's "really nothing", but it does make chatter.

Errors Delight

Evidence of the brilliance of this year's freshman class. Ann Blair: (button-holding a Junior): Oh, you remind me so much of somebody I know.

Jean Weller: Who?

Ann Blair: Do you sing in the choir?

Jean Weller: (patiently) Yes, I do.

Ann Blair: (making a great discovery): Then you're the girl you remind me of!

So They Say

Dot Gaul just adores the broad shoulders to be found only in Suffolk—and speaking of Suffolk, Betty Sexton certainly is excited about this week end—couldn't be Jack Wills, or could it?

"Birdie" Williams declares that he really is her first cousin whom she trucks out to H. S. to see.

What do you think? "Gwen" Sampson is "Frank-ly" in love. People easily can understand why Kyle (Hedy Lamarr) Barnhill just loves the song "My Bill". They are said to communicate by telepathy each night at ten—"C12 H22 O11". Baker has the darlingest initialed ring—but whose is it???

Did you see Buff Gunter stepping out Saturday with a uniform in a convertible with a Texas license?

Worried Mind:

Wonder why "Sherry" looked so disappointed Sunday—could it have been the telegram from U. of Va.?

We hear that "that promtrotting" Nancy Hughes is having trouble—What's it to be this time, Nancy? H. S. or Virginia? What's the technique, anyway? How 'bout Les and what does Cottie think?

At Random:

Sarah Wade's a hog about horseback riding, so we hear, or is it vice versa? For riding lessons see A. Ware.

So Peggy Gray "Doesn't Want To Set The World On Fire", but just keep the flame burning in Boozie's heart, eh? We're on your side, Peggy.

Letter To The Editor

Editor,
Student Newspaper
Farmville State Teachers College
Farmville, Virginia
Dear Miss Editor:

You may have heard of College Topics—in any case you have heard of the University of Virginia—and that's what we want to know about.

"What we think of the University of Virginia" is the title of a series that is beginning in College Topics soon. We are asking the editors of various newspapers in the women's colleges to either assign someone to this subject, or to write it themselves and send the result to us. Anything goes!

Thank you in advance for your cooperation.

Sincerely yours,
Jim Truitt,

(It is hoped that readers of The Rotunda will submit an answer to the question imposed by College Topics. Give your replies to any member of The Rotunda Staff. The Editor)

Question of the Week

What Do You Think of Wearing Cotton Stockings?

Frances Winston: If everybody else starts wearing cotton stockings, I wouldn't mind.

Jane Peery: For comfort's sake, I think here is nothing worse. It's better tho', if that will help in the defense program, to do without silk stockings. Frankly, they'd drive me to drink.

Betty Bridgeforth: Uncle Sam would appreciate it and they would look nice on some people. But not me!

Betsy Davis: They just make skinny legs look larger. I don't like them for myself, but they're all right for other people.

Beth Johnson: They are all right for national defense, but I don't want to have to wear them. The colored stockings are all right for certain types—not mine.

Josephine Starling: I think cotton stockings are darling for country and sport, but I'm not partial to the black variety.

Mildred Droste: They save money for college girls and also for national defense.

Helen Ott: As long as we can wear silk ones, let's. I'd approve of cotton ones if everyone else were wearing them with me; and if they're to be worn, we'd all look out of style without them.

Pamela Starling: The colored ones are cuter than knee socks and they make the knees look much more attractive.

Betty Youngberg: The ones I've seen are horrible. If they're improved and look sheer, I wouldn't mind, especially.

Nell Shaklin: Some of them are cute sometimes, but I don't approve of them as a substitute for the silk stockings we know and use today.

Sally Robertson: I'd rather go bare-legged than wear them. I think they're horrible.

Jane Engleby: They are warm and fine for teaching and they don't spring runs as freely as the silk ones. I think wearing cotton stockings would be a noble gesture for national defense.

Joscelyn Gillum: I don't think there's anything to all the publicity about cotton stockings. I still believe there are plenty of silk ones. As for cottons, I hate 'em.

Miggie Mish: Anything for national defense, I always say.

Alice Marie Coberly: In emergency, they'll do. But I prefer silk ones.

Arlene Hunt: If everybody else wears them, I wouldn't mind. If they're anything like "rat week" stockings, I wouldn't prefer them.

Nancye Allen: They're real ugly, but it's a fine thing to do for national defense.

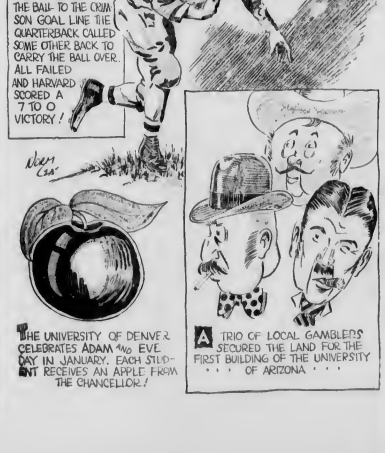
Mr. French: Be patriotic and wear cotton stockings.

We, the Students, Speak

By ANN FITZGERALD

We Deplore The Decline Of: gallantry, and chivalry, southern accents, stockings, peace, rain Jan Garber and his fox trots.

We Don't See How We Lived Without: Miss Mary, Dr. Jarman, Coca Colas, sweaters and skirts, the U. S. Army, Miss Wheeler's plays, Shannon's, mail from home, and week-ends.



We Had Rather Not Hear Anymore About: Hitler, Lindbergh, The Windsors, "draft dodgers", uncooperative people, silver missing from the dining room, domineering sophomores.

We Definitely Do Not Like: social climbers, "apple polishers", pink stationery, "prudes", "wet blankets," catty women, candid cameras, spongers, tattlers, would-be sophisticates, dense cigarette smoke, empty mail boxes, cabbages, cauliflower, groans after chapel announcements, little pink slips in faculty hands, fishroe for breakfast, onions, salted chipped beef.

But On The Other Hand We Love: Men in tails, those checked sweaters being worn by S. T. C.-ers, perfume, jewelry, full moons, Rosebro's baby talk, Polly Hughes' portrayal of Popeye, Anne Williams' and Carolyn Rouses's poetry, the harmony of the Belus-Sanford-Zehmer trio, Clare Spindler and Marie Snyder's midnight snacks, the extreme geniality of "Charlie Hop", Hampden-Sydney dances, "specials" on the mantle, boxes from home, Margie Rice's short stories, and good food.

We'd Like To Go Back To: "Big Apple" and "Truckin'" days, sleeveless sweaters, "yo-yo-ing", "knock-knock-ing", square dances, box socials, and corn shucking parties.

We Have A Great Curiosity To See: S. T. C. Circus, "Little Minister", Charles Morgan, Inhabitants of Cunningham Hall in bed by ten-thirty, the girl in the Annex, who had seven dates for one afternoon, Clare and Marie's "Andies", Nancy Kerse's West Pointer, Martha Hammock's Irving, Sarah Rhea's Franks' (both of them), perfect marching when leaving chapel, and at least one "crip" course!

Are you a fan of Virginia Tech's hard hitting Gobblers or could it be V. M. I.'s Keydets with their mighty fighting Aces? These two leading Virginia teams will again produce their best in the game on Thanksgiving day when the two rivaling teams canbat at the Municipal Stadium in Lynchburg. This marks the first time that the big game has been scheduled to be played in the Hill City, but due to an unfinished studium in the "Magic City," Roanoke, necessity moved it away.

And so crowds from almost everywhere will be scanning each paper to find if the weather man has decided what type of weather can be produced. Both V. P. I., and V. M. I. are listed in the State's "Big Six" which also includes Virginia, Richmond, W. and L., and W. and M. Statistics show that the two teams are very close in rank this season. Last week-end V. M. I. captured the Richmond team 25 to 7 and at the same time V. P. I. downed W. and L. 13-3. A real game will be in store for those who see the final play-off between these two fighters.

Home Team to Journey to Richmond—

Getting down to sports closer "Home". Another big game will be marked down on the sports' record on November 7 and 8 in Richmond, but this game isn't between just any team, but will be played by Farmville girls who make up S. T. C.'s varsity hockey squad. We all will be thinking of their fine playing and if possible be right at the side line cheering them on to a goal. Now that we have a varsity squad, special practices are in full progress, for all will need their best on the tournament day.

"And the rains came!" Old weather man surely got caught in the storm this week because he had given up hope of the dampness. Truly, we needed it, for it's been months since the last drop fell, but sadly enough the outdoor activities had to bow to the wet tennis courts and archery meadow and even Longwood's fine "greens"! But tennis matches are still moving along, with sets being played off each week. For competition check-up, see the A. A. bulletin board.

The arrows do eventually hit the target even though it takes a little time and patience! Quite a number of girls who are not particularly active on the hockey or basketball field are true supporters of their team when they join one of these activities. For after all it's not the same people who are the leaders in every sport, but it takes a little help from all.

Red Cross Offers Swimming Course

Final Examination Set for December 1

Nancy Dupuy, student swimming instructor, announced this week that practices for qualification in the Red Cross Swimming Instructor's course have begun.

The class will meet on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights at ten o'clock at the pool. Final instructions to be administered by Max Rote, Jr., national Red Cross field director, will begin on December 1 and continue for approximately ten days.

Girls taking the course are Grace Ellerton, Mildred Droste, Dorothy Gaul, Anne Berry, Catherine May, Ellen Ebel, Kyle Barnhill, Ruth Dugger, Gloria Pollard, Dorothy Darracott, Peggy Hughes, Shirley Cadmus, Frances Mallory, Harriet Walker, Anne Evans, and Frances Quddler.

Nancy also requests sophomores who have not passed the required swimmer's test to get instruction at the pool on Thursday afternoons at four o'clock, and freshmen whose names begin with A through F to come on Wednesday afternoons at four o'clock.

Tennis Courts Under X-Ray

Made of All - Weather Material; Dry Easily

By LILLY BEC GRAY

Every Wednesday and Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock individual instructions in tennis will be offered. Practices may be secured at any time.

The new tennis courts, which are located on the old athletic field, required two months for construction and cost the school $3,000.

These courts were built by the F. C. Feise Company of Norbeth, Pennsylvania, which constructs and designs the red and green Teniko tennis and badminton courts.

The Feise Company commenced the construction of the courts the last week in June and finished them the last week in August. These courts are weather courts; that is, they have about five feet of quick drying clay which was packed and dragged and repacked and redragged about ten times under the surface.

The final surface is of crust slate which enables it to dry shortly after it gets wet. The lines also are permanent.

Jumping Classes Are Now Underway

Jumping classes, under the auspices of the Pegasus Riding Club, have started with Nell White, Kay Spencer, Buff Gunter, and Nell Scott in the class. Miss Stella Fox has just bought a three gaited horse, "Dorothy", from Mr. Padget.

The Board of Directors for the Riding Club is meeting to plan the activities for the fall quarter. There will be a booth at the circus, but its exact nature has not been announced. New members are being taken into the club every week. The roll now includes over fifty girls.

Every week day after lunch Rebecca Spicer, secretary of the club, will be in the Riding Club room to make or cancel riding appointments. For riding appointments on Saturday, special appointment may be made by calling Miss Fox.

Nine Upperclassmen Report for Basketball

On Wednesday, October 22, the upper classmen had their first basketball practice for the year. Actual playing was done with the girls competing against each other. The passing was outstanding as well as the forwards' accuracy.

Those who went out to practice basketball were Frances Parham, Nell Hurt, Jean Carr, Marty Roberts, Helen Mess, June Smith, Anne Ellett, Vivian Gwaltney, and Anne Price.

Farmville Students May Be Divided Into Three Classes

By JANE SANFORD

We, on this staff have come to the conclusion that the student body on the STC campus can be divided into three classes. First, those who go away on week-ends; second, those who go away on week-ends; and third, those who go away on week-ends. Of course, to break the monotony of this classification a fourth division could be made for those who stay here and date Hampden-Sydney products, etc. But so often this group is relatively small, and we can do nothing more than mention it here. So it was last week end. . . . .

Satin and Wool. . . Down at Wake Forest, N. C., the Deacons routed a bewildered Tar Heel team from North Carolina 13-0 in Saturday's football game. Among the 15,000 fans were Jac Hardy, Katherine Burge, Anne Crews, Frances Lee Hawthorne, and Mildred Morris from STC, who also attended the Homecoming dances there Friday and Saturday nights.

Nearer by in Lynchburg the W and L Generals were defeated by a stronger Gobbler team from Virginia Tech 13-3, while Dot Lawrence, May Wertz, Nancy Bondurant, Virginia Snead, Mary Williams Calvert, Irma Page, Imogen Hutter, Betty Cross, Nancy Hutter, Mary Conson, Stella Scott, Charlotte Phillips, Caroline Smith, Louise McCorkle, and Connie Knighton yelled for one side or the other.

Ella Marsh Pilkinton, Kyle Barnhill, Ann Page Francis, Shirley Cadmus, Ann Seay, Janet Jackson, Margaret Thomas, Jeff Rowe, Hilah Lee Parks, and Helen Gilliam supported VMI in a 25-6 victory over the Richmond Spiders in Richmond the same day, and then danced more than somewhat at the dance given in honor of the cadets at the John Marshall Hotel that night.

In short, quite a gay week-end.

Capital Cavorting. . . Louisa Sanford enjoyed a swish week-end in the capital city attending a football game Saturday and Max Gordon's production of "The Land is Bright". Also in Washington for the week-end were Gerry Beckner and Pauline Cammack.

Silver Spoon, huh?. . . Stopping at the Barbizon Plaza in New York for several days of last week was Nancy Hopkins; truly a trip to be envied.

Campus Leaders. . . Representing STC at the national convention of Alpha Kappa Gamma, honor society for leadership, at Columbia College, Columbia, S. C., were Sara Cline, Margaret Wright, Nancy Dupuy, Mary Katherine Dodson, Amy Read, Frances Rosebro, Jane Engleby, Lucy Turnbull, Caroline Eason, and Anne Ayers.

First Nighters. . . The superb performance given by Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in "There Shall Be No Night" in Richmond was attended by May Wertz, Cotis Radspinner, Margie Rice, Peggy Bellus, and Ann Williams.

Right Around Home. . . Betsy Davis, Ann Covington Mary Hunter Edmunds, Spilly Purdum, Betsy Feerman, and Charlotte Worsham visited their parents in Danville for the week-end, while Jo Petersburg to keep the home fires lit went Ann Boswell, Kitty Ricks Vaughan, Helen Gilliam, Beezie Townsend, Peggy Steel, and Alice Marie Coberly. Treking up to Roanoke for the same purpose were Hattie Cantrell, May Winn, Virginia Alexander, Margaret Bowling, and Jean Sckulkcum. In Richmond "home visiting" were Jean, Hatton Lulie Jones, Mary Martha Bingham, and Martha Cottrell. Others scoring home runs during the week end included Sarah Massie Goode, Broadnax Harrison, Frances Strohecker, Mary Wilson Carper, Ruth Dugger, Lilliam German, Sarah and Betsy Trigg, Baylis Kunz, and Frances Mallory.

Barnum, Bailey?

No, It's the S. T. C. Circus Coming to Town

Sixteen hundred years ago, advertisement for such an outstanding entertainment event as the circus which Alpha Kappa Gamma yearly sponsors, might have read: "In the arena of Circus Maximus will be held a chariot race of great interest. As an added attractions Marcus Secndus will fight a wild boar."

The circus as we know it today is scarcely analagous to the original circus, for this Roman celebration had its origin in a ceremony to the God Consus, a deity of horses, who was identified with Neptune. Its feature attractions included chariot races, conflicts with wild beasts, regular battles, and athletic exercises.

But circuses change as circuses will, and with such innovators as Barnum, Bailey, the Ringling Brothers, and S. T. C., much has been done to complete the modern conception. Horses, except those with high I. Q's and hobby ones, have practically become extinct. The race is now for fun and that interesting sideshow which is just one of the thrity that large circuses play up.

Here, even the modern conception has become slightly modified. Each class presents a ten-minute skit in some way vaguely circusy and then the circus queen, chosen by pennies, is revealed. On the side are booths sponsored by the classes and other organizations. They include penny pitching, fortune telling, dancing, and throwing cotton balls at some unsuspecting martyr.

Highlighting the school calendar as did the chariot races in times Roman, the circus is the long heralded event at which the motley crew of fun lovers at S. T. C. can lose themselves in an entertaining "night at the circus."

Outstanding Performances Noted

Pied Piper Gives Rodents "Run-Around" In Survival For Fittest

For the past two days the rats here have really been given the "run around". Their menial duties have ranged from those of alarm clocks to personality hunters.

Entertaining the lordly upperclassmen, tho, has taken most of their time, and outstanding performances include those of Pat Maddox who was asked to look for her dignity and finally found it on the end of a straw which was dipped into a powder box, Ann Blair who presented a telephone conversation backwards, Jane Brown making love to Yehudi with members of rat court yelling out for his box number, Mary Ann Biggs singing a laundry list to "Washington and Lee Swing," Harriette Moore relating the phone call made on the night she gained her presidency, Page Williams imitating a machine gun with an English accent, Nancy Hughes remaking a bed and taking the mattress off to do it up right, Delia Rainey doing a song and dance for the horses (?) on Second Annex, Jean Smith sitting on her imagination and kicking her feet, and Kyle Barnhill giving an oration she wrote on "Ants In One's Pants" with feeling and gestures.

The song hit of the rat-week has been "Oh Johnny". The halls have been pervaded with "I am a Royal Mounted Police", "Forty-five tinks-p-u-", "I'm going to Class", "I'm so embarrassed", and "Ritsy-Row here I am".

Kay Kyser to Play In Richm'd Oct. 31

To Test Knowledge Of College Students

Kay Kyser and his band under the auspices of the Ginter Park Junior Woman's Club, will arrive in Richmond for a one night stand at the Mosque, October 31, Halloween night. They will present a concert in the Mosque theatre at 8 o'clock which will be a reasonably accurate facsimile of their "College of Musical Knowledge", followed by several hours dancing in the Mosque ballroom.

Kay's band, with one exception, will remain intact. Sully Mason, Harry Babbit, Ish Kabbible, will be among the featured entertainers, and two new feminine voices will replace Ginny Simms, who has remained in Hollywood to fulfill her picture commitments.

The concert will test the musical knowledge of the students of many of the surrounding colleges, for the balcony of the Mosque will be divided into sections for the various colleges, and Kay will play one section against another in his questions for his "College of Musical Knowledge."

Kay Kyser is being brought to Richmond by the Ginter Park Junior Woman's Club for the benefit of their Philanthropic Fund, and all proceeds of the affair will go to charity.

Tickets may be secured by writing the Virginia Record Shop, Richmond, Virginia. Concert prices are from $2.20 to $.55 and dance tickets are $1.65

S. T. C. Observes Education Week November 9-15

Faculty, Students To Speak at Chapel

Education Week at S. T. C. will begin Tuesday, November 11, with a talk in chapel by Dr. J. P. Wynne on "The History of Education". He will give the methods and forms of education used in various systems from ancient to present times and will include a survey of all types of scholastic progress.

Wednesday morning, November 12, Edgar Johnson, professor of education, will present to the student body a movie entitled "The River". "The History of Farmville" will be the feature of the program to be presented on Thursday morning by Mary Katherine Dodson and Mary Hunter Edmunds. Frances Rosebro and Nancy Naff will continue the same topic Friday, November 14.

Education week has as its main purposes this year the creation of a lasting interest in education and an appreciation of the progress that has been made in this field at Farmville.

Roanoke Alumnae Schedule Banquet

Group Will Hear Dr. J. E. Walmsley

Dr. James E. Walmsley will speak at a banquet to be given by the Roanoke chapter of the Farmville Alumnae Association at Hotel Patrick Henry Thursday, November 13, at 7 o'clock.

All Roanoke girls are invited to attend the banquet, Lorana Moomaw, president of the Roanoke chapter, announced. The banquet tickets are $1.25.

Committee Heads Selected

Marguerite Blackwell has been named program chairman for the banquet. Other chairmen include Mrs. Nancy Gray Perdue, reservations; Margaret Stallard, decorations, and Elizabeth Shippiett, publicity.

A number of guests from Farmville are expected to be present at the banquet. Some who will go are Dr. J. L. Jarman president; Dr. J. E. Walmsley, who will speak; Miss Mary Peck, alumnae president; Miss Grace Moran, associate professor of geography and past president of the alumnae; Miss Rachel Royall secretary to the dean; Mrs. Boyd Coyner, and Miss Mary Nichols.

Officers of the Roanoke chapter are Lorana Moomaw, president; Margaret Stallard, vice-president; Mrs. Nancy Gray Perdue, secretary, and Mrs. W. H. Mitchell, treasurer.

Apprentices Stage One-Act Play Tonight

"A Moment of Darkness, by Mary Thurman Pyle, will be presented by a cast of eight of the Dramatic Club apprentices in the S. T. C. auditorium Wednesday, November 5, at 7:45 p. m. Jane McGinnis, a member of the acting group, is in charge of the directing and production.

As a one-act tragedy, the scene is laid in prison and includes an all woman cast. Mrs. Keeley, matron, will be enacted by Frances Quillen; Miss Wilson, another matron, Kyle Barnhill; Tess, woman prisoner, Margaret Hiner, Sal, crazy woman prisoner, Delia Raney; Aunt Nim, old-lady inmate, Patricia Garth; Aunt Julia, Emily Kyle Ainsworth; Karen, Mary Lee West; and Myra, a new prisoner, Alice Feitig.

The play opens in the sewing room of the prison and is chiefly concerned with the murder of Mrs. Keeley, the prison matron.

PAUL F. WATKINS

Journalists Hear Watkins Friday

Delegates to the VIPA convention will have the privilege of hearing one of the country's widely recognized newspapermen when Paul F. Watkins, editor and publisher of the Ashland Herald-Progress speaks Friday night.

Mr. Watkins was dedicated to be a preacher, trained to be a lawyer, and turned out to be a newspaperman by accident. Now, Mr. Watkins says that he had rather be in the newspaper field than any other, after 20 years of it.

1926 found Mr. Watkins as promotion manager of the Chicago Daily News. In this capacity he managed a newsreel, travel, and guide bureaus, almanac, cook book, cooking school, track meets, yacht races, and Carnival of Nations.

In 1933 realizing a life ambition, he went to Ashland, saw, liked, and bought the paper. Family sickness, and lack of mechanical and general management experience cut Mr. Watkins' capital, but he soon got results, and according to him "hasn't bought a bottle of red ink since".

Mr. Watkins writes a front page column entitled "In My Opinion", which has been very widely quoted. The Associated Press and Walter Winchell have both taken excerpts from his column frequenty, Winchell printing a column of Watkins' on the small town in its entirety. The Virginia state fair of 1940 gave its prize "for excellence in column writing" to Mr. Watkins.

A member of Kiwanis and very prominent in civic and organization affairs in his community and state, he has been a director of the Virginia Press Association for four of his eight years in the state. He was vice-president in 1939, and in 1940 headed the Virginia Press Association.

Dr. Jeffers Will Speak Tonight to Freshmen

Dr. George Jeffers will speak at the Freshman Y. W. C. A. club meeting tonight at 9:30 p. m., in the Little Auditorium.

Dr. Jefers subject will be "A School Girl's Philosophy of Life".

WMBG Presents Strick's Compositions; Seven S.T.C. Girls To Participate

Program Given Nov. 16 at 2:15

The Southern Literary Messenger, whose weekly program "The Voice of the South" is heard every Sunday afternoon over WMBG, will present four compositions of Alfred H. Strick, Sunday, November 16th, at 2:15 p. m.

These compositions will be sung by the Seventh Street Christian Church Choir of Richmond, Va., under the direction of Dr. Luther A. Richman, state supervisor of music. Included in the choir will be seven students from S. T. C. These girls are Peggy Bellus, Marie Nichols, Alice Sparger, Mildred Carter Clanton, Beth Johnson, Margaret Lovins, Patricia Maddox, and Miss Virginia Richards, instructor of music.

Musical settings of the hymns will be "In the Cross of Christ I Glory", "All Praise to Thee", "We Plough the Fields and Scatter", and "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Backstagers Expose What Makes "The Little Minister"

Backstage work of the fall production, "The Little Minister" which will be given Friday night, November 14, in the S. T. C. auditorium, is nearing completion, according to the backstagers themselves. Minute details, coupled with accurate timing, are being smoothed out.

Miggie Mish with the help of Addison Campbell is in charge of the lighting effects. Especially adapted to out-of-door scenes is the cyclorama which gives the effect of distance. Miggie says the lighting for "The Little Minister" will be very effective. This is the first time the cyclorama has been used since "Dear Brutus", which the Dramatic Club gave three years ago.

The costumes, in charge of Gene Hardy Kilmon represent the period of 1840 or 1850. They will use those which the government has furnished the school, some that have been left over from other plays, and some which have to be made. They will be typical of the laboring class in a small Scottish village, and, in contrast, will be those of a lord, a lady, and a soldier.

"In the production there will be three out-of-door and two indoor scenes," reports Lucy Davis, who is head of the staging department. This group is responcible for building trees, rocks and walls to cover the footlights. In addition, they conceal the cyc'orama with mounds, rocks shrubs, and walls. They build the trees and mounds themselves so they will be light and easy to move. Also they blend in more readily with the other artificial properties. The inside ingredients of a mound as revealed by Lucy are a foundation of wood which is covered with chicken wire, then

Mrs. E. H. Ould To Speak at Chapel Friday, November 7

Mrs. E. H Ould, of Roanoke, who is teaching a course this week at the Methodist Church on "How To Make a Christian Home", will speak in chapel Friday, November 7.

Mrs. Ould, who is a alumna of Farmville S. T. C., is a prominent speaker for religious meetings, women's clubs, and college student bodies. She also has the distinction of being an accredited counselor from the Los Angeles Institute of Family-Relations.

Mrs. Ould is greatly interested in young people some of her chief subjects being personality development, dating pdoblems, and other problems of modern youth. She is well qualified to speak on these, since she is a mother as well as a teacher. She has two sons and a daughter.

For three years, Mrs. Ould taught school, but after her marriage she confined herself to informal lecturing. When her youngest child started to college, she began her lecturing and Methodist teaching, which has continued for eight years. During the summer, she frequently teaches at assemblies.

In an interview, Mrs. Ould said that she never forgets to mention Farmville when advising people about schools, and that she thinks it "one of the finest in the state".

Girls who attended the Alpha Kappa Gamma convention, which convened October 24-26 at Columbia, S. C., heard Mrs. Ould at the convention banquet. She spoke on "The Value of Charm".

Power Plant Fire Leaves Farmville Without Current

A spectacular fire destroyed the Virginia Public Service company's auxiliary power plant Monday morning, November 3, and left the town of Farmville, including S. T. C., without electric current.

Numerous transformer explosions accompanied the blaze and balls of fire rolled along wires near the plant. Light poles smoked throughout the town where transformers had blown and caused considerable excitement.

Firemen stood by watching the burning one story brick building, warned not to attempt to fight the flames with water because of the high tension wires in the plant area.

The VPS purchased the plant about eight years ago from the Town of Farmville for $500,000. This included wiring and street light fixtures and the franchise to supply the town with current. The plant itself had an estimated value of $250,000.

Repair crews were rushed here from South Boston, Crewe, and Charlottesville and they found enough undamaged transformers outside the burned building to resume service by seven o'clock Monday evening.

The American Red Cross On the Campus

THE American Red Cross' annual Roll Call begins November 11 and continues through November 30. Because of the tremendous expansion of services this past year, millions of new members are needed. Among these, the Red Cross ardently hopes, will be students from every campus the country over.

We are happy to say that on our campus a drive will be conducted, beginning Tuesday, November 11, in order that we may contribute to the American Red Cross' vast program of preparedness for emergencies. Through its 3,730 chapters and 6,585 branches, every town, village and country cross-roads, it brings home to all the need and opportunity for individual preparedness and service under the Red Cross banner.

The aim of this program is two-fold: prepare the individual for any possible emergency; strengthen weak spots in our social structure which experience abroad has shown will need strengthening, should a real crisis develop. Needless to say, college students, no less than others, are affected.

Most college students are familiar with the Red Cross water safety and life saving service. In the related field of first aid is another activity affecting the campus. Last spring local chapters were authorized to organize and train volunteer first aid detachments, composed of either men or women, wherever a need might exist. These are being set up in units of not less than 15 nor more than 50 members. They will be ready for instant action in any emergency.

Another Red Cross service is the training of volunteer nurse's aides, open to women age 18-50 years. At least 100,00 of these will be trained in 1942 in cooperation with the office of Civilian Defense. Many trainees undoubtedly will be drawn from college women and alumnae all over the country. Upon completing 80 hours of intensive preparation, nurse's aides will assist, without remuneration, graduate nurses at hospitals, clinics and other health agencies.

Still other fields of service are open to college students. At present the Red Cross is creating special reserve units of medical technologists, laboratory and x-ray technicians, dental hygienists, occupational therapy aides and dietitians. Open to both men and women, these reserves are available to the Army and Navy, and also to the Red Cross in time of disaster.

The frequent cry, "What can we do to help national defense?", may now be answered by responding to the call of the Red Cross. This is our opportunity to take an active humanitarian part in these stirring times.

"By My Spirit"

WE have been asked to cooperate with the Town of Farmville in observing each night at 9 o'clock a few short minutes of silent prayer for peace and for the betterment of world conditions.

When the whistle blows each night, the smallest thing we, as students, can do is to stop whatever we're doing, bow our heads, and lift our hearts to God in reverent prayer.

Some of us have forgotten the power of prayer—yet when a crisis comes, we turn to God in prayer. Why do we?

Tonight at 9 p. m. and each night thereafter, let's offer a silent prayer—a prayer that comes from our hearts—for peace.

Gleanings

By MARY HUNTER EDMUNDS

"Europe must be reconstructed upon a framework of ideals." Up until recently, it was natural to assume that this framework would be constructed on AngloSaxon ideas. But the entry of the U. S. S. R. into the war has changed all that.

There seems not the slightest likelihood now that the Russians will surrender. One newspaper man reported upon his return from Russia: "The news that I bring back . . is that the Russians will stick. I have seen the men and women on whose fighting qualities, on whose staying power, so much depends . . . I have found them wholly prepared to see the war through, no matter how long it takes, no matter how much it costs."

Even if the armies are defeated, the Russians will only move back and fight a "China-war" from the interior.

Besides winter has come to the battlefield in Russia, and winter in that region of the world is a cold which "feds on human bone-marrow". What winter will do to the war can only be surmised. The Russians may be a little better acclimated. The Germans may be more efficient in coping with weather difficulties. There is no doubt that both sides will suffer and that the war will only be slowed up, not stopped.

What I am leading up to is this. This war is being fought on one side by the cooperation of the three U's, the U. S. A., the U. K., and the U. S. S. R. But it looks like the U. S. S. R. is taking the brunt of the battle, and doing surprisingly well. What we have to face is, not what to do in case of Russian defeat, but what to do in case of the opposite. It may be the Russians who will achieve the collapse of the German army and the morale of the German people. It may be the Russians who will win the war.

Then will it not be a peace dictated by the Russians, a Europe reconstructed on the Russian idealogy? Surely this communist state, after it has suffered the war, is not going to let the democracies formulate the peace.

This does not mean that we must be anti-Russian. Quite the contrary. We should help Russia in every way that we can for she is fighting our battle for us. But it does mean that we must not shut our eyes to eventualities in the press of the present. We must remember how Stalin has played his game in the past and not accept Russia with too wide-opened arms.

Looking 'Em Over

At Randon: Pat's "Bill'y" Willis seen carrying Jennette Garrison's suitcase out of Rotunda-er, round you tell me? And--why does the "Dot" Johnson go down town every nite--she never misses! Seen in Lexington--Shirley Turner with the Camp Lee Lieutenant. Gerry Ackiss in a nervous jitter when her young man was waiting in the Rotunda to see her Friday--she couldn't make it over to the building fast enough!! Could it be love? Speaking of love--have you ever seen the like of it--and, it isn't even spring!

Er-Could You Tell Me— Mildred A. certainly does like V. F. I. Must be an attraction somewhere-eh what? What about B. Yeungberg not going picnicking with Tommy, Sunday! Friday night they seemed to be O. K. We hear Nancy Hughes broke a date with Carrington this past Sunday night. Could it be that U. of Va. has more appeal than H. S.?

Distance Makes the Heart Grow Fonder? F. Adams weakens at phone call and travels to Richmond to see Bill this past weekend.

Oh!G-a Gosh—No more weekends in heaven for Buff G. cause Tony has taken his wings and gone to Georgia.

Good Psychology—Following the after-circus party on Ritzy Row—the well-fed funsters were presented a broom and scooted off to the gym to sweep. Quite a party—with Cline and Dodson as guests of honor.

P. T. A.—Well, what do you know! Pagie Frances talks about Johnny all week long and then turns around on week-ends and dates P. T. A. (and I don't mean Parent Teacher's Association)

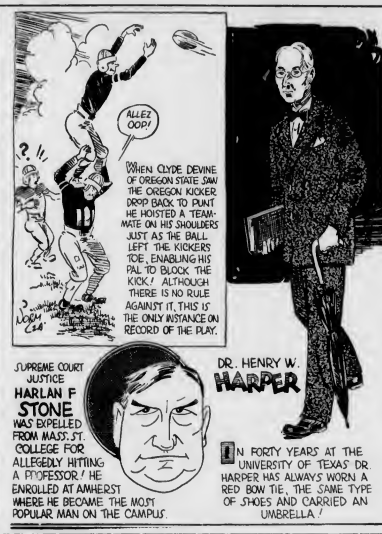
What's in a Name?—What's this we hear about a certain patty telling Mary Lou Trible that her last name spells "Trouble"? Ask Mary Lou, she'll tell you all about it!

On Wings of Victory?—Did you see that special air mail that was addressed to M. K. Ingram on the home-office mantle all week-end? We gather that it really must have been rather important. (It was post-marked Illinois). This week proved to be a very delightful one for Nell Quinn. First her circus stunt wins and next her friend from Duke comes up.

A Rosy Future?— Myrtle Lee Holt, newly elected treasurer of Freshman class, was wearing a beautiful corsage of talisman roses this week-end. Could it have been a "congratulation" gift from Dick?

We take our hats off to the Freshmen--no longer "rats"--but Freshmen--they really are good sports. May we keep up that fine spirit that they have! Look out upperclassmen--here they come!

Platter Chatter



By VIRGINIA ELLETT

Joe Reichman has been on an extended tour which kept him away from the recording studios much too long, to our way of thinking. He's back at last with a couple of tunes tailor-made for the Reichman style. "Tonight We Love" set to the great opening theme of Tschakowsky's piano concerto, is in all truth a beautiful job of lyric writing. The music needs no comment.

"The Skunk Song" that colossal piece of musical tomfoolery that sent Paramount audiences into hysterics show after show, is finally on wax. It is released with a prepared audience ready and waiting for it. We unhesitatingly predict big things for this record.

From Universal's film "Hellzapoppin" comes a neat ballad wrapped up and delivered by Charlie Barnett, "You Were There". It's slow and dreamy with sharp lyrics. Listen for the middle chorus bounce pound by the maestro's "Ah-so-dirty" alto horn.

Here's a slow arrangement with Ruth Gaylor as vocalist. It's "Honey" (but sweet!). If you wanna dance, if you wanna listen, if you wanna romance, no matter what you wanna do, "Honey" makes it easier.

Question of the Week

Why do you think that we should have Thanksgiving holidays starting November 19-November 23?

Gene Hardy Kilmon: I think we all need a good rest away from school and studies.

Lillian Wahab: This year, more than ever before, the American people should have an opportunity to pause in the turmoil of the international situation and be thankful they are Americans.

Ann Randolph: Since so many sons and brothers are away at army camps and are unable to be at home, it would seem only right that every other person should be given the opportunity to be with their family. That's what really makes Thanksgiving!

Lucy Davis: So that we can have a much needed rest.

Betty Reid: Thanksgiving just isn't Thanksgiving if you're not at home celebrating with your family.

Elizabeth Ann Parker: So that we will have something to give thanks for.

Mildred Pierce: That will be my opportunity to go away this quarter.

Will Hall: It will save the expense of having nine hundred Thanksgiving dinners here, when everyone has one waiting at home anyway. This would help National Defense. Our parents would be very disappointed if we did not get it.

Lillian Goddin: If we get away from school and see our parents, we will come back better prepared for studying.

Martha Higgins: I want to go home.

Ruth Parker: I want to see my parents.

Margaret Wright: I have made plans, which cannot be interupted.

Jean Garland: Everyone else is having it. Why shouldn't we?

Nancy Dashiell: It's to long to stay here from the first of school until Christmas without a break for relaxation.

Alice Seebert: Dr. Jarman ought to let us know, so we can make plans instead of being so indefinite.

Dearing Fauntleroy: Thanks giving is a national holiday and the teachers need a rest as well as the students.

Barbara Hudson: It's about time for a vacation!

Agnes Patterson: That's the only time I can go home this quarter.

Brookie Benton: It's not as near Christmas as usual, and we've always had it. Everyone likes to be home with their family at that time.

Peggy Gray: It will be so nice to be at home with your family.

Margaret Bowling: That is one time we want to be with our families; besides we have to see the V. M. I.-V. P. I. game.

Anne Boswell: So I can get a rest.

Mary Hunter Edmunds: Because I want to go to Washington.

Margaret Webster: Most of the other colleges are getting holidays and we shouldn't let them get ahead of us.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Every year around this time, the lordly sophs entertain the idea that the rats need be reduced to the social standing of an insignificant worm, which is wholly and absolutely true in some cases. Learned geniuses devise crude methods of torture—both mentally (sign-off) and physically (forever hunting for things and cleaning rooms) to thus reduce supposedly sophisticated freshmen. The sophs, who all must take psychology, garb us in hideous combinations to make us have inferiority complexes.

Then they become very solicitous about the state of our respective complexions, thus decreeing that said complexion requires a much-needed rest from all cosmetics.

Then more thoughtful upperclassmen fear that though we are deriving so much good from said measures, we are becoming hideously, disgustingly ugly. Hence we don gala ear rings, wear wonderful jingly bracelets of rats, rat traps, etc. Lovely black mascara encircles our eyes, making them look beseeching and mournful, reminders (we hoped) of our woe.

Thoughtful sophomores began to feel sure that we would get too serious an inferiority complex from our rather sickish looks and so thought of attiring us in the most striking color schemes possible. Thus attired we secured the full attention of every passer-by.

Some fresh recently neglected to wear stockings of any kind, probably wanting to show-off shapely, sun-tanned legs. Our elders, always mindful of our health, clad our legs both in hose and socks, carrying out the above-mentioned scheme in bright, nay, even somber colors. Sophs abhor lazy, late rising people; to remedy this, we arose early in the morning and saw "shiveringly" lovely morning mists. To avoid possible colds, grueling exercises were devised. Throughout the day, rats industriously cleaned rooms and praised '44 simultaneously.

But now that it's at last over, we fully see the benefits derived from rat week; we have become acquainted with wonderful new people; and we agree that an unforgetable experience is behind us.

Sincerely,
Fay Johnson

National Horse Show November 5-12

No event on the nation's calendar of sports is more of a spectacle than the National Horse Show which is scheduled for November 5-12 at New York's Madison Square Garden. The eight day program will feature approximately 125 classes highlighted by the international military jumping teams consisting of Peru, Cuba, and the United States. For those who love thrills, the jumping classes will really give a good display, especially the $1,000 jumper stake. It is indeed a great honor to exhibit at the National, and Virginia is very fortunate to have a showing scheduled. About 150,000 spectators will witness the numerous performances, the proceeds of which will go to the United Service Organization.

From national to local scenes the aspect of good horsemanship keeps a top rating. Much advancement and progress has been made in the S. T. C. Pegasus riding classes this year under the instruction of Miss Stella Fox and her assistants. For the first time, jumping classes have been organized which include advanced riders only. Plans for the fall quarter are under way and there's hope for a big show like the one last year in the new ring at Longwood.

State Hockey Tournament November 7, 8

"May the best team win!" This is a famous saying and one which is heard before many a game no matter of its nature. We may direct it to our 1941 Varsity Squad which we hope to see end up on top at the State Hockey Tournament in Richmond this coming week-end. From the twenty-seven girls selected for the hockey team, twelve will make the trip to Westhampton College, and there they will compete in the games along with the numerous colleges attending. Others who play hockey are still in need of practice in order to put the class teams in top shape. Color Rush is nearing and we are wondering what will happen on this eventful day . . . could it be that the Frosh will conquer the Sophs-or maybe the other way around? How many seniors have joined? The best games will be played then, so they will have to be composed of the best material.

Varsity Swimming Practice Begins

It has been announced by Dorothy Darracott, manager of swimming, that varsity swimming practice begins this week. Any girl in school who wishes to try out may do so by attending the scheduled practices. Class teams wil lalso be chosen and it is hoped that all capable persons will turn out. Since we have a high record from last year in the telegraphic meet, we want to keep up the high honor this time. It is our privilege to be hostesses for the affair which is being worked out and letters have been sent to over 200 schools for their acceptance to participate.

The golf "greens" aren't so colorful, but there's still a good game to be played if anyone wishes to do so. Golf instructions are still under the direction of Miss Iler and Miss Kauzlarich who teach on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays. Any girls who wish to go with the group should sign up on the A. A. bulletin board for the desired day. Transportation will leave at the side door of the gym at Student Building at 4 o'clock.

Archery Tournament Coming Up

Soon notice will be scheduled about the archery tournament which will be composed of the Green and White and Red and White teams. The girls have cooperated wit htheir colors so far and we shall soon find out the winner. Practice starts at 4 o'clock on the archery meadow for anyone who desires to "hit the bull's eye." Mary Katherine Zehmer is manager and Sara Jeffreys is assistant to her.

Basketball practices have stopped for several weeks because of the conflict with so many other activities. However, they will start up again in November near the end of the hockey seasan, so be ready to begin.

Varsity Swim Team Tryouts Underway

Thursday Aftern'n Set For Practice

Tryouts for varsity swimming team were held on Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the pool under the management of Ruth Dugger. Sixteen girls reported.

These girls worked on speed and correct forms in swimming. A regular schedule will be carried out for all trying out and later a squad will be selected according to ability.

Students who reported were Peggy Hughes, senior; Catherine May and Ellen Ebel, juniors; Gloria Pollard, Dorothy Darracott, Shirley Pierce, Dorothy Gaul, Grace Ellerton, and Ruth Dugger, sophomores; Harriette Moore; Janet Jackson, Onita Witcher, Margaret Kitchen, Shirley Cadmus, Jackie Anderson, and Nancy Hard, freshmen.

Notices of regular practice will be posted on the Athletic Association bulletin board. Other girls who are interested report to the pool at 5 o'clock on Thursday afternoon.

College.

Other officers of the association are Robert Colton, first vice-president; Florence Welland, second vice-president; and Marshall Doswell, secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Alexander Hudgins, of Blackstone and Baltimore, is executive secretary and founder. Members of the executive committee are June Foster, Mary Washington; Robert Marshall, William and Mary; and L. B. Cundiff, V. P. I.

Attention Varsity Team

All girls selected for the varsity hockey team are requested to meet tonight after dinner in Dr. James E. Walmsley's class room.

Orchesis Bids Three For Apprenticeship

Three girls who have been issued bids for apprenticeship in Orchesis are Jean Strick, sophomore; Betsey Davis, junior transfer, and Shirley Cadmus, freshman. The apprentices in the club meet as a group on Wednesday night with Anne Bradshaw, president, in charge. On Monday afternoon both club members and apprentices work together.

Blue jersey leotards with long full length skirt have bee nordered for all the girls as their club costume. Work is now being planned for a dance demonstration. Several invitations have been received by the club to attend dance programs at various schools and it is hoped that the trips can be made.

Victor Will Clash At Sweet Briar In Southeastern Tournament

On Friday, November 7 at 11 o'clock, twelve members of the varsity hockey team will leave for the State Hockey Tournament which is being held at Westhampton College November 7 and 8.

Girls who have been selected for the varsity team are Dorothy Johnson, Nancy Dupuy, Hallie Hillsman, Ella Marsh Pilkinton, Elizabeth Walls, Dorothy Gaul, Mildred Droste, Elsie Verelle, Hannah Lee Crawford, Lulie Jones, Sara Hardy, and Lee Foster.

No freshman will make the trip. The girls making the trip are from both the all-star and reserve teams, and it is expected that some of the outstanding players will receive special notice from the judges.

The teams, which come from William and Mary, Sweet Briar, Harrisonburg, Mary Baldwin, Hollins and practically every school that has a girls hockey team in the state, play each other until one is completely victorious. The victorious team will go to the Southeastern Tournament at Sweet Briar the following week, and the Southeastern champion will then go to Wellsley College, Wellsley, Massachusetts, for the National Tournament.

Schedule of Events

Friday afternoon the tournament games will be played. Friday night Westhampton will entertain the visiting teams, and Saturday morning more tournament games will be played off. Saturday afternoon the exhibition games will be played and Saturday night the team will enjoy a dinner and show. Most of the team will stay together, except those who live in Richmond, and they will return in a body on Saturday night.

All the girls, who were selected to go, are requested to meet in Dr. J. E. Walmsley's room after supper tonight. Additions to the varsity hockey squad, whose names were omitted last week due to an error, are Jane Hobson and Mary Hazelgrove.

A. A. Field House To Be Redecorated

Have you ever noticed that little brick house on the edge of the athletic field? This is the Athletic Association's field house to be used for association and Monogram club meetings, for archery wracks, and badminton and hockey equipment.

Plans are underway now for its redecoration. It will be fixed up with blue and white curtains and the benches will be covered with these colors. The A. A. hopes to acquire a bookcase, desk, file, and floor-lamp for the house.

When these changes have been made, teas are going to be given there as well as meetings.

Radford Chapter Wins Trophy Award At Regional Meet

The regional meet of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority convened on the S. T. C. campus Saturday and Sunday, November 1 and 2.

The Trophy Award was presented to the Alpha Theta chapter located at Radford State Teachers College, which sent the largest number of delegates in reference to the distance travelled in order to attend the meeting. Thirty-three delegates were present.

The total number of out-of-town members, alumnae, and advisors was one hundred and fifteen. Students and advisors arrived from Radford State Teachers College, Radford, Virginia; Madison College, Harrisonburg, Virginia; Marshall College, Huntington, West Virginia; Concord College, Athens, West Virginia; and Wilson's Teachers College, Washington, D. C. Alumnae were from Beckley, West Virginia; Charleston, West Virginia; Fairmont, West Virginia; Huntington, West Virginia; Princeton, West Virginia; Roanoke, Virginia; Salem, Virginia; and Washington, D. C.

Outstanding national officers who attended were Mabel Lee Walton, national president and director of all regions; Lucille Morrison, national alumnae representative and officer in charge of Region 1; Pinky Carson, national chairman of Social Service; Mildred Fenner, chairman of Educational Research; Mary Hastings Page, assistant to national president and an alumna of the Alpha chapter; Pauline Camper, Women's Professional Pan-Hellenic Association Representative; Sarah Regar, regional deputy in charge; Grace Hudson, national chairman of rushing; and Martha Laing Pearson, city hostess. Two founders were also present, Martha Featherstone and Lucy James.

Mallory Is Princess At Peanut Exposition

Second annual Peanut Exposition was held at Suffolk, October 30 and 31, at which Frances Mallory, S. T. C. junior, was "Miss Lawrenceville".

Frances arrived late Thursday afternoon in time to attend a banquet and a dance held at the Planter's Club that night.

Friday afternoon proved to be one of the highlights of the two day celebration when the parade and coronation took place. Following the parade, Suffolk and Chesapeake High Schools competed in a football game.

Friday night, Frances attended a buffet supper at the home of Count Obecis, president of the Planter's Peanuts, Incorporated. Following this a dance was held at a peanut warehouse with Jan Garber furnishing the music.

The Way I See It

By DOT SPRINKLE

It couldn't have been a quieter week-end here at Farmville. The reason may have been that so many of our gallivantin' gals did gallivant. Have fun girls?

First Honors: Giving Richmond the rounds this past week-end were Betty Albright, Phyllis Butler, Betty Bradley, Jo Bishop, Betty Coleman, Mildred Corvin, Mary Chapman, Charlotte Cole, Mary Hunter Edmunds, Theresa Fletcher, Alice Francisco, Sarah Goode, Katherine Green, Buff Gunter, and Julia Glenn. Still others to Richmond included Stella Harman, Joan Hadden, Jac Hardy, Lena Hubbard, Mary Haymes, Elinor Johnson, Myrtle Jenkins, Lulie Jones, Margaret and Katherine Kennedy, Betty Lindamood, Helen Ott, Katherine Pugh, Jean Weller, Harriette Walker, and Charlotte Worsham.

Just To Be Agoing: The real trotters this time turned out to be none other than Gerry Ackiss, Gay Ward Brown, Nancy Bondurant, Elizabeth Barrett, Sarah Chambers, Charlotte Corell, Pauline Clements, Ora Earnest, Jean Garland, Beth Johnson, Dot Messiner, Charlotte Morris, Jo Newman, Estelle Paulette, and Madge Sprinkle.

with burlap and a grass mat. This makes the mound light and easy to push around.

To counteract the noise of footsteps is a floor cloth which is green on one side and brown on the other, green for out-of-doors and brown for interior scenes. Most of the work of making and painting scenery is done in the workshop. There Mr. Walker mixes the paints for leaves, walls and trees and Mr. Hurt helps build doors, windows and walls. Lucy reports some rare experiences in the workshop. This year while aren't enough. This year while getting the grass mats out of a large box in which they were stored, she began seeing things run out of them. It was with no small amount of surprise that she unrolled the mats and found there a nest of rats, all of which might collaborate this theory that's going around that actors are born, not made!

Scott Crowned Queen of Circus

Sophomores Cop Prize for Stunt

This year proved no novelty as far as circus queens and successful class stunts are concerned, for, true to last year's tradition, a senior, Harriet Scott, was crowned queen, and the sophomore class was named "first" for their dramatic skit. The senior class received honorable mention.

With Betsy Austin as master of ceremonies, each production was hearled in a boisterous side-showish manner beginning with the seniors who presented a melee of draftees signing their registration papers. The scene finally jelled into a typical cross-section of the life of one of Uncle Sam's boys adored by anxious fillies and entertained by Peggy Belius singing the rather daring "I Like You Veliy Much" with oomph. The other draftees helped out with their somewhat "I've heard that one before" jokes.

The juniors held a sceance in which outstanding circus performers come back to life performing much as they had done in the acme of their career. Included were tumblers, a snake charmer, and an elephant.

Exhibiting much local talent were the freshmen graduated from their lowly submissive stage to one of popular entertainers. Theirs was a witch sceance during which Shirley Cadmus brought the house down with her ability.

Quite on the modern side, the sophs presented a grave-yard scene with a ghostly conversation about who the queen would be.

To make the circus complete, the animals were put on parade by Amy Read, their trainer.

As the climax of the evening, Scottie with the three other circus queen nominees came out in a tank, and was crowned by Sarah Wade Owen, the junior candidate. Sherry Knight and Ruthline Dugger completed the army-minded court.

Lindamond, White, Holt Named Officers Of Freshman Class

Election of Mary White, Richmond, vice-president; Betty Lindamond, Wytheville, secretary; and Myrtle Lee Holt, Richmond, treasurer, completed the selection of the freshman class officers for this year.

Mary is participating in basketball and is an apprentice in the Dramatic Club.

Betty was on the freshman circus stunt committee.

"Daisy May" To Celebrate Sadie Hawkins' Day Nov. 8

Now is the time for all youse gals, like the hydrae of old, to put your best tentacle forward and bag that boy, for November 8 has been officially declared Sadie Hawkins Day. And what with the masculine talent that will be floating around with the V. I. P. A. convention, 'tis indeed 'boot time'. So whether you capture him with your "Salomey Swagger", your "Mammy Mooch", your "Daisy Mae Dart" or your "Skunk Hollow Slide," just be sure your lasso is long enough to corral him before somebody else does.

If you're one of a passel of gals what ain't married and craves something awful to be, and you're beginning to feel that your mammy and poppy has been shouldering your board and keep long enough, and if you're got the "Dogpatch blues" at how ornery men act and how they won't come and ketch you for their wife, then this day has been especially designed for you. If you're homely as home-made turnips, it makes no matter so long as you've an Atalanta stride and can cover territory. If your "Dogpatch Dip" and "Poppy Shuffle" are up to true Abneric styie, you ought to be able to fetch a "Marrying Sam" with little difficuity.

This year what with men getting scarcer, chances slimmer, and Daisy Maes more hard up fer men, the day will probably result in a free-for-all. So loosen up all youse gals, for this is a race in which the stakes are high and even the best man frequently loses.

Thespians Open Dramatic Season Nov. 15 With "The Little Minister"

College drama will reach a new high Friday night, November 14, at 8 o'clock when the S. T. C. Dramatic Club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs, under the direction of Miss Leola Wheeler present "The Little Minister".

The play, adapted from James Barrie's novel of the same name, was made famous by Maud Adams who played the part of Babs for a number of years in Broadway productions. A few years ago in a movie version, Katherine Hepburn starred in the same part.

Theme of Play

The sequence of events in the story depicts the trials and tribulations of a young Scotch minister, Gavin Dishart, taking the burdens of a provincial Scotch village on his shoulders. He becomes involved in an industrial riot and a love affair with Babbie, the gypsy girl. His excursions in the lives of his parishioners produce unforeseen complications. Before the final curtain, he has almost been expelled from his church by the chief elder, Whammond.

Savage Well Cast

Tedo Savage, a junior at H. S. from Fredericksburg is the "Little Minister". Well cast for such a part, he admirably portrays Barrie's leading character and the process of his falling in love with Babbie. Tedo first appeared in the S. T. C.—Jongleur productions in the role of Mr. Coode in Barrie's "Dear Brutus". He next played James Wylie in 1940 fall production of "What Every Woman Knows", by Barrie, and last spring he was Senator Keane in Kaufman's "First Lady".

Peggy Belius, as Babbie, the provocative gypsy girl, supplies the love interest. Peggy's first performance in an S. T. C.—Jongleur production was that of the barking dog heard off stage in "Outward Bound". Since then she has appeared in important roles in "Tevarich", "Dear Brutus", "The Circle", "What Every Woman Knows", and "First Lady".

Other outstanding characters in "The Little Minister" are Nanny, an old Scotch friend of Babbie, played by Jane McGinnis and Tammas Whammond, chief elder of the church of which Dishart is pastor, played by Keith Eubank, senior at H. S. from Philadelphia.

One of the parts striking the heart of the audience will be that of Martha Woodhouse in the role of Micah, Rob Dow's son. Rob Dow, in an interesting study of the typical town sot, Ace Livick, sophomore at Hampden-Sydney, is doing this characterization of his various periods of inconstancy and remorse and rash actions in the riot and kidnapping.

Other members of the cast include Dick Cornwell, in the role of Captain Dick Halliwell, the rival of Dishart in matters of love, Mary Hunter Edmunds is Felice, Babbie's French maid, whose loyal devotion to her mistress and co-

Elva Andrews and Charlotte Phillips will be head of properties; Miggie Mish will take charge of lighting; Imogene Claytor and Frances Mallory will handle the costumes; Anne Moore and Margaret Kitchen will direct the publicity; Betty Sexton and Betsy Davis will head the dance committee; Margaret Bowling and Anne Trotter will take charge of of the make-up committee; Elizabeth Bernard will supervise the ballroom; Nell Pritchett will head the waitresses; and Anne Ware will be chairman of the program committee.

College Launches Red Cross Drive

Red cross Roll Call drive was officially launched at Farmville yesterday morning in chapel when Dr. J. L. Jarman, president, spoke briefly on behalf of the campaign, and received a button from Nancy Naff, president of the student body, signifying that he had pledged financial aid to the campaign.

Miss Grace E. Mix and Dr. John P. Wynne, of the faculty, also received their pins at this time.

Jane Engleby, Nancy Naff, Frances Rosebro, and Nell Richard are in charge of the drive at school, advised by Miss Grace E. Mix, general chairman of the Red Cross Roll Call at school.

One girl on each hall has been appointed for the drive during the week. These girls are Betty Agnew, Lois Alphin, Margaret Bowling, Eleanor Booth, Betsy Bullock, Libby Carter, Patsy Conoily, Betsy Davis, and Ellen Ebel.

Alice Fulton, Jane Freeman, Carrie Gibboney, Mim Harvey, Marilyn Johnson, , Betty Kiger, Doris Lowe, Warwick Mitchell, Nancy O'Byrne, Kitty Powell, Mary Sterrit, and Jerry Titmus.

The drive will continue throughout this week.

Richmond Host To 1942 V. I. P. A.

Fridell Succeeds Overbey as Head

In a closed meeting last Friday night the Executive board of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association accepted the University of Richmond's bid to entertain the sixteenth annual convention in 1942.

Guy Fridell of the University of Richmond was chosen president of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association to succeed Allene Overbey of Farmville State Teachers College.

Other new officers include Rosanne Strunsky of William and Mary, vice-president; Ed Young of V. M. I., second vice-president; and Frances Ellis, University of Richmond, secretary-treasurer.

Rotunda Rated First Among Va. College Weeklies

Handbook, Annual Win State Honors

The Rotunda won first place among class A Virginia weekly college newspapers, it was announced Saturday night at the closing banquet session of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association. The issues of October 8, 15, 22, and 29, were entered in the contest.

The University of Richmond was selected as the site of next year's session, delegates decided at the conclusion of their fifteenth annual conclave.

In the Class A contest for weekly publications honorable mention went to V. P. I.'s Virginia Tech and The Tiger of Hampden-Sydney. First place in the Class B group—for papers published less frequently than weekly—went to the Traveller of Stratford with honorable mention to the Columns of Hollins. The Chanticleer of Averett won in Class C for junior colleges and preparatory schools with honorable mention going to Hall Chatter of Fairfax Hall and the Onyx of Blackstone.

The Miscellany of Mary Baldwin took top honors among literary magazines with The Garnet of Hampden-Sydney and the Royalist of William and Mary runnersup. In the humorous publications class the Old Maid of Randolph-Macon Woman's College took first with the Old Gray Mare of Stratford runner-up. Hampden-Sydney won the college handbooks class with Farmville's receiving honorable mention.

The Bullins Sampler received first place award for Class A yearbooks with the Helianthius of Randolph-Macon Woman's College and the V. P. I. Bugle placing second and third, respectively. In Class B for yearbooks the Battlefield of Mary Washington won first while honorable mention was given the Virginian of Farmville and the Colonel Echo of William and Mary. The Interment of Virginia Intermont won the Class C yearbook excellency award with honorable mention going to the Acorn of Blackstone and the Chain and Anchor of Fairfax hall.

Six Will Attend A C P Convention

Courses Designed For Journalists

Sara Cline, Anne Ayers, Texie Belle Felts, Gay Ward Brown, Mary Lilly Purdum, and T. A. McCorkle will represent S. T. C. publications at the Associated Collegiate Press Convention in St. Louis, Missouri, November 20-22.

The convention will bring together some 500 editors, business managers, and staff members of college newspapers, yearbooks, and magazines in 35 or more states.

Entertainment Features

Fitzpatrick, an internationally known Pulizer prize winning cartoonist, whose cartoons appear daily in many leading U. S. newspapers, will appear on the banquet program. The local chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity is sponsoring on Friday, November 21, a noon lunch program. Friday night a dinner and dance will be the entertainment feature of the meeting.

Courses Offered

For the editors and staff members of college newspapers published weekly or less frequently is the Newspaper Editors Short Course. Yearbook editors will spend their time in a yearbook Editorial Survey, an innovation in this year's program. A Magazine Publishing Short Course is planned for all magazine delegates. Two round-tables are scheduled for advisers.

Freddie Lee to Play Against Manhattan Skyline

Manhattan skyline will furnish the background for the opening dance of the Cotillion Club which will be held Saturday, November 15, from 8:30 p. m. until 12 o'clock in the S. T. C. gymnasium.

Dark blue crepe paper will be woven across the ceiling to form the sky from which stars will hang. The skyline will be made by black silhouettes against a light blue background. Gamma Psi, local honor society in fine arts, will be in charge of these decorations.

In the receiving line will be Dr. J. L. Jarman, Miss Mary White Cox, Mr. M. B. Coyner, club advisor, and Mrs. Coyner; and the officers of the organization, Anne Boswell, Mary Lou Shannon, Dorothy Lawrence, and Harriet Cantrell.

Freddy Lee's orchestra from Lynchburg, directed by Howard Baxter, will furnish the music for the occasion. Mr. Baxter is also the soloist. This orchestra plays for the Oakwood Country Club in Lynchburg on Saturday night. They also played in Roanoke last Thanksgiving for the V. M. I.-V. P. I. dance.

Each Cotillion Club member may take a date and another girl in college who is not a member of the club. The new members may attend the dance, but they are not entitled to take a date or another girl.

A second Cotillion dance will be given in the early spring.

Famous Tennis Stars Will Play Here Soon

Hardwick, Little, and Hare Claim Victories Over International Champs

Three top-ranking world famous tennis stars, Mary Ruth Hardwick, Dorothy Round Little, and Charles E. Hare will play a series of matches on the college's new tennis courts in several weeks. The date of the games will be announced in the near future. The purpose of the exhibition is to create and stimulate more interest in tennis among the student body.

Mrs. Little was born at Dudley, Worcestershire, England. When a child, she began playing tennis at her home. She won her first tournament when she was sixteen, and her first international tournament at Wimbleton in 1931.

In 1932 and 33 she was a member of several British international teams and played in France, Germany, British West Indies, and other countries.

Woman World Champ in 1934

In succeeding years she defeated both Helen Jacobs and Alice Marble in various tournaments. The only woman player of note that she has not defeated is Helen Willis Moody, but in 1933 she won a set from her, being the first player to give Mrs. Moody a very close battle.

In 1934 she was proclaimed the woman champion of the world when she won the finals at Wimbleton against Helen Jacobs, the American champion woman's player.

Hardwick Also English

She was married in 1937, and in 1940 her husband joined the British army. She and her small son came to Canada for the duration of hostilities. Since that time she has been playing and teaching tennis both in Canada.

Mary Ruth Hardwick, who will play opposite Mrs. Little, is also English by birth and like Mrs. Little began playing tennis when a child.

Won Every Tourney in '39

She was junior semi-finalist in 1931 and was the British representative in the international tennis matches in 1932.

Since then she has won both singles and mixed doubles championship of Scandinavia, the South of France Singles title, which is a very difficult tournament, the Scottish championship, and the British covered court championship. She won every tournament in which she competed.

Provides Canteen Service

She has been playing in the United States during 1940 and 1941 for British relief organizations, especially for her own counterfund, which is called the Mary Hardwick Wimbleton Fund. This fund provides canteen service for her own stricken district.

Charles E. Hare is one of the greatest left handed tennis players. He ranked second in singles in Great Britian from 1937 to 1939 and ranked number ten in the World's Singles in 1937. Mr. Hare also was a member of the British Davis cup team 1937-39 and has scored notable victories in singles against Fred Perry and many other international players.

Cline Will Edit National Magazine

At the national convention of Sigma Pi Rho, national Latin fraternity, at New Orleans, Louisiana, Farmville was named to edit national publication "The Tributum". Sara Cline, senior, will be editor.

"The Tributum" was founded on the S. T. C. campus and was published quarterly as a literary magazine. Now, instead of being mimeographed as it formerly was, it is to be printed quarterly by the Farmville Herald Publishers, as a non-literary publication", Sara said. "The Tributum" will include all the news and activities of other chapters of Sigma Pi Rho.

"Don't Be a Copy Cat"—

Do you copy other peoples' work? Do you accept credit for something someone else worked over by forging your own name to it? If you are one of these "copy cats", stop and think with me for a few seconds.

Have you ever realized that you have a conscience? When you commit such a dishonest act as copying from someone else's paper, or using their notes to write a paper, or in any way taking credit for work which isn't your honest effort, doesn't your conscience in the least way feel guilty? It must! No girl, who has been a member of the student body of Farmville State Teachers College and has known the spirit of our school, could do something dishonest and not realize how much she is hurting herself, the other fellow, Farmville's spirit, and the standards of the school.

Are you a Christian? How can you continue to call yourself one and still cheat? Not only are you betraying God, but you are disappointing your family—your mother and father who brought you up to the best of their ability, who are sacrificing to send you to school so that you will know how to get the best that life has to offer. How can you be such a failure? Perhaps now they do not know about your little shortcomings, but shortcomings seep out in one's character at some time or the other. Possibly you alone know of the dishonest act which branded you as a "Copy Cat". You hurt yourself. One little slip can cause so much heartache for those who love you so dearly. Remember that they too will suffer—probably more than you.

Let's do away with this cheating. Don't drag yourself and your school down to a level of shame. Be fair with yourself. Put forth your own honest effort. If on a Monday morning you haven't studied for the 8:15 quiz, flunk it like a man. Don't be a "Copy Cat."

What Others Say—

November 3, 1941

Professor Alfred H. Strick
State Teachers College
Farmville, Virginia
Dear Professor Strick:

I look back with the very greatest pleasure upon the two joint concerts given by your chorus and the Harvard Glee Club last spring. The beautiful tone quality of the Farmville singers and their excellent artistic discipline when singing with their own conductors or with visiting conductors reflected the splendid training which you have given them.

I was particularly impressed with the skill of the young conductors who had worked with you. But above all things, I congratulate you on the quality of the music which wa performed by your groups, both the large choirs and the small Madrigal group. It was apparent from the start that your deepest interest lay in providing for the young women in music.

As you well know I feel that that objective transcends all others. By rejecting the false and the cheap choral music which is all around us, and drawing upon the best choral literature of all ages, you have set a standard of good taste for generations of college students. And then by giving them an intimate and unforgetable experience of the beauty of music through actual participation in it, you have immeasurably enriched their lives.

I hope we may have the pleasure of singing with your chorus again.

Sincerely yours,
G. Wallace Woodworth

Gleanings

By LUCY TURNBULL

On November 4, 1941, Colgate Darden, Jr., was elected Governor of Virginia to succeed James H. Price. His election was the fulfillment of a prophecy made more than twenty-five years ago, for when Mr. Darden graduated from high school, the class prophet said of him: "One day he will be Governor of Virginia."

The election was unusually quiet, and the voting, the lightest the State has seen in many years. Few persons, other than the pitifully small number who took the trouble to vote, realized that an election was being held. This, of course, was due to the fact that the result of the election was a foregone conclusion. Despite this fact, however, it would seem that a little more interest was due the choosing of a leader to guide the Commonwealth in these perilous times.

Although Mr. Darden emphasized before the primary that national defense should take precedence over purely State matters in a time of emergency, still he has suggested a number of State programs —better teacher pay, a sound teacher retirement system, expanded vocational training, penal reforms, and extension of the State's public health services to counties not now provided with these facilities. One of the chief difficulties facing the new governor is the fact that State revenues are climbing to new records with many problems rising out of the defense boom.

Because of these critical issues, united action is necessary. We can be heartened by the words of Virginius Dabney: "Much less factionaism is looked for during the Darden administration than has been visible during Governor Price's.

Bouquets . . .

"Laud what a time" was well termed by Guy Friddell, incoming president of the V. I. P. A., as he epitomized the fifteenth convention of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association. Looking behind the scenes, we attribute its success to the tireless efforts of Allene Overbey, president of the 1941 convention, to the astral influence J. Barrye Wall, editor of the Farmville Herald, and to the publication staff members of Hampden-Sydney and Farmville. To these, we doff our hats in recognition of the splendid work done toward furthering journalism.

Life Lies Behind Rotunda Murals

By JANE RUFFIN

In the first decade of the 20th century an Italian artist, Marfalcone visited Farmville State Teachers College, then the State Normal School. This well known artist left his signature here in the form of the four murals and the four portraits on the inside of the dome of the Rotunda.

The murals represent the elements of civilization: rest, study and meditation, teaching, and recreation. Since Farmville was a women's college, Marfalcone painted all female figures in his murals here. His representation of "Rest", which he evidently believed to be more than simply sleep, shows two women seated in a relaxed position. He painted a mother with her small children to symbolize "Teaching" and two women playing a game similiar to our "Tiddly Winks" for "Recreation." In "Study and Meditation" he also painted two women, his time with several books and a globe.

The portraits are of four outstanding men in education: Thomas Jefferson, Horace Mann, J. L. M. Curry and William Henry Ruffner.

Thomas Jefferson is considered the father of the public school idea in the United States. He believed in universal education and did much to further it. Jefferson asked that in his epitaph he be remembered not for the presidency, but as the author of two great documents and as founder of the University of Virginia.

In spite of his law practice and other fields of endeavor, Horace Mann's name is inevitably linked with education. And well it might be; he certainly did as much for education as any other man in the United States. He reorganized the school system in Massachusettes and the successful results influenced the entire country.

J. L. M. Curry said, according to Miss Rice, that one of the two things in his career of which he was proud was drawing up the bill for the founding of what is now Farmville State Teachers College.

Dr. William H. Ruffner was the first president of the Farmville State Normal School for Females Prior to that time he was State Superintendent of Public Education.

In 1923, as a result of a fire, the paintings were blackened beyond recognition. They were restored by the daughter of the artist and today they stand out clearly, each with its name under it, for all to see and admire.

Berlin Dairy Views Nazi Germany Today

By ANNE C. WILLIAMS

William L. Shirer seems to be particularly well equipped to write a book about what is really going on inside of Germany. From 1934 until December, 1940, he was stationed in Berlin as radio correspondent for Columbia's Network. "Berlin Diary" is a journal of his experiences there, and of his struggles with Nazi censors in an unceasing effort to present a true account of the news over the air waves to a waiting world.

He, of course, is not in favor of the Nazi regime, nor does he rave fanatically against it. He seems to have a gift of viewing the situation somewhat impersonally, and has sought to gain a clearer understanding of the German mind.

Perhaps it is his exceptional understanding that has made his journal such an excellent guide toward a clearer conception of the German mind and its susceptibility to the diabolically clever Nazi propaganda machine. He explains the effect on the people of this propaganda, and suggests how to interpret news from Germany and how to read between the lines, to glimpse the inside storye of conditions in that turbulent country.

Altogether, Berlin Diary is not only good reading, but its pages are crammed with a fascinating personal story, a revealing picture of life, and the lives of many who live under the rain of bombs in the Nazi capitol of Germany today.

Looking 'Em Over

Well, fo ks, here's your old correspondent back again with all the low-down.

It seems that Sexton is madly in love with Henry again this week. Guess that phone call from Illinois was all she needed. And speaking of phone calls, she sho' does get 'em all around—Texas and Georgia and everywhere. And Dotty Childress was carrying on a mighty long conversation with Texas the other night.

We certainly are looking forward to Cotillion and seeing all the old girls back, to say nothing of Ella Marsh's Jimmy and all the other glamour boys who'll be around . . . and just who is this smoothie Immy Claytor is having down? We thought Bud was head man in that league.

It must really be love this time with "Nancy B." She called Al on Thursday night and then jus' had to go home to see him over the week-end.

And how 'bout freshman Nancy Hughes' getting out the Frank Keel's picture again when she heard that he was dating Campy? They say there's nothing like a little competish to strike up old flames.

'Tis said that a real actress lives her part, and concrete evidence is the way Peggy Bellus and Tedo are twoing it these days. When told that Miss Wheeler had cut their kiss in the play, Tedo was heard to say, "Just wait'll they draw that curtain!"

We wonder if Marg Bowling is losing interest in her one and only Tech all of a sudden. Could it be Staunton?

Among the News:

Wytheville's gift to S. T. C., Hampden-Sydney's own Junie Chitwood is certainly seeing a lot of Sugar Baker these days.

What would Betty Birchfield's Joe say about her going up to Roanoke with Boots last weekend? Good thing he's away down in Tennessee. "While the cat's away . . ."

That's a mighty good-looking dinner ring Jo Ware has just acquired from Newtie. We're wondering if it means anything.

We were sorta worried about Ora, standing on the porch without a wrap at the dance Saturday night for such a long time. However we have to admit that you need a breath of air now and then.

And speaking of a breath of air, just where did that expression, "Pitch dark" originate?

Gwen Long is but definitely "paging" Bullock around— And the way Ruthie Parker greeted "Earl" Tch! Tch! . . . And then the way the Freshman Class turned cut en masse to see Vice-President Mary White's date the other night. Real cute, too.

Mr. Grainger declares these next two are gospel: A student (name unknown) gave the comparison of ill as ill, worse, dead. And then the lady who named her child Psalm CIV (pronounced "pslm" cive).

Cutest Freshman nickname—"Mousey" as applied to one Miss Furnace. You, of course, have noticed the handsome brutes, who forever and eternally are coming for Naureen Springer. All the delegates, who attended the convention, say they got so much out of it.—P. S. They weren't referring to knowledge.

We wonder why B. Gray Smithdeal canceled that collect call to Lexington Friday night!

Notre Dame Triumphs

Holding a first place in the nation's football highlight was Navy's surprising defeat to Notre Dame, 20-13, before a crowd of 64,795 at Municipal stadium in Baltimore this past week-end. This blow knocked the Navy football team out of the nation's dwindling undefeated ranks. A regiment of 3,110 midshipmen raised their cheers a sthe two teams battled over a close score. It was a fight to the very end, but the Irish, with hard hitting Evans and straight passes from Bertelli, gained the needed yardage to make the "battle of the day" a game of excitement for all sport fans who raised their cheers for both of the teams.

Hockey Takes Spotlight

Virginia college players and coaches gathered at Westhampton College in Richmond on Friday and Saturday, November 7, 8, to participate in the eleventh state hockey tournament Farmville was represented by a squad of eleven players accompanied by their manager, Hallie Hillsman, and coach, Miss Olive T. Iler. S. T. C. played a hard game but was scored upon by the two opposing teams, the "Campus Characters" and "Et Cetera". Two days of games were played in the tournament which ended with the selection of the stars who composed the Virginia and the Virginia Reserve elevens. From the stars eleven were selected who will participate in the regional meet at Sweet Briar on November 14 to 15. Miss Alizabeth Burger, alumna, a member of the "Campus Characters" team and a member of S. T. C. faculty, is among the group chosen to compete.

"Robin Hoods" Organize

Mary Katherine Zehmer, manager of archery, has announced that the organization of class teams to participate in the first of the bi-annual archery tournaments will get under way this week. It is a battle between Green and White and Red and White for the purpose of gaining points towards the color cup and will take place about the first of December. The classes are well represented with "Robin Hoods" who can hit the target instead of any point north, south, east, or west!

Did You Know That:

Gunners in floating blinds (camouflaged rowboats) can not legally shoot water foul while drifting with the tide or current, or blown by the wind. An anchor must be thrown out before a trigger can be pulled!

The worlds first jockey club was not the august English body as generally is supposed, but an organization known simply as the Jockey club, which was organized in Charleston, S. C. in 1735 about 15 years before the English came into being.

Four new track records were set on lightning-fast turf at the National Horse show at New York, November 8.

Color Rush Will Soon Be Here!

Don't forget to note the change in the schedule of Varsity swimming practices. It has been necessary to postpone all practices until after Christmas because of the large number of activities going on in the pool at this time. The pool will therefore be opened for a recreational swimming period on the date previously used for Varsity time—Monday and Thursday afternoons from 4:30 p. m. to 5:30 p. m.

Varsity Swimming Practice Delayed

Interclass Swim Meet in January

Varsity swimming has been postponed until after Christmas This announcement has just been made by Ruth Dugger, manager of the varsity team. Tryouts previously scheduled on Monday and Thursday afternoons have been canceled, but the pool will be opened for general swimming on these days from 4:30 p. m. to 5:30 p. m.

Interclass tryouts will also be scheduled when the swimming season gets well under way. Teams will be chosen from those girls who are selected to represent their various classes. In order to be a team member one must have at least five practices. The date of the inter-class meet has not been set, but will come some time in January.

Last year Red and White came in victorious over Green and White, but there will be a close match this season because of the interest given to the water sport. The team winning the highest score will chalk up points for the color cup.

Events listed in the race are 50 yard free style, 50 yard back stroke, 40 yard breast stroke, 100 yard relay, and 75 yard medley.

Ladder Tournament Ends December 5

The tennis tournament, which is being sponsored by the Athletic Association, will come to a close on December 5, Shirley Turner, manager, has announced.

"To date the matches have not been played off as rapidly as they could be, and in order to make way to the top of the ladder, matches must be scheduled immediately", Shirley said.

If a date is set for a game, and one of the players cannot keep the appointment, the game is forfeited to the other player. This is a regular courtesy and is in effect in the case of this ladder tournament.

Farmville Defeated In Hockey Clash

Burger To Play In Southeastern Tournament at Sweet Briar Nov. 14

S. T. C. Varsity Hockey team, which journeyed to Westhampton College on Friday, November 7, to compete in the State Hockey Tournament, returned Saturday night after two days of games. The team lost its first game 4-0 Friday afternoon when it encountered the "Campus Characters", a team composed of alumnae players. Saturday morning the second subjugation occurred when the team clashed with Et Cetera A, a team made up of players from several colleges and including graduates in some cases.

This marked the eleventh annual State hockey tournament. Outstanding players in the 15 matches conducted on November 7 and 8 were selected to represent the Old Dominion in the Southeastern tournament at Sweet Briar College on November 14 and 15. Miss Elizabeth Burger, instructor in science at Farmville S. T. C., was among the players selected for the team. During the game she was a player on the "Campus Characters" team.

200 Colleges Represented

Represented at the tournament were over 200 Virginia college players and coaches. Sweet Briar, Madison, William and Mary, Westhampton, Hollins, Campus Characters, Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Richmond "Apples" composed of hockey players in the city of Richmond, Fairfax Hall, "Et Cetera" teams, and Farmville were some of the college represented.

Harriett Walton, a former hockey great at Westhampton College, and now coach of the Fairfax Hall team, presided over the meeting of the Virgiina Field Hockey association, of which she has been president. The other old officers were Mrs. Mary Moline Grubbs, hockey coach at Westhampton, vice-president of the association and Elizabeth Burger of Farmville State Teachers College, secretary-treasurer.

Officers Elected

At the conclusion of the tournament Dorothy Harrison of Randolph-Macon Woman's College was chosen the new president of the association. Maida Riggs of Sweet Briar was elected vice-president, Grace Feikner of William and Mary was appointed chairman of the selection committee, and Helen Market of Madison was selected to head the umpiring committee.

Conventions and near-by dances had no influence on the majority of STC's seasoned travellers last week-end, for "come Friday" and most of the student body again took off. . . .

Pigskin Parade . . . At the University of Virginia for the Homecoming celebration were Dot Darracott, Bettie Burns, Polly Keller, Virginia Snead, Nancy Hughes, Happy Levinson, Anna Mary Wilkins, Mildred Pierce, Eloise Gallager, Irma Graff, Marilyn Johnson, Nancye Allen, Carol Costello, Martha Cottrell, Sherwood Knight, Kitty Powell, Hilah Lee Parks, Spilly Purdum, and Virginia Terrell.

Closer by at "Billsburg", Louisa Sanford, was among the rooters at the William and Mary "fitball" tussle with VMI Saturday and a guest at the dance that night. A wee bit farther south Ella Banks Weathers witnessed a literal scalping of the Davidson College footballers by the stronger Duke team 50-0 in Davidson, N. C. on Saturday afternoon.

That Extra Something . . . Catching brides' bouquets during the week-end were Margaret Kitchen in Raleigh, N. C., Tillie Mahoney, Harriet Walker and Mary Peery in Washington, and Hattie Cantrell and May Wertz in Roanoke. Christine Pittard treked to Staunton to hear wedding bells ring and Myrtle Lee Holt nibbled on the traditional wedding cake in Richmond.

College Granted Holidays Nov 19-23

Prayers for Peace Asked by President

Dr. J. L. Jarman announced Friday, November 7, that the college will be granted Thanksgiving holidays, beginning at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, November 19 and continuing through Sunday, November 23.

President Roosevelt, proclaimed Thursday, November 20, as Thanksgiving Day and asked the American people to observe it with prayers for "a speedy end to strife and the establishment on earth of freedom, brotherhood, and justice for enduring time."

16 Use Traditional Day

As in the last two years, not all States will observe the "Roosevelt Thanksgiving." Sixteen will cling to the traditional Turkey Day.

The 16 States which will observe Thanksgiving on the last Thursday—this year November 27—are Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas and Vermont.

Thanksgiving Sunrise Service Set for Nov. 16

The annual Thanksgiving Sunrise service, sponsored by the Baptist Student Union, will he he'd at Longwood at 7 o'clock Sunday morning, November 16. Cocoa will be served in the "rec" from 6 to 6:30 a. m.

Tuberculosis X-Rays Set for November 15

Chest X-rays for tuberculosis will be given at S. T. C., Friday, November 16. A fee of $1 will be charged each student taking the test to defray costs of equipment. This fee is to be paid in the treasurer's office.

The table in the hall which was open today for appointments, will also be opened tomorrow.

Approximately 120 tests can be made in an hour, so students are urged to come promptly at the scheduled time.

Those girls whose plates show positive will be given medical care upon their return from the holidays.

Y. W. C. A. Observes Week of World Prayer

In accordance with the observance of a week of world prayer and fellowship throughout the United States this week, "Learning Through Suffering" has been selected as the topic for prayers.

Amy Read spoke Monday evening, Gloria Besser, Tuesday, and Elizabeth Gunter will be in charge of the service this evening. Lolita Roberts will speak tomorrow evening, and Mary Lilly Purdum will complete the series on this subject Friday night.

The Y. W. C. A. lounge was open yesterday for prayer and meditation.

Charles Morgan, Novelist, Lectures Here December 1, 2

Three Student Groups Sponsor Dramatic Critic

Charles Morgan, eminent dramatic critic and English novelist, will be on the S. T. C. campus Monday and Tuesday, December 1 and 2 to give lectures to Pi Gamma Mu, Beorc Eh Thorn, and the Dramatic Club on subjects of interest to them.

Critic for The London Times

He has for many years done outstanding work as dramatic critic for "The London Times".

Monday night Dr. Morgan will speak to the entire student body. Beorc Eh Thorn, honorary English society, will sponsor this meeting.

Dr. Morgan will speak in chapel Tuesday morning under the auspices of the Dramatic Club.

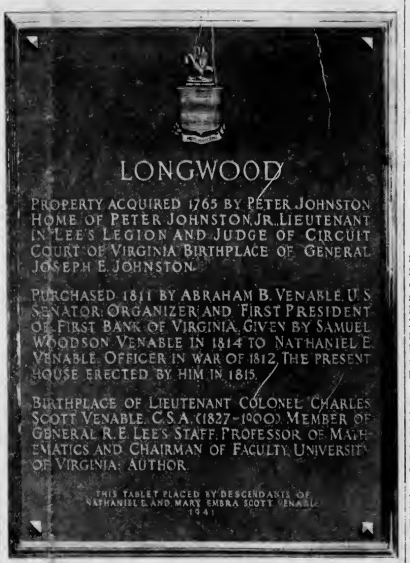
Speaks at Open Forum

Tuesday night, December 2, at 8:30 o'clock, he will speak in the Student Lounge at an Open Forum of Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity. The members of Pi Gamma Mu, Beorc Eh Thorn and the Dramatic Club, exclusive of the apprentices, are invited to this forum, which will be formal.

Dr. Morgan's novels have been translated into fourteen languages, and so great a favorite were they in France, that he was asked to speak at the Sorbonne.

Won Hawthorne Prize

Relatively young for a man of such renown, Dr. Morgan is not yet fifty, and has already written many novels. Two of his best known novels are Sparkenbroke and The Fountain. His themes often show the struggle between flesh and spirit. The Fountain, the choice of the Book Society in England and the Book of the Month club in America, in 1923 won the Hawthorne Prize.



While a student at Oxford Dr. Morgan was president of the Dramatic Society, vice-president of the Reform club, and a prominent debater. He took his B. A degree there in 1921 with high honors.

Writes Fiction Slowly

Dr. Morgan says that he wishes to preserve absolute independence as a novelist, and never be compelled to write under pressure. He writes his fiction slowly in his own handwriting, with continued revision. All the money he earns from his imaginative writings he invests, and never spends it.

In 1923 he married Hilda Vaughan, novelists of Welsh country life. They have two children, a son and a daughter. Dr. Morgan has been sent to America from England as an abassador of "good will".

Tablet Unveiled At Longwood

Dr. Jarman Accepts Bronze Tablet From Venables For Longwood

A bronze tablet, gift of members of the Venable family descended from Nathaniel E. Venable and Mrs. Mary Embra Scott Venable, commemorating notable Venables who lived at Longwood, was unveiled in the Longwood house Wednesday, November 12, with a dedication by Dr. J. D. Eggleston, president-emeritus of Hampden-Sydney college.

Dr. J. L. Jarman, president of Farmville State Teachers College, accepted the tablet for the college's board of trustees, owners of Longwood, the country-estate recreation center for S. T. C.

The tablet is on the wall of the entrance hall of Longwood, to the left of the front door as one enters the building. It was unveiled by Raleigh Colston Minor, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Venable Minor, of Charlottesville.

Dr. J. D. Eggleston, in his presentation speech, said, in part:

"In behalf of the descendants of Nathaniel E. Venable and Mrs. Venable, I take pleasure in presenting this tablet, a sacred memorial to those who by righteous lives and worthy deeds achieved much: "for God and fatherland".

S. T. C. Contributes $178 to Red Cross Roll Call Drive

At the time the Rotunda went to press, approximately $93 had been contributed by the S. T. C. student body for the Red Cross Roll Call drive which was launched last Tuesday. It is hoped that before the drive closes on November 30, the $100 mark will be reached.

The faculty and home department have given $85 in this Roll Call, making the total up to tonight approximately $178.

The organizations of the college that have contributed are Pi Gamma Mu, Kappa Delta Pi, Student Government, Rotunda, Virginian, Y. W. C. A., senior class, junior class, sophomore class, Baptist Student Union, Colonnade, and Gamma Theta sorority.

The quota for Prince Edward county is $1800.

Alpha Phi Sigma Initiates 39 Girls

Thirty nine girls were initiated into Alpha Phi Sigma, honorary scholastic society, at a candlelight ceremony held in the Honors room on November 13 at nine o'clock.

Those girls initiated into the apprentice degree were Margaret Barksdale, Jane Waring Ruffin, Charlotte Morris, Mary Frances Woodward, Catherine Dunton, Elizabeth Duncan, Sara Trigg, Elizabeth Tennant, Mary Moore McCorkle, Rae Chick, Ann Roberts, Gloria Sheppard, Marilyn Bell, Carolyn Caldwell, Lillian Siler, Faye Nimmo, Virginia Mae Ellett, Mildred Corvin, Beth Johnson, Lucille Cheatham, Mildred Willson, Betty Watts, Nell Ray Fleming, Ella Carrington, Mary Elizabeth Harvey, Mary Sterret, Sara Bird Williams, Patsy Connelly, Lois Webster Aiphin, Doris Lowe, Mary Ann Jarratt, and Virginia Lee Abernathy.

791 Leave School For Thanksgiving

Nine Girls Remain; Faculty At V. E. A.

With the advent of Wednesday noon, S. T. C. will be left with few students. Only nine of the eight hundred will remain in school. Five of the girls from Porto Rico, Mora Beauchaurp, Lolita Rahert, Priscilla Barreto, Sarah Carbonell and Haydee Carbonell, will remain to give cheer to the otherwise almost empty buildings.

Doris Fogus, Charlotte, North Carolina; Josephine Bishop, St. Louis, Missouri; Patricia McCormick, a Panama student; and Anna L. Sparks, Justisville, Virginia, also will spend the holidays in school.

Those girls who have an especially long way to travel, or are lucky enough to have no classes before eleven o'clock on Wednesday, or for some other reason wanted to leave early, have obtained permission from Dr. J. L. Jarman to do so. Those who left today are Aida Aquilar, Jo Brumfield, Mildred Carter Clanton, Mary Hunter Edmunds, Ruth Grabeel, Helen Harrington, Virginia Kent Sedgley,, Ellen Kendall Scott, and Marjorie Ward.

Some members of the faculty will attend the V. E. A. in Richmond, while others will remain in Farmville

S. T. C. girls are democratic as to travel, and did not all rush one means of transportation. Approximately 334 girls will travel by bus, 161 by train, and 296 by automobile.

Many of the students will go to football games during the holidays, while five will attend the press convention in St. Louis, Missouri. Others will attend the dances at V. M. I. and other schools, but the majority will make home their headquarters.

Facts and Figures Expose Embryo Class

Is your name Mary, Marie, Anne, Elizabeth, or Margaret? It is highly probable, because one hundred and two girls or thirty per cent of this year's freshmen answer to one of these names.

If your name is Mary, you're one of the six million Marys in this country, representing ten per cent of all women's name. The Annes give the Elizabeths a close race with a score of twenty-six to twenty-five, and the Margarets come in last with a not to be left out tally of eighteen. Quite an interesting turnout of names is the fact that only eight members of the class answer to the name, Virginia.

Two hundred and sixteen freshmen are seventeen which is the average age of the freshmen here at Farmville. Fourteen are sixteen, if that doesn't seem too illogical, and the rest range from seventeen to twenty-two.

Eighty-nine counties in Virginia are repesentred as well as ten states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and Panama.

There is just as much variety in the denominations of this year's class. One hundred and four freshmen are Methodists, seventy-one Baptists, sixty-one Presbyterians, fifty-six are Episcopallans, nineteen are Christian, five are Catholics, and four are Jewish. Of the class, seventeen do not belong to any church.

Richmond Host To V.E.A. Nov. 19

To Discuss Civilian Morale, Bond Sales

Maintaining civilian morale and promoting defense bond sales will be the main problems discussed when the Virginia Education Association meets in Richmond November 19-20.

This, the thirty-fifth convention, is expected to be the largest yet held as schools are closing in order that faculty members may attend.

T. V. Smith, Illinois Congressman; Dr. James Madison Wood, president of Stephens College, Missouri; Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president of Washington and Lee University, and Willard E. Givens, executive secretary of the National Education Association, will be among the speakers.

Dabney S. Lancaster, superintendent of Virginia public instruction and Governor James Price will speak at the opening general session Wednesday morning at John Marshall High School.

The remainder of the convention will be highlighted by addresses, discussions groups and a banquet Thanksgiving evening at the John Marshall hotel.

Senior Formal Tickets Will Be Sold Dec. 4

Tickets for the Senior Formal, which will be given December 6 in the S. T. C. gymnasium in honor of the senior class, will go on sale December 4.

Dancing will be from 8:30 p. m. until 12 o'clock. V. M. I. Commanders will furnish the music for the occasion. "Having acquired a high reputation at various dances in Virginia colleges and organizations, this orchestra will have a wide selection and effective rendering of numbers," Mary Katherine Dodson, president of the senior class, said.

Frances Lee Ellett, honorary class member, and the senior class officers, will lead the figure. Elizabeth Warner has been named figure chairman and has stated that all seniors in the figure will wear white. Others attending the dance have been requested to wear other colors in order that the seniors in the figure may be distinguished from under classmen.

Critics Proclaim Artist "Exciting" In Music World

Robert Kitain, a distinguished young violinist, will be the guest artist at the second lyceum program to be presented this session tonight, November 18, at 8:30 p. m. in the S. T. C. auditorium.

Mr. Kitain is the son of the well-known professor and composer, Mihail Kitain. At the age of ten, he won the Alexander Glazounow scholarship to the Imperial Conservatory of St. Petersburg, where he studied with Professor Leopold Auer and graduated with first prize. At 17 he made a triumphal tour of Russia. The critics immediately acclaimed him as "the leading and foremost violinist of Russia."

In 1925 he made his last consecutive sell-out tour of Russia and Siberia, giving 200 concerts. He continued his tour in the Far East, where he gave 185 concerts in Manchuria, China, Japan, the Phillipines, and Dutch East Indies. In Tokio he made a veritable triumph before 10,000 people. He made sensational appearances in all the principle cities of Europe, where he was immediately re-engaged for recitals and orchestral appearances, playing under the most distinguished conductors. The European critics acclaimed him as the "Russian Paganini" and as "one of the greatest violinists of the present day, who holds in his fingers the divine secret of charming his audience".

His European fame caused him to have a record-breaking box office for his American debut in Carnegie Hall, New York, in 1939, where he was greeted with tremendous enthusiasm by a capacity audience. Kitain immediately established himself as the most exciting new artist the music world has brought forth in several seasons. He has everything to become one of the most beloved violinists before the American public.

Julia Glenn Heads Frosh Commission

Julia Glenn, Roanoke, was elected chairman of the Freshman Commission, Wednesday night, November 12. Kathryn Baker, Roanoke, and Nell Varn, Petersburg, were named secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Julia was an active member of the Y. W. C. A. club in high school, having served as club secretary and as a cabinet member. Nell was an active member in her school honor society and worked on various committees. Kathryn was on the freshman class circus committee, is participating in the tennis tournament here at S. T. C., and did Y. W. C. A. club work before coming to Farmville.

This year the Freshman Commission will be responsible for keeping the halls quiet during pre rs, hanging the greens at Christmas, caroling, Morning Watch, and eventually the leadership of prayers.

They are also in charge of the recently organized Freshman Y. W. C. A. club.

Notice to Heads of All Organizations

All regular meetings will be announced in the dining room. If your organization is not going to meet, mark it off the list at the head table. All notices for called meetings must be signed by Lucy Turnbull, chairman of Student Standards calendar committee, if they are to be read in the dining room.

Happy Birthday, Dr. Jarman

Just as did the Virginian in 1909, may we slightly alter the words of Rip Van Winkle's toast and say again on the birthday of our president, J. L. Jarman:

May he live long, and prosper!

For his life has ever been characterized by friendliness, efficiency, and aspirations towards greater things. Cunningham Hall, the Library, and Student Building are just a few of the improvements he has effected during his reign here. Much that he has brought to us is intangible and inexpressable, but to each individual, there is a definite awareness and recognition of the leader and advisor whom each of us finds in our vicarious president, Dr. Jarman.

In 1902 he came to S. T. C. from Emory and Henry college. From his first years here, his ambitions for the college have soared and many of them have been more than fully realized. He has been widely recognized for unusual ability and for all, to know him is to love him.

Our birthday hope is that he will always enjoy success and happiness which are rightfully his own.

What About the Town Girls?

Once more a wave of complaints has come to our knowledge, protesting the undesirable condition of Town Girls' Room. This complaint originated from the town girls themselves, who, wishing to become an integral part of the college and its activities, feel that in their present environment such is impossible.

Their cry is for a room which would invite them to linger at the college after or between classes; one in which they could entertain their classmates for moments of relaxation. Many of the girls necessarily must remain at college during the length of the day. Hence they feel that because of the depressing atmosphere of their room they must seek refuge elsewhere.

This is the essence of their appeal: "College life could be made more desirable and more profitable for us if we had a better lounging room. The present condition is depressing and unhealthy. It detracts from our whole school, and is a disgrace to any institution supporting free education and equal opportunities."

Recognizing that one out of every ten students is a town girl, we, too, feel that the town girls should have an attractive room. We hope, too, that every organization will recognize these girls' interest in desiring to unite themselves more closely to the college and that every organization on campus will help them in their effort.

A Thankful Thanksgiving

Especially timely is this year's Thanksgiving, for each of us has a multitude of blessings for which to be thankful. More than anything else, we can be thankful that our holiday here does not parallel the celebrations of belligerent victories or strategic war plays as it is doing so contemporaneously in other countries less fortunate than ours.

Here the right to live is unobtrusively an individual privilege—and the happiness and freedom it entails, a veritable blessing. For this we should be deeply grateful. We should be careful, though, lest the unusual joy peculiar to the occasion become extinct—diminished by the gravity of world conditions. For Thanksgiving is undeniably a time for gaiety and fun having, too.

But each of us should sincerely take upon himself the action Thanksgiving implies and be infinitely and humbly grateful for his many, many gifts and blessings.

Gleanings

By BETTY PEERMAN

When the present world war started, the aim of England was to wipe Hitlerism from the face of the earth. Although it was not definitely stated, she also meant to wipe out the other "isms" and make democracy the ruling force in the world. The United States' sympathy was with England; we, too, wanted to put down Nazism, Communism, and Fascism. So our three big enemies were Hitler, Stalin, and Mussolini. Today this is not true; and yet Nazism, Communism, and Fascism remain the same. How could we have made such a complete change in regard to Russia?

We say, of course, that Russia has joined in the war against Hitler, but should you be friends just because you have the same enemies? Is that any reason that we should give Russia a loan of $1,000,000,000 when we could loan this money to England who lives by the same priciples that we do? Should we be willing to help England open a western front to aid our Russian friends? By giving our whole hearted support to Russia we would be paving the way for a peace that would include communistic doctrines. This is a dangerous policy when one considers Stalin's past actions.

From the time Stalin has come into power he has been an enemy of Hitler. Hitler has written against Stalin and the Russians while Stalin talked against the Nazis. When, however, it was to his advantage, Stalin put all this aside and joined in with the Nazi camp. He received his part of the spoils after Poland was defeated and took his opportunity to make war in Finland. He played one side against the other for his own benefit. During this time American officials, the American press, and the American people were just as much against Russia as they were against Germany. When Stalin got caught at his own tricks however, and Hitler marched on Russia, the story was entirely different. Now it is "Comrade Joe" and our "friends", the Russians.

Shouldn't we stop and ask ourselves if this switching of colors is not too dangerous on our part? Shouldn't we consider the character of the man with whom we are dealing and let his actions in the past help us guide our policy in the future?

Looking 'Em Over

Nostalgic Notes

"Just one more day 'til vacation. Back to civilization—the train will carry us there "—has climbed during the past months and is now number "one" on our hit parade. 'Tis a jolly Thanksgiving we're wishing you, and remember, if the tempation of turkey and Tommy upset you, we issued a fair warning.

Dear Diary

Excerpts from this daily record would have us believe Dottie Gaul is still "Carrying the Torch" for Walter. This five yearer sees all, hears all, tells all.

Dowell Dilemma

Lelia assures everbody she has been jilted if Bill doesn't write everyday.

Cosy Collaborations

Judy Eason and Sonny Mercer, and Mildred Carvin and Bobbie Dixon are fair examples of what we mean.

Keen Competition

Bargamin's Dick seems to be able to widen his circle of friendship without much difficulty. But we don't talk about that!

Infirmary Blues

I never saw the infirmary—
I never hope to see one—
But this I will say anyhow—
I'd rather see than be in one.

Modified Moderns

"Tis better to have loved and lost—Much better". If the shoe fits, wear it. Or as we heard the other day—What this country needs is a good don't cross your fridges 'til they're hatched.

Pro Moo

Charlotte Phillips is quite the 'Good Deed Dotty". Out of sheer kindness she wrote a Sigma Chi in Roanoke to let him know her roommate was in the infirmary and what did she get in return. It was especially lengthy, too.

Compliceated

Jean Weller is wondering how the Sigma Chi from Duke and the one from Hampden-Sydney will "chi-it" along. Further information will be revealed later. If you can't wait, see Jean.

And Finally

Be good to yourself this holiday, and in concluding we'd like to remind you of the three factors most prominent as menaces to safe driving—hic,hike, and hug!

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor.

For several years attempts have been made to improve the facilities of the town girls in our school, but of little avail. It is true, that the present room has been repainted and refurnished at various intervals, but this has had little effect, and seems rather useless. The town students might do something to keep this room in better condition but it is rather disheartening, when we all know that the room is entirely too small and inadequate to meet our needs. It is impossible for ninety girls to study, rest, or have any recreation in this room.

Since one-tenth of the student body is composed of town girls, I feel that we should have a nicer and larger room. Many of our girls stay at school all day, coming from out of town. Our college life could be made more profitable if we had better living quarters. The present condition is depressing as well as decidedly unhealthy. It detracts from our whole school, and is a disgrace to any institution supporting free education and equal opportunities for all. A better place to call our own would certainly encourage us to make a place for ourselves in school, and to feel as much a part as the other students. I am confident we can be worthy of this.

It is fully realized that the administration has a definite problem in the lack of space for class rooms and dormitories, but if it is at all possible, the town girls would enjoy a few changes.

It is probable that the administration and faculty do not realize the seriousness of this situation, for if they did, I am sure they would do something to help us to help ourselves. If this is not possible at the present time, a definite promise from them, for a better room in the near future, would at least give encouragement and something for which to work.

Sincerely,
Hannah Lee Crawford

A Tiger Squints at S. T. C.

By CHUCK WHITEHOUSE, Publicity Director of Hampden-Sydney

Some psuedo-historians have advanced theories from time to time to the effect that the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia at Appomattox on Sunday, April 9, 1865, was directly attributed to the disappointment suffered by the enlisted men when they attempted to get dates at Farmville S. T. C. when they passed through on Friday, April 7, 1865. Such theories, however, may be considered base and baseless, and novices in the field of State Normal School history are warned to be on the look-out for such fallacies. Records destroyed in the Hampden-Sydney Library fire of May 17, 1941, contained conclusive proof on this point and others.

The standing joke at Hampden-Sydney some years ago was as follows: Student A: How do you like the Normal girls in Farmville? Student B: I like the normal ones fine, but there aren't many. . . laughter.

Incidentally, Student B later took some graduate work at the Williamsburg Hospital. The men at Hampden-Sydney today consider this entirely lacking in wit—probably because the Normal part of S. T. C. has almost completely disappeared.

As one authority put it, S. T. C. girls represent a cross-section of fine American womanhood—the trouble is, they are usually too cross.

Seriously, we at Hampden-Sydney felt a sense of inferiority toward you girls for years. After all, you had a fire and we didn't. But look at us now.

I appreciate the opportunity the editor of the Rotunda has given me to write this column, and speaking for the students as a whole, I would say that we are glad you aren't far away. There are things, however, that we would like to talk about in connection with the two schools—so here goes.

There are just three things I would like to mention:

First, we don't like to be discriminated against with regard to rules—at least without knowing why we can't have privileges granted to other schools. Why not keep us informed. Maybe a dating handbook for our men is in order—or even a page in our handbook devoted to your regulations.

Second, we would like to get away from the idea that we are considered rats until proved otherwise. After all, nobody ever explains the rules to us; we just get knowledge of them by inference, maids, and mistakes. Lay your cards on the table, gals.

Third, we would like to be treated as though we were gentlemen. We don't like being parked outside buildings (e. g., the Junior Bldg.) while somebody runs up for our date. That is only an example. Let's get rid of the feeling that we are doing something innately wrong when we enter the front door of the Rotunda. After all, we are old enough to face the fact that this attraction is natural and right.

Thus, in a few words, I believe that we would be, as a whole, more agreeable if more confidence was placed in us—at least to the extent of confiding in us just what we can and cannot do.

Perhaps we need a round-table conference to talk this thing over. Perhaps not. Anyway, I have had my say.

Question of the Week

What Do You Think of the Town Girls' Room?

Alice Green: It's a disgrace to the school.

Pat Dodie: Too dark, too cold, too small.

Agnes Patterson: The town girls deserve a better place.

Rachel Abernathy: It's an essential part of the building, and could be greatly improved.

Hannah Lee Crawford: I think I've already said enough!

Mary Katherine Dodson: It's not large enough, it's not convenient, and it's too public.

Polly Hughes: It's one of those corners in school that needs to be fixed up with the theme song, "Why Don't We Do This More Often?"

Anne Ayers: It's a disgrace as it is, and I think the movement for improvement is splendid. The town girls need a place to rest.

Frances Parham: I think it needs a good old fashioned cleaning. That lipstick on the wall!

Carrie Gibboney: It's a disgrace to both the college and to the town girls for it to be in its present condition.

Frances Rosebro: I'm entirely in sympathy with the town girls' efforts to get a new room.

Virginia Barksdale: They need two rooms—one for study, and a second for resting and "getting together".

May Wertz: Since one-tenth of the student body spends much of each day there, it should be larger with better facilities.

Loreen Agee: It should be kept better.

Texie Belle Felts: I don't think we have a room of which to be proud. It should be more homelike and have a more welcoming atmosphere.

Unidentified: Do I have to express an opinion?

Nancy Naff: It's too small for ten per cent of the student body. If the town girls think enough of our college to come here, we certainly ought to cooperate in making them comfortable and happy here.

Polly Commack: The room should be larger, and they need a real place to relax and rest.

Dearing Fauntleroy: I don't think very much of it. It's dingy and dark, but it has possibilities.

Mary St. Claire Bugg: It's too small; we need a place to relax when we are tired.

December 1 Will Be Memorable Date

Color Rush will be here on December 1, and, to many, this means a real day of hockey clash as well as a mad rush for each class runner to place her banner on the front of the buildings. Last season it was really a memorable day to all who witnessed the affairs. Red and White came out on top, freshmen removed their rat caps, and all celebrated in a gala manner. This season will be a new experience for the freshmen. The question now is: will members of our embryo class continue to wear rat caps which they are supposed to wear now, or shall they leave them because of a victorious hockey game? Well, time will tell!

The End of the Game

Time does tell a lot of things; and in the case of the big Turkey game in Lynchburg Thanksgiving Day—well, that decision is left up to the V. M. I. and V. P. I. teams. Of course, the weather man could interfere. At the speed tickets sold out, it looks like many a fan will be among those gathering at the stadium. In fact, all bleachers in most cities will have quite a sell-out as this marks the closing of a very widely renouned sports season, that in which a pigskin and an eleven do a great deal of work, and in the end there is gained a game of sports for the players and an hour or so of entertainment and excitement for millions of sport lovers.

Full Schedule Ahead

For the present we will all enjoy a nice holiday and in doing so we should remember this to be a time of Thanksgiving. Within the next three or four days, there will be various outside activities and then the return to Farmville. The start of the stretch we must face until Christmas. Things will continue with even greater force, for the archery tournament is nearing, hockey games at color rush, class hockey games, freshmen basketball teams, more golf lessons, a program given by Orchesis, tennis tournament, and so far as sports go there will be a full program.

A Thought for Sportsmen

A graduate of the Class of '33 left this thought, "The out-of-doors calls! Laughter, sunshine, and play urge us to leave our cares and join the fun to run, to jump, to dribble, to drive, to pace the cinder path! The echo of gay voices lures us to the athletic field where sportsmanlike we win or lose. There with brawn and brain we build for ourselves a fortress of strength that we may play the game fair and square."

Instructors Course In First Aid Begins Here December 1

Announcement was made this week of the American Red Cross course in First Aid for Instructors which will begin on December 1 at S. T. C.

The classes will be taught by Max Rote, Jr., national Red Cross field instructor, on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday nights from 7 o'clock until 10 o'clock in Miss Barlow's classroom. The course includes thirty hours of work. The only requirements are that applicants be twenty years of age and interested in giving instructions in first aid.

Those interested in taking the Instructors Course are asked to sign on the bulletin board in the gymnasium.

Hockey Clash Provides Second Event of Day

Color Rush date has been set for the afternoon of Monday, December 1. All afternoon classes will be excused, and the big banners placed on the buildings by the various class runners will provide the first attraction of the day.

In the hockey clash the freshmen will play the sophomores and the juniors will challenge the seniors. Two points are given each team that wins and in case of a tie both teams receive one point.

The clash between the freshmen and sophomores is a traditional game. If the freshmen win, they are allowed to take off their rat caps. If the victory goes to the sophomores, the rat caps will be worn until Christmas.

At the end of the games, the winner of the ten points given for the affair will be determined by the number of points the color has.

The week after Thanksgiving has been set aside for numerous class games. On Tuesday, November 25, the seniors will play the sophomores. Juniors play the freshmen on Wednesday, November 26; and seniors clash with the freshmen on Thursday, November 27. Friday, November 28, the sophomores will vie with the juniors.

Radio Program Hails S. T. C.ers

Seven S. T. C.-ers, including Clare Spindler, Nancy Kerse, Marie Snyder, Sarah Rhea, Grace Scales, Anne Fitzgerald, and Martha Anderson were aroused from midnight slumber Thursday night, October 30, to hear the sweet sound of their own names flow over the air waves from Station WCNC, Elizabeth City, North Carolina.

At one o'clock when the cock was heralding the dawn of rising day, these temporary night owls kept their vigil in Room 131, ears strained to hear every sound from the loud speaker at their bedside. The program, dedicated to these girls of Cunningham Hall, brought to the listeners, the echoing of their names over the air in the clear tones of Jack Pyle, WCNC radio announcer.

"The following arrangement by Glenn Miller of 'Elmer's Tune' is dedicated to Miss Marie Snyder, of Norfolk, Virginia, now a student at Farmville State Teacher's College," he announced.

Clare Spindler thought the only appropriate way to express their gratitude would be to call their radio engineer hero, Bill Rogers. A collect call was necessary, of course, because of a deficiency of change for the "jute" box. However, they talked to their engineers a few minutes later and informed them in no uncertain terms that they stood in the good graces of their S. T. C. admirers.

Banquets Highlights Sorority Activities

The members and pledges of Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority were entertained at a formal banquet given at Longwood Saturday night, November 15 at 5:30 p. m. Guests included Dr. J. L. Jarman, Miss Grace E. Moran, Miss Carolyn Cosbill, and visiting alumnae, Ella Marsh Pilkinton was in charge of arrangements for the dinner.

This banquet is an annual affair given on the sorority's founders' day.

"The Little Minister"---- As Seen by an S.T.C. Student

By Jane Ruffin

As directed by the energetic Miss Wheeler, "The Little Minister", presented in the S. T. C. auditorium by the S. T. C. Dramatic Club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs on Friday, November 14, was brimming over with thrills, excitement and superb acting.

No recitation of plot could possibly convey any adequate notion of the flavor and freshness of the play. "The Little Minister", adopted from J. M. Barrie's book of the same name showed the influence of Gavin Dishart, called the "Little Minister", because "he forgot to keep growing", when he became involved in an industrial riot, and his weakness when he became involved with a bonnie "raggety tagglety gypsy," Babbie.

In an enchanting opening scene Babbie, nobly portrayed by Peggy Belcus of S. T. C., succeeded in making the audience feel pleasantly crude and awkward by the lightness of her walk and the sweetness of her voice. Tedo Savage of Hampden-Sydney, cast as the Little Minister, proved himself an actor of unusual ability by creating the character of Gavin Dishart with actions rather than words.

Making her stage debut as Micah, son of the town drunk, Martha Woodehouse capably characterized the impulsive boy who was so maltreated when his father "took to drink". She acted particularly well the scene where the small lad offered the gypsy girl his pet rabbits if she would only save the minister alone so his father would "leave the drink". Rob Dow, in his inconstant moods of rashness and contriteness was extremely well done by Ace Livick of Hampden-Sydney.

Outstanding was Keith Eubank's portrayal of Tammas Whammond, an elder in Dishart's kirk, who "really loved the lad like a son", but for duty's sake was ready to expel him when led astray. He was supported by other members of the church, played by Alec Finlayson, Elias Etheridge, Tucker Bedinger, Jane Brown, Jane McGinnis, and Margaret Hiner, all of whom spoke a beautiful dialect, walked with rheumatism and better than any words described the conventions, prejudices, and delights of a simple Scottish people.

The Red Coats, Addison Campbell, Gordon Leach, Marshall Doswell, Frederick Walker and John Owen, were led by Richard Cornwall as Captain Halliwell, Dishart's rival in matters of love, and Lord Rintoul acted by Pat Striplin.

Other members of the supporting cast were Jeanne Strick, as the manse servant; Mildred Carter Clanton, parlor maid at Rintual's Castle; and Mary Hunter Edmunds, as Lady Barbara's French maid, Felice, almost stole several scenes from her mistress.

The impeccability of Miss Wheeler's directing, the excellent cast, and the highly successful efforts of Lucy Davis, Miggie Mish, and Addison Campbell in staging and lighting, make the word "perfection" seem none too good for "The Little Minister."

Longwood Tablet

The present house at Longwood, enlarged and "restored" by State Teachers College after the State acquired it by purchase in 1920, was built in 1815 by Nathaniel E. Venable on the site of another house in which Confederate General Joseph E. Johnston was born. Peter Johnston, who donated Hampden-Sydney College its campus, grandfather of the Confederate general, was the orginal owner of the property in 1765; Abraham B. Venable purchased the property in 1811 from Peter Johnston, Jr., father of the Confederate general. It was transferred through Samuel Woodson Venable to his son Nathaniel E. Venable who built the Longwood house in 1815.

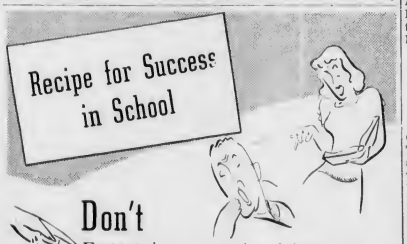
S. T. C. and H.-S. Stage Practice Debate



Resolved: "The Federal Government should regulate by law all labor unions in the United States" was the subject for debate between teams of Hampden-Sydney and S. T. C. in a practice debate Tuesday night, November 11.

Those debating in the little auditorium were Anne Randolph and Dorothy Gaul, affirmative, against Tommy Johns and Cary Suter, negative.

Alice Nichols and Josephine Starling, negative, competed against Johnny Pancake and Jack Ward, affirmative. It was a non-decision debate with an informal discussion following.

Dr. MacArthur, Noted Y. W. C. A. Specialist, Present on S.T.C. Campus

"How Practical Is 1942 Christianity?" Is Week's Theme

Dr. Kathleen W. MacArthur, a member of the national staff of the Young Women's Christian Association, is on the S. T. C. campus this week in order that she might confer with the leaders and members of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet at S. T. C. on the religious aspects of their program for the coming year. Also scheduled are private conferences for any member of the student body who cares to discuss problems with Dr. MacArthur.

Program Outlined

Tonight Dr. MacArthur will lead a discussion with Alpha Kappa Gamma members.

At 11 o'clock on Thursday she will speak to the Y. W. C. A. library committee. At 4 o'clock she will have a conference with the Freshman and Sophomore Commissions and prayers committee.

On Thursday at 5 o'clock she will have conferences with the publicity, the service, and the public affairs committees of the Y. W. C. A. Again she will lead prayers, and at 9 o'clock in the Student Building Lounge, she will conduct a discussion open to all students.

Dr. MacArthur will speak in chapel on Friday morning.

Week's Theme

"Christianity—is it practical in 1942?" is the general theme that Dr. MacArthur will follow here at S. T. C.

Dr. MacArthur is a secretary for religious resources in the division of the Community Y. W. C. A. at national headquarters in New York. Miss Winnifred Wygal and she are responsible for direction of Y. W. C. A. religious programs throughout the country. Dr. Mac Arthur is especially interested in the development of source materials which can be used by Y. W. C. A. clubs to interpret the Christian religion and its ethical meaning.

Well-Qualified

Dr. MacArthur is particularly qualified for the work she has taken with the national board of the Y. W. C. A. through teaching philosophy and religion at Hollins College, Roanoke, Virginia, for five years, College of the Churches of Christ, Toronto, Canada, and at the Anglo-Oriental girls school in Tokyo, Japan.

A native of Toronto, Dr. MacArthur spent her undergraduate days at the University of Manitoba, in Winnipeg. She obtained her masters degree in philosophy, theology, and ethics at the University of Chicago where she also earned a Ph. D. degree.

Juniors Change Opening Date Of "Club 43" To December 11

"Club 43", the junior class production, will stage its final "one night stand" on Thursday, December 11 at 8 o'clock in the "rec" instead of Tuesday night, December 9, as it was formerly schedu'ed.

All new acts are being rehearsed for the first part of the floor show, while the final part will be a passing review of the last two productions.

Singing stars Jean Weller and Carol Costello will reappear against a background of the "Ladies of Note". Also returning will be the "Rippling Rhythm Makers". Dance selections will be presented by modern dance groups with Betsy Davis as a newcomer. The identity of the master of ceremonies will not be revealed prior to the performance, nor has the theme of the decorations been disclosed.

To the junior selling the greatest number of tickets a cake will be awarded.

Alumnae Present Portrait of Eason To Farmville School

Farmville State Teachers College Alumnae Association has presented an oil portrait of the late Dr. Thomas D. Eason of Richmond to the institution.

Dr. Eason, a member of the State Board of Educaiton, was head of the science department at Farmville State Teachers College for many years.

The portrait is now hanging in the newspaper room of the college library.

Pi Gamma Mu Elects Delegates to State, National Conventions

Mary Lilly Purdum, president of the Virginia Gamma Chapter, of Pi Gamma Mu, and Mary Hunter Edmunds, vice-president, will go to New York City to represent Farmville at the national Pi Gamma Mu convention which will have its headquarters at the Pennsylvania Hotel, December 29 and 30. Those representing the college at the State Convention of International Relations Clubs in Richmond, December 12 and 13, are Lucy Turnbull and Anne Ellett.

Anne Ayers and Betty Peerman will serve as alternates for the first pair, while Helen Wiley Hardy and Brookie Benton will substitute for the latter.

Lucy Turnbull will be a discussion leader at the Richmond meet on the first panel, "The United States and the War." Lucy will use for her subject "Public Opinion and War in the United States."

Mr. Max Eastman, noted author and lecturer is scheduled to speak at the convention at the Richmond Professional Institute of the College of William and Mary, December 13.

Charles Morgan Reveals English Attitudes; Says "It's Up to America to Decide Now"

By MARGARET WRIGHT

"It is not for England to say," was the reply of Charles Morgan, noted English novelist and dramatic critic, when questioned about American participation in the existing war, during an interview Tuesday, December 2. He arrived nine weeks ago, having come over from London on a freighter without a convoy, to conduct a series of lectures throughout the eastern part of the United States.

He continued by saying that though the English naturally want and need the greatest possible collaboration, it is up to America to decide in what way and at what time.

"No great country goes to war to help another country." The crisp, clear-cut accent of the British gave his words added emphasis. "They go for two reasons, either in their own interest, or in the interest of civilization, or both."

DR. CHARLES MORGAN

At the mention of Wilkie the novelist's countenance brightened and the English pride in a sportsmanlike attitude shone in his eyes and tone of voice. "We liked him extremely well. We admired him because of the way he threw in his lot with 'his president' after the defeat of the election."

When questioned about his general opinion of Americans, Mr. Morgan's answer was both positive and negative. "Americans," he said, "particularly young people, possess an eagerness, an interest in life in all its aspects. "The danger I see," he said thoughtfully, "is the tendency to uniformity in their over-willingness to be influenced by fashion in thought, rather than take on an individuality of their own and risk the danger of being called freaks."

Of the South he said so far he had enjoyed it, but that he had expected to enjoy it. Everyone is so at ease. He found the hos-

Eighteen Girls Nominated; Court Will Consist of Nine Girls

Tonight, immediately after the Student Body meeting in the large auditorium, nine girls will be elected by the student body members of Mardi Gras Court. The girl who receives the highest vote will reign as queen of Mardi Gras which will be held on Saturday, February 14.

Eighteen girls who have been nominated and will be voted upon on tonight are Ann Boswell, Dorothy Childress, Nancy Dashill, Caroline Eason, Buff Gunter, Sara Hardy, Mary Harvie, Frances Mallory, Nancy Naff, Allene Overbey, Frances Parham, Ruth Parker, Mary Evelyn Pearsall, Cottie Radspinner, Mary Lou Shannon, Mary Lou Tribble, Jean Weller, and Mary Katherine Zehmer.

These girls, dressed in evening clothes, will walk across the stage tonight, after which each student will be given a ballot to vote for nine out of the eighteen nominees.

The committee which nominated for the election was composed of the Mardi Gras committee, classman of each class, and a faculty member of Pi Gamma Mu.

Mardi Gras is sponsored annually by Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity, and is patterned after the world famous New Orlean's festival.

Results of the election will be announced in next week's Rotunda.

Scientist Features Living Organisms At Lyceum Tonight

Dr. George Roemmert, world-famed mico-projectionist of living micro-organisms, will reveal the amazing contents of a single drop of water at a lyceum program Wednesday, December 3, at 8 o'clock in the large auditorium.

With the aid of microscope magic, Dr. Roemmert will reveal a strange new world filled with extraordinary plants and animals just as they live and carry on their struggle for existence in their world, consisting of a mere drop of water. Some will probably be familiar to the biology students from the amoeba to the hydra with its poison tentacles.

Dr. Roemmert is known all over the world for his outstanding work in this field. He brings a glimpse into an unknown world and proves it with living examples.

Kappa Delta Pi Hears Lancaster

Fraternity Initiates Va. Superintendent

"May you always seek the light of honor, the way of truth, and the will to work for men" was the challenge offered by Dabney Stuart Lancaster, superintendent of public instruction, to members of Kappa Delta Pi last night.

Speaking at the fraternity's annual Christmas banquet which was held in the college tea room, Mr. Lancaster told the group that in this international emergency, there is present a feeling among college groups that they should be elsewhere. "But if we learn to do better today", Mr. Lancaster continued, "then we will be better equipped to do the tasks of tomorrow."

Before the banquet, Mr. Lancaster was initiated into Kappa Delta Pi, national scholarship fraternity, as an honorary member. "Your confidence in conferring this honor upon me will inspire me to do more in education," Mr. Lancaster remarked.

Lois Jane Steidtman, student, was also initiated into the fraternity at this time.

Elizabeth Anne Parker and Imogene Claytor were co-chairmen of the decoration committee for the banquet. In charge of arrangements for the dinner was Peggy Hughes, while Amy Read was music chairman.

Seventy people, including both student and faculty members of Kappa Delta Pi, attended the banquet. An address of welcome was made by Mary Hunter Edmunds, president of the Beta Epsilon Chapter.

H.-S. Actors to Star In Apprentice Play, "The Pot Boiler"

For the first time in the history of the Dramatic club, Hampden-Sydney boys will appear in an apprentice play Wednesday night, December 10, at 7 o'clock.

"The Pot Boiler", by Alice Gerstenberg, will be presented before the Dramatic club at this time by the apprentice acting group under the direction of Jane McGinnis.

Tedo Savage, of "Little Minister" fame, will take the part of Mr. Wouldby, the would-be playwright. Anne Warwick, Marion Orange, Peggy Steele, Virginia Edwards, Lorraine Ginsberg, and Patsy Crews, portray the various parts of which a play is made in this rehearsal of Mr. Sud's production.

"There Is No Way Out", Dr. Morgan Tells Audience

Speaking before a record-breaking crowd in the S. T. C. auditorium Monday evening December 1, Dr. Charles Morgan, eminent dramatic critic on the London Times and English novelist, declared that there is no way out of the present struggle.

"We will either have a world for free people to work out their destiny, or England will cease to exist", Dr. Morgan continued. "We wish it this way."

Dr. Morgan spoke on the subject "The Stream of History", a lecture on the attempt to see ourselves in historical prespective. This address was under the auspices of Beore Eh Thorn. "The Value of Art In Modern Society", a defense of story telling, sponsored by the Dramatic Club, was his topic Tuesday morning in chapel.

Tuesday night he conducted an open forum for Pi Gamma Mu on the subject "What Kind of Citizen", an estimate of the changing values now attached to the ideas of personal integrity and social service. Members of Pi Gamma Mu, Beore Eh Thorn, and the Dramatic Club, excepting apprentices, were invited to this forum which was formal.

Dr. Morgan is a graduate of Oxford University, and is lecturing in the Southcast this fall and will appear on campuses in other sections of the country next spring.

Debaters To Clash At Winthrop, S. C.

Four members of the S. T. C. debate club left for Winthrop College, South Carolina, today, December 3, to compete against members of debate clubs from the various other colleges in Eastern United States.

Among those attending the tournament will be Josephine Starling and Alice Nichols, negative team; and Virginia Sedgely and Anne Randolph, affirmative team.

While at the tournament, the girls will debate several times a day. They will be rated as individual debaters rather than as a group or team.

Last Tuesday night, November 25, Josephine Starling and Alice Nichols, negative team; and Anne Randolph and Dorothy Gaul, affirmative team, debated the boys of Lynchburg College at Lynchburg, Virginia. No final decision was made.

"All Out For Defense" Sounds Challenge To Education In View of European War

"All out for defense" is being sounded the world over in reply to the vicious European struggle which is striking at the very life lines of mankind.

We college students of today should sound this cry even more vehemently. "All out for education": this is the real defense of the future as well as the present. The estimated school enrollment in the United States today is 31,566,000 students, a number greater than the total number of men under arms in the armies of the Axis and Democratic powers.

Here in America democratic institutions of learning are flourishing. From abroad come reports that famed universities are liquidating. In Germany, education is being overhauled, substituting Nazi idealogies for truth.

Before us there is a two-fold challenge. First, we must pursue our education with diligence. Strenuous times call for intelligent thinking, for mutual understanding, and for mutual tolerance of differences of opinion. At the same time, such things call for action.

Second, we must do all that we can to further education and its principles. Education for the public life will not only function during the existing emergency; it will help to provide what society needs in the future. Education develops in all persons the concepts of intelligence and of nationality as means by which social problems may be solved.

"Organized education," said President Roosevelt, "does its full part to make America strong. It helps to dispel ignorance and confusion. It stimulates a desire to achieve the satisfactions of the good life and to eliminate evil from the world."

If we give our undivided attention to the high ideals and goals that our college is pursuing and strive to fulfill them, we shall be doing our part in arming the front of education.

Carpe Diem

The United States calls itself a Christian nation. Is it a Christian nation? Today we are all wondering how Christians should act in the present war-torn world. But not only does the war itself raise this question; there is also the labor question, the whole economic situation, race relations, and personal morals.

A great many students think a lot about the truth of their faith, the authority of their religion. Is it intellectually sound in a time like this? Why Christianity at all? What does it mean? Is there a God? What can Christianity do for us? Is it practical? Is it too ideal?

In view of these questions, we are especially fortunate to have with us this week Dr. Kathleen MacArthur, of the national Y. W. C. A. staff, who is a specialist in the field of religion. Using as her theme the "relevancy of the Christian faith to the special conditions of the world today," Dr. MacArthur is present on our campus that she, through lectures and individual conferences, might help both in vision and in practical planning to extend the horizons of the members of the student body along the confusing issues of today.

We welcome Dr. MacArthur to Farmville and are quite honored by the fact that we are the only school in the South which is being visited by a representative from the national headquarters of the Y. W. C. A.

Where Is Our Spirit?

This afternoon marked the close of the hockey season. In many respects, the season was a successful one. The players did a "good job."

However, we cannot overlook the fact that only a small crowd witnessed the class games. On Monday afternoon classes were dismissed in order that all students might attend the game. Where were they? Interest and spirit should have drawn a record-breaking crowd. Have we lost these?

The hockey games are the first chance which we have had to lend our support to the sports program. Basketball season will begin after Christmas. Let's see that we don't neglect to show our interest in these girls and in the games themselves.

Gleanings

By LUCY TURNBULL

The German drive on Russia has been going on now for over five months. All the world has witnessed with admiration the manner in which Russia has withstood the assault. The Slav has shown himself a hard fighter, for he, like the Nazi soldier is a product of a revolution. And what is more, he is defending his own home and soil—that means infinitely much to a patriotic Russian.

At the outset of the conflict, the German force in Russia was estimated to be about 3,100,000 men. Their present losses are believed to be 805,000. This means that the German losses in Russia have probably been heavier than during the bloodiest period of World War 1.

Despite all this, however, the latest news from the front is far from encouraging; indeed, it is extremely grave. The battles are more furious and more confused than ever. Moscow manifestly is in greater danger than at any time since the launching of the German offensive. This she admits. The city itself is in the center of an entrenched camp, the exact strength of which is not known in this country. The Germans are combining direct pressure on Moscow with wide encircling operations against the railways. The aim is to convince the Red armies that they cannot hold Moscow and they must abandon the attempt before they are cut off.

Their continued resistance depends in a large measure on the severity of the weather, the strength of the Russian reserves, and their continued, concentrated aid from the United States.

Looking 'Em Over

Thanksgiving really proved to be fruitful! The Ring Figure at V. M. I. yielded a great jewelry collection—Kyle Barnhill, Mary Jane, and Janet Jackson are the proud possessors of miniatures. By the way, who is the young lady who flashes so many different diamonds around the campus? Must be the real thing, or is it "Cheezo?" Traveling down the Hampton way, we saw Dot Childress and Nancy B. crushing the hearts of Peninsular swains with V. P. I. way, way up in front. By the way, Dot, what have you against a certain columnist at V. P. I.?

One of the best parties of the Thanksgiving week-end was the late train from Norfolk and points east. Amy did you receive the hat you lost while on the train? Strange happenings—Amy we thought you were innocent! A brand new party began when the Petersburg crew joined the trip—Sorta cramped M. K.'s style we hear—Big Barbara was really in demand during the trip, but she preferred sitting quietly and thinking of Eddie Sam. Speaking of Petersburg, reinforcements Mish and Turner were so eager for a train ride they traveled all the way from Lexington after a strenuous week-end to make the Petersburg express. And speaking of Petersburg, there seemed to be quite a cute Techman who thrilled two certain young S. T. C. lassies. Chuckatuck seemed to contribute right much to the same situation. How about it B. Gentile and A. Lyons?

Another "chipper time" (so they term it) was had at the Press Convention out St. Louis way. In fact the great "Clinestein" remained in the infirmary for days recuperating, and had as neighbor patients Gay Ward and "Ayresdares" (how many names does she have!).

We understand that Sarah Jeffreys is partial to R. M. A.! Mary Harvie was seen dashing madly to catch 9:30 Saturday night bus to Richmond. We wonder what caused her sudden decision? Margie Chapman was distressed over her young man's recent trip to the Tech infirmary. We hope those tears were not in vain.

Seen cheering at the Army-Navy game were Emily Irby and Mildred Pierce. Farmville girls continue to be present on all important occasions. Mildred will make a return trip to the Academy when she journeys for the Ring Figure.

Flash. We are glad to hear that Bob Dabney will be here this week end—all the way from Mississippi, too. Incidentally, why was Sadie worried Sunday night?

As "Nosed Out" By Reporter

By ANNE FITZGERALD

In an effort to fathom out Farmville sentiment on college and world affairs, this week's consensus includes five questions directly related to campus life and problems. The following conclusions were reached from the various answers given by the girls interviewed.

1. What change do you think could be made in the chapel programs?

Several suggestions were made in response to this query. Many felt that there was a need to make chapel quiet and more religious. Others felt that a loudspeaker should be installed so that people in the back rows could hear the programs. A few objected to the faculty being seated on the stage. Variety in the program was considered another desirable feature; and a number of people thought that perhaps educational movies, skits, more outside speakers, and religious pantomimes might prove inspiring.

2. Do you think final examinations are a fair test of a student's knowledge in a course?

There are two opposing opinions in regard to this question. The majority of the students didn't think that exams were a fair test since they involve "cramming" and make the student nervous and upset mentally and emotionally, perhaps physically. Several expressed the sentiment that circumstances, financial worries, lack of sleep, and sickness sometimes kept the student from doing his best. The opposing side, however, pointed out that exams were of value in organizing and summarizing material and that some people would not learn as much if they were exempt from exams. They stated emphatically that if a student couldn't pass an exam, he couldn't pass the course.

3. What arrangement do you think should be made at S. T. C. about answering the telephone?

Majority of the students felt that a maid or N. Y. A. girls should be appointed to answer the telephone in the afternoons and at night during busy hours. They didn't approve of screaming names up and down the halls, but thought that a note should be left in the room saying who called and giving the necessary information if the student called was not in her room.

4. Are you for or against lowering the voting age from 21 to 18?

The students, one-hundred percent, were against lowering the voting age. They agreed that an individual had not reached necessary maturity until the age of 21 and that they were well-satisfied with the present age limit.

5. Which in your opinion, was the best motion picture you saw during 1941?

"Blossoms in the Dust" led the poll as a campus favorite, with "Virginia" winning a close second. A third preference was "Philadelphia Story". Other movies which the students expressed a strong liking to were "A Woman's Face", "The Letter", "The Great Lie", "Shining Victory", and "So Ends Our Night".

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor:

I would like to echo loudly what one Mr. Whitehouse so justly pleaded for in the last issue of The Rotunda: a change in this dating routine concerning upperclassmen.

Don't you suppose there are more than one or two girls in this entire school who haven't at one time or another been asked by some poor fellow—standing patiently outside Junior Building, his knees clanking in the cold gusts of wind, beating his chest, and blowing on his fists to get warm—to inform his date that he is waiting for her?

'Tis a pitiful sight. And an embarrassing one! With not one, but two perfectly good potential reception rooms only a few steps away, it seems logical that they might be used a few minutes in the afternoon by boys from Hampden-Sydney and elsewhere while waiting for their dates rooming in the Junior and Senior Buildings.

The only reason advanced heretofore for not using these rooms for said purpose is that they adjoin a dormitory hall and that French doors could be seen through. How naive! Girls at college age don't date boys who make a habit of "peeping" through doors—French or otherwise.

Then, too, when these girls are at home they are not forced to have their dates freeze on the front steps, so why should they when at school? It's generally thought that dormitories should pinch-hit for home as much as possible.

I should like to see a Home Office, junior, so to speak, set up in the Junior Building—with a maid and matron as in the main Home Office to receive boys properly. This would not only relieve congestion in the present Home Office, but should make it possible for girls to also meet their dates in this building rather than in the Rotunda on dance nights at Hampden-Sydney.

Incidentally, Christmas isn't so far away Why not then?

Reformally Yours,
Citizen Jane

Green and White Triumphs In Color Rush Clash

• Piercing the Points •

By SHIRLEY PIERCE

Off To a Good Start

Supported by their class and cheer leaders, the mighty green and white midgets took a 16-13 lead against Buckingham High School in the first game of their basketball schedule. Again their skill, accuracy, and sportsmanship will be tested when they meet with the team from Burkeville High on December 5. This team is coached by Rosa Courter. The final game to be played before Christmas is scheduled for December 12 with Powhatan. Patricia Gibson is coach of the team. The freshman team was organized after many weeks of practice in the various phases of basketball technique. This organization of the girls makes it possible for them to be better equipped for playing when the regular season opens. Upperclassmen begin the season immediately after Christmas holidays.

Hockey Season Exits

As the end of the fall quarter nears, we see the various active sports lending to the close of their season. This brings the so-called "round up" of activity and many big moments when the contests are held. All saw the ending of the hockey season with the clash of exciting games played between each class. The rival of Green and White and Red and White became the emotional feature of the day and there went 10 points to the winner of the events. The color cup which sits so unconcerned on the mantel in the Rotunda knows many deep dark memories of the sports seasons and always blossoms forth in glowing colors at the end of every year—for it has as its imaginable motto—"May the best color win". This does not always go to the same class each year, but as all things do . . . changes come about. For the love of Farmville, the love of sports, and the love of one's colors, the cup is able to survive.

Golf Is Always Good

Golf was especially in demand several weeks ago, but due to the cooler weather, the rush has ceased. This sport is one which is continuous throughout the year and there is always an open field on which to play. The A. A. has provided the necessary equipment for the game; and if a group wishes to continue to learn, more instructions will be provided.

While the subject of golf is in mind . . . do many of the students ever take notice of the nice little area located in the shower room which has numerous sports objects about? There seems to be a distinct neglect to the area and why should this be? Shall we call it a playroom in the basement? Often you hear the girl talking of a playroom filled with numerous games. Well, here is a place of that sort. There is an area fixed for golf putting and also one for golf driving. Targets and such for other sports are there also. .Why not start the new year off in a sporting way and use the facilities which are already present!

If You Are Twenty . . .

If you are twenty and interested in lending a portion of your time to learn first aid work, the course is for you. Mr. Max Rote, of the American Red Cross national headquarters, is instructor and will teach the instructors' course in First Aid while he is in Farmville working with swimming tests. This is an extra good opportunity for those qualified to take the course, for it is a great asset to be well equipped with such needed information—and more so at a time like today.

Our Regret . . .

It is indeed a great disappointment not to be able to have with us Ruth Mary Hardwick, Dorothy Round Little, and Charles E. Hare, famous tennis players, who were previously scheduled to be on our campus. Due to circumstances they were unable to reach Farmville on their tour of this section of Virginia. The tennis tournament which is being sponsored by the Athletic Association for all students is nearing its end and the final winner will be announced soon. This tournament has been going on for several weeks and the deadline has been set when all games in the contest will be over. For good outdoor activity use the courts and enjoy the fresh air and exercise!

Riders Favor Jumping

Jumping has become one of the high-lights of riding this fall. A Hunt Club which is composed of the more advanced riders, Nelle White, Kay Spencer, Nell Scott, Elizabeth Gunter, Catherine May, Anne Page Francis, Catherine Gosney, Rebecca Spicer, May Wertz, and Gloria Pollard was formed at the beginning of the season. Ann Berry and Joyce Cheatwood were added to the jumping classes several weeks ago.

At the beginning of the winter quarter Barbara Scott, Pat McCormick, and Ann Randolph will be qualified to jump and by the middle of the winter quarter others will be ready.

Many cross-country rides and a few hunts are being planned for the winter and spring quarters. Included in the riding program will be a Spring Exhibition which will be put on by the entire riding groups. Students will be advanced as they make the necessary progress and it now appears that many new girls this fall will be good competition for the advanced classes in the riding contest.

Girls receiving their training in riding this year will be qualified to become riding counsellors in summer camps.

Pictured above is Dorothy Round Little, a member of the trio which is touring leading colleges and universities of the U. S. to give demonstrations of tennis exhibitions. Originally scheduled to appear at Farmville this month, the trio has cancelled its present engagement until spring.

Christmas Greetings Is Theme of Orchesis Sing

Christmas greetings from the members of Orchesis with the assistance of the Senior A'Capella Choir group will be the program presented at Sing on Saturday night, December 6.

Features of Program

The first feature of the program is a "Processional" by Dellbes-Aslanoff in which Ann Bradshaw, Betty Sexton, Mary Hunter Edmunds, Sally Hutchinson, Hallie Hillsman, Anne Covington, Helen Wiley Hardy, Alice Seebert, Louisa Sanford, Harriette Walker, Louise McCorkle, Shirley Cadmus, Ruth Dugger, Shirley Pierce, Gloria Pollard, Jean Strick, Grace Ellerton, Betsy Davis, and Lulie Jones will participate. The Senior A'Capella group will accompany this presentation.

"Adoration" by Horst will provide the second feature. Demonstrating this will be Mary Hunter Edmunds, Anne Brashaw, Shirley Cadmus, Ruth Dugger, Jean Strick, Betty Sexton, and Helen Wiley Hardy.

Novel Greeting

A new novel form of greetings will be given. Greetings will be issued from "Those who just lock", Louise Sanford; "Those who always know", Helen Wiley Hardy; "Those who can't make up their minds", Ruth Dugger; and "Those who are in a hurry", Betsy Davis.

This group will be accompanied by May Wertz at the piano and the speaking voices of Jean Strick and Mary Hunter Edmunds.

To Present Carols

An old Bohemian carol entitled "A Caroling" will be demonstrated by Betty Sexton, Alice Seebert, Anne Bradshaw, Mary Hunter Edmunds, Helen Wiley Hardy, Harriette Walker, and Louisa Sandford.

"Lullaby", an old French carol, will be presented by Shirley Pierce, Gloria Pollard, Louise McCorkle, Sally Hutchinson, Lulie Jones, Hallie Hillsmon, Anne Covington, and Grace Ellerton.

Ace Tennis Stars Cancel Match Here

Expect To Appear Here In Spring

Tennis matches, in which Mary Ruth Hardwick, Dorothy Round Little, and Charles E. Hare were expected to give demonstrations, have been tentatively cancelled.

Charles Hare, manager of the trio, sent a telegram stating that their previously arranged schedule was too full to include S.T.C. in the Southern trip.

Mr. Hare suggested that he leave the possibility of arranging a match at S. T. C. until the players are in the South again, which in all probability will be next spring. He expressed his regret at not being able to rearrange his schedule to include Farmville.

Recently they have played matches at both William and Mary, Madison College, and University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

This trio is being sponsored by the Wilson Sporting Goods company and no admission is charged for the performances. All year they have been touring leading colleges and universities of the country to give these demonstrations of exhibition tennis matches.

Miss Hardwick toured the country with Don Budge and Alice Marble last year. Miss Little, the former Wimbledon champion, was ranked number one player in the world in 1936.

Mr. Hare is one of the world's greatest lefthanded players. He ranked second in singles in Great Britian from 1937 to 1939 and ranked number ten in the World's Singles in 1937.

Seniors Bow To Juniors 2-0; Freshmen Will Wear Rat Caps

Green and White triumphed over Red and White in the annual Color Rush held on Monday, December 1, by a score of 2 1-2 to 3 1-2. The event began promptly at 2 o'clock with the runners from each of the four classes racing from the end of the halls to the front of their respective buildings.

Runners Listed

In the three main buildings—Student, Main, and Library—running for the sophomore and freshman classes respectively were Jane Hobson against Hilah Lee Parks; Lee Foster against Connie Powell; and June Smith against Anne Pettis. From the Junior and Senior buildings the runners were Dot Johnson against Mary Frances Bowles; Nancy Dupuy against Anne Price ; and Dot Sprinkle against Frances Parham.

Buildings Wear Colors

Banners of both colors flared out as each winner reached the outside of the building. At the end of the race Green and White placed on Senior Building, Whitehouse, Student, and tied at Main with Red and White who placed their colors on Junior building and Library.

The entire spirit of the groups was displayed in song, laughter, and cheers with Red and White bowing to Green and White 2½ to 3½. This number of points goes, not for the color cup, but will be added to points given to hockey winners. The color having the larger number of points will be entitled to the ten points for the Color Cup.

As a lead up to the games, the Zeke Zippers and Sophomores Bandsters formed their class numerals, '42 and '44 with music to their class songs and colors. On the side line, the Green and White group pepped the starting players with cheers.

Juniors Triumph

The first game was played between the seniors and juniors, with the juniors scoring a one point lead at the end of the first half and another point in the second half, thus defeating the seniors 2-0.

The sophomores defeated the freshmen 2-0. Neither team scored in the first half. In the first part the sophomores scored one point. Later on a second point was made. Rat caps remain a part of the every day appearance of all freshmen as a result of the defeat.

The lineup for the games was:

Freshmen	Sophomores
R. W. Booth	Hobson
R. I. Witcher	Foster
C. F. Waits	Hardy
L. I. Nickels	Jones
L. W. Haddon	Verelle

The final game was played this afternoon between the junior and sophomore teams.

Orchesis Attends Dance Symposium At Chapel Hill

Ten S. T. C. Girls Give Demonstration For College Groups

Orchesis Dance club attended a dance symposium at Chapel Hill, N. C., on Saturday, November 20. This meeting was sponsored by the Woman's Athletic Association, Men's Monogram Club, and the Dance club of the University of North Carolina. Ann Bradshaw, president of S. T. C. Orchesis group, Louisa Sanford, Alice Seebert, Mary Hunter Edmunds, Helen Wiley Hardy, Betty Sexton, Harriette Walker, Hallie Hillsman, Shirley Pierce, and May Wertz, club accompanist, attended the conference accompanied by the director of Orchesis, Miss Emily Kauzlarich.

Colleges Represented

Attending the symposium were groups from Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C.; Duke University, Durham, N. C.; St. Mary's Junior College, Raleigh, N. C.; University of North Carolina, Greensboro, N. C.; University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.; and State Teachers College, Farmville, Virginia.

In the morning, all participants were divided into two groups and were placed into two classes, Elementary composition class under the direction of Bessie Schoenberg, instructor of dance at Briar Cliff College and Sarah Lawrence College in the winter, and Bennington School of Dance in the summer. The second class was the technique class directed by Elizabeth Waters, a former member of the Hanya Holm dance group.

Discussions Held

A round table discussion on "Dance in the College" and a tea were given in the afternoon. Leading the discussion group was Jean Brown'ee, chairman, dance instructor at Woman's College, U. N. C.; Bessie Schoenberg, Elizabeth Waters, Samuel Selden, associate director of the Carolina Playmakers; William Klenz, instructor of music at University of N. C.; Charles McCraw, student at U. N. C.; and Gene Neff, student at St. Mary's Junior College.

The evening program consisted of a workshop demonstration by the represented colleges. Farmville's group consisted of seven members of the Orchesis club accompanied by May Wertz at the piano. The group did three numbers. A theme and variation entitled "Today" with these variations following: "Rise of Power", "Air Raid", and "Hunger". The second number was an abstract entitled "Adoration". The third part was a Christian number entitled "Caroling."

Four Horses Added To Riding Academy

Four horses, which have recently been added to the stables, are now available for use at the riding academy under the instruction of Miss Stella Fox. The addition of these new horses, of which two are five-galted and two are hunters, will make possible facilities for training more girls in jumping and proper riding procedure.

Approximately twenty-five girls will be qualified to jump in early spring.

Archery Tournament Set For Dec. 4

Announcement was made this week concerning the fall Archery Tournament which will take place Thursday afternoon, December 4 at 3 o'clock.

This tournament which is a clash between Green and White and Red and White will give the final decision as to whom points toward the color cup will be given. Girls will compete individually rather than as respective class teams as was announced previously.

In order to participate, each girl must have at least eight practices.

Farmville Women Engaged In Various Types of Defense Work

"The women in Farmville are very active and interested in all defense work," stated an outstanding member of the Woman's Club. Their most important objective is a nutrition class to be started some time after Christmas and open to any woman in Farmville. In it, citizens will be taught the value of correct diets in the light of national defense. In addition, they plan to bring Mr. Hugh Pomeroy of the State Planning Board to speak on the general defense work in Virginia. This club in general carries out the defense program as decreed by the national Woman's Club.

A home nursing course is being offered at the hospital here by the state. Along this same line, the Red Cross is offering two first-aid courses.

In other fields, the Red Cross is also very active. As always it is making clothes for the needy, but additional articles are made to be sent to England. Ladies of the community for two days and one night per week volunteer to do this work. The annual Red Cross Roll Call proved quite successful; the ladies of our faculty gave very liberally to this cause.

On their way to maneuvers in the Carolinas, both groups of soldiers, who passed through here, were entertained by the Red Cross. The first group, not being quite as large as the second, were fed hot coffee and sandwiches. The second contingent was given a dance in the armory, at which S.T.C. girls helped out as dancing partners. Magazines were supplied to the soldiers to be taken away with them. But greatest of all, the showers were opened to them and they all partook of American's chief delight. These soldiers were all rather pathetic in their perfuse thanks of their appreciation of our southern hospitality.

Not only are the women of Farmville contributing to national defense, but also to world defense. For in the Bundles for Britian organization, the ladies are knitting. $1200 in actual money or its equivalent in clothing, has been sent to England from this town. The organization has received quite a number of letters from England for these donations. Girls here in the college have knitted for England, too. At any time, a girl who cares to do her bit, may secure wool and instructions from Bundles for Britian.

The novelist and dramatic critic professed writing, the theatre, conversation and foreign affairs to be his main interests. He said of himself that he was a man almost entirely without hobbies. Swimming is the only sport in which Mr. Morgan participates. He also has a particular interest in all things French.

In comparng the American college girl with her English contemporary, he said that they differed most in appearance. In the United States it is extraordinarily difficult to distinguish between the ages of 17 and 22.

"Over here," he said approaching the question from another angle, "they seem less shut-in and more ready to express themselves."

"Going back to the South," he said blowing the smoke from his cigarette slowly, "I liked the extreme beauty of the colonial style of Southern architecture, particularly that in Athens, Georgia. It is a combination of beauty and utility. The columns have such a look of dignity."

In his suggestions to aspiring writers the English writer said "Continually give to the reader the excitement and expectation of a form completing itself, so that when the book is done the reader has the satisfaction of realizing that the end was in the beginning."

He added that the same thing applies and is the justification of all verse forms such as the sonnet.

"That is all," he said, ducking his cigarette, and the interview was concluded.

Mr. Morgan will speak at Marion Wednesday, and Randolph Macon Woman's College Thursday. He expects to return to London in May.

STC Frosh Down Buckingham 16-13

S. T. C.'s freshman basketball team defeated Buckingham High School's team in the first of this season's games with a score of 16-13 on Thursday afternoon, Novmeber 27, in the gymnasium.

Freshmen who played forward were Dick Butterworth, Vera Womack, Nellie Shafer, Florence Pettit, Margaret Bear, Caroiyn Burwell, Mary Watts, Peggy Becker, Jean Smith, Evelyn Christian, Ella Carrington, Edith Lovins, Jane Moseley, and Marie Hedgecock.

Defending the goals were Betty Cross, Cecile Parr, Eleanor Wade, Nellie Varn, Bobbie Scott, Elizabeth Mast, and Margurite Sizemore.

Baird, Bowling, Maxey, Rozelle, Rainey, Garnet, Griffin, and Oliver composed the opposing team.

Nancy Naff Will Reign Over Mardi Gras

"Club 43" Promises Novel Entertainment

Show Features Old, New Performances; Opens Dec. 11 at 8:15

For the last time, "Club '43", owned and operated by the junior class, will open Thursday night, December 11 at 8:15 p. m.

Such stars as Jean Weller singing "Lament To Love" and "Darkness"; Carol Costello bringing "Will You Still Be Mine" and "Moonlight and Tears"; Betty Younberg portarying her role of the telephone operator; and the "Ladies of Note" singing "Two In Love" will highlight the features of the club.

Return Engagements Included

By popular demand Zazu Pitts, impersonated by Ann Ware, will appear for a return engagement with a new song presentation. The Songbirds of the Ozarks, known as Jean Hatton, Ellen Ebel, Sara Wade Owen, Nancye Allen, and Shirley Turner, will be on hand to give some of that "rippling rhythm."

"Dancing In the Dark" will co-star Betty Sexton and a newcomer, Betsy Davis. Ada Claire Snyder will play Tschaikowshy's "Concerto in B Flat Minor for piano."

Special Feature

Jane Cabell Sanford will present a sophisticated monologue adapted from one given by Miss Sheile Barrett on the New York stage. A new number will be featured by the dance team, Jac Hardy and Sarah Massie Goode.

Bringing the latest gossip from station S. T. C. will be Wa'ter Snitchel, better known as Frances Parham.

Who will be the master of ceremonies is the talk of the campus. Each year the master of ceremonies is unknown until the night of the production opening.

The first part of the program will be entirely new, while the second part will bring back the star performances of the other two productions. Between parts, there will be a fifteen minute intermission for dancing. Dancing will also be offered after the production.

English Honor Group Centers Discussion On Leonard Bacon

Following its course of study for this year, that of the Pulitizer Prize winners, members of Beore Eh Thorn discussed Thursday night, December 4, the life and poetry of Leonard Bacon, winner of the award for verse in 1941.

Betty Reid gave a talk on the life of Joseph Pulitzer, eminent American newspaper man and founder of the Pulitzer awards, which are given for outstanding contributions in the fields of literature and social service.

A summary of the life of Leonard Bacon was given by Nahrea Coleman, and Anne Williams read several of his poems.

Blair, Jones Added To Campus League

Ann Blair, Portsmouth, and Dody Jones, Radford, have recently been appointed freshmen representatives on the Campus League.

The campus league committee is composed of two members from each class and the campus league chairman. Mary Evelyn Pearsall is the chairman this year.

Christmas Concert To Be Presented Sunday Evening

Program Features Nationally Known Singer, Violinist

Sunday evening, December 14, the annual Christmas concert will be presented in the S. T. C. auditorium beginning at 8:30 p.m. The Choral Club, which is sponsoring the concert will bring together a festival of Christmas music with nationally known artists featuring the program.

To Feature Essin Sackson

Sonia Essin, contralto of New York City, and who is well known throughout the country, will be the chief attraction with David Sackson, violonist.

Mr. Sackson is now playing in Richmond.

The Senior A'Capella choir, Junior A'Capella choir, madrigal singers, Assembly choir, and Choral club will make up the program.

This Christmas festival of music will be a highlight of the college's Christmas program. People from many points in Virginia will attend.

Seats Not Reserved

Seats for this annual program will not be reserved and no tickets will be so'd. A silver offering will be received to help defray the cost of bringing the artists to the campus.

Doors will be opened at 7:30 p. m.

Concluding this music festival the Choral Club will sing "Brea' Forth O Beauteous Heaven' Light", Bach; and "O Come al Ye faithful", "The First Nowell" and "Hark the Herald Angel Sing".

NANCY NAFF

Ruth Parker Heads Frosh Production

At a meeting of the freshman class, Thursday night, December 4, Ruth Parker, of Portsmouth, was named general chairman of the freshman production to be held in February.

Since coming to S. T. C., Ruth has been an apprentice in the dramatic club and a member of the choral club and Y. W. C. A. ing commitee. She was also chairman of the freshman circus stunt.

Christmas Events Begin Monday

"O Holy Night", traditional Christmas pageant, will be presented Monday evening, December 15, at prayers by the music committee of the Y. W. C. A.

Following the pageant, the annual White Christmas will be observed. Heads of all school organizations dressed in white will go up on the stage and lay their gifts wrapped in white before the manger. These gifts will be distributed to needy people in the community.

Tuesday evening according to custom, Nancy Naff, president of student government, will tell the story "Why The Chimes Rang."

Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of next week will be devoted to vesper services in place of prayers.

Frances Lee Hawthorne, chairman of prayers committee; Nell Richards, chairman of social service committee; and Sarah Chambers, head of the music committee of the Y. W. C. A., are in charge of these Christmas programs this year.

College To Observe Founder's Day Program March 7

March 7 is the date set for Founder's Day, the annual ce'ebration of the founding of the college and also a time of general reunion of alumnae.

Boyd M. Coyner, who is chairman of the Founder's Day committee, has working with him Miss Olive T. Ier, Miss Emily Kauzerlrich, Miss Mary E. Peck, and Raymond French of the faculty; Miss Rachel Royall, of the home department, and Brookie Benton, Miggie Mish, Nancy Naff, and Lucy Turnbull, from the student body.

This committee has met and formulated plans which will be announced at a later date.

"Few Bombs Will Blow Island Off Map", Puerto Ricans Say

By JANE RUFFIN

"It would take but a few bombs to blow our is'and off the map", said one of the Puerto Rican girls at S. T. C. as she attempted to explain just why Puerto Rico is all in favor of the defense program. And, much as they like it here in the United States, "there's no place like home," the seven Puerto Ricans emphasized.

The seven Puerto Rican students here at Farmville State Teachers College hooted at the idea and were amazed when I suggested that anyone might object to the draft. It is hardly necessary there they said because every one is only too happy to vo'unteer. "We are willing to fight and to suffer much if it becomes necessary," they continued.

Understandable is their great patriotism for and love of the United States. "Belonging to Spain would have meant continual fighting for us because there is always a war when anyone in Spain gets mad," the girls added. They like the United States' policy because they have had so much peace since they have belonged to Uncle Sam. "Uncle Sam doesn't fight", one girl said, "unless he has a good reason—and he has a good reason now!" They support Roosevelt almost one hundred percent, and think "he is the best ever."

Puerto Rica, the girls kindly explained, is all important to the United States because it safeguards the invaluable Panama Canal. "The government realizes this and as part of the defense program some half dozen naval bases and numerous airports have been established in the vicinity. All the is'ands are overrun with so'diers, sailors, and marines, and just as in the United States, the magazines are filled with war stories and articles", the Puerto Ricans continued in their broken English.

"Quite naturally there are a few who desire Puerto Rica to be free and who are not in favor of the extensive defense movements, but I was told "that they can almost be counted on the fingers of one hand. The citizens of Puerto Rica understand the German warfare and realize fully what the situation would be if Hitler does get in America, and they want to fight to keep him where he belongs." Where that is they didn't say.

Five Seniors, One Junior One Sophomore, One Freshman Will Comprise Queen's Court

Nancy Naff, senior from Roanoke, was elected by the student body in a secret ballot last Wednesday, December 3, to reign as queen of Mardi Gras, which will be held on Saturday, February 14. Five seniors, one junior, one sophomore and one freshman will comprise the court.

Queen Is Government Head

Nancy, who is president of the Student Government association, has been in Mardi Gras court and May court for the past three years.

Anne Boswell, who is president of Cotillion club and vice-president of the Pan-Hellenic association, has been a member of May court for the past two years.

Newcomer to Court

Buff Gunter was chairman of the water carnival last year and is treasurer of the Riding club this year.

Allene Overbey has been editor of the Colonnade for the past two years, and was president of the V. I. P. A. this year. She was in May court last year.

Cottie Radspinner has been a member for the past three years of Mardi Gras and May courts She is art editor of the Colonnade.

Mary Lou Shannon has been in May court and Mardi Gras court for the past three years.

Dorothy Childress is chairman of the junior production this year. She is also chairman of the Y. W. C. A. membership committee.

Sara Hardy was assistant manager of varsity hockey this year, and was on the varsity team. She was in May court last year.

Mary Lou Trible is a freshman this year.

Parker Is Chairman

Elizabeth Ann Parker is general chairman of Mardi Gras, and has as her assistants Lucy Turnbull and Anne Ayers. Members of Pi Gamma Mu will decorate, arrange for orchestra, decide on suitability of costumes, and handle all business matters.

Other committees appointed by Elizabeth Ann and the chairman of each were decoration, Lillian German; costume, Jane Sanford; orchestra, Ann Ellett; and floor show, Agnes Patterson.

Mardi Gras which is usually given Tuesday has been changed to Saturday to enable more people to come. Only girls will dress in costumes this year, while the boys will dress formally. Prizes will be given for the prettiest costume and the most original costume. These prizes will be on display down town after Christmas. The crowning of the queen will be the feature of the evening, followed by an elaborate floor show.

This dance is sponsored each year by Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity.

Tradition, Hanging of Greens, Will Be Observed On Friday

By MARY PARRISH VICCELLIO

As a co-climax to the events that fill Friday will be the annual, traditional hanging of the greens. The decorative celebration is one of symbolic meaning, for, accompanied with impromptu carols and expressions of especial joy, it faithfully portrays our incipient Christmas spirit. A never to be forgotten and awe inspiring experience is to stand surrounded by green bedecked columns and feel the spirit of Christmas, represented in song.

It's something in which everybody has a part. The Freshman Commission members tie strings around the columns in the Rotunda. Strings are wound in and out of the staircase rai'ings all the way up to the top floor, as well as interwound in the rai'ings of second and third floor Rotunda. The green sprays that the Sophomore Commission provides are given to everybody to twine around the strings.

It's a real pleasure to smell the spicy out door freshness of the green transformers. Working side by side a feeling of cooperation unites all in a common surge of joy. There is a lot of talking, laughing, and singing while the busy fingers fly.

Ask anybody and she will tell you that she always enjoys the fun of hanging the greens, and that she can never forget the beauty of the Rotunda at this time.

Four S. T. C. Girls Gain Titles In Forensic Contest At Winthrop

Saturday night, December 6, Virginia Sedgley, Ann Randolph, Josephine Starling, and Alice Nichols, members of the debate club, returned from Winthrop College, Rock Hill, South Carolina where they debated various colleges in Eastern United States.

Ann Randolph placed in extemporaneous speaking, Virginia Sedgley in impromptu speaking, and Josephine Starling, Ann Nichols, and Ann Randolph in radio announcing.

Representing S. T. C. in the debate circle were Virginia Sedgley and Ann Randolph, affirmative team; and Josephine Starling and Alice Nichols, negative team.

The affirmative team debated the University of Florida, Duke, University of North Carolina, Winthrop, Carson Newman, High Point, Emory Henry, and Wake Forest.

Those colleges the negative team debated were the Citadel, Clemson, Lenoir Rhyne, Carson Newman, Emory and Henry, and Wingate.

As yet no word has been received concerning the final results in the debates. They will be announced in a future issue of the Rotunda.

Approaching Exams—

With the same inevitable and stealthy step of Christmas comes the final test of our knowledge—the long-heralded and not-too-welcomed exams. The time approaches when every girl hangs on her own line—either to sink, or, as the more clever girl does, pass the test with many laborious, well-prepared strokes of ingenuity.

By a simple art of replacement, conversations have turned examward, amusements been converted into the study of Vergil and the history of England, and time is being rationed so as to include a goodly share of retirement with the well-known "Genius at Work" or "Busy" sign adorning the portals of America's Future Teachers.

December 17 has been named as the initial date for their commencement. But the event is especially significant this year, more than any other previous one, for it presents itself as a bold challenge to us to do our very best, since, with fate pending as it now is, no predictions about our future status is reliable. Preparation and the ultimate straining of our opportunities to their very limits are wise precautions for any of us. A simple meditation on world affairs is ample proof of this.

If you fall into the category of those who got a late start, a proven suggestion is to buckle down and dig it out. A fair degree of consolation lies in the fact that the highlight of the week is climaxed by a not too future journey to a land of no overpowering mental exertion, where worries dissolve themselves into the happiness of being home, and grades never come until after the new year is well on its way.

Honor . . . It Is You . . .

You cannot say what honor is . . . It is not necessary to define it . . . It is enough to point to it . . . It is any of a number of things . . .

Honor is a student knowing within himself that he should not lie, cheat or steal . . . It is a personal, living principle that he strives to live, and its practice is its own reward . . .

Honor is the privilege of knowing that you can do and act as you please without your friends making false statements about you . . .

It is the creed of University life . . . It stands for the individual assumption of active policy of honesty and fairness, of gentlemanly conduct . . .

It is meeting your professors half-way, knowing them as individuals as well as teachers . . . It is having them believe in you . . .

It is greater than any course you take, bigger than the biggest BMOC, the smallest Joe College . . .

Honor is to think the truth, to act the truth . . . It is personal, living and warm and its practice is its own reward . . .

It is a new responsibility for most of you, a responsibility that everyone should tackle in a democratic form of government . . .

It is student government without administration government . . .. It is faith in man as God wanted it . . .

It is priceless, yet can be bought for nothing . . .

It is everything you do while a student here . . . Once it is your creed it will always be your creed . . .

Honor—it is you.—The Daily Tar Heel.

Gleanings

By BETTY PEERMAN

After hovering on the verge of war for weeks, the United States was suddenly attacked December 7 by the Japanese nation. And so the war has truly become a world war. What we have all said was inevitable, but was somehow thought would never happen, has happened. In the beginning we have been struck a terrific blow, but even with the bad there is some good.

First of all, the county is now united; it was not one week ago. Congress is now behind the President. Whatever criticisms have been made in the past are now forgotten, and we look to the present and the future. Labor strikes have been called off and we now see labor united behind the defense efforts. Public opinion is now united and everyone will back the every effort of the nation. All this has been accomplished—one stroke. The Japanese attack has brought the American nation to its feet.

Not only has the United States been unified, but the whole western hemisphere has finally come together. South America, Central America, and Mexico are right beside the United States. We realize now that to pull together is the only way to reach our goal. Everyone is conscious of the fact that we now have Germany in the Atlantic and Japan in the Pacific.

The American nation has on her hands a great responsibility. The last World War is still close enough for people to remember how the U. S. turned the tide of events. Now the smaller nations that are coming in on the side of Britain and America have all confidence in the might of the United States. No country can be stronger than its people, however. The older generation today has been through one war and knows the hardships that are ahead. The younger generation, however, has had a easy life and has no idea of what is ahead. There will be suffering; people close to us will be lost; and all the horrors of war will be a part of our life and not just front page news from Europe. We must realize that what happens now affects all of us, and in turn what we do will affect others. We must present a United front and go into this without panic but with determination.

Looking 'Em Over

About Senior Dance:

Senior dance was definitely the event of this past week—a great time was had by all concerned. The music was grand, the young ladies looked lovely, and the dates seemed to enjoy themselves, too. The gorgeous white evening dresses, to say nothing of other frocks on the underclassmen, created an atmosphere of a fashion show. One of the most attractive aspects of the whole dance was the originality of the theme used in the decorations. There were many nice features about the dance but one of the nicest was having so many old favorites back such as Bob Dabney, Billy Baxter, the "Davies' brothers", Liggie's Joe, and others. others.

The Dodson brothers proved to be quite the ones, too. Allene was having quite a time trying to keep track of Jack with Louisa and Miggie on his trail. Jane McGinnis was really beaming whfle she had Frank who, by the way, came all the way from Fort Riley. We were sorry to hear of Sexton's date disaster. We liked Kay Spencer's Archie Lillard of V. M. I. Do wish there had been more V. M. I. talent, though. We hear Anne Ellet had great confusion over her three prospective dates. Although Tech had some representatives we missed the usual large delegation. We will try to manage to have our dances at more convenient times just so Tech can come hereafter.

Dot Childress as usual made a big hit—this time the V.M.I. Commanders were favorably impressed and we do mean impressed. Jean Weller was doing all right with the band, too. Best remark of the evening was from Betsy Austin's date: "That's no line—that's a cable".

Reports Elsewhere:

There were other good times had this week end by those who were able to be at home and other interesting places. Parham thoroughly enjoyed herself with some new talent, namely a young lieutenant. Barbara White gave the people of Portsmouth a thrill when she returned for a short sojourn, to say nothing of the excitement she caused Eddie Sam. Why Does M. K. prefer Richmond to a date at Farmville?

FLASHES: Betty Youngberg has a bid to V. P. I. midwinters. Betty Boutchard is running a marriage bureau—for further details read your newspaper.

"CLUB '43" in its closing night will be very gay and for further gossip come and hear your favorite reporter Walter Snitchel when he gives great and glorious news.

And He Wonders Why We Don't Believe Him

Question of the Week

What Do You Think of the New Turn in the War Situation And Japan's Sudden Action?

Dot Gaul: We didn't want war and now that it's here we must do our best.

Rosalie Rogers: The war was forced on us. The United States could only declare war in light of Sunday's bombings.

Doris Lowe: The war situation worries me, and I believe Germany is back of Japan. Otherwise I don't believe Japan would have dared attack the United States since we can surely win a naval battle.

Evelyn Christian: I think that everyone should and that everyone will stand behind our president.

Miggie Mish: If we keep up our morale and are unified, we will surely win.

Gloria Polard: It was an outrageous onslaught on the United States.

Mary Evelyn Pearsall: I think it was a surprise to the general public, but how much did they know in Washington?

Texie Belle Felts: We will go through a hard time, but I am confident that right will triumph in the end.

Jane Johnson: I think Germany is behind every action of Japan and that Japan's war with the United States is exactly what she wants.

Mary Elizabeth Harvey: I don't think we know enough yet to form an intelligent opinion.

Jean Shadle: Though I had been hearing about Japan for a long time, it came as a surprise to me.

Sara Eschan: It was a great surprise. It's my first experience in a war and it doesn't seem possible yet.

Lillian Goddin: I just couldn't believe it when I heard the news report.

Jane Ford: I'm scared to death because I have two brothers in the army.

Nell Holloway: What I'm indignant about is the idea of Japan negotiating peace in Washington just as bombs were being dropped in Hawaii.

Winifred Wright: Like Dorothy Thompson I believe we have enough to win, but that it's going to take everything we have.

Lilly Bec Gray: It's going to cost a lot of money and men, and it means that we will need to sacrifice much, but I believe America is willing to pay the price!

Ida Coleman: Did you say "sudden action"?

"Much Ado About Nothing"

At Farmville S. T. C. We Have:

A Cole, but no pneumonia
Brooks, but no rivers
A Pool, but no lake
East and West, but no North and South
Hand, but no fingers
Mills, but no factories
A Moon, but no sun
A Sargeant, but no lieutenants
Walls, but no fences
Stone and Steele, but no wood
A Baron and a Knight, but no king
A Bishop, but no priest
Rains, but no snow

Wouldn't It Be Funny If:

Josephine were a hayfield instead of a Brumfield
Marion were an apple instead of an Orange
Bea were a mountain instead of a Hill
Hacky were less instead of Moore
Irma were a whole book instead of just a Page
Gwen were short instead of Long
Anne were the value instead of Price
Doris were high instead of Lowe
Ann were tigers instead of Lyons
Mary Ann were little instead of Bigg
Letha Thomas were sheds instead of Barnes
Betsy were a big car instead of an Austin
Phylis were square miles instead of Akers
Carolyn were whiskers instead of Beard
Mary and Frances were dancing instead of Bowling.

We Wonder:

If Lillian is a German
Why Ann's a Payne
Why Betty is Cross
Will Jane Lee Sink
Is Ellen really Royall
How Old is Martha
Is Helen very Savage
Is Betty in Love
Is Nancy Lee Hurt
Is Nell snowy White
How Greene is Catherine
Can Eleanor Wade
Can Elaine Bray
Does Anne put on Ayers
Can Amy Read
Can Jeff Rowe
Can Maggie Pray
If Margaret's Wright
If Aline's a Bass
Will May Winn

No men are allowed around here, but we have one Guy. We should have no trouble getting our work done with a Baker, a Butler, a Porter, a Taylor, a Sexton, a Hunter, and Cook here. From the Hazelwood and Hazelgrove we would certainly be able to get some hazelnuts.

Lastly, in keeping with the National Defense Issue, we have at Farmville S. T. C. a Gunn, a Cannon, and a Garrison.

First Aid—A Need

"First aid is the immediate, temporary treatment given in case of accident or of sudden illness before the services of a physician can be secured." Frequently persons are so situated that considerable time may elapse before medical aid may be secured in case of an accident. Therefore, it is for the individual's own good and the good of his associates that he have a thorough knowledge of first aid. The First Aid course which is being given on our campus each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday night from 7 o'clock until 10 o'clock is under the direction of Max Rote, of the American Red Cross national headquarters. In his class are taught the thorough training in knowledge and skill to apply first aid and the ability to instruct its teaching to others. Our country needs more people every day to turn to such phases as this; in doing so, they and their fellow neighbors might in some way be aided by their knowledge of such a vital subject.

Unusual Tennis Match for This Saturday

Holder of the Canadian National Table Tennis singles champion and holder of the New York State and New Jersey titles, Harry Cook, will meet Douglas Cartland, Southern, Middle Atlantic and Metropolitan titleholder, in an exhibition match Saturday night, December 15, in the Thomas Jefferson high school auditorium. This is one of the many matches scheduled between the top rate performers during their 10,000 mile tour of the Midwest, South, and East. At the completion of the show, Cartland will conduct a class in group instruction in the fundamentals of table tennis techniques. During the show, Cook will play a challenge game against any member in the audience while he sits in a chair. If contact is not kept with the chair, he must forfeit the point.

Red and White Emerges as Victor

First points toward the contest for the color cup have been awarded to the Red and White team because of their victory last Wednesday afternoon, December 10, when the sophomores defeated the Green and White junior team. This final hockey game brought to a close the hockey season at S. T. C. for this session.

Glances now turn to the winter sport of basketball which began practices this week. Much time and work must be put on the game in order to form a good team which we all anticipate this year. The several pre-season games which have been played by the freshmen have led an enthusiasm which will continue as the season gets under way. The gym from now on will be the scene of basketball practice beginning at 4 o'clock on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons.

It's really not much of a problem — deciding how to go home for the Holidays. Just follow the crowd — your crowd — and you're sure to find yourself aboard a Greyhound Super-Coach. Or if you'd rather sit down and figure the matter out carefully, logically, practically, you'll end up the same place — for the big saving on Greyhound's low round-trip fares is a pretty effective mind-maker-upper! Merry Christmas — Happy New Year!

4 Orchesis Members Present Program

Four members of the Orchesis Dance club presented a program for the Rotary club during their dinner at the Weyanoke Hotel last night.

The first number was a waltz by Shirley Cadmus. Following this was a military tap by Shirley Pierce and Hallie Hillsman. The third and final number was "Lullaby", as presented in the Sing program last Saturday night. Anne Bradshaw, Shirley Cadmus, Hallie Hillsman and Shirley Pierce presented this number.

Sophomores Romp Over Juniors 2-1; Victory Aids Color Cup Race

Excitement filled the stands on the athletic field last Wednesday afternoon, December 3, when the final hockey game of the year brought an end to the season. The 2-1 victory of the sophomores over the juniors gave Red and White ten points toward the Color Cup.

The sophomores battling for Red and White, and the juniors, contending for Green and White, met on the field for the final game which started with both teams battling in an attempt to cop the award of ten points. The ball went from end to end and back again with the mark finally hitting the goal for the sophomores. At the end of the first half the score stood 1-0.

Early in the second part the juniors romped down the field and through the sophomore line scoring a point for Green and White. Close concentration and fast moving players kept the small white ball constantly in motion. Rotating down the field it found its mark for another score for the Red and White team, the game ending with a victory of 2-1 for the Red and White sophomores.

The lineup for the game was:

Juniors	Sophomores
R. W.—Pilkinton	Hobson
R. I.—Ebel	Foster
C. F.—Parham	Hardy
L. I.—Owen	Jones
L. W.—Carr	Verelle
R. H.—Parrish	Crawford
C. H.—Hillsman	Elam
L. H.—Scale	Simmons
R. B.—Hazlegrove	Droste
L. B.—Rogers	Smith

Freshman Defeat Visiting Teams

Freshman basketball team stepped to the top last week when it defeated John Randolph High School, 19-0, and Burkeville High School with a score of 25-8.

Cecile Parr acted as captain when the team defeated John Randolph, and Betty Cross was the team's representative when it clashed with Burkeville.

Those playing in games were Marguerite Sizemore, Eleanor Varn, Eleanor Wade, Dick Butterworth, Edith Lovins, Florence Pettit, Nell Shafer, Peggy Becker, Margaret Bear, Poliyanna Booth, Caroline Burwell, Ella Carrington, Evelyn Christian, Vera Womack, Betty Cross, and Elizabeth Mast.

Orchesis' Program Rated "Excellent"

By LILLY BEC GRAY

Saturday night at Sing, Orchesis entertained the student body with a program of Christmas theme. The group was assisted by the Senior A'Capella Choir group who entered the darkened auditorium carrying candles.

Down the aisle, bearing candles and wearing blue dresses came the dancers, Ann Bradshaw, Betty Sexton, Mary Hunter Edmunds, Sally Hutchinson, Hallie Hillsman, Anne Covington, Helen Wiley Hardy, Shirley Pierce, Alice Seebert, Louisa Sanford, Shirley Cadmus, Harriette Walker, Louise McCorkle, Ruth Dugger, Gloria Pollard, Jean Strick, Grace Ellerton, Betsy Davis, and Lulie Jones to a "Processional" by Delibes-Asdanoff. The choir accompanied the dancers in this impressive beginning.

Christmas greeting provided the humorous note of the evening. Accompanied on the piano by May Wertz and the speaking voices of Mary Hunter Edmunds and Jean Strick, Louisia Sanford gave a whimsical performance of "Those Who Already Know What They Want"; Ruth Dugger, a wishy-washy of "Those Who Can't Make Up Their Minds"; and Betsy Davis, a confusing presentation of "Those Who Are In a Hurry With Huge Packages" and Helen Wiley Hardy, a prim and proper performance of "Those Who Always Know".

Costumes and special lighting effects plus the music combined to make this one of the most beautiful programs Orchesis has presented.

Fraternity Parties Beckon S.T.C. Girls

The main attraction of the week-end for S. T. C. girls proved to be the Senior Dance; but for some seasoned traveller's other colleges held an equal attraction.

Near by Hampden-Sydney college some few Farmville girls attended the parties given annually by the Alpha Tau chapter of Kappa Alpha fraternity. Dancing to the music of Hal Thurston and his orchestra Friday and Saturday nights were Helen Wiley Hardy, Jane Lee Hutchison, Esther Atkinson, Sara Hardy, Louise McCorkle, Hannah Lee Crawford, Peggy Bellus, and Jane Sanford.

Catherine Rucker, Nancy Hutter, and Charlotte Rose were in Blacksburg for the Military Ball Saturday night at V. P. I.

In Richmond the Kappa Psi dance at the Medical College was attended by Emma Louise Crowgey, and M. K. Ingham, Carol Costello, Jac Hardy, Frances Mallory, and Jane Lee Sink.

Directors

Directing and producing "Club 43", junior production, which will be presented Thursday night, December 11, are Dorothy Childress and Anne Ware.

Basketeers Practice For Coming Season

Announcement was made this week concerning general basketball practices which will begin Tuesday afternoon, December 9, and which will continue on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, December 10 and 11.

These practices are open to upperclassmen and freshmen and will act as a prerequisite to the selection of the varsity squad.

Informal Socials Highlight Calendar

Dr. MacArthur

Wednesday night, December 3, at 9 o'clock the Joan Circle of Alpha Kappa Gamma entertained informally in the Honors Room for Dr. Kathleen MacArthur, national Y. W. C. A. staff member.

Waitresses

Mrs. Turnbull, Mrs. Shelton, and Mrs. Province entertained for the waitresses at 10 o'clock Wednesday night, December 3. Among those serving were Nancy Naff, Anne Ayers, Sara Cline, and Jane Engleby.

ROTUNDA ROUND-UP

The Rotunda staff will hide pens and paper tonight at 8:30 p. m. and attend a Christmas party which will be given in the Student Lounge.

Jane Sanford is general chairman, with Mary Parrish Viccellio and Ella Banks Weathers in charge of entertainment; Shirley Pierce and Helen DeLong, decorations; and Nell Pritchett, Eleva Andrews and Gerry Beckner, refreshments.

Town Girls Entertain

An informal social for the Town girls was sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. last Wednesday evening at 9:30 p. m. in the Student Lounge.

Dr. J. L. Jarman, members of the Y. W. C. A. advisory board, and cabinet members were guests.

"Peace on Earth . . . Good Will Toward Men"

IT is, indeed, hard to imagine a pervasive, national peace in normal, so-called peace times; it is even harder now that the "infamy" of Japan and her cohorts are upon us. But there is an individual, resolved calm that each of us may internally possess—a determination that we are not struggling in vain, but, God aiding, are striving to maintain the freedom that our fathers and forefathers proudly bequeathed us.

Infamously ironical, it is too, that on the birthday of the world's greatest Peacemaker, the world should be at variance with the ideals of Him whom we honor at this Christmas tide. To many, this may seem to be an outright defiance of all the principles of love and kindness upon which human life has ever been based. It is we alone, though who can prove by example and attitude that peace and love must, above all things, dominate the heart of man.

We, too, must realize that in fighting for our cause we are inevitably expressing the silent, fatal if revealed, wish of men the world over, who because of tyranny or fear of an immediate, torturous death dare not make known their inmost desires. We are one people of one innate accord; they are many, trained in strategy, possession, and the supremacy of one man who indiscrimately rules as he sees fit. That it is our duty to keep the candle of freedom and democracy burning cannot escape the knowledge of the most insignificant of us.

So the peace most prominent, in our minds is the popular peace we trust will follow our present crisis. The peace we must strive to keep aflame is one by which our post-war, spiritually and materially—drained world may once again become illuminated. Only by the restoration of the standards that the greatest of all Peacemaker has set for us can we achieve our goal to any appreciable degree.

Peace on Earth—a way of life we knew and loved. Peace on earth—a dream we forgot when it was most vital to us.

Rosebro, Folk, and Read Will Attend YWCA Convention

National Assembly To Convene In Ohio Dec. 27—Jan. 3

The National Assembly of Student Christian Associations will be in session at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, from December 27 through January 3, 1942.

Frances Rosebro, president of the Y. W. C. A., Eleanor Folk, advisor of the Sophomore Commission, and Amy Read, chairman of the public affairs committee will represent S. T. C. at this assembly which will be attended by delegates from all Christian groups affiliated with the student division of the national Y. W. C. A. or Y. M. C. A. and from the National Intercollegiate Christian Council.

Dr. Z. Koo, of China, secretary of the World's Student Christian Federation, will be one of the speakers for the assembly. Dr. Koo spent several days at S. T. C. in 1939, and addressed the student body on several occasions under the auspices of the Sophomore Commission.

Special features of the week's program will include program laboratories designed to strengthen local Christian associations and to demonstrate the best methods of carrying out the purpose of the Christian association on the campus. The laboratories will include disp'ays of year-round programs from representative Y. W. C. A. associations.

Descriptions and illustrations of projects that Christian associations have worked on in the areas of Christian faith and social reconstruction will furnish an essential part of the convention.

Movies that will enrich the programs of local associations will be shown. Recreation will include folk dancing, group games, and other leisure time activities.

Visits State Colony Child Welfare Class

Miss Florence Stubbs and her class in child welfare visited the Lynchburg State Colony on Wednesday, December 10. They attended a lecture which was given by Dr. G. B. Arnold, superintendent.

This lecture was illustrated by the introduction of various individual's afflicted with different forms of feeble-mindedness. A short tour of inspection was made through the wards. The population of the colony is 1700.

Following the visit to the colony, the group upon the invitation of Dr. Belle Boone Beard, of the sociology department of Sweetbriar college, attended a tea at that college. The child welfare class from Sweetbriar college also visited the colony.

Those in the Farmville class are Buff Gunter, Hattie Moore, Elizabeth McCoy, Augusta Parks, Betty Peerman, Margie Rice, Carolyn Rouse, and Estelle Smith.

Upon returning to Farmville, the scene shifted to the home of Miss Stubbs, where a spaghetti supper was served to the group.

Brain Trusters To Stage Battle of Wits at S. T. C.

S. T. C. and Hampden-Sydney will meet for a second time in a Battle of Wits" program in the S. T. C. auditorium, the tentative date being February 17. This program will be sponsored by Alpha Kappa Gamma.

Following last year's procedure, the program will be broadcast through the facilities of Station WRNL, in Richmond, and will constitute a full half-hour program over that station. In order to facilitate broadcasting problems, recordings of the quiz may be made during its presentation, and re-broadcast the following night.

For the benefit of all students wishing to participate in the program this year, mimmeographed tests will be given during the first week after Christmas holidays. These tests will probably be followed by oral quizzes.

Hampden-Sydney still retains four of her "Five Smart Boys", Lex Allison being the only member of last year's team who is not on the campus this year. The group last year, better known as the "A-B-C-D-E Boys", consisted of Lex Allison, Bill Baker, Jim Cousar, Bill Dyer, and Keith Eubank.

Each year the chapter of Alpha Kappa Gamma, honorary leadership sorority at the State Teachers' College sponsors some beneficial community enterprise and this year, as last, the funds raised by this quiz program will go to the Farmville Community Hospital. Last year the quiz contest netted a total of one hundred and five dollars for the hospital.

Caroline Eason, president of the sorority, will serve as chairman of the committee for the future school-marms, but as yet no committee has been selected for Hampden-Sydney.

Engleby Lists Four Examination Rules

Jane Engleby, president of the House Council, announced the following rules that went into effect beginning last night, December 16, and will continue throughout the week of examinations. These rules are study hour from 7 o'clock until 10 o'clock; quiet will be observed promptly at 10:30; one call down received during exams means one week of campus to be served at the beginning of the winter quarter.

Students wanting to use Busy Signs after 10 o'clock must make their own since these are to be observed just as the official Busy Sign.

S. T. C. Professors Teach Defense Classes

Miss Lucille Jennings, Miss Mary Peck, Miss Carrie B. Taliaferro, and T. A. McCorkle have been teaching courses since Thanksgiving at S. T. C. in English, history, mathematics, and physics, respectively, for boys who have a high schol education and want to learn other courses that will enable them to pass entrance examinations for army aviation.

These courses have been given three times a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights, from 6:30 p. m. to 10:30 p. m. The average attendance so far has been eleven.

Dr. J. P. Wynne is in charge of these courses.

S. T. C. Dramatic Club to Play Santa Claus To Violet, British Adopted Baby

If you see an S. T. C. girl busily knitting on a tiny garment, don't jump to hasty conclusions. Very probably she isn't a beginner, getting her proportions mixed, but is a member of the Dramatic Club and is doing her part to clothe the child adopted by that organization. The response to this taking on of parental responsibilities has been very enthusiastic.

Last spring the club gave money to buy food, and especially milk for its foster child. Contributions in the form of clothes from members have exceeded expectations. Returning from Thanksgiving holidays some, who have little sisters of their own, brought "good, used clothes," designed for almost any kind of weather. Others made dresses; still others knitted sweaters, gloves, and caps.

In fact, when five year old Violet Burgess of England opens her box Christmas morn, she will find everything the well-dressed little lady should wear—from bedroom slippers to a red pocket-book. There will be toys and a stuffed stocking too. And, if by chance, some of her clothes are too sma'l or too large, among her nine sisters and brothers they shall surely find an owner.

That Violet will get the box intended for her is without doubt because her special number is stamped on it. Her box, along with many other similar boxes, will be sent to England by the "Save the Children Federation".

Last week the Dramatic Club mailed this box of remembrances. And in so doing, it sent its wish for a "Merry Christmas" and a "Happy New Year" to Violet and to the many other little tots in Britain who, this year, must look to America for the coming of their "Jolly Old Saint Nicholas". They know he will not forget them, even in war.

The following is a letter received by Margaret Wright, president of the Dramatic Club, from Miss K. Pittman Davis, of the adoptions department in "Save the Children Fund" in London:

"Thank you for your letter and birthday card for Violet Burgess. It only arrived yesterday, and her birthday is October 7th, but I am quite sure Violet will be just as happy to receive it.

Violet has a younger sister, Shirley, and eight other brothers and sisters. The eldest is 16, and they are a very united family. The father is dead, and the mother is a clean, hardworking woman and in spite of all her difficulties it is unusual to see her without a smile. There home is in Bristol, but in November of last year their house was bombed, and almost everything was lost. Violet is now evacuated to St. Albans, in Hertfordshire.

I have asked our administrator to tell Mrs. Burgess to write you a letter, telling you all about the little girl."

Holidays Begin December 20

Examinations on the fall quarter's work at S. T. C. started yesterday, December 17, and will continue until Saturday at noon, December 20, when the school officially closes for the Christmas holidays.

Students are expected to be back at school on January 5, the day the winter quarter begins.

Eastman Addresses State IRC Group

The two-day annual State convention of International Relations Club of Virginia Colleges, which convened this past Friday and Saturday, December 12 and 13 at the Richmond Professional Institute of the College of William and Mary, used as its theme "The Americas; the War and the Future," with Max Eastman, author and lecturer, delivering the main address at the banquet Saturday night.

Other speakers on the two-day program included J. Raymond Walsh, professor of economics at Williams College, and Willmore Kendall, assistant professor of political science at the University of Richmond. These two speakers conducted a debate on "American Postwar Economy."

Panel discussions were conducted by and included talks by representatives from the various Virginia colleges. Topics covered three general themes, "America and the War," "The Peace of Tomorrow" and "Our Neighbors to the South." Discussion leaders included Miss Lucy Turnbull, Farmville State Teachers College; Charles Hundley, Lynchburg College; Miss Jayne Maire, Westhampton College; Miss Ruth Henriquez, Miss Mary J. Hagan, Mary Baldwin College, and Miss Betty Brodie, Miss Margaret Tucker, and Miss Dorothy Burrill of the Richmond Professional Institute.

World Service Drive Of Students Begins Here January 13-16

Dr. D. D. Holt, who will open the World Student Service Fund drive at S. T. C. on January 13.

D. D. Holt Initiates Drive; S. T. C. Sets $500 As 1942 Goal

Amy Read, chairman of the public affairs committee, anounces that the World Student Service Fund Drive will begin on the S. T. C. campus January 13 and will continue through January 16.

Dr. D. D. Holt, pastor of the Centenary Methodist Church, Lynchburg, who is to be the Initial speaker, will address the students in chapel Tuesday, January 13. Other chapel speakers will include Miss Grace Moran, professor of geography, and Miss Leola Wheeler, head of speech department. Each night in prayers special speakers will be heard including Mrs. Frank Crawford, return missionary from China, and Miss Mary Finch, teacher of religious education.

Pledge Cards To Be Used

Pledge cards will be given out in chapel Tuesday, to those desiring them, and they are to be filled out and returned later in the day at the booth in the hall. This booth will be kept open Tuesday through Friday to take pledge cards and to receive contributions from those who do not wish to pledge. A person will be appointed on each hall to be in general charge of the drive on her hall.

Farmville S. T. C. has set its share of the $100,000 expected by the International W. S. S. F. this year at $500. Last year approximately $375 was received.

Is Relief Agency

The World Student Service Fund is a relief agency which provides only for students and professors who are victims of war. It is supported only by American students and not the general public. It provides, plus relief—education, reconciliation and reconstruction. It is non-sectarian and non-political and its work is not duplicated by any other agency.

Florence Thierry, in collaboration with Amy Read, is in charge of the drive. Carolyn Rouse is program chairman, Doris Alvis, hall chairman; Miggie Mish and Betty Reid have charge of the booth and posters, and Dorothy Sprinkle and Martha Hammock, publicity.

S. T. C. Celebrates Bill of Rights Day

Joining in a national program for the celebration of the sesquicentennial anniversary of the Bill of Rights, S. T. C. observed the occasion by presenting a special chapel program yesterday morning.

Frances Rosebro, president of the Y. W. C. A., told the history of the Bill of Rights. Frances emphasized the fact that the Bill of Rights was the spontaneous expression of free men working out for themselves and prosperity a set of ten amendments to their constitution.

Speaking on the significance of the Bill of Rights, Sara Cline, editor of The Rotunda, declared that "this brief document has bound the American people into a unity and solidarity which no foreign potentate or dictator has ever achieved".

Sara continued by saying that "today, against a background of totalitarian aggression, and looking out upon a world where freedom and justice have perished from many lands, the Bill of Rights takes on new lustre and importance."

"Each twenty-four hours", Sara said, "brings fresh manifestations of its significance in the daily lives of the American people."

The observance of the Bill of Rights this week is the result of a resolution from Congress, authorizing Franklin D. Roosevelt to issue a proclamation designating December 15 as Bill of Rights Day, calling upon the officials of the Government to display the flag of the United States on all Government buildings on that day, and inviting the people of the United States to observe the day with appropriate ceremonies and prayer.

Alumna Publishes Book in January

Mary A. Stephenson from Wakefield, a graduate of S. T. C. in 1921, will have released from the press in January Old Homes in Surry and Sussex.

This book, which will contain fifty half page illustrations and over one hundred homes sketched, is being sponsored by the Wakefield Woman's Club.

WEDNESDAY,, DECEMBER 17, 1941

In The Wind

Today, much is crumbling under the destruction of explosive bombs—not only old buildings, homes, and treasures, but also many of the old prejudices, traditions and ideas. We are hearing and thinking a great deal about reconstruction after this war. But there is an even greater problem confronting us now—the problems of reconstruction Today!

Our European College students are war victims. In Europe, 3,000,000 men, averaging less than twenty-five years of age, are in prisoners-of-war camps; in China, where there are only 45,000 students, two-fifths of these students are on relief and four-fifths of the university campuses have been destroyed or occupied.

It is evident, then, that young leadership, needed for the future, will stagnate unless help is given. Recognizing their perilous condition, the Y. W. C. A. will conduct a drive on our campus January 13-16 for the World Student Service Fund, the only organization which appeals solely to students and which give aid exclusively to students and professors who are victims of war. It is international, non-sectarian, and non-political, ministering to students wherever they are found—in China, in Europe, in prison camps, or in exile.

Too often we worry for fear that our supply of silk hose will be exhausted or that our new winter clothes will contain an inferior quality of material. But we don't have to wear flour or sugar sacks for clothing—this is being done in parts of Europe today. In the United States, even the very poorest of our students do not have to beg for scraps of food from the tables of peoples who are themselves underfed. Such is the plight of the Chinese students.

As college students, ours is the great task of rebuilding the morale and enlightening the minds of young Europeans who are now prisoners of war, forced into idleness; or homeless wanderers with no support, no future, except that which we can, and must, provide. It is doubly important that we give aid to them, even though it involves sacrifice on our part, for through our contributions to students abroad, we are voicing our faith in each other and faith in education; we are building the students who will be building the future. We must help to give them an equal chance and an equal hope.

The Lighthouse of Safety

The design on this year's Tuberculosis Christmas seal is especially impressive taking on an even greater interest when you know the story behind it.

Stephan Dohanos, a tuberculosis victim, wished to give to all people a message which would stimulate them to fight tuberculosis. He conceived the idea of a lighthouse as the symbol of tuberculosis work spreading a message to all people and leading the way to safety.

The Tuberculosis Lighthouse of safety is preventing many lives from running on the rocks. With gratitude in our hearts we should support the Christmas Seal Campaign, remaining ever mindful of its significance as a maintainer of life and restorer of health and happiness.

A Christmas Wish

By

JAMES ELLIOTT WALMSLEY

Through all the dark days since that glorious night on Judean hills, there has been one great Christmas wish—Peace. And today with the greatest war of all time calling for the greatest sacrifices—or shall we not accept our President's phraseology and say "not sacrifice but service"—with all this, we yet dare wish for this unhappy world "Peace on Earth to Men of Good Will".

We know that He who is called the Prince of Peace is also, and necessarily, the Mighty God, but at least for this season let us hope that Bethlehem may mean the cradle of the Christ-child rather than the home of war's great steel plant. We can wish for this stronghold of honest government, our own dear land, strong hearts for battle, balanced minds for crucial decisions, and pure hearts for moral judgments, for with what measure we meet, it shall be measured to us.

It is not too soon to plan for peace, for certain it is that 'somehow good will not be the final goal of ill' unless we make it so. Peace must rest on even justice; let us then wish for justice. Justice is not simply punishment for our wrong-doing enemies, as if there were ever a war with all the wrong on one side. We may say confidently that the balance of right is on our side, but, if we are right, it all the more behooves us to do right, to go more than half-way in seeing that never again shall Christmas joy and Christmas wishes mingle with hate and the urge to kill. The purpose of war is to bring on peace, not merely cessation of fighting, but peace which both sides of a conflict may accept as fair and just.

Victory must come in the end, even if long deferred and costly beyond present dreams. Fondly do we hope, fervently do we pray that victory will come to our side. Then comes our greatest test. Can we wish justice as intensely as we now wish victory? Can we sacrifice for peace as wholeheartedly as we sacrifice for victory? Can we say in the great assize of nations that we deserve victory because we have a peace that would delight the Prince of Peace?

Our dearest Christmas wish must be victory and peace on earth for a nation that deserves both victory and peace.

Looking 'Em Over

Time Stalks Backward:

For a few minutes, we will take you back via Floogie Boo, the Worry Bird (who wants to see where he has been) to that night of "Club '43"!

Doing their patriotic duty we see Ingle-Dingle, Ayers-dares, A. P., Betty Butch, Marty Roberts, and Naff entertaining the army.

And in those dark corners, how 'bout Joan Hadden and Judy. Dancing to the tune of "Green and White" with Horace was Helen Ott. Incidentally, Mr. Adams is covering the campus these days.

Tom T. Atkinson surrounded by numerous girls . . . only Jac was missing. (Afterthought: Someone ought to tell Miss Hardy that she doesn't know a good thing when she sees it).

That usual two-some, Garrison and Tynes were also present. Does Dot suspect the regularity of these two in seeing each other? Or is Garrison the unsuspecting one?

Buck "I Cover The Sports At H.-S." Crockett was escorting Charlotte Worsham . . . is this the beginning of a new affair—

To Our Favorite Man:

S. T. C.
Dec. 17, 1941

Dear Santa Claus,

Since we have been such good children lately (illustration: even going in the right post office door) could you send us just a few things that we really want and need?

Puleeeeaaaase send Jane Sanford a man! Give Nell, E. A., Mim, Polly, Lillian, Betsy, Dot, Gene Hardy, Caroline, Gerry, and all the others a real good grade on their teachings ! ! ! We'd just love to pass all our exams—so use your influence! Could you maybe put in a brand new automobile for "B" Reid—Myrtle is not in "A-1" condition these days. It would be fine, Santa, if you could get a football helmet for Dot, and you know who she'd want in it.

Send Sherie and Nancy Hughes a secretary to keep their dates straight and puleeze send Jiminy Cricket (our conscience) to keep those mischievous Freshmen off "campus"! !

Also, Dear Santa, we would just love for you to whisper to Dr. Jarman to let us have a few extra days off for Christmas! And then if that were so, we would like for you to whisper to Uncle Sam to please let the boys come home!

Hope this isn't asking too much Santa. Merry Christmas.

Your S. T. C. Girls
Love,

And to you all our Best Wishes for a successful Exam week and a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year——

P. S. Have a big time so we can write about it when you come back ! ! !

Stale news or new news, it makes no difference now! Dot Darracott not only charmed a certain Virginia gentleman at the Senior Dance but received a bid to Midwinters as well. Hannah Lee loves him so good—or she was putting on the "Big Sister" act the other night at "Club 43". Try to name one freshman girl who did not fall in love with Sampson's date for Senior dance. . . Latane's going to V. M. I. is troubling more than one girl.

About the War

The war declaration has certainly stirred up the hearts of the Farmville girls. It is reported that come Christmas, "Mrs." will be joined to several names. Incidentally, the outlook for Christmas isn't too encouraging with all the young men in camp. . especially the O. A. O. Jane Engleby was heard saying that if Texas doesn't come to her, she will go to Texas. Nancy "I want to Get Married" Naff has adopted Streit's idea, "Marriage Now." Get it?

Conversations these days concern what and where we'll be next year. Anne "You Can Quote Me" Ayers was heard saying, " I hope next year this time that I will be married and washing dishes for my husband."

Question of the Week

To the Faculty: Where Are You Going to Spend Your Christmas Vacation?

Miss Craddock: I had reservations in New York, but in light of last Sunday's episode, I don't think I will go further than Richmond.

Miss Peck: I'm going home—to Fincastle.

Mr. Grainger: There's no place like home and that's where I'm staying. We are having a sort of family reunion this Christmas.

Miss Hiner: Part of Christmas I'll spend with my sister in Staunton and Millboro, Virginia.

Miss Rice: I'll spend this Christmas in Richmond.

Mr. Myers: Christmas we will spend with my wife's people in Pittsburgh. Then for New Year's we are going to my home in Buffalo to scare some ducks south for Charlie French.

Mr. French: And I'm going home to Caileo to shoot those ducks!

Miss Burger: I'm spending Christmas right here in Farmville.

Mr. Johnson: I'll be in Farmville part of the time, but then I'm going over on the Rappohannock River to fish.

Mr. Coyner: I guess I'll stay here in Farmville. With the world affairs as they are, it seems the wise plan.

Mr. Holton: Christmas will find me still in Farmville.

Miss Jennings: I had planned to go to New Orleans, but after the turn in the war situation, I just don't know. If they want me to stay here and help with teaching the to-be-soldiers, I'll be glad to.

Miss Foster: I'm staying in Farmville.

Miss Bedford—Christmas will find me in Columbia, Missouri.

Miss Nichols—I'm going to Kankatee, Illinois, and coming back through Indianapolis, Indiana for the Modern Language meeting there.

Miss Stevens—I'm spending the Christmas in West Virginia.

Miss Barlowe—I'm going to New York for Christmas.

Miss Carrie Taliaferro—I'm going to spend Christmas in Orange and Washington.

Miss Tucker—I'm going to South Carolina for Christmas.

Miss Haynes — I'm going to Tennessee for the holidays.

Dr. Simkins — Christmas, I'm planning to spend in Columbia, South Carolina and in Richmond, Virginia.

Miss Mary White Cox—Part of the Christmas vacation I am going to spend with my sister in Manassas, and part in Alexandria.

Dr. Wamsley—I'm dividing the Christmas vacation between Farmville, Richmond, and Baltimore.

Shall We Draft Our Women?

PRO

The modern woman is not handicapped by a background of domesticity. She has proved her mental abilities in the business world to be equal if not superior to that of man.

She has become independent, and is no longer tied by the apron strings to home. Advancement in industry has made housework a much shorter and easier job than in previous generations, and therefore leaves time for the woman to apply her abundant mental facilities in a world that can well put them to use.

Under present conditions she is given an opportunity to prove her worth. Why should she not be given a chance to feel a working part of national defense, to harness her efforts in a direction that would not only be an asset to her nation, but that would build up morale by creating the marvelous feeling of achievement received for something she feels to be worth while?

That's covering the question from the spiritual side.

CON

When every American is trying to do his bit and his best to help in the emergency, we must all take the places for which we are best fitted. Women, too, must seriously consider where they can do the most for national defense.

Arguments for drafting them are based on the assumptions that America needs their labor, needs to have them trained in military routine, and needs them more for those two reasons than any other.

Although appealing on sight, and appearing to offer to women the chance to do the most for their country, proposals to draft women are faulty because their services could be put to no useful task. They are certainly not needed in the army: it will be a long war before we exhaust our resources of manpower. Nor would training in precise military drill formations be of any value in the event of an invasion.

The labor of women of this country in the fields and at difficult factory jobs is not needed now nor will it be for a long time.

Tennis Aces in Richmond Februaury 8

The country's two top-ranking tennis amateurs, until they turned pro last month—Bobby Riggs and Frankie Kovacs along with Fred Perry and Donald Budge, veterans pros—will meet in Richmond on February 8 for one of professional tennis' biggest shows. The quartet of stars will play approximately 80 matches, opening in Madison Square Garden in New York the night of December 26. The first ten matches will be a round robin, with players being ranked thereafter and each player holding his ranking until beaten. The No. 1 player will receive thirty-six percent of the jack pot which is $100,000. The second getting twenty-eight per cent, the third man twenty-one percent, and fourth man fifteen percent. Budge and Perry are two of the greatest players of all times, each being a Davis cup star. Both of these events are expected to draw crowds who find tennis a feature.

"A Bull's-Eye"

Red and White hit another bull's-eye on the target of color cup points when contestants for Green and White met against those for Red and White in the fall bi-annual archery tournament last Tuesday, December 9. The game was played on the new archery meadow which has been secured from the old tennis court location. Five points for this victory will be added to the score which makes the color cup points grow.

New Ribbons

And speaking of the cup, did all of you notice those long red and white ribbons which have just been replaced on it? The A. A. bought new streamers of these colors, signifying last year's color winner. During the year all sports in the clash will submit points and at the end of the school season the victorious color will be awarded the years title of the cup and those colors, whether they be Red and White or Green and White, will adorn the cup on the mantel in the Rotunda.

Basketeers "Ready-up"

General basketball practice, which includes both freshman and upperclassmen, has been in full force this past week. Regular workouts will continue after the Christmas holidays and a varsity squad will be selected later on in the season. Freshmen are still on the "up" in games, and may this continue! Those few games which they have played build them up to a better status for the season. Manager of the freshman team is Jean Carr. A regular captain has not been selected, but one is appointed for each game.

Orchesis Tours Again

Orchesis, dance club of the school, attended a dance program at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, where Martha Graham and her group were featured as guest artists on Monday night, December 15. This is the second program this year that the dance club has attended, and plans are being made for the members to see several more. Martha Grahams' tour will take her on to Washington and Baltimore where she will continue performance during the Christmas holidays.

Novel Recreation Program

A year's experiment with a student recreation program that encourages interest in sports and other activities which can be enjoyed throughout life has proved so successful that Brown University officials are continuing the program during 1941-42.

The Brown plan is in effect the elective system applied in the broadest sense to all kinds of recreational interests which give students fresh air, exercise and healthful enjoyment. It allows wide freedom in permitting each student to choose the kind of recreation he most wants.

From the beginning to the end of the college year there are 38 different activities in which freshmen, the only class required to participate, can meet their recreation requirement. These include, in addition to regular intramural and intercollegiate teams, such recreations as golf, sailing, rifle-practice, skiing, hiking and life-saving. Credit is also given for Naval ROTC drill.

Prof. Leslie E. Swain of the Department of Physical Education, who is in charge of the program, comments: "There is no reason why a student cannot take his exercise when it is convenient, and enter into the kind of sports he likes the most. We are more interested in developing a healthy interest in recreation than in insisting upon proficiency in any one sport."

Athletic Experience Qualifiies Rote As Red Cross Field Representatives

By LILLY BEC GRAY

Max Rote, field representative from the American Red Cross national headquarters in Washington, arrived at Farmville on December 1. While here, Mr. Rote is teaching three classes a week in First Aid for Instructors and giving tests in Life Saving and Water Safety for the swimming instructor's course.

During an interview Saturday evening, Mr. Rote said, when asked to reveal some of his past athletic experiences, "As a student at Central High School in Washington, I was a member of the swimming team for four years, and later when at George Washington University I swam on the team and was captain for three years. I held the D. C. A. U. record at 50 yards, 100 yards, and 220 yards freestyle; placed second in intercollegiate championship on the 100 yards freestyle". Mr. Rote holds the honor of never having been beaten on the 100 yard freestyle.

His work in Washington has been in connection with the Boys Club of Washington, the playground department, and with the American Red Cross. His work with the latter carries him to the many different Red Cross chapters over Virginia where he gives instruction in first aid and in swimming.

Mr. Rote graduated from George Washington University in 1936 with an A. B. Degree in Business Administration. "I returned in 1938 to work for my masters in physical education, which, incidentially, I am still working for", Mr. Rote added. At National Aquatic School, Camp Letts, in Edgewater, Maryland, he was a student in 1939 and a member of the faculty in 1940. He has been employed at his present work for the past year.

Red and White Captures First Place In Archery

Red and White came out as the winner on Tuesday afternoon, December 9, when Evelyn Cannon, sophomore, captured top honors in the archery tournament with a total score of 184 points. Margaret Kitchin, junior, with 177 points was the runner-up in the battle which gave Red and White five points toward the color cup.

Others participating and giving staunch competition were Sara Jeffreys with a score of 126, Mary Katherine Zehmer with 132 points, Frances Rosebro with 122 points, Nell Hurt with a score of 89, Ellen Ebel with 83 points, and Nell White with 82 points.

Another archery tournament will be staged in the Spring, the results of which will go toward the color cup.

Mary Katherine Zehmer, assisted by Sara Jeffreys, had charge of the tournament.

Attention Riding Clubbers

All riding students are requested to report to the Riding Club room immediately after they return from the Christmas holidays with their class schedules for the Winter and Spring quarters. Girls will be grouped to practice for the exhibition which will be held in the Spring quarter and practices will remain the same for each quarter. Payment of riding fees will be due at that time.

Anyone interested in joining the riding classes for the winter are requested to phone Miss Cox between 6:30 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. at 430-J before the vacation so that plans can be made for the additions.

1,000 People See Champion Typist Here

Before an audience of 1,000 which filled the S. T. C. Auditorium Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, made up of S. T. C. girls, Farmville high school students and others, George L. Hossfield, ten-times winner of the world's professional typewriting championship, gave a demonstration of his typewriting skill.

Mr. Hossfield, of West Englewood, N. J., was brought here by the S. T. C. commercial department, which now has about 300 students.

During his demonstration he emphasized finger rhythm on the keyboard, proper posture, concentration, and the elimination of waste motion.

Course In Water Safety Offered

Mr. Max Rote, American Red Cross Instructor, who is on S. T. C. campus now, is also instructing a Water Safety Instruction course on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7:00 until 10:00 at the pool. He is preparing those girls who are taking the course in order that they may be qualified to teach senior and junior life saving.

The following girls taking this course are Dot Gaul, Grace Ellerton, Ruth Dugger, Dot Darracott, Mildred Droste, Gloria Pollard, Nellie Vain and Miss Elizabeth Burger.

These girls have already had fifteen hours of preliminary practice before Mr. Rote arrived. He teaches all phases in the swimming course, consisting of beginning, intermediate, and advanced senior levels.

Part of this course is theory with lectures. Mr. Rote is discussing with the girls teaching methods, practicing skills in water, different ways to approach a drowning victim, how to break from the victim's grip, how to teach, how to organize classes throughout the country, and how to make different formations in the water.

Sedgley Replaces Rice As Debate Club Head

Virginia Sedgley, from Bristol, Virginia, is the newly-elected president of the Debate Club. Virginia replaces Margie Rice, senior.

Being a transfer student from Illinois State Teachers College, Virginia has had experience in debating and is a member of Pi Kappa Delta, national honorary debate society.

Virginia was a member of the team who recently went to Winthrop College, Rock Hill, South Carolina to participate in a tournament.

In addition to choosing a new president at the meeting last Tuesday, December 9, the club elected Kyle Barnhill, freshman, to membership.

Winner

Dugger Places First In Tennis Tourney

Final matches of the tennis tournament ended Friday afternoon, December 5, with Ruth Dugger placing first. Runner ups were Ophelia Whittle, Helen Wilson, Sugar Baker, Frances Parham, Anne Payne, Edith Lovins, and Vera Womack.

In early spring an elimination tournament will be sponsored by the Athletic Association to determine the champion of the school.

At a meeting of the junior class, held Thursday night, December 11, it was voted that each member of the class knit a garment for the Red Cross. Also the class plans to sponsor a contribution box for the Red Cross. This box will be placed on the table in the hall after Christmas.

First Aid Course Set For Winter, Spring Quarters

Red Cross First Aid courses will be given at S. T. C. in the winter and spring quarters.

The thirty hour combined standard and advanced course will be given at 10:05 Monday, Wednesday and Friday in the winter quarter, and at 1:50 to 3:10 Tuesday and Thursday in the winter and spring quarters. Two college credit hours plus Red Cross Certificates will be given for this course. The combined courses also qualifies the students for admission to the 15 hour Instructor's course. Only a Red Cross field representative can give the Instructors course.

The 20 hour standard course will be offered without college credit two nights a week. Nancy Dupuy will teach this course. A Red Cross certificate will be given at the conclusion of this course.

Any college student is eligible for these courses. Girls interested in these classes are requested to sign up in health education class room before Christmas.

Seven Receive Badges For Swimming Course

Final tests which completed the National Red Cross Swimming Instructor's course were given Friday afternoon, December 12, by Max Rote, National Red Cross field instructor.

Those who received badges were Miss Elizabeth Burger, Ruth Dugger, Mildred Droste, Dorothy Gaul, Gloria Pollard, Catherine May and Horace Adams.

Banquets, Parties, Teas Fill S. T. C. Holiday Calendar

A round of pre-holiday parties, teas, and banquets have ushered in the Christmas social season for S. T. C. girls during the past week. Highlighting the pre-season gaiety was the closing night of "Club 43" Thursday night, December 11, at which members, guests, and patrons were entertained in the rec with a floor show and dancing sponsored by the junior class.

Sororities and various other organizations on the campus have also entertained during the past week.

Christmas Cheer-ers

Wednesday night at 8:30 p. m. the Rotunda staff was entertained in the Student Building lounge. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Holton, Sara Cline, editor-in-chief of the Rotunda; Mary Lilly Purdum, managing editor; Texie Belle Felts, business manager, and Mr. Holton were given presents, gifts from the staff members.

Jane Sanford was general chairman, assisted by Mary Parrish Vicellio and Ella Banks Weathers in charge of entertainment; Helen DeLong and Shirley Pierce, decorations; and Nell Pritchett, Elva Andrews, and Gerry Beckner, refreshments.

Class-y Christmas

Miss Rachel Royall entertained the members of the senior class in the Senior Building rec on Wednesday night at 10 o'clock. Miss Royall is the senior class-man and was assisted by the officers of the class in entertaining.

At 10 o'clock in the main rec the freshman class members were given a party by Mr. Charlie French, freshman classman.

"All Through the House"

Preceding the Hanging of the Green ceremony, the annual formal Christmas banquet was given at 6 o'clock in the dining hall Friday night, December 12. Guests included, besides the dormitory students, members of the faculty and home department.

Peggy Bellus sang several solos accompanied by Sarah Chambers at the piano after which there was group singing of Christmas carols, led by Mary Katherine Zehmer and Virginia Barksdale.

Mrs. Shelton and Mrs. Turnbull were presented gifts from the Student Council.

Ye Olde Tea Tradition

Miss Pauline Camper entertained the Alphas of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority at a tea on Saturday afternoon, December 13 from 4 o'clock until 6 o'clock in the Senior Building reception room. Patrons of the sorority and members of the faculty, home department, and administration were included among the guests.

Miss Mary White Cox poured tea. Allene Overbey, Eleanor Folk, Louisa Sanford, Harriet Scott, and Jane Sanford, officers of the chapter, and Louise McCorkle, Grace Hutcheson, Gay Ward Brown, and Jane Engleby assisted in receiving and serving.

Snack-Wacky

Members of Gamma Theta sorority and Miss Florence Stubbs, sorority advisor, were guests at a Christmas party in the chapter room Saturday night at 10 o'clock. Miggie Mish was in charge of refreshments and entertainment.

At the same time the members of Alpha Sigma Tau sorority previewed Christmas in their chapter room, with the chapter officers in charge.

Swank Soup

Mu Omega sorority members and Miss Leola Wheeler, sorority advisor, greeted Betty Reid, pinch-hitting for Santa Claus, at a novel supper party served in the chapter room Sunday night, December 14, at 5:30 p. m. Brookie Benton was in charge of arrangements for the party.

"Deck the Halls . . ."

Actives and pledges of Alpha Sigma Alpha and Miss Grace Moran were guests at a dinner in the chapter room Sunday night at 6 o'clock. Margaret Webster and Jean Hatton were hostesses, assisted by the officers of the chapter.

Pine and Holly

The members of Pi Kappa Sigma sorority were entertained in the chapter room at a dinner party Sunday night at 5:30 o'clock.

Farmville Will "Stand Alone" In Annual Mardi Gras Celebration

Farmville S. T. C. will stand alone in its celebration of the Mardi Gras festival on February 14. The present world conflict rang down the curtain on the world-famed New Orleans Mardi Gras and carnival season for 1942 and put into mothballs more than a million dollars worth of frivolity and tinsel that characterizes the celebration.

Canceled by official decree of the carnival groups themselves were a record list of 39 balls—some costing up to $50,000—and night outdoor parades held when the abandon of carnival reaches its zenith before the advent of Lent.

Mardi Gras in 1942 falls on February 17, and the elaborate and costly social season that precedes it, during which the year's debutantes make their bow already was in full swing with invitations issued for the first balls during the Christmas season.

Announcement Secret

The official announcement was surrounded with the full protection of the secrecy that cloaks identity and membership of all carnival groups.

Thus the flare of war throughout the world dims the nearly century-old flare of Mardi Gras for the third time. In 1862 and until peace came in 1865 Mardi Gras officially was blacked out in Union-occupied New Orleans, and again in 1918 and 1919 during the first World War.

The first carnival celebrations date back to 1857 but carnival of late years has reached its greatest proportions, attracting hundreds of thousands of tourists each season.

Floats, costumes, dresses and the gay paraphenalia of the forthcoming celebration all had been ordered and were ready. Drapes were drawn over the floats yesterday, and soon the costumes will be shipped back to warehouses waiting a more happy, carefree day than this.

Mary Diehl Betrothed To William Doering

The engagement of Miss Mary Frederika Diehl, of Farmville, to William Fries Doering, of Nashville, Tenn., and Washington, D. C., was announced this week by Mrs. Frederick Diehl. The wedding will take place the latter part of December.

Miss Diehl is a graduate of Farmville State Teachers College and received her masters degree from George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn. She is a member of Pi Kappa Sigma sorority and Pi Gamma Mu Honorary Fraternity.

Mr. Doering is a graduate of Washington College, Chestertown, Md., and for several years attended the Graduate School of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn. He is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity and Omricon Delta Kappa honorary fraternity. He is an economist with the United State Department of Agriculture in Washington, D. C.

Ars Gratia Artis

Art Students Make Practical Gifts

"Ars Gratia Artis"—art for the sake of art—is the slogan of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, but the art students at S. T. C. are finding more practical uses for art.

For sometime the freshman art majors and the home economics students have been weaving beautiful flags from wool and have reproduced examples of the weaving of different countries, people, and times which their research in this field has revealed to them. They are studying pottery with the same view, making vases and bowls.

The class in advanced design has completed their Christmas table decorations and these decorations were on display yesterday, Tuesday, December 16. This year the class has also designed and printed material. The freshman art students designed and printed Christmas wrapping paper. The home economics majors have printed originally designed Christmas cards in blue, green, red, and brown.

The sophomores in elementary education have made and illustrated animals, flowers, and trees for small children. They have also made Indian pottery.

In the training school this art study is passed on to the pupil's there. The fourth and fifth grades painted the two stained g'ass windows in the school. Drawn and painted on oiled paper by the pupils, their windows show the nativity scenes, including the wise men, the shepherds, with

Dr. Walmsley Talks To Freshman Y Club

"Loyalty and Your School" was the title of Dr. James Elliott Walmsley's talk to the Freshman Y. W. C. A. Club last Wednesday night at 9:30 p. m. in the Y. W. C. A. Lounge.

Julia Glenn, chairman of the Freshman Commission, presided at the meeting.

The Freshman Commission became the official head of the club with last Wednesday's meeting.

All the rooms in the Training School are dressed for Christmas in decorations of the childrens' making. The town in the third ...ade room has put on its winter coat of snow and all the trees are colorfully clad. The children are still busy making Christmas presents for their mothers and fathers.

In the hall the fifth grade has an exhibit not connected with Christmas, but nevertheless very interesting. By models of boats, airplanes and land vehicles including skils, reindeer, horses, automobiles, and buses, they have traced the history of transportation. Also in the hall is a mural by the sixth grade showing various athletic activities.

Volume XXI FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA, WEDNESDAY, JAN. 14, 1942 NO. 12

A New Years Greeting and a Challenge

By MARY E. PECK
President of the Farmville Alumnae Association

It is good to see your happy faces again! Those of us who have experienced two wars are glad that you have not been concerned, except academically, with causes and results of national conflicts. We need cheer and hope now, and we need your smiles; for, really, we must finish this war in a rational way, and it may take all we have to do it.

We realize that distant horizons are dimmed in the capitals of the contending nations, and we know that our men are going to battle inspirited by a battle-cry that sounds strangely familiar to us veterans—"Remember Pearl Harbor!"—a cry that may help win the war, but not the peace, if we may judge by past experiences. Somewhere, somebody must do some reflective thinking and some thoughtful planning, if civilization is to be saved this time from total ruin. The scene is distressing, and we get little encouragement by radio or by press.

But you who are privileged to return to college after Christmas holidays are peculiarly blest. To you is given time, place, and opportunity to find out what this war is about, and to decide what the aims of the democracies should be as the struggle against Germans, Japanese, and Italians goes on. To reach a sane conclusion will demand more reading and more thought than any instructor can assign you for study, but the truth will make you intellectually free, and it is plainly up to you to seek facts before the reckoning day arrives.

This seeking for truth takes time and real honest-to-goodness effort, and you will deny yourself some frivolities that have seemed essential to your happiness, but a change of emphasis from things that give momentary pleasure to values that are eternal may bring more content as the days go by. Jesus and Tiberius Caesar were contemporaries; but what a difference there was in their estimates of values in the Roman world! Napoleon Bonaparte and Beethoven were contemporaries, too, but one is a mere name in history now, while the other lives on in the soul-stirring music he produced.

Are we sure that we know what values we are fighting to preserve in our democracy? Let us not deal in platitudes; let us be definite in our selection of the things that are most worth while, so that the peace that ends this war may be lasting.

12 Month Plan Is Not Novel At Farmville STC

In line with the demands of national defense many colleges are now announcing operation for twelve months in the year, thus permitting students to be graduated in three instead of four years. At Farmville State Teachers college this arrangement is not new as for the past twenty years, since 1922 to be exact, that institution has operated for all four quarters of the year, and a number of students have taken advantage of the opportunity to complete their college courses in three years.

In the first full summer quarter of 1922 ther were 717 students enrolled for the term at Farmville. The summer quarter at Farmville had its beginning in 1907 when a four-weeks term was held. In 1916 the term was extended to six weeks, and in 1922 the complete quarter's work was offered and this arrangement has continued

Thus for a number of years Farmville has been preparing for the demands that are now being made upon institutions of higher learning.

Commercial Dance Set for January 24

Corvin and Hardy Are Co-Chairmen

Marie Thompson, president, has announced committees for the Commercial club dance to be given Saturday night, January 24, from 8:30 p. m. to 12 o'clock. Mildred Corvin, secretary of the club, has been named as general chairman of the dance committee, and Jacqueline Hardy has been appointed as her co-chairman.

The decoration committee will be headed by Nelle White as chairman. Navy blue and gold, club colors, have been selected for the color scheme. Tickets will be on sale to students January 16, under the direction of Lucille Wilkerson, chairman of the ticket committee.

Other committees and chairmen include Katherine Dunton and Mildred Bowen, refreshment chairmen; Katherine Hawthorne, floor chairmen; Kitty Parish, publicity; Anne Rogers, invitations; and Mildred Corvin, music.

Tickets will be 55c stage or $1.10 per couple. A limited number are available; therefore, those planning to attend have been advised to purchase tickets early.

Batik Exhibition At S.T.C. Library From Jan. 8 to 17

From Jan. 8 to Jan. 17, the S. T. C. Department of Fine Arts is exhibiting free to anyone interested, a collection of hand dyed batik panels in the College Library Browsing Room.

The collection was executed by Fred Dreher, a water colorist, painter and graphic artist of 10 years experience, now living in Dayton, Va., formerly of St. Louis, Mo. He has studied at the St. Louis School of Fine Arts where he was awarded a travel scholarship which took him over most of Europe, Mexico, and America observing and studying the fine arts of many localities. His batiks have been exhibited in the middle west and east and at present he has a show traveling on a two year circuit in the United States.

Batik is one of the oldest mediums for creating design on fabric. It is a wax resisting process in which color is dyed into the cloth by immersion and the pattern retained by means of the dye-resisting wax. The word "Batik" is Javanese and means "something dipped". The panels are for sale.

Farmville Gears With Nation in Emergency

Mrs. Hunley Wiley, Noted Missionary, To Conduct Chapel

Speaks In Interest Of Chinese Missions And U. S. Problems

Mrs. Hunley Wiley, missionary from China, has been engaged by the Y. W. C. A. to appear on the S. T. C. campus Friday, January 16. Mrs. Wiley will speak in connection with the World Student Fund Drive that is being conducted here at S. T. C. January 13-16.

Mrs. Wiley has been in China for twenty-one years where she has been connected with the University of Shanghai. Since her return to America last January, she has made a number of speeches in the interest of Chinese missions. Mrs. Wiley will tell about conditions in China in chapel Friday morning and will conduct an informal discussion about Chinese Christians Friday afternoon.

Miss Grace Moran, head of the Geography department, will present the student situation in Europe when she speaks in chapel Thursday, January 15.

Florence Thierry, chairman of the drive, received the following message from the W. S. S. F. headquarters supplying information as to what the entrance of the U. S. into the war will mean to this work:

"In China, increased fighting and especially the fall of Shanghai will cause a large student migration which will be an added expense to the National Student Relief.

"The general committee of W. S. S. F. met on December 9 and unanimously reaffirmed its policy of non-partisan relief to war stricken students and laid foundations for the reconstruction that must follow the war. It urges each student group to help make this possible".

Farmville S. T. C.'s share of this relief fund is $500.00. The table in the hall will be open through January 16 for contributions.

Colonnade Contest Reopens January 15

A poetry contest, which is sponsored annually by the Colonnade, will begin Thursday, January 15, and will extend through Sunday, February 15. This contest is open to the entire student body.

There are no rules governing subject, form or length. One student may submit as many entries as she wishes.

Judges for the contest will be two members of the advisory board, a member of the poetry staff, and a representative from the student body at large.

Prizes of three dollars, two dollars, and one dollar will be awarded to those winning first, second, and third place respectively. Poems of exceptional merit will be awarded honorable mention.

Entries should be marked "Colonnade Poetry Contest" and placed in the Colonnade box, or given to Carolyn Rouse, chairman of the contest.

Virginian Adds Three Freshmen to Staff

As a result of recent tryouts, three names have been added to the Virginian Staff.

Sara Wayne France, of Charlottesville, joined the business staff. Mary Ellen Frantz, of Fincastle, will assist the typing and photographic staffs, while Hilah Lee Parks, of Petersburg, will be a member of the literary staff.

Chekhov Players Debut Here Saturday Night

The Chekhov Theater Players, of Ridgefield, Connecticut, will present their version of Shakespeare's immortal "Twelfth Night" at a lyceum program in the S.T.C. auditorium on Saturday, January 17, at 8 o'clock.

The Chekhov is regarded with unusual interest in theatrical circles, where it is considered unique in many respects. For one, the repertoire of plays was directed and supervised by a former member of the First and Director of the Second Moscow Art Theatre—Michael Chekhov, the director and guiding genius of the Chekhover Theatre Studio. Associated with him in directing the repertoire was George Shadnoff, co-director, and Alan Harkness, assistant director to Mr. Chekhov.

Another respect in which the tour differs from others lies in the fact that the scenery, costumes and props for the entire repertoire were designed and executed by members of the company, faculty and students at the Chekhov Theatre Studio in Ridgefield.

The Chekhov Theatre Players were seen in New York in 1939 in "The Possessed," dramatized at the studio by George Shdandoff from the works of Dostoyevski. At the close of the Broadway run, Mr. Chekhov and his associates decided that they should appear before students and lovers of the drama who seldom find opportunity to view New York productions. Mr. Chekhov was anxious to contribute, by a tour of plays, to the excellent work being done in many of the drama departments of American universities and colleges and in community theatre activities. A repertory for an extensive tour was prepared which now includes Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night", Dickens' "The Cricket on the Hearth," Shakespeare's "King Lear", and an American fantasy for the children, "Troublemaker-Doublemaker," by Michael Chekhov and Arnold Sundgaard.

One of the primary functions of the Chekhov theater studio is the training of drama students. Only the most talented of young people seriously interested in the dramatic arts are accepted for schooling under Mr. Chekhov's direction. Outstanding students are then graduated into a permanent producing company and work as an active theatrical producing organization.

Virginian Names Feb. 2 As Subscription Deadline

Deadline for subscriptions to The Virginian has been moved up to February 2, 1942. Any student desiring an annual must make a down payment by this time.

This change in the deadline was made necessary because of world conditions that force the printer and engraver to have the material a month earlier.

Commission Sees Teacher Shortage

That there will be a shortage of teachers in the near future is the prediction of the national commission for the defense of democracy through education.

This prediction is based on a study which revealed that enrollment in the teachers colleges and normal schools has dropped 11 per cent since last year.

The study revealed that in the west south central area there will be a shortage in small town schools, especially in the elementary field.

The need for teachers in special fields varies according to the section of the country. The following is the list of subjects in which there is a shortage of teachers, arranged by regions: Middle Atlantic, science; east north central, industrial arts; west north central, industrial arts and business; south Atlantic and east south central, science; west south central, business and music; mountain, business; and Pacific coast, industrial arts and music.

First Aid Courses, Knitting Show Attempts To Aid

S. T. C. Leaders Commend Students In Defense Work

S. T. C. along with all the nation, is gearing in answer to the call to unity in spirit, felt from Maine to California, the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico.

A Red Cross course in First-Aid instruction was given last quarter and a similar course is being given this quarter for college credit and for national credit. A course for college credit is being given under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Burger and Miss Mary Barlow. Nancy Dupuy is teaching a class, the members of which will receive national certificates at the end of the course.

Juniors Sponsor Knitting

The junior class had the table in the hall open Saturday, January 10, for donations to the "knitting" fund. A box will be put there permanently for contributions and also in the Junior building. Yarn has been ordered and various juniors have volunteered to knit.

Mrs. Bone, Red Cross chairman in Farmville, was present at the last junior class meeting and announced that courses other than first-aid, including staffs—assistance, nursing aid, and civilian defense, would be started in the near future. A plan has also been considered for collecting old clothes and conserving products valuable in defense.

Leaders Comment

The heads of major campus organizations on the S. T. C. campus were asked to make statements on their conception of the college's relationship to the war.

They commended the eagerness of the students to take defense courses and to buy defense bonds and stamps. A few thought that students hadn't realized the seriousness of the situation until they went home for Christmas and witnessed black-outs and defense activities. However, they felt that most of them were very much aware now of the emergency which the country is going through.

Allene Overbey, editor of the Colonnade, made the following statement: "In a period of international upheaval in which we of the college group are becoming of age, there are always adjustments to be made. I feel that we here in the college should do willingly those things that come to us to do, realizing that sound education is the mainstay of our democracy. I have every faith, however, that we young people will face the emergency of the pres-

Thirteen Students, Including Graduates Enroll This Quarter

Three freshmen, four sophomores, two juniors, and four post graduates have registered for the winter quarter.

The freshmen are Mary Virginia Evans, Lynchburg; Katherine Gertrude Johnson, Dolphin; and Elsie Sutton, Greenville, N. C.; Mary Gammon Easley Chatham; Sara McLain, Kingsport, Tennessee who took her freshman year here last year; Isabelle Pillow, Farmville; and Dorothy Rhodes Tuck, Stuart, registered as sophomores.

The two juniors are Ellen Scott McKenny, Cumberland and Mrs. Hazel Walker, Chatham. Carrie Helen Bliss, Mrs. Dorothy Karchmer, Mildred Lancaster, and Bessie Roach, all of Farmville, are post graduate students.

The Light on Our Horizon

It took an unexpected attack by Japanese bomber squadrons on a United States naval and air base to blast us from the cradles of self-assured safety to the cold, hard realization that the conflict is not a European or Asiatic struggle. We know now that America must share responsibilities in supressing totalitarianism.

The unexpected term in events has caused great unrest among college students. We feel that we must cure the ills of the world. This is essentially true in girls colleges as well as in co-ed institutions. However, let us heed the advice of the educators of the country, remembering that the most precious resource of any country is education. The majority of colleges, recognizing the vitaliness of trained men and women, are keeping in step with a nationwide wartime program by accelerating college sessions in order to give students an opportunity to finish four years in three years. Farmville has had such a program for the past years.

However, there is a great deal that we can do while in college. The Victorian lady in Noel Coward's "Cavalcade" who drew behind the lace curtains of her parlor when she heard the fifes and drums in the street and said, "Mine is a very little world"'—no longer exists. Women today realize the gravity of the situation and are ready to do their part in carrying to a successful conclusion the war which we had hoped to avoid.

The Red Cross is offering courses in first aid, which in many districts are being required of all civilians. At Farmville, the Red Cross first aid course is being offered for both college and national credit. The purchase of defense stamps and bonds will also aid our government.

The women of today will not be content to sit home. Recently the Army asked for 25,000 women to work with the Army Air Force in the Aircraft Warning Service. Some of these women will act as "spotters" on hillsides and in lookout posts, or as plotters in information centers. In New York alone, 638 women served in a practice manouver, not only as plotters and spotters, but also as telephone, teletype, radio, and comptometer operators. But whether we are skilled along these lines, when the Civil Air Defense program is fully expanded women will be needed.

Never in our history has this country been so united in its resolve to end aggression. The enormity of the task means more than victory over Japan; it means more than victory over Nazi aggression. It means victory over war. To have this victory, the people of the United States must assume their responsibilities in world affairs at all times.

Our Wartime Policy

At a time when the future of the world is being decided, the American press is confronted with the problem of censorship. It is only fitting that at this time that we should outline our editorial policy.

We believe that the newspaper's essential role in education is to guard against any attempts to suppress the freedom of the press. It is true that certain information in the hands of the enemy is dangerous in these perilous times. However, we believe that it is the reader who must judge and that he alone has the right to censorship, Has not the value of news and how to separate it from the fact that stands and the distortion that collapses been sufficiently instilled in the reading public to allow them to read reports and to decide for themselves?

The President of the United States has called upon the nation's press to cover the news accurately and calmly during these times. We plan to fully cover the news of interest to Farmville students, believing that the press is a constant reminder to the citizens of their duties and their rights.

Gleanings

By LUCY TURNBULL

Far outweighing any other war news this week were President Roosevelt's two history making speeches—his annual report to Congress upon the state of the Union and his presentation of the $56,000,000,000 war time budget.

The first, delivered Tuesday, January 6, made clear three primary factors in the nation's total war program. First the challenge to industry—in calling for 60,000 planes, 45,000 tanks, 20,000 anti-aircraft guns, and 8,000,000 tons of shipping, the President is demanding an attainment in totals in excess of those which the nation has previously been told it could expect to reach in 1942. This unprecedented task for industry made up the most striking and urgent part of the message, but there were other points of important significance. Unity of command and co-operation on every battle field are to be expected—as well as the sending of a force to England. Indeed Dr. Douglas Freeman, editor of the "Richmond News Leader", suggests that one of the main purposes of the President's message was the announcement of the decision to send American forces to Britain, This is to be accomplished with careful adroitness.

Financing the war was the sole theme of the President's second speech, Wednesday, January 7. The total to pass through the Federal Treasury will be about $59,300,000,000 of which $56,000,000,000 will represent direct or indirect war costs. The figures are of course inconceivable, but they serve, as perhaps nothing else has, to impress on Americans the magnitude of war tasks. The $9,000,000,000 taxes per annum will radically alter American ways of living. We must accustom ourselves to going without countless things we have so far taken as a matter of course. "But" in the

So many things happened during the holidays that your roving reporters have been kept quite active this past week covering all sports, rumors, etc., etc. If the items should be incomplete, turn your copy in to the editor of this column and we promise to tell all.

Receiving third finger left hand rings which are making the whole student body blind were Alene Overbey, Nancy Naff, Ruthie Dugger, Dot Massie, Joan Haddon, Jane Lee Hutcheson, and Edna Brown. Best wishes, girls!

Plein Kampus—

V. P. I. still is standing high in the estimation of many Farmville belles (approaching Midwinters, no doubt) B. Youngberg, Mary Harvie, Shirley Pierce, Martha Higgins, Dot Childress, and Charlotte Phillips are among those who expect to attend. Numerous others are going, too, while other young ladies are having complications.

Also in the limelight for the same week-end is the Washington and Lee Fancy Dress Ball. Farmville will be represented there too by May Wertz, Maggie Wright, Nancy Hughes, Hunter Edmunds, and Lillian Goddin. V. M. I. is also going to claim Farmvil'e talent at their midwinters—Janet Jackson and Mary Ambler Thompson head his list.

Here and There:

"Hebie" Allen is quite the gadabout what with Virginia midwinters next on her list of activities.

Ask Shirley Turner about the invitations she received to the Bachelors' Club private dance.

Ask Dearing about her friend at Wake Forest.

Pagie Francis proved to be quite a girl with a trip to New York with the family—to say nothing of the fact that Ded was along.

A. P. really has a healthful beau. It couldn't be Stuart, could it, A. P.?

Ella Banks and Hannah Lee are agog over Memphis. The convention they attended was lots of fun, so we hear.

Speaking of conventions, Rosebro, Amy and "Lady"' Folk had a gay time at the Y. W. convention. It must have been a little too gay, for "Lady" returned to school almost a week late since she was suffering from laryngitis at home. Rosebro added another young man to her list.

The romance of the year award goes to Jane "I Work Fast" Endeby. Off to Texas swished the girl miss to see Graham, who, incidentally, she had not seen in a year. The mission was to decide—be it love or otherwise. An expected ring is the result of her trip.

Question of the Week

Are You Planning to Purchase or Have You Already Purchased Defense Bonds or Stamps?

Caroline Bargamin: If it will help those little yellow fellows over there, they can have my two cents worth—or more.

Frances Rosebro: Yes, I am going to buy some and I think we all should if possible.

Katherine Kennedy: I am planning to buy some since that is one thing I can do for my country.

Louise Bell: I gave some stamps as Christmas presents, but I haven't secured my share yet.

Warwick Mitchell: I am planning to buy some when my pocket-book permits.

Mildred Cook: I think it's a good thing.

Ann Blair: My grandmother gave me my first bond for Christmas.

Lillian Turner: Of course, I definitely want to do my part to help win the war. Buying defense stamps is one way to do that.

Louisa Sanford: At the present time I have insufficient funds to buy bonds, but with my first teaching check, I hope to purchase one. I think everyone should realize the importance of getting defense bonds and stamps at this time,

Louise Parcell: I am saving my pennies now to buy my first bond.

Mildred Corvin: Fifteen cents a day will go a long way toward a defense bond.

Anne Fitzgerald: I got a bond for Christmas and have been buying stamps since then. I think everyone who can should buy stamps because that is a grand way to help.

Shirley Pierce: Yes, I have already started ten and twenty-five cent books, but I don't know when I'll get them finished.

Martha Higgins: I will when my ship comes in.

Mary Lee West: I am saving my pennies.

Martha Patterson: Santa Claus left me a bond in my stocking.

Marilyn Johnson: Every little bit counts.

Jane Sanford: Each person should do something useful at a time like this; and buying defense bonds and stamps is certainly one of the best ways to help.

Agnes Patterson: Buying defense stamps is the least we can do in defense.

A Seat at the Cinema

Kathleen

After three years absence, the public's favorite star Shirley Temple, returns to the screen in "Kathleen", which will be shown at the State Theatre, January 19 and 20. She is a lonely, motherless girl whose father (Herbert Marshall) is too engrossed with business and personal life to notice her, and it is not until a child psychologist Larraine Day, (of Dr. Kildare fame) brings him to the realization of her problems, that the happy unveiling starts. Gail Patrick brings up the home column as the scheming domestic menace with whom Shirley's father becomes infatuated. Shirley secretly runs away from it all, awakening her father to action. He gets wise to Gail and makes his daughter happy by finally marrying the right girl. The action of the picture shows Shirley's versatility, and she sings one song in the picture.

Vanishing Virginian

Of special interest to those from Lynchburg should be the world premiere of the "Vanishing Virginian" which will be held in Lynchburg, January 22 and 23. The film depicts the life of Captain Bob Yancey—who for years was outstanding in the social and political life of Lynchburg. A charity ball and a luncheon, at which the author, Mrs. Rebecca Williams, will be present, will be the highlight of the entertainment. After a reception the guests will be taken on a tour of historic p'aces, including the old Yancey home in Bedford county. Many Hollywood stars have been invited and are expected to attend this two-day celebration.

Design for Scandal

For first hand information on "how to be a wolf" or for super entertainment, "Design For Scandal" coming to the State theatre, January 21 and 22, is made to order, Rosalind Russell is a hard-boiled lady judge who finds that every woman has her weak moment, when the right man (Walter Pidgeon) comes along. His grim determination to involve her in a scandal results in a typical fairy story romance. Rosalind, the man-hater, lays down the law but the law of love interferes. Supporting these two Hollywood sought afterers are Edward Arnold, Jean Rogers, Lee Bowman, and Barbara Jo Allen.

• Piercing the Points •

By SHIRLEY PIERCE

"Snowbound", but used in a lighter sense, since only about four inches covered the grounds of S. T. C., has made way to a delightful week of outdoor activity. After classes many students were seen across the street sleighing with the smaller children and their sleds—using the very convincing technique of "You let me ride down and I'll pull you up!" But it worked, so on down the hills and off into the snow they all tumbled. White and glistening are the once used tennis courts and athletic field. No foot prints have made their way that far yet.

All Out For Basketball—

Basketball, the sport of the season, is well on the way and practices have been held every afternoon since returning from the holidays. Schedules of games are posted on the calendar and it won't be long before we'll be cheering a real team on to victory!

First Aid Course Aids U. S. Defense—

Just seeing the words "First Aid" brings to mind the need for it in both our country and other nations. We have been very fortunate in having Mr. Max Rote, of the American National Red Cross, on our campus to give instruction in the Instructors Course of First Aid. Now again others can profit by the knowledge he left with those he taught. Enroll in one of the two classes offered this quarter and be prepared with knowledge of First Aid! Credit and non-credit classes are taught, so begin now!

Freshmen, Use Your Swimming Course!—

The place for ice skating is on a lake—that is if it's thick enough, of course. That lets out the chances of using the S. T. C. pool because as yet the room has been well heated and the water is fine. Freshmen really worked hard last quarter learning how to swim and taking standard tests so now's the time to swim and enjoy it. Saturday night from 8 o'clock until 9:30 p. m. the pool is open for recreational swimming with music as an added attraction. Notice will be out soon concerning the swimming meet at which Farmville will be hostess. And that means that those strong mermaids must get to work on their speed in the water so that Farmville can place high in the national rating.

February 2 is the date scheduled for the interclass swim meet . . . and that means practice, support, and complete cooperation from each person with any swimming ability, all classes will be represented in the meet with a vie between class colors! This means real excitement and a push forward in color points. From those who enter the practices and complete the requirements, "eight" are in line for trying out for the varsity squad which will be selected later on in the season. eBfore the actual date of the meet, several practice contests will be featurd so that the swimmers can obtain extra skill in racing. Fancy competitive diving is also a part of the meet. Join your class in swimming support!

Orchesis Features Dance Symposium

Orchesis, dance group at S. T. C., will be hostess to a Dance Symposium on Saturday, February 21. Letters of invitation have been sent to a number of colleges including University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; Woman's College of U. N. C., Greensboro; Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg; Madison College, Harrisonburg; State Teachers College, Radford; Hollins College, Hollins; Sweetbriar College, Sweetbriar; and Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg.

Instructors in dance, Miss Elsie C. Earle of Woman's College of U. N. C., and Miss Jean Brownlee, will direct instruction in techniques and fundamentals during the morning. The afternoon will be devoted to a workshop demonstration by the various representing schools. Each group will be allowed fifteen minutes for their selections.

Riding Club Names Committee Heads; New Members Added

At a Board of Directors meeting of the Riding Club last Friday thirteen girls were appointed to head committees for this year.

Nell Scott and Elizabeth Goodwin will be in charge of selling food; Lillian German, club pin; Nelle White, publicity; Rebecca Spicer, posters and advertising; Ann Page Francis, field rides; Gloria Pollard, room chairman; Catherine May, music; May Wertz, entertainment; Catherine Gosney, refreshments; Barbara Scott and Patricia McCormick, serving; and Joyce Cheatwood, hostess for parties.

All of these girls compose the State Teachers College Hunt club along with Buff Gunter, Kay Spencer, and Anne Berry who are other officers of the Riding club. The new members of the Hunt club, Barbara Scott, Pat McCormick, and Joyce Cheatwood will be formally initiated in the near future.

Eleven Selected For 1942 Varsity Basketball Squad

1942 Varsity basketball squad was chosen on Monday, January 12. Five Juniors, three seniors, and three sophomores were selected as members of the squad.

Seven of these girls were on varsity last season, while Patsy Connelly, Dottie Sue Simmons, June Smith, and Dot Sprinkle, are newcomers. Other members of varsity are Jean Carr, Anne Elett, Hallie Hillsman, Dot Johnson, Frances Parham, Anne Price, and Marty Roberts.

The sub varsity this year is composed entirely of freshmen. Dick Butterworth, Evelyn Christian, Ella Covington, Betty Cross, Edith Lovings, Cecil Parr, Florence Pettit, Bobbie Scott, Nell Shafer, Margaret Sizemore, Bernice Smith, and Eleanor Varn will be members of this team.

Arrangements for the trips have not been completed. Founders Day, Farmville S. T. C. will play Harrisonburg here in the gym on Friday night. Games have also been scheduled with William and Mary in Williamsburg and Radford S. T. C. at Radford. The entire schedule will be announced at a later date.

This Sporting World

Would More People Come Out for Basketball if no Varsity Members Would Participate In The Class Games?

Betty Gray Smithdeal: Yes, I think they would because there would be less competition.

Mildred Droste: No, the people who are on varsity are the ones that are interested. People who are really interested can make varsity, therefore, it would have little or no effect on the participation in class games.

Frances Rosebro: No, I don't think the participation of varsity team members prevents others from entering. Those who are interested and have time will go out and enjoy playing with the varsity members.

Betty Cross: Yes, because it would give the ones who aren't on the varsity a chance and the competition would be evenly matched.

Miggie Mish: No, I believe if people are truly interested in participation of basketball they would try out for the class team whether varsity players are there or not.

Anne Price: No. I think that if a person is interested in basketball, she will come to practice, whether varsity members play or not.

Sara Wade Owen: Yes, I guess they would.

Anne Moore: Seems to me they would because people would feel like they would have a better chance.

Shirley Turner: No, I don't think they would. If they want to come, they will whether varsity is there or not.

Anne Ware: Yes, I think they would definitely! Varsity members have more spirit and they would hold the team together.

Martha Higgins: Yeah! I think they would.

Ruth Parker: Naturally.

Mary Keith Bingham: Yeah! I think so because they think varsity is good and they wouldn't have a chance otherwise.

Ruth Dugger: I think more people would come out for basketball but the game wouldn't be as interesting.

Interclass Swim Meet Set for February 2; Practices Begin Soon

Interclass swimming meet has been scheduled to take place on the Monday night, February 2 at 8 o'clock. Any person entering into the meet to swim for her class must have at least eight practices.

One Person's Viewpoint . . .

By JANE SANFORD

Maybe the horns have ceased to blare, for it has been approximately 330 hours and 59 seconds since the last minute of 1941 turned on its heels and sank into oblivion . . . But the echo's still going strong. So may we add a belated P . S. to your already plenteous New Year greetings? . . .We wish for you the happiest, most useful (and the prom-trottinest) year yet. . . All of you.

Coming Fetes . . .

Your weakened holiday spirits may find new strength in a brief pre-view of coming parties, proms, and the like. There's quite a lot of them to be had. . . To start the ball rolling will be the Y. W. C. A. reception Friday night for the Big-Little sisters. . . The Commercial Club will give some sort of formal during this month, too. . . . Then in February—on the fourteenth—there'll be Mardi Gras, rated better than ever. Costumes of the court and the decorations will carry out a Valentine Day motif . . . And dates will dress formally instead of in costumes as before. . . Wild rumors have hinted that the most party minded order on the campus, the junior class, will surprise just about everybody around February 28 wit ha very snazzy prom as a benefit for Red Cross . . . The Pan-Hellenic Dance will round off the Winter formals and will be followed by the traditional Spring Cotillion later in the spring . . .

Christmas Covorting . . .

Helen and Sara Hardy were among the braver of holiday travelers, choosing Virginia Beach as the scene for a very wintry week-end house party at the Thompson's. . . Hattie Cantrell also braved "below" weather to make a trip to West Point for the holiday hop there. Hunter Edmunds and Spilly Purdum were near-by in New York for Pi Gamma Mu convention. . . Right here in Virginia, Janet Jackson proved to be the most social minded student in our midst, spending most all of her holiday attending deb balls and luncheons in Richmond. . .

Ring Rookies . . .

Joining the ranks of the matrimonial-minded alumnae during the holidays were Mary Joyner Cox, Will Scott, Jennie Belle Gilliam, Jane Burke, and Martha McCorkle whose engagements were announced then. . . While alumnae Frances Dudley and Ruth Lea Purdum announced their marriages to T. W. Brooks, Jr., and John Davies, respectively. . . Helen Lewis was married to Junie Bishop in Roanoke December 20. . . But ex-students are not the only ones. . . Freshman Joan Haddon's engagement to Dallace Elino Marable, a senior at the University of Richmond, was announced this past week-end. . .

Last Minutes Notes . . .

Not much doing last week-end. . . Lotsa girls went home. . . Others visiting. . . Sarah Massie, Charlotte, and Jean (with Kossen, Buck, and Bill) were in Richmond Sunday for dinner and a movie. . . In Lynchburg for the same purpose were May Wertz, Nancy B., and Mary Lou Trible. . . Hunter Edmunds spent the week-end in Lexington. . . Those who stayed here enjoyed the A. A. playnight Saturday night in Student Building lounge. . . This Monday evening past, Miss Grace Moran entertained the members of Alpha Kappa Gamma at a buffet supper at her home on Appomattox street.

State Increases Boarding Charges In 1942-43 Session

The State Board of Education authorized the four State Teachers colleges yesterday to incorporate clauses in their catalogues for the 1942-43 session reserving the right to increase boarding charges to meet increasing costs.

The colleges had asked some leeway in this regard and a clause worded as follows received approval:

"Due to the uncertain condition prevailing with respect to the costs of food and supplies and of food service, the (name of institution) reserves the right to change its rates for table board at any time throughout the year . . . ."

Room rentals were not mentioned specifically, but ordinarily room and board are combined in a single charge, covering both items.

The institutions affected are Farmville and Radford Teachers Colleges, Mary Washington College at Fredericksburg and Madison College at Harrisonburg.

Pi Gamma Mu Names Mardi Gras Prizes

Mary Lilly Purdum, president of Pi Gamma Mu, which sponsors Mardi Gras, has announced the prizes that are to be awarded to the persons judged wearing the prettiest and most original costumes at the dance, February 14.

The first prize which will be given to that girl wearing the prettiest costume will be a pair of light blue dressing table lamps which were featured in Life Magazine. The second prize given for the second prettiest costume will be a Kodak.

A modernistic electric glass clock will be the first prize that will be awarded to that girl judged wearing the most original costume at Mardi Gras. A desk set has been selected for the second prize to be given to the second most original costume.

These prizes will be on display in the near future at Martin's Jewelery store window. Tickets for Mardi Gras will go on sale January 26.

Orchesis Members Plan N. Y. Trip

Eight members of Orchesis, modern dance group, will go to New York in March with the S. T. C. music groups.

Those who will make the trip are Anne Bradshaw, Ruth Dugger, Shirley Cadmus, Gloria Pollard, Louisa Sanford, Jean Strick, and Ann Covington.

Dance selections will be presented before the N. Y. alumnae chapter, and a tour will be taken into the studios. Martha Graham has invited the girls to attend one of her classes while they are there. Before the fall examinations Orchesis went to Lynchburg where Martha Graham and her dance group presented El Penitente at Randolph-Macon Woman's college. After the performance Miss Graham spoke with the girls back stage and introduced Louis Horst, her music director.

S. T. C. Curriculum Includes First Aid

Three American Red Cross First Aid classes have been added to the S. T. C. curriculum, Miss Elizabeth Burger and Miss Mary Barlow instruct the two credit classes which meet three periods a week. Another class, taught by Nancy Dupuy meets on Monday and Thursday nights from nine to ten o'clock. No school credits are given for the class meeting at this time.

Necessity of this course proves to be essential to all girls living in or near coastal cities. Because of the recent National Defense program the American Red Cross urges more people to join a class of such importance. In the early future the needy subject may be requested for all. Credit for the course is given in the form of a certificate from the national headquarters of the Red Cross in Washington, D. C.

Quiz Contest Slated For Feb. 17

Alpha Kappa Gamma, national fraternity in leadership, will again sponsor a "Battle of Wits" program between the "Five Smart Girls of S. T. C. and the Hampden-Sydney "Brain Busters", in the S. T. C. auditorium. The tentative date has been set for February 17. All S T. C. girls wishing to participate in the program may take a mimeographed test which will be followed by oral questioning.

The program will be broadcast over Station WRNL and will compose a full half hour program over that station. Caroline Eason, president of Alpha Kappa Gamma, will serve as chairman for the selection of the "Five Smart Girls" of S. T. C.

ent situation courageously."

Mary Lilly Purdum, president of Pi Gamma Mu, suggests that all individuals and organizations buy defense bonds and stamps. "I feel that this is a good way to help and that government bonds are one of the safest investments that can be made. Contributions to the Red Cross are also important," she added.

Many others say that courses in civilian defense, fire - fighting, nursing, mechanics, making bandages, first-aid, nutrition, and staff assistance would be beneficial.

Jarman Speaks

In discussing the relationship of S. T. C. students to defense, Dr. J. L. Jarman said, "One of the greatest needs of the state, regardless of the fact we are at war, is teachers. There is not only a present shortage, but there will be a greater shortage. If children are not taught, our democracy will not live. Therefore, one of the best ways students can help is to do well that which they are doing now, and anything else that may develop. They may also help in any activity of the Red Cross which they may be able to do or serve any new needs that may develop."

Katherine Vaughan Chosen Best Model

Katherine Vaughan, Petersburg, was chosen by popular vote as the best model at the recent Carole King fashion show, sponsored by the Dorothy May Store, Thursday afternoon, January 8, at four o'clock.

Four other S. T. C. students, Anne Martenstein, Ruby Stewart, Lillian Goddin, and Virginia Mae Elliett modeled the most recent spring fashions in dressy and sports styles. As a prize, Katherine Vaughan received a Carole King dress.

Miss Dorothy Howe, Carole King stylist, acted as commentator and discussed the recent style trends and the principles of good grooming.

Civil Service Exam Open To Students

The United States Civil Service Commission has just announced two examinations of particular interest to college students. They are the annual "Junior Professional Assistant" and "Student Aid" examinations designed to recruit young college graduates and junior and senior students for positions in the Government service. Applications for both these examinations must be on file with the Commission's Washington office not later than February 3, 1942.

Optional branches included in the Junior Professional Assistant examination this year are (all in the junior grade, $2,000 a year): Agricultural economist, agronomist, aquatic biologist, archivist, bacteriologist, biologist, chemist, entomologist, forester, geologist, junior in household equipment, olericulturist, pomologist, public welfare assistant, range conservationist, soil scientist, State Department Assistant, and statician.

A four-year college course leading to a bachelor's degree is required, with major graduate or undergraduate study in the field of the optional subject. Senior or graduate students may be admitted to the examination, and may, upon attaining eligibility, receive provisional appointment, but cannot enter on duty until evidence of the successful completion of the required college course is furnished.

There are four optional subjects in the Student Aid examination: Engineering, political science, public administration, and statistics. Applicants must have completed at least three years of college study, and must have indicated at the college or university their intention of majoring in the optional subject chosen. No applicant may enter the examination who completed the third year of college study prior to May, 1939.

Provision is made for the acceptance of applications from junior students who expect to complete their junior college year not later than July 1, 1942. They may also receive provisional appointment, but they may not enter on duty until they give evidence of completing their junior college year. Student aid positions pay $1,440 a year. Usually employment is during the school vacation periods; when furloughed, appointees may return to their college studies.

Copies of the examination announcements and application forms may be obtained at first- and second-class post offices or from the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

ties. This is the fifth version which Mr. Chekhov has produced and directed. Of one version, Sean O'Casey, the Irish playwright, wrote, "Shakespearean comedy at last!"

Through the rollicking tribulations of the Elizabethan characters he reveals and emphasizes the two dominant themes which Shakespeare unfolded in comic verse and laughable situations:—the romantic love theme and the theme of the joy of life.

Imaginative use of music, color and movement give the production rhythm, cadence and emotion that heighten the lines and situations. The many songs which grace a Shakespeareen play are made an integral part of the performance.

DUKE UNIVERSITY
School of Nursing
DURHAM, N. C.
The Diploma of Graduate Nurse is awarded after three years. Qualified students are elegible for the degree of B. S. in Nursing after an additional year of hospital and university work.
The entrance requirements are intelligence, character, and one year of college work.
The annual tuition of $100 00 covers the cost of maintenance and uniforms.
Because of the urgent need for nurses, the next class will be admitted July 5 instead of September 30, as previously announced.
Catalogues, application forms, and information about requirements may be obtained from the Dean.

Jan. 28 Slated For Soph Production

Patsy Connelly, chairman announces the date of the forthcoming Sophomore class production to be January 28, at 8 o'clock in the S. T. C. auditorium.

The second production of the class of '44 will be a comparison of the present-day S. T. C. with that of many years ago. Featured in the two acts, epilogue and prologue, will be Elizabeth Tennent as school-teacher, Ella Banks Weathers as grandmother, and Nelle Quinn as daughter.

Soloists for the occasion will be Mimi Wegger, singing "Danny Boy", Nancy Bruce, singing "The White Cliffs of Dover", and Virginia May Ellett, "Blues in the Night".

Ruthie Dugger will present a solo modern dance and Betty Gray Smithdeal and Kitty Vaughan will have a waltz routine.

Gamma Psi Charges Fee to Make Posters

Winifred Wright, president of Gamma Psi, announces that a small charge is being made for posters which any member of the society makes for one person or for an organization.

The price list includes one large illustrated lettered poster, fifty cents; one large lettered poster, forty cents; one half-sized lettered and illustrated poster, thirty cents; one half-sized lettered poster, twenty cents; one small sized lettered poster, ten cents.

Plan To Hear
Dr. Sherwood Eddy

Sherwood Eddy, Author, Lecturer, Addresses Students

Will Emphasize Post War Building, World Conditions

Dr. Sherwood Eddy, author, lecturer, and world traveler will speak to the student body in chapel tomorrow on "How Can We Win the War and the Peace"? He will also speak in the Y.W.C.A. lounge tomorrow afternoon, using as his subject "Can We Build a New World?"

Dr. Eddy, a graduate of Yale University has traveled extensively abroad and talked with the leading men of Europe and Asia in an effort to study existing world conditions.

In 1934 he saw Hitler and heard him make his address to the Reichstag. He can count among his acquaintances Mahatma Ghandi, Generalissimo Chiang Kaishek of China, and several Prime Ministers of England.

After graduating from Yale University, Dr. Eddy served for fifteen years among the students of India. At the end of this time he was called to be secretary of the Y. W. C. A. in Asia.

He is the author of twenty volumes on international, economic, social, and religious questions and wrote the book, "I Have Seen God Do It." Dr. Eddy has lectured in several hundred colleges in the United States, Europe and Asia.

It is the custom of the Y. W. C. A. to bring at least one outstanding speaker to the campus each year. Dr. Eddy was scheduled to speak here last year, but because of illness was unable to continue his program.

Sara Byrd Williams Elected Secretary

Sara Byrd Williams, of Woodstock, was elected secretary of the freshman class at their meeting last night. She succeeds Betty Lindamood of Wytheville who failed to return to school this quarter.

Sara Byrd is a member of Alpha Phi Sigma, honorary scholastic society, and also serves on the freshman production committee and the membership committee of the Y. W. C. A.

S. T. C. Changes Time With Government

S. T. C. along with the nation will go on Day-light Saving Time in February, twenty days from the time President Roosevelt signs the present bill that has been before Congress. The passing of such a bill will mean that S.T.C. will turn its clock up one hour and that daily schedules will be changed accordingly.

CALL TO YOUTH

While our country answers the international call to fight for liberty and justice, let us, its youth, not be negligent in our response. The need for everyday, practical responses, is great, and the call is specific.

The Sophomore Commission is now sponsoring a collection of stamps in response to our country's cry that dye is needed. The junior class is asking the students to knit for our boys in camps and in the various fields of action. And now, Sigma Pi Rho wishes to request the aid of every student in saving tin. It is vitally needed, and the suggestion has been made that old tooth-paste tubes be given to the government.

In accordance with this request, Sigma Pi Rho will place boxes in the various halls, and will solicit your cooperation in placing empty tooth - paste tubes in these boxes.

Our country needs our loyalty; a loyalty that shows itself through active participation in defense work. Let us respond in every way possible.

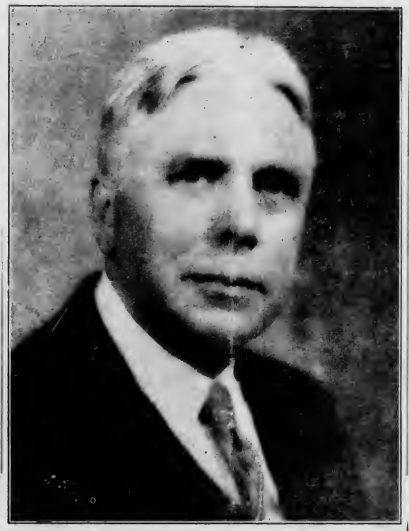
February 17 Marks Date of STC-HSC Verbal Contest

Both Schools Give Trial Examinations In Preparation

Annual quiz contest between S. T. C. and Hampden-Sydney will be held in the S. T. C. auditorium February 17. Five S. T. C. girls and five Hampden-Sydney boys will participate.

This contest will be sponsored by Alpha Kappa Gamma of S. T. C. and O. D. K. of Hampden-Sydney. Because of the need of funds by the Southside Community Hospital the proceeds will be given to them.

Chuck Whitehouse will be master of ceremonies. Questions will be submitted to the contestants by members of the S. T. C. and Hampden-Sydney faculties. Beginning this year a silver cup will be awarded annually to the winning team. At the end of a set number of years the team winning the cup the greatest number of times will keep it.



The contest will be broadcast over W.R.N.L., Richmond. Admission to all will be 25c. Town people are invited to come.

In collaboration with A. K. G., the S. T. C. sing committee will have a mock quiz contest with the purpose of discovering latent talent in the student body. S. T. C. students are asked to be on mental tiptoes for the occasion. The written examination includes numerous questions on general knowledge in all fields. A group will be selected at S. T. C. from those having the highest grades on the written examination to compete in three preliminary quizzes. By process of elimination, the quiz team of five, will be chosen. Seventy-five girls at S. T. C. have taken the first examination, and from this group, a team will be selected to take the preliminaries.

Students Urged To Enter Contest

Carolyn Rouse, head of the Colonnade Poetry Contest, has announced that all entries of the contest must be made before February 15.

Celebrates Fortieth Year Here

DR. J. L. JARMAN

Jarman Considers Presidency "Forty Years of Opportunity"

By GLADYS WILSON AND MARY PARRISH VICCELLIO

Nineteen hundred and forty-two marks the fortieth anniversary of Dr. J. L. Jarman's services as president of Farmville State Teachers College.

In an interview with a Rotunda reporter, he commented that "there is a feeling of satisfaction to know that you have had the opportunity to work with young people for that length of time, and to feel that you have rendered service to thousands of students and, through them, a larger service to the state."

Referring to the state of the school when he first became president, Dr. Jarman said with a sigh, "It was an exce'lent school but very small, rather inferior buildings, at that time only one block. This was a challenge which called for buying more property if the institution was to grow." At this time Farmville had about three hundred students and nearly all the work offered was high school work because the state had none at that time. A one year professional course was also offered.

Comparing the present institution to the one that existed forty years ago, Dr. Jarman commenting on the consistently good personnel, said "The girls are better now. There were more discip'ine cases then as there were more rules to break. Now there is more freedom which is accepted without abuse." The Y. W. C. A. was the only organization, and there were no extra-curricula activities. "Now", he remarked, "there is more student participation in college life, and there are more opportunities for students to accept responsibilities and to get the development that comes through responsibility". This fact, commented Dr. Jarman, was practically unknown forty years ago.

Plans for the future?—The same that were his when he first came here—to keep on improving the school and to keep it growing. Property is still being bought in order to beautify the school. Within the next five years Dr. Jarman hopes for a new dormitory and new classroom buildings.

Summing up his entire forty years at Farmville, Dr. Jarman said, "I look upon it as forty years of opportunity."

Sara Cline Edits National Journal

The first printed copy of THE TRIBUTUM, national journal of Sigma Pi Rho, honorary Latin fraternity, has been recently published by Sara Cline, senior from Roanoke.

Sigma Pi Rho was started on the S. T. C. campus by Miss Minnie V. Rice in 1930. For two years it remained local, but in 1932 it became national. Today, it has ten chapters, and is the only national Latin organization in state teachers colleges.

Miss Carmen Clark, assistant librarian at S. T. C. last year, is the national alumnae secretary.

THE TRIBUTUM has been published for eleven years, but heretofore it has always been mimeographed. Sara Cline is the only one of the national officers from Farmville.

Mr. Cowan Leads Y. W. C. A. Discussion

"Growing Up" was the subject for the discussion led by the Rev. T. B. Cowan, pastor of the Norris Religious Fellowship of Norris Tennessee, at Y. W. C. A. association meeting last Thursday.

Dr. Cowan lectured at V. P. I. during Religious Emphasis Week and also spoke to the students of Mary Washington College.

For three summers he has been a religious instructor at Blue Ridge summer conference.

If there is a student demand for him, Dr. Cowan will probably speak at S. T. C. when he passes through Farmville on his way to the University of Virginia, February 10 to 12.

College Choir Plans Tour of New York Beginning March 27

Program Includes Sacred Recital In Historic St. Thomas Church

State Teachers College Choir has recently received an invitation to sing in St. Thomas Church in New York City, Alfred H. Strick, director, recently announced. nounced.

Extended plans have been completed for the spring concert and also for the spring tour. The College Choir, with the Yale University Glee Club will give a concert in the S. T. C. auditorium on March 26.

Brahm's Requiem Included

The plans for the tour include a presentation of Brahm's Requiem in Duke University Chapel and also in New York City. The Yale University Glee Club and Duke University Chapel Choir will join the College Choir in this concert.

After the recital here on March 26, the three groups will leave Farmville on the morning of March 27, in order to attend a broadcast of Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians that evening.

Choir Will View N. Y. Attractions

Saturday the choir will be taken for a sight-seeing tour of the various colleges and universities and other places of interest in and around New York. Saturday night the Farmville Alumnae of New York, under the chairmanship of Miss Pauline Williamson, will sponsor a dinner-concert in the ballroom of the Great Northern Hotel. Many famous lovers of music are expected to attend.

The highlight of the trip will be the Sacred Recital in historic St. Thomas Church in New York. The organist and master of the St. Thomas Choir, Dr. T. Tertius Noble, formerly organist of the York Minister Cathedral in Yorkshire England, will play the organ. The opportunity of singing in St. Thomas Church is rarely afforded a college choir.

Sunday evening, the three groups, Yale, Duke, and Farmville, will broadcast. The program for this broadcast has not yet been released.

Other invitations received by the S. T. C. Choir have come from Roanoke, Richmond, and the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg.

Commercial Club Signs Freddie Lee

Russell, Baxter Are Featured Vocalists

Marie Thompson, president of the Commercial Club announces that Freddie Lee and his Vagabonds have been selected to play for the Commercial Club dance, Saturday night, January 24.

For the last three years, Freddie Lee has played at numerous college and country club engagements including the V. M. I.-V. P. I. dances Thanksgiving. The band is popular for its policy of "keeping-em-dancing" to rumbas, old favorites, waltzes, and Hit Parade tunes.

Vocalists with the band will be Miss Ann Russell of St. Mary's College, and Howard Baxter with the Vagabond trio.

Dr. J. L. Jarman will head the receiving line made up of Marie Thompson, president of the Commercial Club, Catherine Dunton, vice-president, Mildred Corvin, secretary, Katherine Hawthorne, treasurer and Mr. M. L. Landrum, head of the Commercial Department.

The chaperones will include Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Wynne, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Myers and Misses Winnie Hiner, Grace Moran, Rachel Royall and Mary Barlow.

Katherine Hawthorne, chairman of the Floor Committee will be assisted by Nelle White, Anne Turner, Hannah Lee Crawford, Jean Shuikcum, Mildred Corvin, and Helen Gilliam.

Invitations to become members of the Commercial Club were issued to freshmen last Friday night. The freshmen must be taking at least two commercial classes. They will be initiated into the club at the regular meeting January 27.

Sophomores Elect Nimmo and Droste

Faye Nimmo, Suffolk, automatically became sophomore class president last Thursday when the class decided to let the vice-president succeed as president when Dorothy Gaul, former president, failed to return to school.

Faye was vice-president of her class in her freshman year, a member of Alpha Phi Sigma, Sophomore Commission, the business staff of the Rotunda, and the Cotillion Club.

Mildred has been active in basketba'l, hockey, and swimming, and is a member of H2O club. She also belongs to the House Council and was an assistant to Hallie Hilisman in varsity hockey.

Both Faye and Mildred have been active in inter-class basketball contests.

1942 Virginian To Appear May 10

Copy for the 1942 Virginian will be turned in by March 10, and the annual will appear on May 10.

This year's book will be more formal than before and will be divided into four divisions. These are faculty and students, academic and phyisical effects, social effects, and the culmination which will contain the class history in snaps and views of Farmville life. The book will contain eight features in place of the usual six.

The main purpose of the annual is to show how the faculty, administration, girls, classes, and organizations shape the character and personality of a girl during her four years at school.

Final pictures for the 1941 Virginian were taken today. May Day pictures are the only ones yet to be taken.

The table in the hall will be open this week for subscriptions. Anyone desiring an annual must make a down payment before February 2.

In Restrospect—

For forty years Dr. Jarman, our distinguished president, has watched and instigated the gradual growth and improvement of Farmville. He has watched the one block that was the State Normal School expand and assume its present magnitude. He has watched the enrollment triple from three hundred to its present number. Although Farmville has changed, the spirit and ideals that we best find embodied in Dr. Jarman, have ever remained constant. It is to him that we wander when we attempt an expression of Farmville. It is to him we go for advice and consolation, for endowed with the love of young people he is capable of vast understanding and insight.

He has so raised the standard of our school that today it is widely known as an outstanding State Teachers College and, by his great services, he has become equally famed as a genuinely great president. To say that we, as representatives of Farmville students, are grateful for the time, energy, and sacrifices spent on us seems grossly inadequate. But each of us is infinitely humble and deeply gracious, realizing that it is he who has made our school.

So to Dr. Jarman, our orchids for forty wonderful years of leadership and continual attempts at improving our college.

Make Your May Court Selection Carefully

Tomorrow we are to vote for our May Day court, supposedly composed of the twenty-two most beautiful girls in school. The members of May Court are not chosen for their scholastic or leadership abilities for their personality or even their character Beauty, grace, poise, carriage, are the bases on which this honor is based.

It is so easy to vote for the girl who was in spring court last year, for our class or student body leaders, or for someone who has won recognition for her capabilities or personality. As we vote for the May Queen and her court, let us consider only the beauty of the girls. If our close friends are not beautiful, they do not have the quality required for a lovely May Court, so let us be large enough to look beyond them.

Friends and visitors who come to enjoy our May Day judge the beauty of our girls by the court. Surely we want our loveliest girls to represent us and our school. The fact that a girl was in May Court last year is not a foregone conclusion that she is the prettiest girl in school. There may be more beautiful, more stately girls who have yet to be discovered.

Tomorrow night the forty-two girls receiving the most votes in today's nominations will walk across the stage so that we may decide the loveliest twenty-two. As we vote, let us have open and unprejudiced minds. Let us vote with the will to discover the most beautiful girls in our midst, for that is the purpose of May Court.

Gleanings

DR. FRANCIS B. SIMKINS

Two significant developments not directly connected with the defense effort of the American people have grown out of the war. The first is the proposed system of compulsory retirement insurance for all State employees, including teachers; the second is the imposition of price controls by National authority. Although the adoption of such ideas are not means of putting weapons into the hands of soldiers on the firing line, they are designed to keep up the "home front" on which the "battle front" so largely depends. A people who govern themselves are not always intelligent in demanding favors from their rulers; but in one respect their judgment is always sound: they demand a greater and greater degree of social security from their government. Old age pensions and protection from extortion are recognized as vital parts of this security. Governor James H. Price, in a recent speech at Farmville, interestingly ascribed the fall of France to the abandonment by the French government of the social program in favor of the more obvious aspect of the war effort. The French people abandoned a government which they felt had abandoned them.

Old age pensions is a long established tradition of the Federal service and has in recent years been applied by the national government to a host of non-public employments. It seemed ironic that those who teach and work for the State were left out of these provisions for old age. Was it erroneously assumed that teachers and State employees had, surplus earnings out of which they could conveniently save? Or was it assumed that they belonged to "the silent poor" about whom the big-wigs need not worry? But now the dominant powers in Virginia are coming to the rescue. Out of the surplus revenue created by the "war boom" and an intelligent economy are to be allocated funds for subsidizing a gigantic system of compulsory State insurance for the two aforementioned groups. Teachers and public officials are to share in a great social liberty which is gradually being added to the traditional Bil of Rights.

More revolutionary in its efforts will be the imposition by the Federal governmen, of maximum price controls. The only controls of this type which have heretofore been tolerated are those on the so-called public utilities. Here prices are imposed as a compensation for the monopoly which a railroad company or an electric power company enjoys. Other price controls have been of the minimum character high tariffs and agricultural price-fixing as a means of "soaking" the lowly consumer in order to benefit certain classes of merchants and producers. But now a curb is being placed upon the traditional right of the American to charge any price the public will pay. War profiteering, the taking adavntage of vas public expenditures to secure great profits is to be restrained, if not actually eliminated.

Naturally such regulations create bit ter protests from the powerful sellers. Bu a great war is on which has seemingly created an atmosphere in which the sacrificial takes precedence over the selfish. National government has great duties to perform and it cannot run the risk of having its efforts negated by the fabulous prices which may result from no controls. The consumer, whose interests have so often been neglected, demands protection in return for the sacrifices he makes for the war effort. His demands for protection against extortion under war markets are perhaps necessary to prevent the sort of disaster which overtook the South in the 1860's and Germany in the 1920's.

Looking 'Em Over

First this week we want to pass on to you a few little instructions we received about what to do in an Air Raid. We have one warning—do not take them too seriously.

1. As soon as bombs start dropping, run like heck! It doesn't matter where as long as you keep running as fast as is humanly possible! Wear track shoes if available; if people in front of you are slow, you won't have any trouble getting over them.

2. Take advantage of opportunities afforded you when air raid sirens sound the attack warning —(a) If in a bakery grab a pie. (b) If in a movie grab a man.

3. If you find an unexploded bomb always pick it up and shake it as hard as you can. The firing pin may be stuck.

If this doesn't work, leave it in the furnace. The fire department will take care of things later.

4. An incendiary bomb is found burning in a building; throw a bucket of water on it and lie down—you're dead. (a) If no water is near, use gasoline. (b) The properties of the bomb free the hydrogen from the water, causing rapid combustion. In fact, it will explode with a mighty crash.

5. Always get excited and holler bloody murder—it will add to the confusion and scare the children to death.

6. Eat onions and limburger cheese, etc. before entering a crowded air-raid shelter. This will make you very unpopular with the people in your immediate vicinity eliminating any unnecessary discomforture from crowding.

7. If you should be the victim of a direct bomb hit, don't go to pieces! Lie still and you won't be noticed.

8. Knock the air raid wardens down if they start to tell you what to do. They always save the best places for their friends anyway.

Oh, could you tell me?

Mary Owens West's theme song these days might as well be "There've been Some Changes Made"—with Emery dating Virginia Alexander all last week end—ah, these fick.e males!

Cupid Nimmo—Faye to you—is really the fixer-upper—Ah, could you tell us more of the details Jane Ford? Anyway Midwinters at Tech with J. V. Powell seems to be next on her schedule —these Suffolk boys are really the lovers!

Scene around Campus:

M. K. Ingham chatting with Alex DeArmond Friday night in the Rotunda—Sugar Young on furlough from camp—Nancy Naff and Billy (he liked her hair up) Rosser West up to see Betty B—Ella Ann with Bibs—also Lillian and Russell—Anne Warrick and Sara France longingly gazing from above at their former U. of Va. flame in the Rotunda!

Time out for humor (?)

Why wasn't little Peter Rabbit drafted? He got caught in a forest fire and was de-furred. All right —we won't write anymore.

Tech Again:

Ruth Parker is still beaming when she thinks of her week-end at V. P. I. and the Mid-winters to come. You know the Bachelor club hop—Ah memories!

Frosh Flames

Barbara Hudson has a new piece of jewelry—fraternity pin to be exact. Lillan Goddin was mighty perturbed while waiting for her young man Saturday—Well, "absence makes the heart grow fonder" yes, we know—for someone else!

The Blair child was mighty excited about that call she got Monday—the West Coast is a long way, Ann!

On Army: Emily Irby is getting that far-away-look in her eyes—no doubt she is thinking about her trip way up to West Point in the near future!

Ah love! Shirley Cadmus travels all the way to New York to see her young man graduate—

Mix-Ups? Betty Youngberg is befuddled about her two Juniors at Tech—You know Ring Dance!

Moomaw is tired of waiting for Andrews to invite her to Roanoke College so she's going home that week-end anyhow—hope she won't suffer disappointment!

Achievements of Dr. Jarman

By JENNIE MASTERS TABB

The fourth President of State Teachers College, Dr. Joseph Leonard Jarman, has served much longer than all of the others combined. At this writing, in July, 1929, he is in the twenty-eighth year of his incumbency. Dr. Jarman is too well known as an educator, not only throughout Virginia but nationally as well, to need any introduction. It is impossible to put into a brief bulletin even a small part of what has accomplished. The institution has grown, expanded, developed under his wise leadership until today it is recognized as one of the outstanding teachers colleges of the United States.

When Dr. Jarman entered upon his duties in 1902 he found a small school with a faculty of thirteen members, offering three years of academic (or high school) work and one year of professional work. In that year there were only fifty-eight students in the professional course—in 1928 there were 1095. [In 1940-41, there were 1382.]

Under the former Presidents the very small building that had been donated for the beginnings of the normal school had been added to several times. The present Middle West Wing had been erected, there was a small dining hall in the rear, the Science Hall had been built, and the Training School had progressed from a small frame building in which it was first housed, to a nice brick building (a private residence) recently purchased by the school.

From this modest beginning has risen the splendid college of today with its beautiful buildings, its standard college courses, its up-to-date Campus Training School and two Rural Training Schools, its able faculty and its thousands of loyal alumnae scattered over the nation.

The State Teachers College at Farmville is a member of the American Association of Teachers Colleges and also holds membership in the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, [which is the highest rating agency in the South.]

Among the many changes that have taken place during the administration of Dr. Jarman, we may note that the name of the institution has been changed twice. The old State Female Normal School existed as such from 1884 to 1914 when the Virginia Legislature changed it to State Normal School for Women. In 1916 the privilege of conferring degrees was granted and in 1924 it became the present State Teachers College. [Since 1924, the program of studies has been expanded to include eight curricula leading to degrees, besides the two-year courses, leading to the special fields of nursing and dentistry, and to clerical positions.]

During the administration of President Jarman the campus has been extended from time to time until it now occupies approximately 14 acres in the heart of the town; this in the campus proper, without the buildings located off the campus—the President's home, several dormitories, etc. ("The Longwood Estate, just a mile east of Farmville, once the home of General Joseph E. Johnston, was bought by Dr. Jarman, for the College in 1930. . . In this home with an atmosphere of the old South the students have teas, receptions, and hold week-end parties. In the thickly wooded section of the estate is a log cabin where students go in groups for rest and recreation. On the Longwood estate is a large open amphi-theatre where the May Day festivals are held. Here also is a nine-hole golf course for the use of the students and faculty of the College.")

Among the many buildings which have been erected during Dr. Jarman's administration, may be mentioned the East and West Wings, the Middle East Wing, the Training School, Infirmary, Dining-hall, Dormitories, the Laundry and Power Plant, and, the greatest achievement of all, the beautiful Student Building, . . which was erected on faith, Dr. Jarman's faith in the loyalty of students and alumnae and friends. [In the years since the completion of the building, a beautiful new Home Management House has been equipped; three new dormitories and a swimming pool have been added.]

. . . And so the work of the college goes on from year to year, bringing in ever increasing numbers the daughters and pupils of the alumnae, who send them to their Alma Mater [largely, no doubt, because of the character and ability and vision of the man who has directed the affairs of the Institution for forty years.]

Question of the Week

Would You Approve or Disapprove of the Government Drafting Women to Do Defense Work in Their Communities?

Bobby Scott: Well, who else would do it? Certainly, I approve.

Doris Taylor: Of course I approve. In fact, I think it is a wonderful idea.

Mrs. Boysworth: I thoroughly approve. I just think that there are a lot of idle, gossipy women who could give up their teas and bridge games for the government.

Mary Katherine Dodson: With the whole world affected by this crises, and with every man, woman, and child touched in some way by each incident, it is only natural that women be required to do everything in their power to make their communities securely prepared.

Betty Reid: Approve.

SOMETHING ALL CAN DO

• Piercing the Points •

By SHIRLEY PIERCE

Your Class Calls You!—

A glance at the articles on each of the four pages; a shake of the head indicating approval or vice versa; discussion of the subject pro and con; and the passing on of the point, it dangling in mid air; these such gestures pass through our student body each week. A call has been made for a number of persons to support the general basketball practices which are scheduled as the calendar indicates, but to date only a few have shown any interest. Again the notice comes to print and behind this urge a hope that all who in any way are interested in basketball will start marking up the required eight practices which are needed to become a class team player. The color cup comes into view again and to loyal classmates this means the time to move. "REMEMBER YOUR CLASS . . . KEEP THE BALL ROLLING!"

Varsity Warms Up for Season—

Ready, handy, and accurate basketeers are looking for a real season of games. With complete cooperation their practices are underway. To Miss Iler and the squad—Marty, Parham, Hallie, Dottie Sue, Patsy, June, Dot Johnson, Dot Sprinkle, Anne Price, Jean Carr, and Anne Ellett the best of seasons! A schedule of games has not been posted yet, but will be released at an early date. Be on the alert for a notice of the games and support your S. T. C. varsity.

If at First You Don't Succeed—

Then try, try again! Can't just isn't the language to use at the swimming pool because it won't work. The only thing to do in a case like this is to get down to business and learn to paddle. One hundred and nine freshmen made their way through the American Red Cross beginners test and those who missed that time will continue until they complete their course. Nancy Dupuy, swimming instructor, has scheduled afternoon classes for those frosh to enter and soon a full list will be checked as complete.

Practices Begin—

Dorothy Darracott, manager of swimming, has announced the time of practices at the pool for those entering the swimming meet. Eight practices are required for participation on a class team. The meet which is set for February 2 will be run off by competition between classes and at the conclusion the winning team will receive points for their color in the race for the color cup.

Orchesis Presents—

A recital will be featured by the dance club on February 12 in the S. T. C. auditorium for the student body. Preparation and work on the numerous dances is now underway. Later on in the month the club will be hostess to a dance conference or dance symposium which includes guest schools and their instructors. Such a gathering brings together in a unified group the ideas and works of each group. Each of the State Teachers Colleges of Virginia will be present along with Chapel Hill, Womans College of U. N. C., Hollins, Randolph-Macon, and Sweet Briar. Instruction in techniques and fundamentals will be given to all students registered by instructors.

Ping-Pong—

Remember last year's games and all the excitement with the competition? We don't have Mooch with us again to be the victor so somewhere here in the student body is that person who will come out as champ. Instructions about entering the tournament will be announced and it is hoped that the balls and paddles will become very active. Patsy Connelly is in charge of the tournament this season.

Gala Pegasus—

Quite a celebration took place several nights ago when the Pegasus riding club were entertained at their first party of the year. The club now consists of a Hunt Club and jumping group which are working toward an exhibition for the spring.

Class Basketball Team Selected Soon

Members Chosen By New Set-up

Interest in class contests in the basketball field has shown a great decrease this season. Participation has been only by those who were interested in varsity.

A new set-up has been arranged which will involve all persons wishing to play basketball, although they are not members of the varsity squad. Each class needs representation in this field in order to have a recognized team. In order to become a member of your class team it is necessary to attend eight general basketball practices. From those entering into the practice, twelve girls from each of the four classes, freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors, will make up the group from which class team members will be chosen.

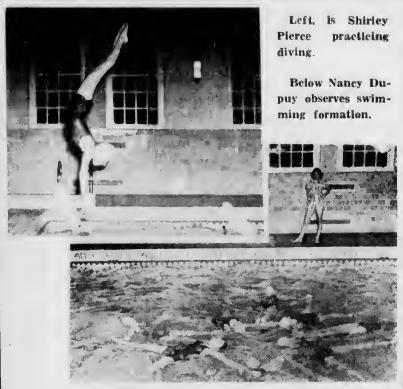
After such a procedure each of the four classes will compete one against the other in a round-robin tournament. In this the six best players of each team will be selected. These girls representing their class and colors will compete in contest games against their opposing colors. After such games come to a close the final victorious team will have earned those points toward the color cup.

Ping Pong Tourney Scheduled February 9

Patsy Connelly, manager of minor sports, announced this week that the annual ping pong tournament, which is sponsored by the Athletic Association, will begin on Monday, February 9.

Equipment for practices may be secured from the golf room, in the shower room, or the Recreation Hall. Girls must furnish their own balls for practices, but the Athletic Association will provide balls for the games.

The winner will gain points toward the color cup for the colors she represents.



Announcements will be made later concerning when those planning to compete may sign up.

Student Teachers Instruct Swimming

Freshman swimming classes in the American Red Cross Beginners course have been divided into several groups. Each group has a specific time in which they have their instruction. The classes are being taught by certified Red Cross Instructors. On Tuesdays from 9 p. m. to 10:00 p. m. Dorothy Darrocott and Gloria Pollard meet Group I. Shirley Pierce and Dorothy Darracott instruct Group II on Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m. Again at 5:00 p. m. Group III is taught by Mildred Droste, Grace Ellerton, and Ruth Dugger.

The classes meet again on Wednesday afternoon when Group I, II, and III receive another period of training. Freshman enrolled in these swimming classes are required to learn the fundamental movements in the art of swimming included in the Beginners course. To date the classes are well under way with the first phase of learning being taught. The more advanced girls who are not yet able to pass such a required test are put into a separate group from those who are unable to swim at all.

Future schedules for the pool are from 4 o'clock until 5 o'clock on Thursday, a general swimming practice with emphasis on class meet work outs. A class for upperclassmen instructions follows at 5 o'clock. Class meet practices are also scheduled for 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. on Fridays. As usual the pool is open on Saturday nights from 8 o'clock to 9:30 p. m. general recreational swimming. Two life guards are at this time on duty and it is premissible to add to class swimming practices at this time.

Interclass Swimming Meet Slated For February 2; Counts 10 Points

Interclass swimming meet will be February 2 at 8 o'clock. Every member of the H2O club is expected to come out and all other swimmers from the different classes. The results count ten points for the winning classes on the color cup.

It is necessary to have eight half-hour swimming practices to be eligible for the meet. The pool will be open for practice on Monday from four to five; Tuesday from ten to ten-thirty; Thursday from four to five; Friday from five to six; and Saturday from eight to nine-thirty.

The events will consist of fifty yard free style, fifty yard breast stroke, fifty yard back stroke, seventy-five yard relay race, one hundred yard free style, and diving exhibitions. The judges have not been selected yet.

Persons entering the interclass meet will be among those eligible for the varsity squad tryouts which will take place within a few weeks after the meet.

Orchesis Initiates Six Apprentices

Recital Scheduled For February 12

Six apprentices received their formal initiation into the Orchesis Modern Dance Group of S.T.C. last night, Tuesday, January 20. The girls, Ruth Dugger, Newport News; Grace Ellerton, Norfolk; Lulie Jones, Richmond; Louise McCorkle, Farmville; Shirley Pierce, Roanoke; and Gloria Pollard, Richmond have been working with the dance club since last May when they were entered as apprentices. Each of the girls were members of the modern dance fundamentals class previous to this year and several are now in the dance composition class under the direction of Miss Emily Kauzlarich, advisor of the club.

The first feature of the new year will be in the form of a Dance Recital to be given on February 12 in the State Teachers College Auditorium. Club members have been re-working some of the old numbers to be used along with the new for this program. Dipping into a lighter bit of dance this year the club has as its highlight number "Bowl of Blood" a dramatization of Robertson and Jeffers from the new book "Angry at the Sun". Johnny Pancake, of Hampden-Sydney, will be the voice used in this unusual presentation.

A complete list of dancers and program as it will be presented will be announced later.

Draft Creates New Problem For "Twelfth Night" Players

"Like other audiences—only more so", responded Mary Haynsworth, one of the Chekhov players when asked how the Farmville group reacted to "Twelfth Night". Miss Haynsworth, one of the two Southerners in the troupe, has played the part of Maria, lady-in-waiting to the Countess Olivia, for four years.

"You seemed to enjoy so much the broader parts of the comedy", was the remark of Alan Harkness, who portrayed the Countess' fool. When asked about his career, Mr. Harkness, an Australian, replied that acting "just gets in the blood and there's no getting away from it. I tried something else for several years, but it didn't work," he said.

Beatrice Straight, in the part of Viola, has been with the group for five years and declared that she loves acting, particularly in the South. "You were a marvelous audience."

"Most of the players can take any part in the play", Miss Straight said, "but Ronald Bennett and I always have the same parts because they can't find any other two who look enough alike to be twins." Mr. Bennett plays the part of Sebastian, Viola's twin.

The Chekhov players are under the directions of Michael Chekhov, one of Russia's most famed actors, and have their home theater in Ridgefield, Connecticut. They played in The Little Theater in New York Christmas and are now on a tour of the South and West. Their performance here was the first in this year's tour and they left Farmville early Sunday morning for Agnes Scott College in Decatur, Georgia, where they presented "Twelfth Night" again on Monday night. The group, consisting of twenty-one people, including actors and stage hands, travel in a bus, but the scenery and stage properties, designed and made at the Chekhov School, are transported in a large truck. There is a truck full of properties for each play.

"At present we are giving Twelfth Night," Hurd Hatfield, who played Sir Andrew Aguecheek, explained. "The draft has taken so many actors from the other plays. The draft has created quite a problem. Two of the actors in "Twelfth Night"—those who portrayed Malvolio and Orsino—are new in the troupe, and their performance Saturday was their first. The draft will take several more in April", he added.

"The Chekhov players began in England several years ago, but sensing trouble after Munich, we came to America", Miss Straight explained. She described Chekhov as being "about 44, and full of ideas. But he won't act now. He won much fame as an actor in Russia, but left after the Revolution there. He directs a school of acting in Ridgefield, but we are the only organized troupe he sends on tours."

"Most of the players are American", said Mr. Frye, who portrayed Orsino, "but there is one Russian, one Canadian, and one Australian".

"Something always happens during a performance", Miss Haynsworth remarked. "Usually some scenery falls, but we've never had a curtain before that wouldn't open. Sometimes we laugh at the wrong time—it's so easy in this play!"

Wartime Fashions

War Lends Practical Note To Feminine Elegance

By JANE CABELL SANFORD

After dark. . . . . a blaze of lights! and you inordinately lovely in a gown that captures a gala after-dark mood. A gown that scores a direct hit. For in these electrified times when things are moving at a mad clip, you've got to make an impression—and a date—fast. This year will make it easier for such Stuka-bomber techniques, for there will be a great revival of interest in the formal evening gown. The woman of mystery, the femme fatale, will emerge from her hiding place among the moth balls. And with her will come a galaxy of new gadgets. Jewels, real and fake, (regardless of taxes) will be more and more used. You'll clip them to your evening gloves, at your neck, or in your hair. Besides jewelery, you'll accumulate other remodeled fantasies—ostrich feather fans, beads, bangles, and mantillas and scarves for the head. Nightfall will become a time for all sorts of elaborate preening.

To be really defenseful your formal clothes will be feminine, but very practical. You will buy dresses you can wear many times in the season; you will cling to that restrained elegance which immediately registers quality like that found in the evening dress modeled by Agnes Patterson.

Stampeding the stag lines will become an easy job in such a striking two sorted green numbah. Billowing swishy taffeta (music to the male ear for centuries) with tiers of deep green velvet skirts the dramatic beauty of the longer shirred velvet bodice. An off-the-shoulder neckline adds a daring note to the charming simplicity, and the whole ensemble presents an invariably winning bet. The up-keep is negligible and if you have a not-too-nifty figger, such a dress will give you more glamor. The style's one that will be good for many seasons to come; and it's just as appropriate for dining in the city bright spots, as for dancing at campus proms. A. P. wears a small gold locket and gold bracelet as her only ornaments.

Miggie Mish also approves a double-dater; a subtle, sophisticated dinner suit, smart for dining and evening wear. The low-colored embroidery on the pockets presents a second color note carried out in the bolero jacket, not shown. Any sophisticate would OK this for its classic lines and sleek smartness. As a formal dress without the jacket, Miggie wears with it elbow-length white kid gloves, and a little white ostrich feather in her hair (which can't be seen in the above picture). Born to be borrowed is her boxy type natural grey kidskin coat with its deep slash pockets and new moulded shoulders, which is worn here as an evening wrap. But which can also be used as a dressy afternoon top coat on other occasions.

Yes, old simplicity and individuality accented with new trimmings will prevail in new forms' fashion ideas. So if you're fashion and other wise you'll revert to the practical this year.

"Remember Girl Harbor"-Says H-S

(Special to The Rotunda)
By CHUCK WHITEHOUSE

What with the approaching quiz contest in the rarified air at Hampden-Sydney, the revenge-hungry Tigers are sharpening their teeth. Out of the excitement has come a slogan (every war has its slogan) that typifies the do-or-die spirit with which the lads at Death Valley are preparing for the February 17th salient in the S.T.C. auditorium. It's "Remember Girl Harbor"—a stinging reproach to the Garnet and Gray.

The investigation which ensued after last year's defeat laid the blame in no particular quarter, but most people agree that it was a case of being unprepared. The blitz tactics of Hughes, Rice, Moyer, Smith, and Gibson were just too much for the A-B-C-D-E fleet from Hampden-Sydney.

So, it's "Remember Girl Harbor" out this way—and the girls better look out!

In the eliminations already held, Cousar, a member of last year's team, was reported as leading the scoring, with Keith Eubank, another letterman, not far behind.

Red Cross Sponsors Assistance Courses

Miss Grace E. Mix has announced that the Red Cross Staff Assistance Course being offered to S. T. C. students, will be given in Dr. Walmsley's class room Tuesday night from 9 o'clock to 10 o'clock and Wednesday night from 8:30 p. m. to 9:30 p. m.

The classes will consist of information in regard to Red Cross services and a general study of office routine. Other things included in the course are telephone technique and general staff knowledge. The course is under the direction of Miss Grace E. Mix, but the instruction will be given by prominent citizens in the community.

Cottrell Assumes Duties as Hostess

Martha Cottrell, senior from Richmond, has been recently appointed as dining room hostess to fill the position formerly held by Nancy Dupuy, who resigned last quarter because of added duties and responsibilities of Red Cross First Aid and swimming instruction.

Martha has been prominent in S. T. C. activities and has done outstanding work on the Student Council.

Hans Kindler Leads National Symphony Richmond Jan. 26

Many music-lovers from Farmville and vicinity are planning to attend the second of a series of concerts at the Mosque in Richmond, played by the National Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Hans Kindler, Monday night, January 26 at 8:30 o'clock. The orchestra will be presented by the Symphony Society of Richmond, of which John J. Howard is president.

Four outstanding works will comprise the program: Suite from the Ballet "Cephale et Procris," by Gretry-Mottl; Symphony in B Flat Major, by the French composer, Chausson; Don Juan (tone poem), by Richard Strauss; The Polovtsian Dances from "Prince Igor," by Borodin.

The orchestra has more than 80 players, most of whom have been with Dr. Kindler since he established the organization more than 11 years ago. Musicians and conductor have worked together long and hard, until for several years their performances have been considered well nigh perfect.

Music Department Gives Demonstration

Last Friday Virginia Richards, Virginia Barksdale, Marie Brickert and Catherine Bodine with A. H. Strick, director of music at S. T. C. went to Syringa High School and gave demonstrations in Toy Symphony and Glee Club work.

Virginia Richards gave a demonstration of the Toy Symphony to thirty children with Marie Brickert assisting. Virginia Barksdale directed the mixed Glee Club with Miss Catherine Bodine accompanying.

A large audience consisting of the entire student body, the Woman's Club and the P. T. A. were in attendance.

Four S.T.C. Girls Attend Conference

Nancy Naff, Frances Rosebro, Agnes Patterson and Ann Ware have been selected to represent Farmville State Teachers College at the International Student Service conference which will be held on January 30 and 31 at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

This particular conference is designed for outstanding student leaders with a basic interest in the mobilization of the campus for the war effort as well as for "Winning the Peace." Student discussion groups are planned for students in the social and political sciences as well as for the heads of campus organizations. One discussion group will devote its attention to campus organization for defense and past war planning. Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt and the youth representative of the office for Civilian Defense will participate in one of these sessions.

The conference will provide an opportunity for student leaders to compare notes on the way in which campus programs can further the efforts of the nation in attaining a clear and vital statemen of the ideals and objectives which will maintain national morale.

May Day Plans Laid By May Wertz

Nominations for the 1942 May queen and her court were made at the table in the hall today. Tomorrow night, Thursday, January 22, there will be a called meeting of the student body to vote for the queen, maid-of-honor, and twenty members of the court. These will be chosen from the forty-two girls receiving the highest number of nominations.

May Wertz, chairman of May Day, has announced also the theme of the celebration.

The scene will be laid in the early eighteenth century when colonial Virginia was at its height; the days of gaiety, great balls, and festive celebrations among the landed gentry who entertained on their estates. Williamsburg, colorful capital of Virginia, will form a picturesque background for the festival. The specific time is during the governorship of Alexander Spotswood, adventuresome and bold leader of the Knights of the Golden Horseshoe and the toast of the people.

Frosh Production Committees Chosen

Myrtle Lee Holt, of Richmond, was elected chairman of the freshman production committee last Wednesday after the resignation of Ruth Parker.

Other chairmen selected to assist her with their committees are Mildred Carter Clanton, chairman, Kyle Ainsworth, Betty Birchfield, Betty Kiger and Fay Johnson, theme; Dodie Jones, chairman assisted by Margaret Kennedy, Virginia Terrell, Sara Bird Williams, and Mary Watkins, publicity; Anne Warrick, chairman, with Martha Higgins and Mary White, properties.

Margaret Prey heads the make-up group, assisted by Mildred Ames, Jean Garland and Lillian Goddin. Business committee is headed by Anne Payne with Harriett Moore, Patricia McCormick, Lois Baughman, and Kitty Parrish on the committee.

Mary Lou Shannon Captures S. T. C. May Day Queen Title

The Rotunda

Volume XXI FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA, WEDNESDAY, JAN. 28, 1942 NO. 11

Nancy Naff, who will be Maid of Honor

Mary Lou Shannon, who will be May Queen

Nancy Naff Chosen Maid of Honor; Theme Portrays Colonial Virginia

Eleven Seniors, Five Juniors, Two Sophomores, Two Freshmen Elected May Court Attendants

Mary Lou Shannon, senior from Richmond, will reign as queen over the 1942 May Day festival of Farmville State Teachers College as the results of a student body election last Thursday night, January 22. Nancy Naff, senior from Roanoke, who followed close behind in the contest, will be maid of honor.

Twenty students, including eleven seniors, five juniors, two sophomores, and two freshmen, were victorious in the election for the title of May Court members.

Both Nancy and Mary Lou have been members of May Court for the past three years. Nancy will reign here as Mardi Gras queen on February 14 and Mary Lou will be a member of the Mardi Gras court.

Court Members

Seniors who will be attendants are Ann Boswell, Petersburg; Gay Ward Brown, Lynchburg; Martha Cottrell, Richmond; Elizabeth Gunter, Richmond; Polly Keiter, Staunton; Dorothy Lawrence, Salem; Elizabeth Ann Parker, Portsmouth, Cottie Radspinner, Richmond; Frances Rosebro, Roanoke; Allene Overbey, Chatham; and May Wertz, Roanoke.

Representing the junior class in May Court will be Ann Bradshaw, Hampton; Sara Massie Goode, Dinwiddie; Helen Wiley Hardy, Farmville; Dorothy Childress, Christiansburg; and Agnes Patterson, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Sophomores Sara Hardy, Farmville, and Mary Evelyn Pearsall, Roancke, were elected to the court. Nancy Dashiell, Norfolk, and Mary Lou Trible, Washington, D. C., triumphed as representatives of the freshman class.

These girls were elected to their respective positions in an election in which forty-two girls contested. Nine of these girls were in last year's May Day court.

Theme Is Historic

The theme for this year's May Day will center around the early eighteenth century when colonial Virginia was at its height. Williamsburg will form a picturesque background for the festival. The specific time is during the governorship of Alexander Spotswood, adventuressome and bold leader of the Knights of the Golden Horseshoe and the toast of the people.

Virginian Offers Covers With Name on Front

Annual Deadline Set for February 2

All those who have paid in full for the 1942 Virginians will be able to obtain an annual with a padded cover and their full name on it for the added price of fifty cents, Anne Ayers, editor, announced this week.

This year's annual will contain 776 pictures of individual girls. It will be larger this year, containing over two-hundred pages. Every organization and every pictures will be indexed so that each girl will be able to find the pictures of all organizations to which she belongs.

The art work contained on the Virginian will be done entirely by the students. Anne Turner is head of the art staff.

The theme follows the life of an S. T. C. student, and portrays the effect that the various college activities have on shaping her character. Each phase of the school in featured, and the pictures of the eight most outstanding seniors climax the book. Snapshots that give the life of the school close the annual.

The deadline for subscriptions will be February 2. All Virginians must be paid for in full before that time. Any member of the Virginian staff may take subscriptions.

Alumnae Magazine Issued in February

Winter edition of the Alumnae Magazine, which is published by the Alumnae Association with the help of Alpha Kappa Gamma, is expected to appear early in February.

An outstanding feature which will be introduced in this issue, and which will be continued for some time, is a series of sketches of the lives of certain individuals who will be recalled as former teachers and members of the administration. Among those which will appear written by Miss Pauline Camper and Miss Mary Peck will be Mr. B. M. Cox, Mrs. L. W. Cline, Miss Lulu Andrews, Dr. Milledge, and Miss Bessie Jamison.

News from the various alumnae chapters will be submitted by Mrs. M. B. Coyner, while Sara Cline, a member of Alpha Kappa Gamma, will write campus news.

A poem by Josephine Johnson will appear. Miss Johnson, an alumna, has won several awards and honors for her outstanding poetry.

Miss Grace Moran, chairman of the Board of Editors, will submit news of the Granddaughters Club, including individual pictures of each member.

The class of 1941 donated, for the first time, a substantial fund for alumnae magazine expenses. This publication has a circulation of 6,000.

Sara Cline, editor of the Rotunda, is also editor of the publication, and Allene Overbey, present editor of the Colonnade, is associate editor.

Curtain Rises Tonight on Premiere Showing "Grandmother's Nightmare"

Songs Highlight Soph Musical

The curtain will go up on what the sophomores hope will be production history tonight at 8 o'clock when "Grandmother's Nightmare", filled with song, dance, and clever repartee stages its premiere in the large auditorium at S. T. C.

This show climaxes rehearsals since Christmas and has been a constant devourer of time for the past three weeks.

Connelly Announces Theme

Patsy Connelly, chairman, announces the theme to be a contrast of State Female Normal School as it was shortly after Dr. Jarman's arrival here with the modern State Teachers College of today. Ella Banks Weathers portrays Grandmother, who, in her sleep, recalls girlhood days. Elizabeth Tennent as the old fashioned school marm and Nelle Quinn as the modern S. T. C. girl contrast the has-been and the now.

Music Plays Important Part

Consequent reveries reveal Nancy Bruce singing "The White Cliffs of Dover", Mimi Wegger singing "Danny Boy" and Virginia Mae Ellett singing "Blues in the Night", A chorus directed by Beth Johnson supplements these solo parts. Kitty Vaughan and Grace Ellerton are teamed as partners in a waltz routine, while Betty Gray Smithdeal instructs Mildred Droste and Shirley Pierce in a tap dance. Carolyn Bargamin heads the music and has rewritten words to her hit, "Don't Ever Leave Me" of last year's freshmen production.

"Grandmother's Nightmare" was written by Warwick Mitchell in collaboration with Jean Arrington and Louise Bell.

Tickets for the production, which are twenty cents, will be on sale at the door.

Classes Sponsor "March of Dimes"

Competitive drives between the freshmen, sophomore, junior and senior classes at S. T. C. for the 1942 March of Dimes Campaign is being sponsored this month.

S. L. Graham, business manager of S. T. C., is serving as chairman of the fight against infantile paralysis in Prince Edward County, and Raymond H. French is head of the S. T. C. committee. The presidents of the various classes, Mary Katherine Dodson, Betty Boutchard, Faye Nimmo, Harriet Moore and Nancy Naff, student body president, will serve on this committee. Three members from each class will be appointed to take contributions at the table in the hall.

S. T. C. with all of America, is doing her part as men and women in every state to combine against infantile paralysis. In the past three years 26,000 new names have been added to those who have been stricken with the disease. Medical records show that for the past year, each case required treatment amounting to $1,000, slightly more than $3.00 a day. On January 30, in cities, towns and villages in Virginia and throughout the nation, America will climax this campaign with celebrations of the sixtieth birthday—the Diamond Jubilee Birthday—of the President of the United States.

S. T. C. is asked to make every effort to promote the work of the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis. The National Foundation is a non-profit membership organization. More than 2000 of its chapters are serving in the United States.

Y. W. Committees Include Freshman

Frances Rosebro, president, announced this week lists of new members to serve on Y. W. C. A. committees for 1942. Sarah Wood, Jean Guy and Phillis Butler have been named on the library committee. Those selected for the membership committee are Dody Jones, Mary Ellen Frantz, and Sara Bird Williams.

Members of the publicity committee include Ophelia Whittle, Nannie Webb, Nancy Duvall, Virginia Kent Sedgely, Frances Quillen, Gloria Sheppard, Peggy Gray and Martha Higgins. New students serving on prayers committee will be Kyle Barnhill, Anne Fitzgerald, Roberta Davis, Mary Plummer Edmunds, Morris Stephenson, Helen Wilson, Betty Agnew and Edith Sanford. New members of the Music committee are Nancy O'Byrne, Virginia Hitchings, Jacquelyn Anderson, Anne Blair and Virginia Dare Via.

Mary Edna Bounds, Betty Cross, Anne Evans, Faith Hughes, Sally Robertson, Anne Robins and Kate Thompson have been listed on the service committee. Sing committee has announced as new members, Elizabeth Butzner, Betty Blackwell, Fannie Will Hall, Pat Maddox, Alice Nichols, Mary Sue Palmer, Pamela Starling, Kitty Patrick, Alice Sparger and Mary Elizabeth White. Those new girls belonging to the public affairs committee are Lucy Messick, Marie Nichols, Florence Timberlake, Virginia Terrell and Nell Holloway, while Rebecca Lacy, Margaret Kitchin, Nancy Williams, Anne Warrick and Margaret Hiner will be on the social committee.

Library To Sponsor "Old Book" Campaign For Men In Service

The library is sponsoring the Victory Book campaign here at S. T. C. Its purpose is to supplement the Army and Navy library service with gift books. If the supply exceeds this demand, the books will be given to those people for whom library service, because of industrialization and consequent increase of population, is practically impossible. Nine organizations including Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire girls, and the library service of the W. P. A. have volunteered their services throughout the country to spread publicity and secure workers for collecting the books.

Books of a definite value are the most desirable gifts. Arranged in order of perfence, the types of books wanted are those on applied psychology, current affairs, military publication, crime and F. B. I., English grammar, and algebra. Dime-store novels and cheap literature is not welcomed, but textbooks and interesting novels no longer in use are needed.

Miss Snead, librarian, and Mrs. Boysworth, assistant librarian, will be in charge of the campaign here.

Juniors Sponsor Cavaliers for Dance

Betty Youngberg, chairman of the Junior Benefit Dance has announced that the Lynchburg Cavaliers will play for the dance February 28.

The dance is for the benefit of the Red Cross and the Southside Hospital. A decorative scheme has not yet been decided upon.

Washington and Lee Collegians to Play For Mardi Gras

Washington and Lee Collegians of Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia, have been scheduled to play for Mardi Gras, February 14.

Pi Gamma Mu has chosen Marilyn Johnson and Mildred Cook as heralds and Lois Baughman as the page at the Queen's court.

Jane Sanford, costume chairman, has announced that all girls will come in costumes and all boys in formal attire, both masked. Masks will be sold at the table in the hall and at the door.

Other committees include business, Anne Ayers and Lucy Turnbull; music, Anne Ellett; decoration, Jean Hatton; and floor show, Agnes Patterson.

Tickets at 55c and $1.10 went on sale January 26, and at the same time the prizes went on display at Martins. Spectator tickets for the dance and floor show will be sold at twenty-five cents, and tickets for the dance may be bought from members of Pi Gamma Mu.

Spring Play Slated For March 13 and 14

"Death Takes a Holiday", by Walter Ferris will be presented by the S. T. C. Dramatic Club on March 13 and 14. Miss Leola Wheeler, director, announced recently.

The play will be presented free of charge to all students and will be given as a lyceum program on March 14. Tickets will be sold to town people, and the proceeds will go to "Bundles for Britain". In this way the Dramatic Club makes its contribution.

We Welcome Change

Few of us are willing to adhere wholly to change. There will always be those of us who censure actions that are taken for our own benefit. We, as a majority, and therefore a ruling body, have instigated the changes made in the dining room breakfasts. We must realize, though, that in effecting a change for ourselves, we are likewise rearranging the schedule of those who stand directly responsible for our getting breakafasts at all.We should all be grateful for the changes that have already been granted us, never forgetting what we think best for us might be greatly at variance with what can most conveniently be offered us.

Little Foxes That Gnaw at the Vine

At a time when all our thoughts and energies should be bent toward aiding our country, we have been little and petty enough to deserve attention being called to our behavior in our library and on our halls.

Perhaps our loud talking, laughing, even whispering is the result of mere carelessness, but carelessness can so easily become selfishness. The general disorder in the library is unforgivable among college students who are supposedly mature enough to conduct themselves in a manner conducive to happiness of the group. Yet in our library, the place for study, and on our halls during study hours, or after sleeping hours have officially started we show our love for the loud and uproarious.

It should never be necessary for the librarian to ask us to be quiet; certainly she should not need to warn us twice. Yet in our thoughtless selfishness we are so quick to forget that our neighbor needs, even desires, to study.

Let us yield our more selfish natures to the good that can prevail in each of us if only we give it a chance. A heritage for an education is one that we cannot rightly tamper with.

Victory Books

The Victory Book Campaign should affect each of us, for, in this way, many of us who feel that we cannot contribute directly to war relief will be enabled to help those men now undergoing sacrifices for us. The spirit of this campaign is to be its important feature. Really worthwhile books—books that might be helpful or stimulating to the men now in training, are those desired. Also the desire to contribute to this cause must be prompted by an earnest, heartfelt wish to do something. This is but a small request, which, if fulfilled, would bring happiness to many. Let us be awake to the present situation enough to want to relieve the monotony of camp life by sending enjoyable reading material to the men there.

Gleanings

By MARY FINCH
Instructor in Religious Education

Two or three things that I have heard lately will, I hope, stay with me through the storms of today and tomorrow. Returning from a conference recently one of our S. T. C. students closed her report with the following statement: "Many conflicting opinions were expressed, leaving most of us puzzled, and some in despair regarding the solutiuon of both personal and world problems. But as we knelt at the Communion Table in the closing service, we forgot our dismay, and went away certain that in our God and our relationship to Him, is the answer to all problems."

Another idea I want to carry with me these days is one I received from the radio message last Sunday—"Today to be able to maintain the integrity of our souls is our challenge—yes, even more, our supreme necessity"—I am sure all of us have certain conviction concerning truth, faith, hope, etc. We have had them for years. If worthy, they have grown in meaning and in depth. Passing events did not give us these convictions, nor can they take them away. Change will not hurt them; even death cannot destroy them. To lose our sense of direction, our serenity of spirit, our hold upon God would be tragedy more terrible than falling bombs. Whatever helps us maintain the integrity of our inner lives, let us cling to it with every ounce of strength we have. Then, and then only, will we find ourselves some day part of that great procession of personalities that moves ever toward God, the Father of all.

One more thing that I want to remember these days—"the permanence of peace and the impermanence of war"—A religious leader writing of the past reminds us of the thirty years war waged in Europe many years ago, and the civil war going on in England then. Today the names of the generals, the military strategy, and the fact that ten or more countries were involved in the conflict—all this is forgotten by the average person—but Francis Bacon and Ben Johnson, John Milton and Bunyan, Velasquez and Van Dyck, Rembrandt and Reubens—all living in those chaotic war-torn years, are known and appreciated by all educated people. Neither war nor its disastrous results kept those noble spirits from making their immortal contributions to the life of mankind. The same writer suggests that the historian of tomorrow will be more interested in the work of George W. Carver, in the plastics and agriculture, Heinrich Harlein and Domagh, discoverers of sulfanilamide,the sculpture of Epsteoin, the music of Sibelius and the no violent philosophy of Gandhi, than he is in the achievements of Mussolini, Petain and Hitler.

Writing from bombed London Leslie Weatherhead is able to say: "I exult in the eternal strength of truth. It will irresistibly emerge. One man believes one thing and one another. Never mind! The truth of both will live—Whittle down your creed to a few words, if need be, so long as it is your creed, and not a mumbo-jumbo of words you took over from some long dead ancestor. Let your certainty grow slowly, if necessary, so long as your anchor grips the truth. The truth will keep your heart steady in the storm!"

Question of the Week

What Do You Think About the New Breakfasts in the Dining Room?

Helen DeLong: I think they're very good and a great improvement over the old.

Grace Scales: I like them and think that more girls will come to breakfast now.

Ellen Hudgins: I think they're wonderful.I like them. They are just what I want.

Dot Marrow: I think it's good but I like a little variety.

Martha Anderson: I like them. Now I can get all I want to eat.

Peggy Turner: I am very much in favor of them. They're so much better than the others we used to have.

Carolyn Rouse: I think it's fine; especially the cocoa.

Texie Belle Felts: I'm all for it in a big way. We want to continue until June 1942, anyway. I especially like cocoa.

Elizabeth Summerfield: The new breakfasts are all right.

Flora Winn: I'm crazy about them.

LaReine Thornton: I like them.

Mildred Bowen: Fine!

May Wertz: I like it fine, but how about a little coffee to wake us up. . .

Mary Hunter Edmunds: I like it fine. Could we have milk sometimes in place of cocoa?

Emily Mahood: Not very substantial.

Norma Bowies: Oh, it's wonderful—makes me feel right at home —almost.

Betty Sexton: I love it. It gives me wim and wigor.

Martha Hammack: I like them very much. I used to eat very little for breakfast. Now my appetite is much better, and I believe that other people feel the same way I do about the new breakfasts.

A Seat At The Cinema

SWAMP WATER

For a definitely different movie see "Swamp Water" at the State Wednesday and Thursday. Taken from the serial in the Saturday Evening Post, "Swamp Water" is a portrayal of life in the awesome Okefenokee Swamp of Georgia. The movie features Walter Brennan, Walter Huston, Anne Baxter, and Ana Andrews. Brennan, three times winner of the academy award, does a convincting performance of the hunted—but safely hidden murderer. Although there is a tendency for melodrama, the story offers enough thrillers to make it well worth sixty minutes of your time and twenty-eight cents of your allowance.

TARZAN'S SECRET TREASURE

Johnny Weissmeller swings again! Maureen O'Sullivan, the perfect jungle-mate, does a sleight of hand and the result is a home in the tree-tops. All this happens in "Tarzan's Secret Treasure" at the State Friday and Saturday. The theme revolves around an attempt to permeate nature with ugly civilization. Underwater swimming exhibitions, a crocodile battle, a narrow escape from a rhinoceros, and savage native rites all add local color and suggest this as a probably "likee" for you Friday and Saturday matinee idols.

GREAT GUNS

Laurel and Hardy, cast as typical draftees, really shoot the works in "great guns" at the State Theatre Monday and Tuesday. They make the somewhat oftenly used 'camp drama' rather amusing with their slapstick comedy and humorous naivete. From all we can gather, it should be worth your laughs.

An Ultimatum

No Fair Telling

The past days have been rushed ones—what with the effects of Commercial Club dance to overcome and the excitement of the oncoming Tech and W. & L. dances to get one even more off balance—not to mention the daily routine that keeps us all shot for sleep; but this could go on forever!

Poetical Punster

Joe took his aunt out riding.
Though icy was the breeze.
He put her in the rumble
To see his anti-freeze!

Return Engagement

Janet English, Rosa Courter, and Anna George made the place seem like home again what with their return to the dance. Why don't you do it more often?

A Sandwiched Escapade

Nimmo and Jane Ford almost nightly, it sounds, start a call to buy their sandwiches, the dimes from which make possible their trek to Tech.

Tech Triuumph

Helen Ott is still carrying the torch for Sonny—the love of her life; according to her, Tech is still God's country—not God forsaken, either.

Quizzical Queries

We've been wondering but won't dare ask: Sara Wade about Owen's Morgue, Cline about her Corporal, Libby Bernard about the new addition to her jewelry box and Ruth Wiley about the dazzler on her third finger, left hand.

Stag Statistics

Mary Lou Trible's date was really on the all right side. Swinging that line was Sexton's Jack, too. Gloria Pollard threw a few curve balls, and was off on a snaking spree! Kitchen did herself up in fine fashion with an attractive from N. C. State. We're thinking Sarah Jeffreys will change her opinion of blind dates, for hers, a junior from Tech, was something of a prize, we hear! Helen Ott and Betty Sexton up a tree Saturday night.

Biographical Bits

Hitler, Adolph—German painter of the 20th century. At one time submitted plans for laying out Europe, but they were not accepted. Pacifists so long as he got what he wanted.

Mussolini, Benito—Early ruler of Italy, designed a fence to sit on and sat on it.

Stalin, Joseph—operated on the theory of "everything I have is yours, comrade, but—(censored) you'd better not touch it.

Windsor, Edward—Playwright of the 20th century. Most famous work: "Love Conquers All—Maybe."

Chamberlain—Inventor of the umbrella, designed originally for keeping rain off. Later, used it to scare off politicians by opening and closing it rapidly in their faces.

Things We Adore—Nice escaplist reading and moving pictures—the rush of S. T. C. girls to take Red Cross courses and to buckle down to training — President Roosevelt, Hampden-Sydney and Dr. Jarman—New breakfasts in dining room—Quiz programs and S. T. C.'s last year's victory over Hampden-Sydney's brainy five—Commercial Club Dance—Twelfth Night and the roaring laughter it brought from the audience — Shannon's after Hampden-Sydney exams are over—Dr. Sherwood Eddy with his straight-to-the-point-talks and world knowledge—parade of pulchritude as candidates for May Court walked across stage last Thursday night —S. T. C. efforts to help in defense—getting on the Dean's List or making the honor roll.

Things We Deplore: Japanese, Nazis and Pearl Harbor—Hampden-Sydney's losing Saturday night's game to Medical College—"snaking" done at last dance—the time we waste at Shannon's—S. T. C. girl's growing appreciation of slang and "rug" cutting—unnecessary use of electricity in college—lack of sleep—living on the dime we used to dance on—unexcused absences—draft dogers—any lack of patriotism—hours wasted in "bull" sessions—(H.-S. C. especially)—late arrivals to chapel and class—late comers from dances waking everyone on their halls.

In the Mailbag

Dear Editor,

Just as a pretty face can be ruined by poor posture, so can a beautiful campus be ruined by trash. And, too, somehow it reflects badly on the students to see so much paper around.

Such seems the case here at Farmville. Up and down each walk, in fact, all the over campus are littered candy wrappers, paper bags, and bits of note-paper. It's really so easy to carry that wrapper or scrap of paper to the nearest trash can. It isn't far. We wouldn't just drop it on the lawn at home, would we? Well, this school—these dormitories, this campus is our home for the next few years.

Inside the buildings it is no better than on the campus. Around some of the trash cans in the halls there is more on the outside than on the inside. Jeanne D'Arc is almost sacred to us at Farmville and yet the hands of the beautiful statue in the Rotunda serve as a combination ash tray and trash can.

We can't quite respect people who destroy property, and yet we ruin our walls with lipstick and pencil marks, we cut our tables and desks, we carelessly and thoughtlessly break the plaster in our rooms. These buildings and furnishings are not ours—if they were, we would probably take better care of them. Moreover, these pastimes—if they can be called such—are extremely childish and absolutely unworthy of college students.

What can we do about this disgraceful—it is disgraceful state of affairs? It's up to each individual student to carry that bit of paper to a trash can, even if it means a few extra steps, and to put it in, to refrain from mutilating our tables and walls.

Why not have a Clean-Up Week, and have each class responsible for a part of the campus and certain of the dorms? I'd like to see Joan Court minus the trash. I've a funny feeling it would be pretty.

Sincerely,
Citizen Jane

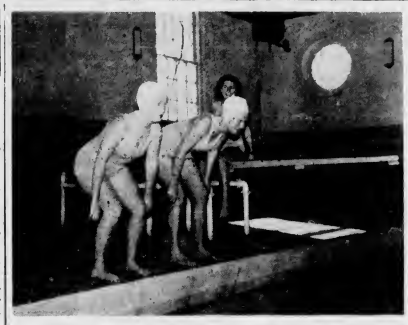
Wake Up and Learn . . .

Swimming is more than a pastime; it has made it possible for many thousands to retain youth. It comprises a whole code of scientifically developed physical culture as well as a complete range of sporting activities. Those who practice swimming in any form should not be content unless they are able to take a real share in its multiple benefits, and this they cannot do without proper guidance and instruction. The individual who has no idea of how to breathe properly or of the correct technique of the various strokes, and when and how to make the many movements, is wasting time and energy. Swimming incorrectly will soon tire the leg and arm muscles, while improper breathing will put a strain on the heart and lungs, causing the swimmer, especially a BEGINNER, to leave the water feeling very much exhausted. A right beginning is therefore vitally important, and with such equipment here at our college there is no reason why each individual entered into the swimming classes directed by a certified instructor cannot make the best of it.

Your Color Cup . . .

From approximately 900 of us there are a very few who seem to have found time to do much thinking about that small cup on the mantle in the Rotunda. For some reason it is a big part of our life here—not books involved—not hours of research for the next day—but with it is found that spirit which brings together a part of our school life besides each day's classes. Yet, it means work—but most of the time it is done by only a few and often the same few. All should have a part in its honor even if it is only supporting our team in a contest.Make this little cup mean more to you! Remember from each contest in the color race points are added, and in the end winners carry the banner all the year on the cup. Don't let a practice for an event "ride."

Green-White Versus Red-White . .



Interclass swimming practices have been scheduled but not so many have turned out. A required 8 practices are necessary for entrance on a class team. Because of interference of classes with open-practice time it is possible to swim at a scheduled time at night. More representatives are needed from each class in order to have the event on February 2. This contest has always been favored by the students and brings an hour of enjoyment with spirit added. There is one week left before the colors are off.

A Goal in Basketball . . .

General basketball practices are each Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday afternoons at 4, 5, and 4 o'clock respectively. The new set-up of a round robin fashion has been announced, and it is expected that at least twelve representatives form each class will participate in the games. Color games have not started yet, but will as soon as the required number are "out". Varsity members will not make up the team, so remember players will be needed.

A Change in the Weather . . .

Gone is all the slippery ice and snow that we had a few weeks ago and now it looks like the spring bird is ready to return. Such lovely weather beckoned the lively girls outside to roll away on the old un-oiled skates. Quite an afternoon was spent by Mary Keith Bingham and Judy Eason the other day . . . now they are still hobbling around due to excess "stumbles"—but oh, what wonderful fresh air!

Practicing up for the Interclass Swim Meet which will be held in the gymnasium February 2 are, left to right, Gloria Pollard, Ellen Ebel, and Peggy Hughes.

Walker, Ebel, Dugger, Cadmus To Head Class Swim Teams

On Monday night, February 2, at eight o'clock the long-heralded Inter-Class Swimming Meet will take place.

This meet will feature various phases of swimming and diving. There will be solo events and relays, diving plain and fancy. In all instances of swimming, speed will count greatly.

For entrance into the meet each participant is required to have eight half-hour practices Each class is asked by those in charge of the meet to urge its members to begin those practices at once.

Points on the color cup will be given the winning colors.

Representing the senior class, Harriette Walker will act as captain of her class team. Ellen Ebel heads the junior team, Ruth Dugger calls out all sophomores, and Shirley Cadmus is responsible for having all participating freshmen in full trim for the occasion.

The pool is open for practice on Monday afternoon from 4 o'clock until 5 o'clock; Tuesday night from 10 o'clock until 10:30 p. m.; Thursday afternoon from 4 o'clock until 5 o'clock; Friday evening at 5 o'clock, and Saturday night from 8 o'clock until 9:30 p. m.

In order to become a member of the varsity swimming team it is necessary to swim in the interclass meet. From those who enter the meet, the try outs for varsity squad will be selected. Plans are still underway for the future telegraphic meet which Farmville S. T. C. will act as hostess.

The events will consist of fifty yard free style, fifty yard breast stroke, fifty yard backstroke, seventy-five year relay race, one hundred yard free style, and diving exhibition. Judges will determine the class and color winner which will win ten points towards the color cup.

Trio S. T. C. Girls Lead Cheers, Songs

Varsity cheer leaders have been selected for this year's sport season. Head leader, Mary Kathryn Dodson, senior, has with her Betty Sexton, junior, and Shirley Pierce, sophomore. This trio will be present at all S. T. C. varsity games ready to lead in the cheers and songs of Farmville.

Scheduled games for this year's varsity basketball squad will be announced in a few days. Pep rallies will be held to arouse interest in the Blue and White team. Wednesday, February 4, in chapel there will be a rally headed by the new leaders.

Education Teachers Plan Trips for Feb.

A number of our teachers in the education department will be away in various places during February.

E. M. Johnson will attend a convention at East Radford. Dr. J. P. Wynne will be away in a School Survey Project, while M. B. Coyner and S. M. Holton will be in Richmond attending an education meeting.

Ping Pong Tourney Set For February 9

Ping pong tournament will be held in the Rec the week of February 9. Everyone is urged to go out and support their class and colors by playing ping pong. Points will go for the color cup. Sign up on the bulletin board in the hall if you desire to play.

The following rules are to be observed when playing:

Serving:

1. Server drops ball and strikes it with racquet held in hand below the wrist of racquet hand, so that the ball touches servers playing surface, then passes over the net, and touches receiver's playing surface.

2. In singles, one server serves 5 points and then becomes receiver, unless game is 20-all or 21-all; then alternate service after each point.

Play:

1. The receiver must return the ball over the net into her opponents playing area before it hits her own playing surface twice.

2. Either player shall lose a point if she

(a) fails to make a good service
(b) fails to make a good return
(c) moves the table or touches the net
(d) hits ball before it hits her playing area
(e) hits ball twice consecutively
(f) or if the ball hits some object before it hits opponents playing area.

Scoring:

1. game consists of 21 points, provided winner has two points more than loser.

2. if only one point difference, play continues until one player has two more points than opponent.

To Win Match: You must win 2 out of 3 games.

Give your results to Patsy Connelly and also return the balls to her. If you desire to practice before the tournament, you may secure the balls from Patsy Connelly, and the tables are all out in the rec for use.

The following girls have already signed up to play Shirley Pierce, Jane Brown, Nell Hurt, Alice Marie Coberly Mary Walker Watts, Elizabeth Barlow, Jane Ruffin, Ruth Dugger, Mildred Droste, Eloise Lupton, Bernice LaForce, Ruby Stewart, Harriette Walker, Frances Parham, Kathryn Baker, and Bobby Scott.

Golf Instructions Begin Here Feb. 2

Instructions in golf will begin on Tuesday afternoon, February 2, from 3:30 p. m. until 4:30 p. m., and from seven to seven-thirty in the evening. These lessons are under the supervision of Nancy Hopkins, manager of golf. Miss Olive Iler will teach on Wednesday night from seven o'clock until 7:30 p. m. for all others who wish to learn how to drive, putt, handle the club and other fundamentals in the game. The use of all clubs and balls for these practices are free of charge and furnished by the Athletic Association.

Longwood becomes the playground beginning Spring quarter due to the change of weather. Fundamentals acquired from the practices this quarter will aid in playing on the greens at Longwood. Plans are being worked on for a driving tournament and also a golf tournament to take place at this time. Individuals will have no expenses while playing on the Longwood greens. This includes the use of clubs, balls, and instructions.

Dance Group Gives Recital Feb. 12

Orchesis Dance Group under the direction of Miss Emily Kauzlarich, will present their first recital of the year on Thursday, February 12 in the S. T. C. auditorium. Club members have been reworking some of the old numbers which will be used along with the new dances for the program.

Included in the recital will be the opening dance entitled "Celebration". In this dance the entire club will take part. Selections following include "Prarie Song", "Adoration", and "Lullaby". Dipping into the lighter bit of dance the club presents "Fragrance of Today," and a waltz trio entitled "Evanescance". This is an entirely new feature this year. "Old Sussana" one of the highlights of the evening is worked in drando form and casts about half of the group.

From Robinson and Jeffreys new book "Angry at the Sun" comes the inspiration for the dance "Bowl of Blood". This highly dramatic piece includes a voice with the dance. The final number is a newly composed humorous composition, "Blow the Man Down".

Prior to the recital a few of the selections will be given before the Woman's Club on February 4. Most all the members of Orchesis will dance in one or more of the numbers which include "Adoration", "Prarie Song", "Evanescance", and "Old Sussana".

A complete list of dancers for the recital will be announced next week.

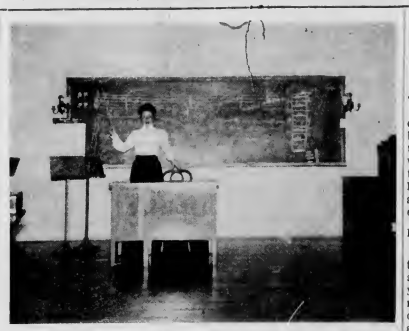
Letters to Spanish Students Reveal Normal English Life

By JANE WARING RUFFIN

"Except for the rationing and the blackout, we suffer very little from the war", writes Joan Leslie, a student at Cheswick Polytechnic School in England in a letter to the Spanish Class at Farmville. A correspondence has been arranged between Spanish students at S.T.C. and Commercial students at the Poly by Mrs. Martin of Farmville and her friend Miss Cameron, who teaches English, French, and German at Cheswick.

Telling of the students' part in a war torn nation is Betty Hunorisett with "we are collecting toys, books, etc., for war orphans, learning first aid and Morse signalling, and are teaching people to cook on out-door fires." One letter told of an experience as an evacuee doing war work at a "Control Center". Explaining first that she and her friend had been Scout Leaders, Joan Leslie continues to say that the Scout advisors "are expecting to be called up shortly, and we shall be left to run the company of thirty guides. Still, there's a war", as she nonchalantly adds, "so we must keep smiling."

The English students report that there has been no recent "ariel activity" in Cheswick, a suburb of London, but that in the Blitz last year there were many narrow escapes. The girls claim that they did not realize before the war how lucky they were and that after the struggle is over much that had been taken for granted will be more appreciated.



In the words of Betty Hunorisett "to Cheswick Polytechnic came people who have left secondary schools and want to continue their education". There a year's training in business methods offered to day students to enable them to fill the many vacancies in the busines world.

The students' English "accent" was noticeable even in their letters in the use of words and phrases uncommon in America and in certain spellings. Then if these didn't mark them as English, their distinctive handwriting did.

Their curriculum as outlined in the letters seems comparable to that of the Commercial Department at Farmville. The great exception was the use of Pitman Shorthand as opposed to Gregg's method taught at S. T. C. There were no definite references to the shortage of typewriters and other supplies, but the mention of classes taught in shifts indicated such a shortage.

For some years, according to Shanley Bonnett, Cheswick Polytechnic School has been the combined center of higher and technical education for part time students around London. "The evening courses," her letter continues, "now prepare persons for a variety of occupations, ranging from gas fitting to accounting. "Since the war," she adds, "things have continued almost as usual—it would take something bigger than Goering's luftwolfe to upset us!"

"I have just heard Mr. Roosevelt's deciaration of war", continues Betty Hunorisett, "so now we are allies." "I would like to say" adds Stanley Bonnett. "how glad we British are now that your country and ours are allies. When you consider it", she conciudes, "how can any country—no matter how fanatical—stand up against the world's three greatest powers—U. S. A., U. S. S. R., and Great Britain?"

Pictured above is Elizabeth Tennant, portraying the old-fashioned schoolmarm in "Grandmother's Nightmare" which the Sophs will give tonight in the large auditorium at S. T. C.

Seniors, Juniors Are On Dean's List

Seventy-seven juniors and seniors are on the Dean's list for the winter quarter, according to the list submitted by Miss Virgilia I. Bugg, registrar. Only juniors and seniors who have made no grades below B on their reports are eligible to be on the Dean's list.

Thirty-six of these girls were on the Dean's list for the fall quarter. They are Rachel Abernathy, Dolphin; Helen Ashworth, Rt. 6, Danville; Eleanor Boothe, Wakefield; Mildred Bowen, Staunton; Sara F. Cline, Roanoke; Mary Ann Cobb, Wachapreague; Nahrea Coleman, Crewe; Mary Hunter Edmunds, Danville; Anne Eliett, Jennings Ordinary; and Texie Belle Feits, Boykins.

Mrs. Hazel S. Gay, Rt. 2, Petersburg; Lillian German, Richmond; Charlotte Greeley, Roanoke; Martha Hammock, Blackstone; Helen Wiley Hardy, Farmville; Myrtle Harrison, Rocky Mount; Arlene Hunt, Nathalie; Jane Lee Hutcheson, Farmville; Margaret Lovins, Cumberland; and Elizabeth McCoy, Richmond.

Susie Moore, Rt. 7, Richmond; Emma Noblin, Farmville; Aliene Overbey, Chatham; Elizabeth Ann Parker, Portsmouth; Esther Partridge, Norfolk; Louise Phillips, Pamplin; Lula Power, Charlottesville; Mary Lilly Purdum, Danvile and Amy Read, Hampton.

Martha Roberts, Norton; Catherine Rucker, Lynchburg; Florence Thierry, Rt. 5, Roanoke; Edith Vassar, Keysville; Ann Ware, Beckley, W. Va.; Flora Winn, Wilson and Winifred Wright, Arlington.

Those now on who were not on last quarter are Peggy Allen, Farmville; Martha Anderson, Pedro; Virginia Barksdale, Roanoke; Nellie Brooks Benton, Locust Dale; Hazel Callahan, Rt. 3, Danville; Harriet Cantrell, Roanoke; Elizabeth Jane Carter, Roanoke; Imogene Claytor, Bedford; Marie Davis, Smithfield and Helen DeLong, Buchanan.

Nancy Dupuy, Greensboro, N. C.; Caroline Eason, Richmond; Alyce Lee Fulton, Danville; Virginia Alice Hall, South Boston; Miriam Harvey, Portsmouth; Winifred Harrell, Richmond; Dorothy Johnson, Suffolk; Inez Jones, Staunton; Pauline Keller, Staunton and Gene Hardy Kilmon, Onancock.

Eveline Looney, Rocky Mount, N. C.; Shirley McCalley, Richmond; Sue Marshall, Victoria; Margaret Mish, Lexington; Augusta Parks, Parksley; Martha Elizabeth Peerman, Danville; Katherine Powell, Wachapreague; Anne Price, Rice; Catherine Radspinner, Richmond; and Elizabeth Rapp, Roanoke.

Teacher Shortage Presents Problem

Decreased enrollment in teachers' colleges and normal schools is aggravating a serious shortage of qualified teachers, it is announced by the National Commission for the Defense of Democracy through Education. The Commission, which was created by the National Education Association at its Boston convention last July, points out that this teacher shortage threatens to undermine educational standards.

Enrollment Declines

Enrollment in teachers colleges and normal schools has declined as much as 29 percent in one state, with an average decline of 11 percent throughout the nation. An average 8 percent drop in enrollment at university schools of education is also reported.

Rise in Living Costs

Qualified teachers are forced to leave the classroom for defense industries to obtain income in keeping with the rising costs of living, Alonzo F. Myers, Commission chairman, states. Since the war began, costs of living have gone up 11 percent, with food prices up 19 percent. During these two years, 12 million factory workers have received an increase of 30 percent in average weekly earnings. Cash income from farm products has gone up 45 percent. Teachers' salaries, for the most part, have remained static.

In the nation as a whole, an acute shortage of teachers in rural village and elementary schools exists. The shortage is particularly acute in certain subject areas such as science, industrial arts and business education.

Qualifications Waver

Dr. Myers points out that the shortage is already decreasing the quality of school work, since, in order to eliminate the shortage, many communities have reduced teacher qualifications. It is expected that between 5,000 and 10,000 emergency certificates will be issued during the current year to unqualified and partly trained teachers, many of whom will remain in the profession after the emergency is over.

The Way I See It

By JANE SANFORD

Just Looking, Thanks. . .

What with dances and various dashing about, full-time schoolbodies (with hours to slave over that French) are practically a vanishing race. . . But competition or none, most of us stayed here over the week end and made a sizeable dent in the social calendar for January. . .

Head Start. . .

Starting the balls rolling was the Commercial Club which gave a very nice formal in a blue and yellow decorated Gym Saturday night. . . Freddie Lee and his orchestra furnished the music for a not-too-large crowd and lotsa unfamiliar men. . . Mardi Gras is next on the list. . . Preceded by PiKA parties at Hampden-Sydney on the seventh. . .

Through the Keyhole. . .

Concentrated rushing began this past Monday for freshmen and new girls. . . "At Home" will continue each afternoon this week. . . Thursday night bids will be signed and parties will be given by all sororities for the new pledges. Sunday afternoon the Gamma Thetas were guests at a tea given by Sara Jeffreys, Betty Youngberg, Lorana Moomaw, Charlotte Phillips and Jane Scott. . .

Trotters. . .

Along with movie actress Ruth Hussey and Bill Dudley of Virginia fame Baylis Kunz, Mary Williams Calvert, Catherine Rucker and Jean Arington attended the primiere celebration of Metro-Goldwyn - Mayer's "Vanishing Virginian" in Lynchburg Thursday and Friday nights. . . At the Rotunda Dance and boxing matches in Charlottesville Saturday night were Anna Mary Wilkins, Emily Irby and Mildred Pierce . . . Also Miss Hussey and Mr. Dudley . . At Hampden-Sydney Saturday night for the basketball game were Hattie, Helen Wiley, Hilah Lee, Sara Hardy, and Louise Mac. . . And others. . .

Educational Journal Honors Dr. Jarman

In the January issue of the Virginia Journal of Education, an article about Dr. Jarman's fortieth anniversary was published.

Dr. Jarman's picture also appeared in this issue along with the article.

The article consists of a biographical sketch of Dr. Jarman and his works at S. T. C.

Last week's issue of The Rotunda also honored Dr. Jarman by dedicating that issue to him. It included a special interview with Dr. Jarman and a review of his life at S. T. C.

The Slys Present Musical Recital

Professor and Mrs. Allen B. Sly of the College of William and Mary played in a piano and violin recital last Thursday in the Student Lounge. Members of the music department and other students were present.

Among the selections played were Beethoven's Sonata in G Major, third movement; Beethoven's Sonata in D Minor: and Bethoven's Nocturne.

Home Economists Needed for U. S. Government Jobs

U. S. Civil Service Commission anticipates many requests during the next year from Government agencies for home economists.

Accordingly, an examination has been announced for establishing employment lists of home economists trained in every field to fill positions paying from $2,600 to $5,600 a year. No written test will be given, but applicants will be rated on their education and experience. Because of the demand for qualified eligibles, applications will be accepted until further notice.

Vacancies exist in such Government departments as the Bureau of Home Economics, Rural Electrification Administration, and Surplus Marketing Administration in the Department of Agriculture, and the Office of Education and Office of Defense, Health, and Welfare Services in the Federal Security Agency. Positions will be filled for work in nutrition, clothing, household equipment, family or rural economics, home economics information, home extension, school lunches and in many other fields. Persons experienced in the field of nutrition are especially needed.

Applicants must have completed a 4-year college course including or supplemented by at least 8 semester hours in home economics, or a closely related science, and must have had appropriate experience. Graduate study in home economics (or closely related subject) may be substituted for part of the experience. Under the terms of the examination announcement, experience as home dressmaker, housewife, commercial cook or factory tailor will not be considered qualifying.

The examination announcement giving all the requirements to be met and instructions for filing application forms may be obtained from Commission representatives at first- and second-class post offices or from the central office in Washington, D. C. All applications must be filed with the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

Winter Issue Of Colonnade Wins Approval

Appearing under new cover, The Colonnade, edited by Aliene Overbey, was issued yesterday, January 27, with the general approval of the student body.

Margaret Wright's story, "Really and Truly Time", which won second prize in the summer contest appeared in the issue. This is a delightful children's story with illustrations by Elizabeth Ann Parker, "Blind Folly" by Ann Fitzgerald was also published.

Among the book reviews was "The Hills Beyond" by Thomas Wolfe, reviewed by Harriet Cantrell; John Gunther's "Inside Latin America" by Nell Richard; and a y Johnson reviewed "Exit Laughing" by Irvin S. Cobb.

The middle pages, "A Study in Brown" by Cottie Radspinner.

An added attraction is "Cherchez la Femme", an essay by Mary Hunter Edmunds.

Louise Turner's "The Liar", Nell Richards "Don't Let Me Go Alone"; and "A Figure in the Dark" by Nancy Lee Williamson complete the list of fiction.

Anne C. Williams, a former staff member who graduated in December, and Caroiyn Rouse contributed several poems.

Reid Announces $200 Received from WSSF; More Money Pledged

Amy Reid, Chairman of the Public Affairs Committee of the Y. W. C. A. has announced that the World Student Service Fund here at Farmville has passed the $200 mark.

The total amount that has been contributed and sent to headquarters in New York is $207.51. There is still $69 in pledges to be paid. A special day will be set aside in February to receive this and other contributions or it may be paid to any representatives on the halls.

Eleven Girls Recognized By Alpha Kappa Gamma During Chapel Program

Fraternity Bases Selection On Character, Leadership, and Service

Eleven girls, five seniors and six juniors, were given recognition by Alpha Kappa Gamma, national organization for leadership among women, before a majority of students and faculty members in chapel Tuesday, February 3.

Eligibility for Alpha Kappa Gamma is based first upon the qualities of leadership, character, and service to the school. A member must have an average scholastic rating and must have proven her worth unselfishly to the college.

New members tapped were Virginia Barksdale, Mary Hunter Edmunds, Lillian German, Polly Keller and May Wertz, seniors; and Eleanor Folk, Hallie Hillsman, Agnes Patterson, Jane Cabell Sanford, Winifred Wright, and Betty Youngberg, juniors.

Virginia Barksdale of Roanoke has been an outstanding member of the college music department. She is now vice-president of the College Choir and director of the Madrigal Singers and Junior A' Capella choir. She is a literary editor of the Colonnade, fire marshall, and will be a member of this year's quiz team. Virginia is a member of the Granddaughters Club and Kappa Delta Pi and is listed this year in "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities." She is a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority.

Mary Hunter Edmunds, of Danville, now president of Kappa Delta Pi, transferred from Stratford College her junior year. She is vice-president of Pi Gamma Mu a literary editor on the Colonnade staff, and an active member of the Dramatic Club. Hunter was a feature writer on the Rotunda staff her junior year and was recently elected parliamentarian of the Cotillion Club, and is a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma sority.

Lillian German, from Richmond, is vice-president of both Gamma Psi and the Riding Club. She is business manager of the Dramatic Club and was treasurer her junior year. She is a member of Mu Omega social sorority, Kappa Delta Pi, Pi Gamma Mu, and Cotillion Club.

Polly Keller, of Staunton, is president of the Granddaughters Club, the Presbyterian Student Union, and has been president of Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority for the past two years. She is chairman of the Y. W. C. A. Church

S. T. C. Will Offer Library Science Course This Year

Will Qualify Girls To Be Librarians In Virginia Schools

Beginning with the 1942 summer session, Farmville State Teachers College will offer enough work in Library Science to qualify graduates to become teacher-librarians in the schools of Virginia.

Of the six session hours required in this field, three will be offered this summer, one session hour each in school library administration, reference, and children's literature.

The first two courses will be taught by Mrs. Willa Boysworth, assistant librarian at Farmville. Mrs. Boysworth holds the A. B. degree, and a degree in Library Science, from the University of North Carolina. She has had five years experience in organizing and administering high school libraries, and four years experience with the University of North Carolina Press. The course in children's literature will be taught by Miss Mary Clay Hiner, a member of the English department at Farmville.

Beginning with the school year 1942-43 students interested in becoming teacher-librarians may take the six required hours as part of the regular work at Farmville, two session hours being offered each quarter.

"Are Men Superior" To Be Presented By Apprentices

"Are Men Superior?" an apprentice play will be presented tonight, February 4 at the regular meeting of the Dramatic Club.

The cast under the direction of Jane McGinnis will include Martha Higgins, as Susan, a young lady definitely opposed to men, Betty Jane Hunt, as Edwina, Martha Spratt, as Mrs. Henry Bell, Marguerite Sizemore as Marsha, Emily Kyle Ainsworth as Mrs. Livingston and Elizabeth Butzner as the maid, Nellie.

The apprentice plays are given as try-outs for membership in the acting group of the Dramatic Club.

Commercial Club Buys Defense Bond

At a meeting of the Commercial Club Tuesday, January 27, the members voted to buy a bond from profits of the dance, held January 24. This is the first club in school to take this step to help national defense.

The sixty new members were initiated after the business meeting and the club's constitution was read and explained.

Catherine Dunton will be in charge of the club's next meeting on February 24. Esther Partridge and Winnie Harrell will have charge of the refreshments it was announced.

S. T. C. Students Hear Mrs. Roosevelt At N. C. Convention

Declaring that the American student living under a democratic rule has something to live for that other people lack, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt told the delegates of thirty-eight colleges throughout the United States attending the International Student Service convention at Chapel Hill, N. C. January 30-31 that the best way a student could help is to stay in college and take the hardest, not the easiest, subjects. Mrs. Roosevelt stated, "On today's students depend the problem of post war reconstruction."

Other outstanding speakers of the meeting were James Cary, Secretary of the C. I. O., Arthur Sweetser, Secretary of the League of Nations, Miss Louise Morly, from I. C. C., headquarters in New York, and Jonathan Daniels, Editor of the Raleigh News and Observer.

Farmville students attending the convention were Agnes Patterson, Nancy Naff, Frances Rosebro, and Ann Ware. Dr. J. E. Walmsley of the faculty accompanied the group.

S. T. C. Selects Brain Battlers For Quiz-A-Roo With H.-S. C.

Barksdale, Hughes, Cantrell, Shanklin Woodall, S.T.C. Five

Three seniors, Virginia Barksdale, Polly Hughes, and Hattie Cantrell, and two juniors, Dawn Shanklin and Violet Woodall, have been named as the five smart girls, who will compete in the annual S. T. C.-Hampden-Sydney "Battle of Brains" to be staged in the S. T. C. auditorium Tuesday night, February 17.

These girls were selected from seventy-five girls who took written tests and preliminary oral examinations. Sara Cline conducted the oral examinations.

The five contestants representing Hampden-Sydney will be John Owen, Jr., Bill Dyer, Kieth Eubank, Ralph Ritchie, and James Cousar. Bill Dyer, Keith Eubank, and James Cousar were members of last year's team. The Hampden-Sydney team was chosen from a group of seventeen students who have an I. Q. of 130 or above.

The quiz contest, given for the benefit of the Southside Community Hospital, will be broadcast over WRNL with Chuck Whitehouse of Hampden-Sydney as master of ceremonies. The faculties of both colleges will submit questions.

Pi Delta Epsilon, national journalistic honorary fraternity awarded this week a loving cup to the 1941 S. T. C. quiz team. Engraved on the back is the inscription "Won by S. T. C. in 1941, Farmville versus Hampden-Sydney." Hampden-Sydney has chosen as its slogan for the contest, "It will be ectasy to beat S. T. C." and "Remember Girl Harbor."

There will be added features of entertainment including singing and dancing during the quiz program. Tickets will go on sale February 10. Admission for students will be twenty-five cents and for town people thirty cents.

'42 Summer School Offers New Courses

Workshop, Library Courses Featured

Summer school this year has several new features. Special among these is the course in the workshop. This course provides an opportunity for individual teachers, supervisors, and principals to secure guidance in working up materials for use in their own practical situations in the school and the classroom. Provision is made for lectures, symposiums, panels, and group work under the guidance of the department of education and for consultation with members of other departments of the college.

A second special feature of the summer school this year is a course in audio-visual education. This course meets the needs of teachers who wish to share in the opportunities provided by the state program of audio-visual education. The college has a library of films and a laboratory adapted to the requirements of those who expect to qualify themselves for the proper use of audio-visual aids now being increasingly made available by the State Department of Education.

During the second term of summer school a special course is offered in diagnosing and treating difficulties in reading and language. Under the guidance of an expert, teachers will not only devise techniques of locating dif-

Alumnae Honor Miss Parrish

Oil Portrait Hung In S. T. C. Library

An oil painting of the late Miss Celeste Parrish, who was designated by the Georgia legislature as "Georgia's ablest educator" and described by Prof. James M. Grainger as "perhaps the most distinguished alumna of Farmville State Teachers College", has been placed in the S. T. C. Library, where it is the only portrait of a woman.

Miss Parrish was one of the first graduates of Farmville State Teachers College, having entered in 1884, during the initial year of S. T. C. At that time Miss Parrish was 30 years old, and had already had years of experience as a teacher, but she came to Farmville to get specialized training at the "State Female Normal School" which was then the first and only school for teachers in Virginia. Afterwards the name was changed to the Farmville State Teachers College.

The portrait was painted by Alexander Von Jost, of Richmond, and was presented to the S.T.C. by the National Alumnae Association, of which Miss Mary E. Peck, of the S. T. C. faculty, is president.

Miss Peck said the painting was purchased by an Alumnae Association fund which was started about two years ago by Mrs. L. W. Kline, of Memory Lane Farm, Charlottesville.

Pi Gamma Mu Bids Four Girls; Tickets for Mardi Gras on Sale

Pi Gamma Mu, national honorary society in social science, has invited four girls to become members. Arlene Hunt, senior, Iris Ferguson, Anne Randolph, and Virginia Sedgely, juniors, will be initiated next Tuesday night, February 10.

At the program meeting of Pi Gamma Mu last night, February 2, Julia Smith reviewed William C. Johnstone's "The United States and Japan's New Order". On February 17 May Wertz will review "Economic Defense of Latin America'" by Percy W. Bidwell, and will supplement her report with information from "Inside Latin America" by John Gunther.

Tickets for Mardi Gras, which is sponsored by Pi Gamma Mu and which will be held on February 14, will go on sale again tonight immediately after dinner at the table in the hall. The prices are 55c and $1.10. Spectator tickets for the dance and floor show will be sold at the door for 25c. Tickets for the dance also may be bought from members of Pi Gamma Mu.

Kappa Delta Pi Hears Benton and Barksdale

Highlight of the Kappa Delta Pi meeting held last night in the Honors Room were talks by two of its members. Brookie Benton spoke on "Education of Women for Defense", and "Indoctrination for American Decoracy" was the subject of Virginia Barksdale's talk.

Valentine Sweets May Be Cut Officials Say

S.T.C. Coke Addicts See Ration Effect

"Sweets for the sweet"—but rationed, the government says. For you of the sweet tooth, this might be annoying at first but it's not as bad as it sounds.

The amount of sugar to be used by the carbonated beverage industry, manufacturers of candy, ice cream and bakery products, in fact all industries using sugar, has been limited. Official sources wou'd lead us to believe that rationing cards—comparable to those used in Great Britain and German will be passed out soon.

The shortage in sugar has arisen from the loss of imports of sugar from the Phillipines and drastic curtailments of imports from Hawaii, and the increasing requirements of sugar for manufacture of industrial alcohol for the nation's war effort and hoarding by civilians. The average American housewife uses two pounds of sugar a week or a hundred pounds in a year. Under the rationing plan, the amount available to each person will be determined by the total amount in the country.

The amount of coca-colas for sale to the school has been reduced to a fifth. In a talk with the official at the coke plant, he said the shortage was rather unexpected and he divided his supply on hand among his dealers.

Grocers have greatly aided the plan of rationing by an informal system of their own—of selling only a small amount of sugar, say a pound, to each customer. Pretty soon we'll all probably be satisfying our hunger with honey.

The whole shortage, though, is not a matter for alarm but one of general acceptance—a time to sit and ponder—rather remorsefully over the many bags and boxes of sugar we've somewhat stealthily deprived the dining room of for bitter sweets and chocolate drops. So, if you get a consuming desire for something sweet, just control thyself and think for one moment of your grandmother and even mother who used molasses and liked it to sweeten their coffee. If that doesn't work, think of the many Japanese, Chinese, Germans and, as a matter of fact Europeans who take the bitter without the sweet and don't have sugar at all.

"All Out" for the Quiz Contest

For the past two weeks about thirty girls have been trying out through the oral and written tests for the S. T. C. quiz team in view of the approaching "Battle of Wits" contest with the brain trusts from Hampden-Sydney. Tonight we have announced the "Five Smart Girls".

The team, however, needs our cooperation for a successful contest. We can support this battle of wits first by talking it up to our friends and then by coming out one hundred percent to see it. If our auditorium is full, think how it will boost the morale of all participants.

We would like for the Hampden-Sydney-S. T. C. quiz contest to become a yearly custom, but without our enthusiasm and cooperation this is hardy possible or probable. There's a great deal of fun, school spirit, and real educational value for everyone at the contest. Since our contest last year, many other schools throughout the state have been organizing just such programs.

If you have any quiz books, question games, or other material pertaining to the subject, take them around to the girls on our team. They have been sharpening their wits for weeks, but they need more learning vitamins.

Many of our Hampden-Sydney friends still doubt our mental ability even after our victory of last year. In this case, besides being highly entertaining, the contest offers us a challenge—a challenge to retain our title. This year a cup is included in the spoils. In addition to the rivalry between the two schools, many people in town and in the state are eagerly awaiting the outcome.

This contest is especially worthwhile since the proceeds will go to the Southside Hospital. —L. B. G.

"Develop Both Mentally And Physically"

"Develop both mentally and physically," is the advice offered to young people today by Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt. While here at Farmville, we should take advantage of the splendid opportunities that are presented to us along the educational and athletic lines.

In our classes, we should study diligently and try to absorb all the knowledge we can. For as future teachers we will contribute to and play a most important role in the struggle for democracy.

In order to be mentally alert, we have to be physically fit and certainly here a. Farmville we are most fortunate in our athletic opportunities—there is a fine swimming pool, new tennis courts, golf instructions offered, an excellent golf course, and horseback riding.

Let us stop and consider these opportunities and in thinking over the situation let us budget our time so as to reap the fullest possible benefit from our education in order that we can "develop both mentally and physically." —M. G. M

Preserving Home Tradition

(Ed. Note: Miss Mary Augusta Stephenson is an alumna of State Teachers College, having graduated in 1921. At present Miss Stephenson is living in Wakefield Va.)

"Most recent among the books that describe those yesterdays of Virginia is Miss Mary A. Stephenson's "Old Homes in Surry and Sussex." This little volume has the virtue of putting the age and architectural interest of houses above fame or familiar association. The result is a book more encyclopedic than most works of its kind and, at the same time, more instructive. Along with two or three of the most renowned of Virginia homes are presented a number that represented the eighteenth-century life of the middle class. Most distinctly is this worth while. Virginia too long has lived in the illusion that all farms were estates, all houses mansions. What Miss Stephenson has done for two counties long neglected by architects and antiquarians, other writers should do for many counties of Tidewater and Midland Virginia.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Gleanings

By LUCY TURNBULL

Although events of immediate concern—the seige of Singapore, the situation in the Philippines, the report of the Pearl Harbor investigation, and the landing of an American force abroad—have held the spotlight recently, they should not distract our attention from other significant considerations—chiefly, what is happening in South America.

As a result of the Pan American Conference at Rio de Janerio, some definite steps have been taken regarding South America's relationship to the war. The forty-one resolutions unanimously approved provided machinery for joint economic and military action by the Americas. It is a fact that nearly all the Latin American countries are dedicating themselves to hemisphere defense.

Brazil is taking the lead by launching an attack against Axis fifth column activities—exposing enemy agents, investigating agencies whose chief support is from the German embassy and regulating the numerous German-founded societies and study groups. The Vargas government has decreed that henceforth every popular organization must have a membership that is at least two-thirds Brazilian, and all political discussion is barred.

Certainly we can believe that Brazil will allow the United States to land troops on her soil at any time to defend the East Coast of South America from an attack at Natal or Recife. Also Brazil will be able to furnish the United States with an increasingly large amount of materials—including perhaps rubber.

Of course, Argentina remains uncertain. Had it not been for her, the conference at Rio would have been able to accomplish more than it did. Let us hope that this nation will not turn its back on efforts for American solidarity. If such should be the case, however, we can use economic pressure as an effective weapon in suggesting that Brazil buy her wheat from the United States instead of from Argentina. This action would be ruinous to Argentine economy.

Looking 'Em Over

This was without doubt the wildest week end—from all reports that have drifted hither. Jewelry, late dates, proposals, future bold bids, dates for Mardi Gras, etc., etc., head the list.

Memos From V. P. I.

Jac Hardy's date on the dance floor at Va. Tech: "Nice Hampden-Sydney dance, wasn't it Jac!" P. S. Tom T. was among the numbered Death Valley men).

Nancy Hand received a Cotillion Club pin from Dan Correll, while Ruth Parker refused the same brand from Brooks.

The name is censored but the story is good; One of our S. T. C. seniors made a tentative late date, told her date about it who accepted the fact, and then she never did see the late date-to-be again.

Facts Here and There

"Sugar" Baker thought she was the sly one to get by her late date with Watt Ellett, but ah! Ha! Her other date found out and did the same.

Sexton really has that gleam in her eyes after such a big week end at Tech. . . Already she has bids to Easters and that far distant, sentimental Ring Dance with Jack.

Sarah Massie has at long last satisfied our curiosity by accepting Kossen Gregory's Kappa Sig pin. She went to V. P. I. dances with him, too.

Betty B. and Dot Childress certainly were trying to "Hold Back the Dawn" Sunday morning after keeping the Redwood open all night.

Vivian Gwaltney receives the Prom Trot award: W. & L. Fancy Dress and then to top it off Saturday at Tech.

Beezie might have been called a campus widow at one time, but with dating Craig again on Saturday and Tommy Jones on Sunday she will soon be excluded from that great society—we told you to watch these campus widows.

Kitty Vaughan had a mighty terrifying experience at the movies Saturday night. Couldn't you keep him more amused than that ? ? ? ?

New week end combination: Nancy Hughes and Tynes—she even rushed back from Fancy Dress Ball for it ! ! !

Big Barbara spent a long week end in Portsmouth seeing her Eddie Sam before he departs for the wars- - -

Mary Evelyn and Horace had a blundering week end—a slight slip Saturday night and then Sunday afternoon—for more details see the Pearsall.

Brookie Benton is still beaming from seeing her caller on Sunday night—perhaps that phone call didn't make connections. . .

Don't think that the Reid child wasn't thrilled by her visitor in the Rotunda last week because she wasn't—but after all Betty we must do our bit for National Defense—even the truck drivers.

Well, Parham we're glad to see ye olde U. S. Post Office came through with that letter. He had you worried for awhile there, didn't he?

Gussie Parks is really the independent lass quote "Well I know the boy's name that phoned me and I know his face but I had never connected the two so why give him a date?"

POEM OF THE WEEK

Liberty, Yes

If a girl speaks to everyone, she's forward
If she doesn't, she's bashful
If she talks to boys, she's a flirt
If she doesn't, she's a high hat
If she's smart in school, she's a high brow
If she isn't, she's a Dumb Dora
If she talks about others, she's catty
If she talks about hers, she's stuck-up
If she goes out with boys, she's a pick-up
If she doesn't, she's a wall-flower
If she's popular, she's talked about
If she isn't, she's a dud
There just Ain't No Justice.

Question of the Week

What Do You Think Is a Student's Duty In This Present International Crisis?

Anne Rogers: She should work hard to be prepared to help in the reconstruction.

Buff Gunter: We should broaden our conception of races and eradicate all hatred.

Nelle White: She should continue her work at college and prepare to be as useful as possible to the government should she be called upon to serve.

Dr. Swertfeger: Her duty is to keep busy.

Ann Robins: She should be a good student.

Frances Rosebro: She should think clearly and calmly about the things she hears and cooperate with efforts in and out of school to further National Defense. It is also her duty to wake up and find out what it is all about.

Betty Reid: We at S. T. C. should strive to become the best possible teachers to help in bringing up the next generation so that this may never happen again!

Dot Johnson: Every student should get herself physically fit to be able to meet the crisis when it gets closer home. .

Allene Overbey: She should maintain emotional stability in this international upheaval. She should not forsake the regular curriculum and should do to the best of her ability the things that come to her from day to day. National Defense does not rest alone on active participation, and the steadiness of the community is all important.

Mary Elizabeth Harvey: Her duty is to keep mentally alert.

Anne Engart: She should get as much education as she can.

Elizabeth Townsend: She should work a little harder on the things she has chosen to do.

Amy Read: She should take advantage of every opportunity to better herself for the aftermath which is bound to follow.

Mary Franklin Woodward: She should do her best in her college work.

Anne Randolph: To keep ourselves physically fit and mentally alert and to be prepared to give help where it is most needed.

Anne Moore: We should continue with our education and become prepared to help rebuild our civilization in the aftermath.

Innocent Bystander. Don't spread propaganda.

Anne Ayers: She should take advantage of her classes and contacts and participate in the few things we've been asked to do—the first aid course, knitting, and economizing. She should prepare a mental attitude for the shock of reality.

Jane Knapton: To get the best education she can to meet the responsibilities of life.

Ruth Parker: To help in any possible way and to make the most of her education. . .

Beth Johnson: It is her duty to do the best in whatever she is doing.

Betty Kiger: Not to become panic stricken.

Ann Warrick: She should perform her duties now more thoroughly than ever before in her life.

Martha Cottrell: To cooperate.

Anne Fitzgerald: She should take the present situation sanely and take advantage of her class work.

Brookie Benton: The most effective thing a student can do is to do her best in her school work and prepare herself with the Red Cross First Aid course.

Elizabeth Ann Parker: To be prepared.

Rosalie Rogers: Certainly she shouldn't stop school.

Lulie Jones: She should do her best work even in her smallest duties.

Virginia Barksdale: The student should go ahead with the planned program and not run off and join the army, navy and marines, or get married. It is a student's duty to lead a normal life and thereby keep the morale of the country.

Sara Cline: To determine what we can do in the immediate present and to carry forward this goal. We should take steps to improve our health by getting sleep and eating less debris.

Lillian Wahab: We should all find out the needs of our community on preparation for the activities and then decide what we can best do to carry out that program.

Frances Parham: To keep up our morale as best we can by doing as much as we can for our boys.

Agnes Patterson: We as students should finish college and be able to go out in the world equipped to lead others in the organization of peace.

Sarah Wade Owen: To put every extra nickel in defense stamps.

May Turner Winn: Take every opportunity of saving our money so we can buy defense bonds.

Health Defense

There is much we can do to help our country in the national defense program and this leads us to the fact that it is as important for us to develop physically as well as mentally. This becomes a personal problem; one in which each has an important part because it will be the duty of everyone of us to be on the safeguard against exposure to unnecessary risks of sickness. Disease can easily be carried by neglect and non-attention of the fact. Join with your fellow neighbor in a Health Defense drive!

Off for Another Goal

Again the support of the student body is a very important part of the athletic program. Many turned out to witness the hockey games which the class teams played, but there were several hundred others who were excused from classes on the day of color rush to enter into the day of celebrating whose whereabouts during this time is undetermined because they just weren't cheering their players for a victory. Now is the beginning of a new season of sports and one of the biggest here at Farmville. We have representing S. T. C. on the blue and white team a group of girls who are in trim for the basketball season—ready to go and make those goals count . . . they are fighting for us and our school, but without the backing of the student body they can not go forward with the same spirit. Each game needs you there! Why not begin by wanting to attend the games because you will enjoy them? A notice concerning the number of home games and the dates which they will be played will be announced. Remember the team needs your support and they'll be sure to bring one of the best seasons of the Blue and White team!

Meet Delayed Until February 9

Delayed because there was an insufficient number of qualified girls to enter the interclass swimming meet it has been postponed another week. During this time the planning of the meet is being continued and special work is being made on the part of class leaders to urge their representing swimmers to take time to get in their eight necessary practices in order to become eligible for their class squad. Dorothy Darracott, manager of the interclass swim meet, has worked very hard to have girls ready, but it was impossible to secure enough girls to enter. The whole point is that the meet is for students' interest and run off because it makes up a phase of the athletic program. Competitive sports always did interest the student body and it has just been recently that a real slack occurred. This may be due to an excess amount of other activity so another date is set for the meet. The color cup is in the race so the winning team's in line for ten more points. When your class captain calls a team meeting join the gang in a race practice and see if it doesn't bring you lots of luck during the contest.

Lots of people find that the little time they spend at small things sometimes means a great deal to them. Maybe the learning of how to hit a golf ball will be of use to you next summer at that outdoor driving range. He at least won't outhit you so very far! Now's your chance, gals, to learn how to do it all with a golf club and ball, so if you want any of this knowledge don't wait to listen to the quiz contest to find out the answers—journey down to the golf room and take a few instructions . . .

Join Your Class Team

Class teams will soon be organized from those who have been reporting and practicing during the general basketball practices. Varsity work-outs have been at an entirely different scheduled time in order to avoid such girls playing with those out for their class teams. It was the general opinion of the students recently that varsity members refrain from enering the class teams because they were so very skilled in their techniques of basketball . . . so it will be noticed that during the basketball practices varsity members will not make up a part of their class teams and this should cause a greater number of girls who would not have joined the practice to turn out for their games. A regular schedule is planned by which classes organized into teams will compete against each other in the form of a tournament. Practices may be obtained through these games and extra ability acquired.

Out For Ping Pong?

Last year the ping pong torunament was an exciting recreation and from reports of those who entered it was greatly appreciated. Since the rules and date of contest week has been scheduled all working for top of the list should begin to get their skill renewed. The ping pong tables are set up in the recreational halls in both buildings, and balls for practices must be furnished by each player. Paddles and other equipment will, however, be on hand for use. If you recall, the past tournaments it will be remembered that Mooch McIlwaine was victorious for her class each year she entered . . . but there is not a past winner among the group at present and the chance is even for each entered. A sheet of paper has been placed on the A. A. bulletin board for all who wish to enter to sign up. As yet there are about fiteeen in the game and any others who wish to participate may do so.

Cheer leaders Mary Katherine Dodson, Beth Sexton, and Shirley Pierce conducted a pep rally at chapel this morning. Marty Roberts, captain of the 1942 varsity squad, was introduced along with the members of the varsity and sub varsity teams. The student body joined in the school yells and songs as a means of expressing their best wishes for the team's first game at Radford S. T. C. this Friday.

Anne Eliett and Marguerite Sizemore were not present when the picture was made.

Martha Roberts, who was elected captain of the 1942 varsity basketball team.

Roberts Captains Varsity Basketball

Martha Roberts, senior from Norton, Virginia was elected captain of the 1942 basketball squad at Farmville Monday afternoon February 2.

Martha has played on the varsity team for four years. She is vice-president of the Athletic Association and vice-president of the Monogram Club.

She is also vice-president of the senior class, a member of Kappa Delta Pi, and is photographic editor of the Virginian staff.

Martha will captain her first game on February 6 when Radford State Teachers College will meet the Farmville team at Radford State Teachers College.

fieculties of reading, writing, and handwriting but will develop methods of dealing with them. The course will be conducted as a kind of laboratory clinic in which a number of children will participate.

The library will coordinate with the school program by working with the faculty and other agencies. The importance of the librarian's personality and background in training student assistants and in controlling pupils will be stressed in the courses. Special emphasis will be placed on school library standards with practical work on library quarters and equipment. Other topics to be covered are appropriations, budget making and keeping, and book collections, technical processes involving acquisition of books, preparation of books, of shelves, circulation system, vertical file, publicity, inventory, care of books, business management, and keeping records.

Ping Pong Tourney Set For Feb. 9

Points Will Count For Color Cup

During the week of February 9 the ping pong tournament will be held in the recreational hall. Everyone is urged to go out for this event and by doing so support class colors. On the A. A. bulletin board is a sheet of paper listing players signed up for the tournament. This week a regular schedule of all players and their opponents will be posted.

For each match won give the results to Patsy Connelly, who is in charge of the contest.

Balls for practice are not furnished for the players, but for tournament games all equipment may be received from Patsy Connelly. Rules which must be used have been posted on the A. A. bulletin board, also, and these must be followed absolutely.

Freshmen entering the tournament are Jane Brown, Eloise Lupton, Bernice LaForce, Ruby Stewart, Kathryn Baker, Hilah Lee Parks, Shirley Cadmus, and Penny Munson, Mary Walker Watts. Sophomores consist of Shirley Pierce, Ruth Dugger, Mildred Droste, Mary Kathryn Ingham, and Dorothy Darracott. Frances Parham and Fiddle Haymes are the juniors taking part. Seniors are Nell Hurt, Alice Marie Coberly, Harriette Walker, and Louise Phillips.

Points for the color cup will be given to the color winning the event.

Students are asked to play their games on the days they are scheduled and to see the A. A. bulletin board.

Golf Instruction Slated for Each Tuesday, Wednesday

Nancy Hopkins, manager of golf, has announced that golf instructions will be given each Tuesday from 2:30 p. m. until 4:30 p. m. and from 7 to 7:30 p. m. in the evening in the golf section of the locker room.. Again on Wednesday night from 7 o'clock until 7:30 p. m. Miss Olive T. Iler instructs a class for all interested in learning and practicing the techniques of the game. All clubs and balls for these practices are free of charge and furnished by the Athletic Association.

Girls may practice at any time they wish and use the clubs provided. A special target is set up to use in practice. For the benefit of the golfer a net surrounds the area for driving in order to catch all stray balls hit.

SWIMMING SCHEDULE

Future schedules for the pool are from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m. on Thursday for a general swimming practice with emphasis on class meet work-outs. A class for upperclassmen instructions follows at 5 o'clock. Class meet practices are also scheduled for 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. on Fridays. As usual the pool is open on Saturday nights from 8 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. for general recreational swimming. Two lifegards as then on duty and it is permissible to add to class swimming practices at this time.

Ten Basketeers To Play First Game of Season

Farmville S. T. C. cagers will officially open their basketball season when they travel to Radford Friday, February 6, to clash with the State Teachers College team on the Radford court.

Girls who will make the trip in addition to Miss Olive T. Iler are Jean Carr, Patsy Connelly, Anne Eliett, Dot Johnson, Frances Parham, Anne Price, Martha Roberts, Nellie Varn, Hallie Hillsman, and Eleanor Wade.

Last year the Farmville basketball varsity defeated the Radford team 33 to 10.

The members of the team will leave Farmville by car on Friday and return Saturday morning. The newly chosen varsity squad has its game schedule almost completed with the exceptions of a few of the games to be played on the New York trip.

To date the schedule is as follows:

Feb. 6—Radford ..... There
Feb. 12—Open
Feb. 13—Panzer-East Orange, N. J. ..... There
Feb. 14—Open
Feb. 20—Professional Institute of William and Mary ..... Here
Feb. 27—William and Mary, Williamsburg .... There
March 6—Madison ..... Here

The team which will be chosen to make the New York trip will leave on Wednesday, February 11 and games will be previously arranged for the trip. The team, accompanied by Miss Olive T'er, coach, will return on the following Monday, February 16.

The first pep rally of the season was staged in chapel this morning when varsity cheer leaders, Mary Katherine Dodson, Betty Sexton, and Shirley Pierce led the students in cheers and songs.

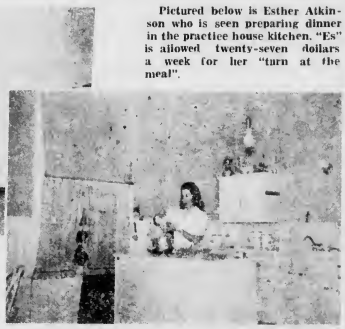
Vanishing Virginians. . . That's what we properly should be called. . . For the student body is made up chiefly of hundreds of whirling dervishes. . . all moving in one big trek Blacksburg and Lexingtonward last week end. . .

Something to Talk About . .

Among the many of our more capable whirlwinds moving in vast numbers of Virginia Tech during the week end for Midwinters there Friday and Saturday nights were Sugar Baker, Betty Bridgeforth, Jane Ford, Gracie Hutch, Jac Hardy, Byee, Lucy Manson, Irma Dell Moore. . . and so on into the alphabet. . . Shirley Pierce extended her week end and didn't return from there until. . . much later. . . Jean S., Sarah Massie, and Charlotte went in for the more unconventional and took their own dates. . . "Bake", Kossen, and Buck from Hampden-Sydney. . . Helen Ott, Faye Nimmo, Mildred Pierce, Ruth Parker, Charlotte Rose, Anne Seay, and Shirley Turner were also there. . . And Betty Youngberg, Sexton, Jane Johnson, Helen McGuire, Nelle Quinn, Betty Burns, Betty Birchfield, Betty Boutch, Nancy B., and Dot Childress. . . Wish we had time to tell you about Nancy Hutter, Mary Harvie, Margaret Page and the rest . . .



Silver Orchids . . .

Dancing at the Fancy Dress Ball in Doremus Hall at Washington and Lee Friday night and at the Sigma Nu formal Saturday were Sara Hardy, Mary Lou Trible, Hunter Edmunds, Margaret Wright, Nancy Hughes, and Gertrude Wright. . . Old Monte Carlo was the theme and scene. . . In Richmond for the University of Richmond dances were Lulie Jones and Clara McCormick. . . Emma Louise was near by at the Medical College for the break-down there. . . Polly Ann Gray, Nancy Hurt, Eleanor Folk and Libby Bernard, were in Salem to liven up the dances at Roanoke College. . . and Margaret Pray treked down to Williamsburg for the W. and L. basketball victory over the Hampden-Sydney team . . . Among other goings on . . .

Rush Bait . . .

Right here at home a strenuous week of rushing activities was appropriately ended Thursday night amid shouting and greetings on second floor Student. . At ten o'clock quite elaborate parties were held in all of the sorority chapter rooms in honor of the new rushees. . . Now there are sorority banquets and pledge parties to look forward to. . .

Pictured below is Esther Atkinson who is seen preparing dinner in the practice house kitchen. "Es" is allowed twenty-seven dollars a week for her "turn at the meal".

Cottie Radspinner, above, is busy at work on her Mardi Gras costume. Cottie is one of the Home Economic majors who is living at the practice house this quarter.

Practice House Girls Dubbed Banana, Meaning---"Just One of the Bunch"

According to the ten girls who, this quarter, are making the Practice House a home, the life there is just one big giggle after another.

There's the saner side, too, though. A sample week finds Martha Grainger assistant housekeeper, Esther Atkinson, she of the tall tales, guest (the position to which one advances after the somewhat laborious task of cook), Sadie Vaughan host, Becky Lowry waitress, Dot Lawrence assistant waitress, Mary Jane Ritchie cook, Mary Lou Shannon, assistant cook, Cottie Radspinner, helper; Peggy Hughes housekeeper, and Dodson, hostess. The week is divided into two periods, Monday through Thursday, and Thursday through Sunday. By the end of the quarter each girl will have gone the rounds of all her duties two or three times.

Miss Hall, the supervisor, sees that no one evades her duty. During this period, she grades the girls on dress, personality, attitude, capability and efficiency. It's a four credit job and the general report is that it's well worth it.

But now to the lighter side of Practical House life! Each member of the household is called "banana" because "she is one of the bunch", and Dodson is generally known as "the mother of them all".

Under happenings out of the ordinary might come Mary Lou's ironing ninety-six napkins, an obviously unassuming freshman's walking in, getting herself mixed up in a twenty minute telephone conversation, and just as unassumingly, walking out, and the occurrence of unpalatable biscuits—morsels too tough for any mortal. Added inducement to want to live in the Practice House is the privilege of having dates in the parlors there. The whole plan of the house is to make it as much of a model home as possible.

For the operating expense and food of the house, twenty-seven dollars is allotted weekly. The girls plan the budget and arrange the meals accordingly. But so that you won't get the wrong idea, a sample dinner of Sunday two weeks past included swiss steak, baked potatoes, string beans, spiced grape salad, vanilla ice cream with chocolate sauce hot rolls and coffee. Small wonder the Practice House is such a popular place! Incidentally, it's quite all right to have guests!

The proverbial by-word which generally answers for any situation is "simply appalling". When asked for amusing incidents that have occurred this quarter at the Practice House, the girls there gave an inclusive "everything" in response. This was obviously a veritable answer, for each one, even with the dirty task of dishwashing to be done, seemed immensely happy and thoroughly satisfied.

S.T.C.'s Undefeated Quizzers to Vie With H.-S. Team Tuesday

Contest Features Radio Broadcast: Whitehouse, M. C.

Cabell Replaces Dyer For H.-S.

"The Rattlers—they strike once and that's enough" symbolizes the spirit of S. T. C.'s undefeated Quiz Team which will clash with the revenge hungry Tigers of Hampden-Sydney in an effort to retain their title "Supreme Intelligentsia".

The Quiz Contest between teams representing Hampden - Sydney College and S. T. C. will be staged in the S. T. C. auditorium Tuesday night, February 17 at 8 o'clock for the benefit of the Southside Community Hospital. The program will be broadcast over radio station WRNL with Chuck Whitehouse of Hampden-Sydney as master of ceremonies.

Three seniors, Virginia Barksdale, Polly Hughes, and Hattie Cantrell, and two juniors, Dawn Shanklin and Violet Woodall, have been selected as the five smart girls who will defend the S. T. C. title of "Undefeated" and brain battle against John Owen, Jr., Keith Eubank, Ralph Ritchie, Jim Cousar, and Roy Cabell of Hampden-Sydney. Bill Dyer, who was originally selected as one of Hampden - Sydney's representatives, will be replaced by Roy Cabell because of his joining the army. Both teams were selected on the basis of preliminary oral and written examinations, directed at Hampden-Sydney by Chuck Whitehouse and at S. T. C. by Sara Cline.

Faculty Queries

The queries for the contest will be those submitted by the faculties of the two colleges. Two faculty members, one from each college, will also act as judges. The judges' decision will be given on a basis of points, each question being equal to a certain number of points. Last year the S. T. C. team won the decision by a majority of 25 points.

The chapter of Pi Delta Epsilon, national journalistic fraternity, at Hampden-Sydney awarded a loving cup to the 1941 S. T. C. Quiz Team last week. Engraved on the cup is the inscription, "Won by S. T. C. in 1941, Farmville versus Hampden-Sydney". A similar cup will be awarded the winning team this year.

In addition to the brain battle on Tuesday there will be added features of entertainment, including singing and dancing. Tickets went on sale yesterday, February 10. Admission for students will be twenty-five cents and thirty cents for town people.

Court Costumes, Decorations, Dates To Be Valentines

Naff Leads With Austin

A gay red and white valentine theme will provide the setting for the annual Mardi Gras dance which is to be staged in the S.T.C. gymnasium Saturday night, February 14, from 8:30 o'clock until 12 o'clock. Bright red hearts and masks against a background of white will portray the valentine theme in the decorations.

The Mardi Gras court will enter into the valentine setting, for all brunettes in the court will wear white dresses bedecked with red hearts, while the blondes will be adorned in red dresses with white hearts. Nancy Naff, queen of Mardi Gras, will appear at 10 o'clock dressed in white, escorted by Billy Austin. Lois Baughman will be her page, and Mildred Cook and Marilyn Johnson her heralds.

West Directs

Mary Owens West will be mistress of ceremonies for the floor show which will be given for the Queen's entertainment. Three members of Orchesis, Betsy Davis, Shirley Cadmus, and Grace Ellerton, will present a modern ballet dance. Jean Weller and the senior quartet made up of Louisa Sanford, Peggy Bellus, Mary Katherine Zehmer, and Mary Jane Ritchie will sing.

Prizes will be awarded to the two girls who wear the most attractive costumes, and also to those two who wear the most original ones. A pair of blue dressing table lamps, as featured in Life magazine, will be given as first prize for the prettiest costume, while a kodak will be second prize. The girl wearing the most original costume will win a modernistic electric clock, while second prize for originality will be a metal desk set. These prizes are now on display in Martin's jewelry store.

Wertz Formulates Plans for May Day

Theme Centers Around Colonials

May Wertz, General chairman of May Day, has announced that all girls interested in participating in some event of May Day may see her or some member of the committee before next week concerning the part they wish to take.

Girls are especially needed for the May Pole dance of the Children's Suite. Students in Orchesis, dance fundamentals classes and dance composition classes will take part in the modern dances of the exercises. The folk dances, which are to be those danced by the people of Virginia in colonial times, will be taught in the freshman physical education classes this quarter.

Plans for colorful costumes are being formulated. They include Indian costumes, military costumes and children's costumes with pantaloons for the May Pole dance.

Cast Selected For Spring Play

Johnny Pancake Takes Lead

Rehearsals have begun for "Death Takes a Holiday" by Walter Ferris, the Spring production of the S. T. C. dramatic club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs. The proceeds from this play, which will be presented March 13 and 14, will go to the Red Cross.

Five of the cast of 11 are veterans. Martha Woodehouse, freshman, will star as Grazia, a poetic and dreamy young girl who is searching for a happiness she hasn't found thus far in life. Peggy Bellus, who was Babbi in the fall production, the "Little Minister", has the role of the princess of Sam Luca, Grazia's mother.

Keith Eubank, known for his performance as the Chief Elder in the "Little Minister" and who has been outstanding in dramatic productions for four years, will take the part of Duke Lambert, neighbor to Grazia and at whose house the scene is laid.

Corrado, son of the Duke, is played by Tedo Savage, the "Little Minister", as a reckless youth who is very much in love with Grazia.

Among the Duke's guests are Baron Cesarca played by Richard Cornwall; his daughter-in-law Alda, whose part taken by Jane McGinnis, a senior with four years of experience in character parts; Eric Fenton, portrayed by Oliver Van Patten, a newcomer from Hampden-Sydney, and his sister Rhoda Fenton, by Margaret Hiner, a freshman. Helen Fuller makes her stage debut in the character of Duchess Stephanie, wife of the Duke, a charming and gracious hostess.

John Pancake in the role of the shadow influences the lives of all and presents new flirtations during his brief interlude at the Duke's house.

Eminent Young Composer To Appear at Lyceum

One of the most important and most versatile figures in American music, Lehman Engle will conduct the musical program to be be presented as the next lyceum number on Friday, February 13, at 8 o'clock in the S. T. C. auditorium.

Many of the leading English madrigal writers will be represented in the program, which will also include two madrigals of the Hallan School, by Monteverdi, a group of 15th and 16th century motets, French Chansons of the 16th and 17th centuries, two works by Joseph Haydn, and a group of folk-songs, English and American, arranged by contemporary composers.

Singers in the group are Florence Vickland, Virginia George, Janice Baumgarten, Floyd Sherman, and Clifford Harvuot.

Lehman Engel, at thirty, has composed a number of choral works, including two operas; has had his compositions performed in this country by the Westminister and Dessaff Choirs, and in several of the musical capitols abroad. He writes frequently for the dance. The Philadelphia orchestra has played his ballet music; Martha Graham has danced to other works from his pen. Interested in the theatre, Mr. Engel has contributed incidental music for Sean O'Casey's "Within the Gates," T. A. Eliot's "Murder in the Cathedral," Maurice Evan's "Hamlet" and "Macbeth", Orson Welles' "Shoemakers' Holiday", and more than a dozen other Broadway productions. His authorship of four volumes of music history, "Renaissance to Baroque," is final proof, if it were needed, of this young man's creative vigor.

S. T. C. To Observe Religious Emphasis Week February 22-25

Religious Emphasis week, which is sponsored annually by the Sophomore Commission and the Y. W. C. A. cabinet, will be held the last week in February, beginning Sunday, February 22, and continuing through Saturday, February 28.

Principal speaker of the week will be Rev. Geo. Henton, pastor of First Baptist Church, Lynchburg who will speak in chapel Tuesday, Feb. 24 on "What College Students Are Facing Today" and on Wednesday when his topic will be "How Will We Meet It?" On Thursday Sherrard Rice of the Union Theological Seminary, of Richmond, will speak on "Do We Have What It Takes?", and on Friday morning at chapel Dr. Paul K. Buckles of the First Presbyterian Church, Newport News, will discuss "Taking Stock of Our Resources." Claralie Nelson, president of the student body last year will review the week's program in chapel on Saturday.

The program for the week will include morning watch, led by Sophomore Commission members, chapel exercises, prayer, conferences and group discussions. The theme topic throughout will be "College Students—What Now?"

Each afternoon during the week the chapel speakers will hold discussions and personal conferences with the students. Prayers will be led during the week by Sophomore Commission members.

Society Initiates Ten Upperclassmen

Ten girls were initiated into Beorc Eh Thorn, local English honor fraternity, at its regular meeting Thursday, February 4.

In order to become a member of Beorc Eh Thorn, a girl must have completed eighteen hours in English with an average of at least B.

All Brains on Deck!

In Tribute to Our President . . .

The image I carry in my mind of Dr. Jarman is always that of a young man of thirty-six. All later and different views of him are variations from this fixed form. I see him as he came into the dining room in February forty years ago and sat down to dinner with us at Mrs. Morrison's table in simple, friendly fashion. His introduction to us was as simple as this. Here he was, the new president, a young man but not too young; tall, dark haired, gray eyed, grave, somewhat inscrutable and evidently kind. We looked at him, shyly, perhaps, in those days, and we liked him and we took him for our own. All the girls who have gone through the institution during these forty years have felt about him in the same way.

A college girls knows little of the work of her president and we know little of what Dr. Jarman was doing or planning during that spring, but we graduated in June with a fine commencement (the governor of the state was the speaker) and the feeling that much was in store for the institution. How little we could guess how much!

Life brought me into contact with Dr. Jarman again eight years later, when I came back to Farmville as the wife of the new professor of psychology and principal of the training school. I was amazed at the transformation of the homeliness of the old buildings into the beautiful and gracious lines of the present Rotunda and porticoes. But I was now to come to know him through my husband as an educator, a leader of his faculty. He was then at the flood tide of life with a growing family and carried the weight of an institution that he was pushing to greater and greater things.

These were the days of growing pains for the school; the days of the crusading theorists in education; of vigorous and conflicting personalities on his faculty; every one of whom had his or her own idea of what procedure should be followed in teaching and what goal should be its aim. No lesser person could have guided it successfully and at the same time have pushed it to greater achievement. I know something of the infinite patience and tolerance the tact and wisdom that directed his faculty meetings of those years. Out of them came, published in 1912, the Farmville Training School course of study which was epochal in its importance to teaching in the state and national in its influence. It became the guide or point of departure of future curriculum making.

I touched Dr. Jarman's life again, indirectly through my husband, when he struggled with the momentous problem of whetner to give up this State Superintendency of Public Instructions and take back again the Presidency of the institution that he had built and which loved him.

For his great gifts of mind and heart; for his noble life so worthily lived; for his service of incalculable value to humanity, we give God thanks. And he is still to me the young man of thirty-six.

—Susie Warner Maddox

Concerning Time Shifts . . .

Time, the thief, has thrown us another curved ball, for on February 9, he changed his routine. Now instead of getting up at 7 o clock, you get up at 8—All of which means that he goes on much the same and that the clocks are the ones that have been most seriously affected.

This is a united war effort to save power capacity—an individual contribution to help counterattack the infamy of one December 7. Railroads, radios, and air lines have adopted the war time as designated by the President and so there should be no great confusion about it. It is thought that war time will continue until six months after the war is over. Officials are checking to see the amount of electric power actually saved by the adoption of this mode of time telling.

At first, as with any innovation there will tend to be confusion and mix-up, but the plan is really a very simple one. You have only to remember that Tempus—the fugitive, is still fleeing from us, but with the President on his side, an hour ahead of his usual speed.

Gleanings

The news in the headlines of our papers continues to focus on the war fronts. The seige of Singapore, the brave stand of General Douglas MacArthur on the Baton Peninsula, the battle on the desert sands of North Africa, the shipping losses in the Atlantic and in the Pacific are in the spotlight of the press. With this news handed out to us we should be prepared for the defeats that will come our way—such as the fall of Singapore which is inevitable. But even with this before us, the great majority of the people continue to go about their daily lives with no change whatever. We refuse to believe that disaster can come to us and we do not take the civilian defense efforts seriously.

On February 9 the changing of time went into effect. This will, of course, affect everyone. But most people are not entering into the spirit of the change. This "war time" was created to cut down on electricity, to put in more working hours and to be of use in our huge war effort. If everyone does not try to carry out the reason behind the move, it will not be of much value. This is one way in which the civilian can do his part, and where cooperation will be the only thing that will bring results. In conserving we should remember to turn out lights when they are not being used and to refrain from using two lights when one will do. When we are asked to save newspapers and canceled stamps and other things that can be used in some way, we should do these things. Whenever we are asked to keep ourselves fit by taking exercises and getting sleep, we should not laugh as if it were a joke. When our medical facilties are needed for the army the civilian cannot afford to be sick. It is through these many little things that everyone can help where help is badly needed.

The Gatepost

(Who hears an awful lot!)

Have you ever and did you know!

Bob called Sadie all the way from Memphis, Tennessee, and talked for a half an hour. Now Hubble is worried about his budget. . . Louisa Sanford's Herbert finally arrived. . . Anne Boswell was properly escorted throughout the week end. . . Dupy has a bicycling rendez-vous with R. K. . . "C" Rose is still waiting for that letter from Ambrose. . . Pagie Francis returned from a week end at home wearing an orchid.

It's a worse mix-up than Waldolf-salad!

Polly Hughes' love affairs—There sat Ralphie mooning in Polly's ear, while "Dossie" sat over in the corner keeping Barksdale in stiches. And all the time we thought that Polly had given up geometry (triangle. . . get it?)

Betty Blackwell's frat pin's neglected state. Everytime she dates the Pika out at Hampden-Sydney, she leaves the Sigma Chi pin at home. 'Tis reported that Betty could not go to Midwinters at Roanoke College last week end, but that the young man was not hateless.

Jean Hatton vs. Jean Hutton—Who won in the mad scramble for the flowers which one of the Bills sent one of the Jeans at William and Mary last week end?

Can she make up her own mind—Mildred Pierce goes to West Point one week end, V. P. I. the next week end, and Virginia another week end and we'll lay you two to one that she'll go to Hampden-Sydney with Bob Irby, come mid-winters. Well, I guess turn about is fair play, eh Mildred?

Wouldst that we could have—Seen M. K. when she met John in Lynchburg.

Donated enough money so that Ruthie could have met Skippy in Newport News instead of Richmond.

Spent a week end that would have left a sparkle in our eye like the sparkle that Frances Rainey had in her eye after last week end with Mac.

Been the little fly on the wall to hear B. Gray and Roby when he called.

Seen the expression on Ford's face when the mystery of her unclaimed letter was solved.

Given "Pete" a lift when he was hitch-hiking all the way from Ohio to see Rosebro!

The envys of S. T. C.

Kit Zehmer—when Dr. Jeffers kissed her. Said Dr. Jeffers at Martha Mac's wedding "You look good enough to kiss." Retorted Kit "Well, why don't you?" and he did!

Helene Stras, former S. T. C.-er, because she went to Virginia dances with the Bill Dudley (and was S. T. C. aroused when he showed up with her in our own Rotunda Sunday!)

More power to you, girls, you're doing all right—

"Hebie" for going to Virginia.

Dot Childress for having three straight week ends with Bill James.

Ella Marsh for snaking Tedo.

"Lady" Folk for keeping two on the string, witness, Mac here this week end.

Betty Peerman for hearing from her ensign in the Pacific.

Rachel Abernathy for getting the proper adornment for that third finger, left hand.

What we want to know is—who paid the bill?

For Lilly Bee's, Peggy Lou's and friend's afternoon snack at Longwood Sunday while the boys sat in the car. Neat way of not having to foot the bill—that is, if you didn't!

Make up your mind

(To prove that you have one, as my mama done tole me!)

Ellen Hudgins, shall it be Chuck (quiz contest) Whitehouse or Hugh Fitzpatrick?

Marty, whether it shall be Metropolitan or Hollywood!

P. S.—Please notice that Prom Trotters Hughes, Snead, and Trible are not mentioned even once in this week's colmun.

Valentine Supporter Voices Protest at Psuedo-Sentiment

By MARY GLADYS WILSON

"Good morrow, 'tis St. Valentine's Day,
All in the morning betime,
And I a maid at your window
To be your Valentine."

—William Shakespeare

St. Valentine's Day—a big box on the teacher's desk in which you dropped your valentines. And whether these valentines were "comics" or sentimental numbers with hearts and lace, you could not help feeling that St. Valenine's Day was a special occasion. But as you have grown older it has lost some of its charm; still it should hold for you some touch of the mysterious and the romantic, if only as a remembrance of childhood.

The stories that have grown up around St. Valentine's Day would put a modern press agent to shame. It has been celebrated in one way or another since the fourteenth century, but yet it still isn't a legal holiday. Nor is it listed as a holy day even though it bears the name of a saint.

Actually the patron saint of the fourteenth of February had nothing to do with the customs that have become connected with it. He happened to be among the martyrs who were later canonized by the church. His birthday, the fourteenth, had been a feast day from ancient times, but had its name changed in honor of him. Despite various attempts to make St. Valentine's Day a holy day it has become secularized.

Cupid, with his small love singed arrows, has truly made the day his own. How one of the most austere saints in the Christian calendar and the most mischievous little god of pagan mythology have become all tangled up in the name and observance of one day in each year is difficult to understand. But there it is; and romance has cast its subtle spell over the customs of the day.

Everywhere the sending of valentines, gifts, or flowers has marked the exchange of affection on this day. In England it was long 'ye olde custome' to choose real "valentines", or special loving friends for the following year. But here in America sentiment has become the partner of commercialism, and a regular industry has grown up around the making of pseudo-valentines. One person at least has blamed the recent waning of interest in St. Valentine's Day on Alexander Bell's telephone, the supposition being that we no longer need a special day for the exchange of endearments.

But do we really want to put St. Valentine's Day away with our toys or associate it merely with a potential box of candy? There are too many beautiful legends and memories connected with it to do that. Let's keep it as one day in the year when lightness and frivolity shall be the keynote; for St. Valentine's Day is one of love.

Question of the Week

What Do You Think of "War Time" as a Measure To Aid In the Defense Program?

Gertrude Wright: If it helps defense, it suits me.

Lucille Lewis: Maybe it will help the soldiers' morale by making them think they can sleep later.

Mully Bugg: If we can help in this way, I think its okay.

Anna Parker: If it saves electric power, it ought to be worthwhile.

Jane Ford: It's one of the few things that we all can do to help and we all ought to try our best to cooperate.

Louise Bell: There must be something to it or the United States government wouldn't do it.

Joscelyn Gillum: I think it's a good plan because all the other countries have adopted it, and it gives us more time to work. We'll soon get used to it and won't know the difference anyway

Fiddle Haymes: I don't see that it will do us any good; but if it helps defense, it's one thing we can do.

Margaret C. Thomas: It'll help later on more than now.

Connie Knighton: If it's helpful, I approve of it.

Louise Turner: If it suits Uncle Sam, it's okay by me.

Sarah Chambers: I believe in being patriotic, and it sounds wonderful to get up at 8 o'clock in the morning instead of 7 o'clock.

Virginia Edwards: I think it's good if it will help.

Rosalie Rogers: Even though it doesn't effect all areas, I think we ought to cooperate with this plan.

Dottie Sue Simmons: "War Time" is our time and it's up to us to see that this plan works effectively.

S. T. C. Triumphs In Court Clash Friday

• Piercing the Points •

By SHIRLEY PIERCE

Introducing to you the members of our Farmville 1942 basketball team! This season's squad is represented by twelve skilled players, all working together with complete cooperation, the necessary factor in the making of a good team. For weeks practices have put these girls into the trim building them for the first game of the season against Radford State Teachers College. Again the blue and white team came out on top with a victory over their opponents of 31-27. Success in any of our games is never contributed to any one individual, but it is the entire teamwork that wins the mark . . . OUR GIRLS:

And our captain, MARTY ROBERTS! For four years she has been a member of the varsity basketball team and during these years contributed her part to all games called upon to participate in. Playing the position of forward, you will see Marty with the greatest ease on the court always ready to send her team's ball down to the goal . . .

Fast, almost before realization that the ball was in opponent territory, DOT JOHNSON returns the playing to the opposite part of the court. A member of varsity for four years, Dot plays the position of guard.

DOT SPRINKLE returns to the varsity squad this season in the position of forward. With speed and accuracy she handles the ball with her other forwards to gain points for the team . . .

A head above all other players . . . yes, its hard to reach those balls that JEAN CARR finds way up in the air! With her height she is able to place those "under the basket shots" and in case Jean is told to "jump" . . . well, she jumps!

Her freshman year she was a member of the sub-varsity team and since has played on the varsity squad; ANNE ELLETT continues in forward position this season. With her very accurate eye for the goal she plays a good game.

Its not always the height that counts in a game, but the way the player is able to move herself about the court. True to form HALLIE HILLSMAN plays both forward and guard position, having been on the team for two years.

FRANCES PARHAM, manager of this year's varsity team, is another who uses her height and ability to move to an advantage. Parham plays guard, having been a member of the sub-varsity team her freshman year and on the varsity last year.

ANNE PRICE returns this year to varsity, having played with the team last year and sub-varsity her freshman year. Anne plays guard position for the team, and is a fast player.

Another very close guard as well as a fast player, PATSY CONNELLY marks this as her first season with the varsity team, however, she played with sub-varsity last season, her freshman year.

DOTTY SUE SIMMONS, a newcomer to the team this year, played with the sub-varsity team last season. Dottie Sue plays a skillful game at forward, and used her ability last season during some of the varsity contests.

The third sophomore player, JUNE SMITH, is a fast . . . at the right place . . . guard. June, like most of the other players was a sub-varsity member her first year.

From those who make up this season's sub-varsity team there lies a year ahead for practices and work-outs which will put them into the best of trim. These girls will be among those who will make up the varsity team next year. Now while they play and practice with the varsity team, those who are needed to fill in places of varsity members are used as they fit. To each girl of our sub-varsity basketball team we wish the best of seasons . . . CECIL PARR, NELL SHAFFER, FLORENCE PETTIT, EVELYN CHRISTIAN, ELLA CARRINGTON, EDITH LOVINS, BETTY CROSS, MARY ELIZABETH BUTTERWORTH, BOBBY SCOTT, ELEANOR WADE, ELEANOR VARN, VERA WOMACK, and MARGUERITE SIZEMORE.

Ping Pong Tourney To End Tuesday

Twenty-four to Play For Cup Points

First two rounds of the Ping Pong tournament must be completed by Tuesday, February 17. Balls may be secured from Dorothy Johnson, Shirley Turner, or Patsy Connelly. Five points toward the color cup will go to the winner of the tournament.

The following girls have signed up for the tournament: Shirley Pierce, Jane Brown, Jane Ruffin, Alice Marie Coberly, Nell Hurt, Mary Walker Watts, Elizabeth Barlow, Ruth Dugger, Mildred Droste, Eloise Lupton, Bernice Laforce, Harriette Walker, Frances Parham, Sugar Baker, Bobbie Scott, Hilah Lee Parks, Louise Phillips, Bucky Stewart, Fiddle Haymes, Shirley Cadmus, Penny Munson, M. K. Ingham, Dot Darracott, and Frances Quillen.

Parham Announces Carnival Theme

Frances Parham, head of the annual Water Carnival has announced that the theme will be Hawaiian as last year's exhibition. Dorothy Darracott and Frances Mallory are also on the committee. The date has not yet been set and no further plans have been made.

A. A To Regulate Lost and Founds In S. T. C. Gymnasium

"Any articles of clothing found in the gym will be collected and put away until called for by the owner," Dorothy Johnson, president of the Athletic Association announced.

The Athletic Association is sponsoring this new movement for several reasons. Dorothy continued, "First it will help do away with the careless handling of property and unnecessary garments about the gymnasium. Also, such articles found will be safe from persons who might seek possession of them before the rightful owner seeks her misplaced garment."

For each article found by the A. A. members or by Miss Olive Iler, a fine of five cents must be paid before each can be returned. The money collected in such cases will be used as a donation to the American Red Cross by the Athletic Association of S. T. C.

Pancake Is Recital Feature

Orchesis Group To Present Unusual Modern Dances

Orchesis Dance Group under the direction of Miss Emily Kauzlarich will present their first dance program of the year in the form of a recital on Thursday evening, February 12, in the State Teachers College auditorium. There will be an admission of ten cents to the recital, which will be given to the American Red Cross as a contribution from the Orchesis Dance Club.

Highlighting the program will be a presentation of "Bowl of Blood", a dramatization from Robertson and Jeffer's new book, "Be Angry at the Sun." This highly dramatic role has as an added feature the voice of Johnny Pancake, senior student at Hampden-Sydney college. Emotional movement is revealed in this selection and has as characters Mary Hunter Edmunds, Anne Bradshaw, Betty Sexton and Ruth Dugger.

The opening dance of the recital entitled "Celebration" has the entire club represented. Another selection on the program will be "Prairie Song" with Louisa Sanford, Sally Hutchinson, Harriette Walker, Lulle Jones, and Hallie Hillsman dancing. "Adoration", a number which the club has been reworking, casts Helen Wiley Hardy, Alice Seibert, Ruth Dugger, Lulie Jones, Jean Strick, Shirley Cadmus, and Grace Elierton. This group also includes "Lullaby" formerly used in the Christmas program but reworked for this recital with dancers Harriette Walker, Anne Covington, Gloria Pollard, Louise McCorkle, and Shirley Pierce.

Dipping into a lighter bit of dance the club presents "Fragrance of Today", a waltz trio entitled 'Evanescence", Shirley Cadmus, Grace Elierton, and Betsy Davis make up the trio in this selection. Light dancing steps with familar strains of "Auld Lang Syne" sets this off as a hit feature of the evening.

In semi-rondo form a brand new selection titled "Oh Susannah" set to the same well known music, brings another highlight of the program. Dancing will be Mary Hunter Edmunds, Anne Bradshaw, Betty Sexton, and Ellen Ebel. Betsy Davis and Anne Covington change time with the waltz step and Louise McCorkle with Ruth Dugger does the polka step.

The final number is a newly composed humorous composition, "Blow the Man Down". Anne Bradshaw, Ruth Dugger, Alice Seibert, Grace Elierton, Gloria Pollard, Jean Strick, Hallie Hillsman, Louisa Sanford, Helen Hardy, Betty Sexton, Ellen Ebel, and Shirley Pierce will be in the group presenting this dance.

Radford Dubs Team "Smoothies" In Overthrow

Blue and White was once again victorious when the S. T. C. varsity basketball team defeated Radford State Teachers College 31 to 27 on the opponents' court Friday, February 6. This marks the first game of the season for the Farmville team.

Starting the game the Farmville sextet scored rapidly against the Radford cagers totaling a score of 22 to 4 at the end of the half. With a heavy push back beginning in the third quarter a gain was made by the Radford girls when they gathered seven more points, making a score of 26 to 11 by the end of the third period.

With a final quarter left, the S. T. C. team held firm their ground gaining five more points and ending the game ahead with a final score of 31 to 27.

The lineup was as follows:

Roberts, f, (Captain) Ellett, f; Carr, f; Johnson, g; Parham, g; Connelly, g.

Substitutes: Hillsman, Price, Wade, and Varn.

Miss Olive T. Iler, coach, accompanied the team.

Just Looking, Thanks

This past week-end was a happy one for many students of Farmville. A number of girls were fortunate enough to spend a week-end with the family or to visit their roommate's family or to take in a set of dances.

University of Virginia proved to be very popular with Farmvillites and among those present at the Mid-Winter dances there were Mary Lou Trible, Nancy Hughes, Lillian German, Jo Bishop, Dot Hahn, Virginia Snead, Nancye Allen, Kendall Nottingham, Mildred Pierce, Jeannette Rose, Jo Starling, Mary Ambler Thomson.

Elinor Johnson, Jeannette Garrison, Betty Bridgeforth and Ida Coleman attended dances at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

At the student body dance of the Medical College of Virginia in the ballroom of the John Marshall Hotel, Richmond, were Carroll Costello, Jane Lee Sink, Jane Hobson, Frances Mallory and Jac Hardy.

Jean Hatton traveled to Williamsburg to attend the mid-winter dances at William and Mary College.

Gamma Theta Party

Anna Parker, Lucille Lewis, Betty Peerman, Stella Scott and Mary Parrish Vicellio gave a party for the active members and pledges of Gamma Theta social sorority at Longwood, Tuesday afternoon, February 10.

Future Fetes

This week end will bring the social spot light right on our own campus when Nancy Naff will reign over the Mardi Gras festivities. Music will be furnished by the Washington and Lee Collegians. Intermission parties may be held in various sorority rooms.

The members of Mu Omega social sorority will entertain their pledges at a banquet in the College Tea Room Wednesday night, February 18. The decorations will follow a patriotic motif. Brookie Benton is in charge of arrangements.

Esther Atkinson, Helen Wiley Hardy, Sarah Hardy, Jane Sanford, Jane Lee Hutchinson, Peggy Bellus, Louise McCorkle, Carolyn Smith, Hannah Lee Crawford were among those who were present at the Pi Kappa Alpha parties at Hampden-Sydney.

Editor Rouse Names Contest Judges, Prizes

Miss Lucille Jennings, Miss Mary Clay Hiner, James M. Grainger, and Mary Stuart Walmsley, members of the advisory board, and Carolyn Rouse, poetry editor, have been named as judges for the annual Colonnade poetry contest which will close Friday, February 20.

Prizes of three dollars, two dollars, and one dollar will be awarded to those winning first, second, and third place respectively. Poems of exceptional merit will be awarded honorable mention.

Entries should be marked "Colonnade Poetry Contest" and placed in the Colonnade box, or given to Carolyn Rouse, chairman of the contest.

Winners will be announced at a future date, and winning entries will be published in the Colonnade.

Prominent Citizens Discuss Plans For Local Defense

"Defense Activities and War Efforts of Our Community" was the central theme of the defense program last Monday afternoon at 4:30 p. m. in the Student Building lounge.

Five minute talks were presented by outstanding Farmville citizens on topics related to defense. "The Local Defense Program", "The Local Company of the Virginia Protective Force", "Defense Courses Provided by the State Teachers College", "Farmville Post of the Airplane Warning Service", "Volunteer Service Work of the Farmville Chapter of the American Red Cross", "Red Cross Drives in the Farmville Area", "Local Plans for the Distribution of Defense Bonds and Stamps", and "Responsibilities of Local Government in Civilian Defense" were the topics discussed.

ATTENTION, SENIORS, SOPHOMORES!

All seniors and sophomores who wish to make a change in their statistics for the 1942 Virginian must do so at the table in the hall Thursday, February 12, between chapel and lunch.

School Talent In Music Program

An evening of music, sponsored by the Farmville Woman's Club, was presented Wednesday night, February 3 in the S. T. C. auditorium. The program was made up of a variety of talented people, both of Farmville and from the college.

Included in the program from the college were members of the Orchesis dance group, who presented three compositions from "Orpheus", "Adoration", "Lullaby", and "Waltz". Piano selections were rendered by Helen Wiley Hardy, junior, and Sarah Chambers, senior, and the S.T.C. Octette, under the direction of Beth Johnson, sophomore, gave two selections, "Hominc", by Teresa Del Rugo", and "Going Home", by Anton Dvorak. Patricia Maddox, freshman, sang Tchaikowsky's "None but The Lonely Heart", accompanied by Miss Virginia Richards at the piano.

Other features in the program included the Farmville Silver Band, the Farmville High School glee club, the Methodist Intermediate Choir, under the direction of Mrs. E. S. Sheppe, and piano solos by Sarah Graham, Billy Hart, Gwendolyn Ward, and Lester Wilkerson, all of Farmville.

The program was closed with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" led by the combined choruses and the band.

March 7 Marks Founder's Day

Founders Day, which will be celebrated the week-end of March 6 and 7, will begin Friday evening, March 6, with a basketball game between the Farmville varsity and that of Madison State Teachers College, Harrisonburg.

The Founders Day program will officially open at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning, when both students and alumnae will assemble in the auditorium. There the alumnae chapters will make reports and present gifts to their Alma Mater, and the students through organization leaders will contribute to the school. At this time a dance program will be presented by Orchesis.

A program luncheon will be held in the recreational hall following the morning meeting and the afternoon program will include tours of the school, the Granddaughters Club tea at Longwood, and a group performance of the freshman physical education classes in the gymnasium.

In the evening the visitors will be guests of the college at a lyceum number.

Throughout the week-end a display of pictures, showing scenes of S. T. C. when it was Farmville State Female Normal School forty years ago will be displayed in the library.

Debate Club Elects Marilyn Bell Officer

Marilyn Bell, freshman, was elected treasurer of the Debate Club at a called meeting last week to replace Dot Gaul who did not return to school this quarter.

Marilyn is a reporter on the publication staff of the Rotunda and a member of Alpha Phi Sigma, honor fraternity.

Suggested Mardi Gras Costumes

Motley Regalia Highlights Mardi Gras Costume Plans

Gypsies in motley costumes and dancers clad in anti-bellum fashion will predominate Saturday night's Mardi Gras. The question of "What to wear" has been an impending one, and the solution to this all important cause of feminine hair-tearing has found answers to variety, above all else.

Not to be outdone by the good-neighbor policy, Sadie, Betty Reid, and Lilly Bee will go a la Chinese—as Mr. and Mrs. Generalissimo Chaing Kai-Shek and son. Lest it be forgotten that Valentine's accidentally coincides with this festive occasion, Beezie will wear the traditional white lace and red hearts. Shirley Turner will appear as a prom-trotter.

Raggety Ann, Florodora, Spanish senoritas, and Russian ladies will also be present. Children, country girls(Parham), and those reviving the South's colonial era will be equally as popular. That there will be variety will not be denied when clowns, the goon girl, along with feminine pirates, and The Hussey appear.

Anne Ayers, who will be in the receiving line, will wear an old-fashioned white lace dress with white mits.

This should be an occasion for fun and frolic by all. . . for the comical, ranging to the beautiful will be on display. Added inducement to work for variety and originality in costume should be the prizes awarded for the brain work spent in devising something to wear. Here may be an instance when a little thinking will produce really worthwhile results, for everyone has a chance to show the stuff she can make things of.

Knit one, purl two has its qualities, but the time is drawing near when thoughts should hastily turn costumeward, for Mardi Gras is fast 'a comin'. And there will be no date costumes to absorb much of your originality as before 'cause dates this year are going formally.

Fraternity Suggests Early Light Curfew

The members of Kappa Delta Pi at their last meeting offered the following recommendation for the consideration of the defense council to be organized at school soon.

They suggested that the lights in Cunningham Hall be turned off by 11:00 p. m. This recommendation was offered in an attempt to build a physical fitness program for girls such as the government is formulating for men.

A committee appointed by Mary Hunter Edmunds, president, is investigating the possibilities of a daily calisthenic program. The committee is composed of Martha Roberts, Elva Andrews, and Emma Louise Crowgey.

Book Campaign Has Cooperation

In its drive to assist in the nation-wide Victory Book Campaign, the S. T. C. Library has received about eighty-five books and many assorted periodicals. It is hoped that the students will cooperate to the fullest by contributing to this beginning which has been made.

More books are going to be received from the people of the United States for distribution to the armed forces and others engaged in the work of winning the victory than exist in the largest library in the world. The goal is at least 10,000,000 books.

Camp librarians throughout the nation report that the types of books in greatest demand are applied psychology, current affairs, English grammars, Arithmetic, A'gebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Accounting, Shorthand, business and salesmanship, cartoons, photography, well-illustrated books of all types, books about music, sports, poetry, geography, and history. All good fiction is in great demand.

Peck, and Brookie Benton make up the committee that will decide whether or not the costumes are suitable. All costumes must be at least knee length.

Mr. J. Tucker Doyne of Farmville, Mrs. Shelton Whitaker, of Farmville, and Dr. Herman Bell of Hampden-Sydney will act as judges.

Chaperones will be Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Coyner, Mrs. Hallie Laing, Mrs. Eva Warren. Miss Rachel Royall, Mrs. Mabel McCoy, Mrs. Blanche Beasley, Dr. Francis Simkins, Miss Mary Peck, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Holton, and Dr. and Mrs. Herman Bell.

In the receiving line will be Miss Mary White Cox, Dr. J. L. Jarman, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Holton, and the officers of Pi Gamma Mu, Mary Lilly Purdum, president; Mary Hunter Edmunds, vice-president; Betty Peerman, secretary; Anne Ayers, treasurer; and Elizabeth Ann Parker, general chairman of Mardi Gras.

Mardi Gras is sponsored annually by the members of Pi Gamma Mu, honorary fraternity in social science. Elizabeth Ann Parker, general chairman, is being assisted by Lucy Turnbull and Anne Ayers, while Agnes Patterson is in charge of the floor show; Anne E'lett, music; Jane Sanford, costumes, and Jean Hatton, decorations.

Students To Meet March 2 To Set Up Defense Council

In an effort to coordinate the college with the nation's "all out for defense" program, Farmville State Teachers College students will assemble Monday night, March 2, in the college auditorium.

Dr. J. L. Jarman and Dr. James Elliott Walmsley will be the principal speakers at the student meeting. Dr. Jarman and Dr. Walmsley will set forth the aims of the newly created defense council whose purpose is to coordinate in the college and to make them conscious of their part in the national defense program.

Defense Council

Other committees have been named to assist the National Defense Council. Nell Hurt, fire chief, will serve as chairman of the air-raid committee with S. L. Graham as faculty advisor. This committee will take charge of fire protection and evacuation.

The physical fitness committee will be headed by Martha Roberts, and Miss Olive T. Iler and Miss Mary Barlow, faculty co-chairmen. The duties of this group will be to provide suitable exercises in order to improve and maintain physical fitness.

Sara Cline, editor of the Rotunda and S. M. Holton, faculty advisor, will handle all publicity pertaining to the college defense work.

A morale committee to organize and to lead discussion groups on the campus for the purpose of students' thinking will be formed under the direction of Mary Hunter Edmunds, president of Kappa Delta Pi and Miss Pauline Camper, faculty chairman.

As a representative from the home economics department Mary Katherine Dodson, president of the senior class, will head a consumer education committee under the faculty supervision of Miss Ruth Gleaves. This group will attempt to educate students along various economic phases of the war.

Shirley Turner, instructor in first aid, Miss Grace Mix, and Miss Elizabeth Burger will conduct classes in home nursing, first aid and nutrition.

Nell Richards, chairman of the social service committee of the Y. W. C. A. will conduct a conservation and salvage campaign for the collection of books, newspapers, stamps and toothpaste tins. Miss Mary Clay Hiner of the faculty will assist her.

The war finance committee will be in charge of drives, benefit affairs, bonds and stamps, and knitting. Serving as chairman, Mary Lily Purdum, president of Pi Gamma Mu, will assume duties immediately with Miss Mary Nichols as faculty advisor.

Race Relations Week Is Observed

In accordance with the observance of Race Relations Week in colleges throughout the United States this week, prayers programs have been based on this subject.

"Building a Brotherhood Through Defending" is the central theme. Betty Peerman spoke on "Living Together with Brothers," and Tuesday night, "Overcoming Race Hatred" was Carolyn Rouses's subject.

"International Understanding Through The Arts" will be Agnes Patterson's topic for tonight's prayers; "Working Together For World Fellowship," Margaret Mish's subject Thursday and Friday Lucy Turnbull will discuss "Making The Highest Degree of Democracy In America".

Friday afternoon the churches of Farmville will observe World Day of Prayer together and the Presbyterian Church will be open from four to five for prayer and meditation. All students are urged to join in this fellowship meditation at this time.

Soph Commission Outlines Program For Emphasis Week

Sherrard Rice Is Named Speaker

Religious Emphasis week, which is sponsored annually by the Sophomore Commission and the Y. W. C. A. cabinet will begin with Morning Watch Sunday, February 22, and will continue through Saturday, February 28.

Principal speaker of the week will be Reverend Sherrard Rice, of Union Theological Seminary, who will speak in chapel Wednesday, February 25, on "What College Students are Facing Today!" and on Thursday, when his topic will be "Do We Have What It Takes?"

Friday morning at chapel, Reverend A. H. Hollingsworth, of Farmville Presbyterian Church, Farmville, Virginia, will discuss "Taking Stock of Our Resources." Caralie Nelson, president of the student body last year, will review the week's program in chapel Saturday, Feb. 28.

The program for the week will include morning-watch, led by Sophomore Commission members, chapel exercises, prayers, conferences, and group discussions. The theme topic throughout will be "College Students—What Now?"

Each afternoon during the week, chapel speakers will hold discussions and personal conferences with students. Prayers will be led during the week by the Sophomore Cimmission members who will continue to follow this topic.

Frosh Production Scheduled March 4

The curtain will rise on "Meet Me at Shannons," the freshman production on Wednesday, March 4 at 8:30 p. m. Admission will be twenty cents, including tax, and the program will consist mainly of talent and take off on real life and conditions on our campus. The entire cast has not been selected but tryouts will take place one day next week.

Myrtle Lee Holt is general chairman assisted by Margaret Prey, make-up; Sara Bird Williams, publicity; Ann Warrick, properties; theme, Mildred Carter Clanton; and Anne Payne, business.

Save Old Postage Stamps For National Defense

In keeping with the latest war saving program, students and faculty are urged to contribute old postage stamps and discarded tins and tubes which will be collected for the government and re-used.

A small box has been placed near the A. A. bulletin board to collect postage stamps. Also, in each hall presidents room a similar box is located which any such material may be deposited. Needed dye from all stamps will be secured and used by the goverment in materials requiring the lacking product. Old tubes will be melted and their residue used in the "arm for defense" program.

Dramatic Club Bids Fifty-five Girls

Fifty-five new members were bid and initiated into the Dramatic Club recently.

During the fall quarter, these girls served an apprenticeship and were voted into the club by the active members. An informal initiation took place Tuesday night, February 10. Formal initiation was held Wednesday, February 11.

New girls who will be members of the make-up group are Onita Witcher, Gloria Shephard, Lucy Manson, Littell Coffman, Carol Diggs, Lillian Goddin, Rebecca Lacey, Mildred Ames, Ruth Parker, Louise Turner, Catherine Trower, and Jean Garland.

The acting group includes Emily Kyle Ainsworth, Jane Brown, Patsy Crews, Virginia Edwards, Alice Feltig, Helen Fuller, Patricia Garth, Lorraine Ginsberg, Martha Higgins, Margaret Hiner, Betty Jane Hunt, Harriet Levinson, Martha Spratt, Pamela Starling, Virginia Terrell, Ann Warrick, Marion Orange, Marguerite Sizemore, Martha Woodhouse, and Della Rainey.

Gloria Besser, Aline Bass, Sugar Surrett, Nell Hollaway, Kitty Patrick, Gwen Sampson, Mary E. White, and Dorothy Womble will make up the staging group.

The five new girls who will make up the costuming group are Nannie Webb, Myrtle Lee Holt, Constance Powell, Lois Baughman, and Jane Smith.

The lighting group will have Winifred Wright, Mary St. Clair Bugg, Martha Walsh, and Carol Pugh.

Orchesis Dancers Sponsor Symposium At S. T. C. Saturday

Six Colleges Scheduled to Assemble Here for Workshop Demonstration

Farmville Orchesis Dance Club will be hostess to six visiting college dance groups this Saturday, February 21 when a dance symposium will be the main event on the campus.

The purpose of the conference is to bring the various dance groups together in a workshop demonstration where an interchange of ideas will allow all the groups to benefit from the other's methods. Co-chaimen of the conference are Mary Hunter Edmunds and Hallie Hillsman assisted by Miss Emily Kauzarich, director of S. T. C. Orchesis Dance Group.

Six Colleges To Meet

Schools participating in the symposium agreed on the theme for the day to be based on the "Americana," and the "Negro Cycle". The schools will include Chapel Hill of the University of N. C. who will bring ten people, three of which are boys. Their instructor, Miss Elsie Earle, will accompany the group and instruct in the workshop programs. In the evening program this group will present as their number, "Revival". Sweetbriar accompanied by their dance director, Miss Aima Boyden, will bring ten girls to join the conference. From William and Mary the dance instructor, Miss Grace Felker, will instruct variations on Weidman's technique. Radford S. T. C. does not have a dance group, but a member of the physical education department will attend the symposium. Madison S. T. C. will bring twenty girls and their instructor Miss Louise Covington. This group, however, will not participate in the evening program. Five girls from Fredericksburg will accompany their instructor, Miss Mildred Stewart, who will teach techniques and composition groups.

Schedule

The schedule for the day is as

Juniors Contract Lynchburg Band

Set Dance Date For February 28

To the music of the Lynchburg Cavaliers, the junior class will sponsor its dance for the benefit of the Southside Community Hospital in the college gymnasium Saturday night, February 28 from 8:30 p. m. until 12 o'clock.

Following a patriotic motive, the decorations will be in colorful red, white, and blue designs.

The Lynchburg Cavaliers, who have played at a number of dances for various colleges in Virginia, will play a no-break medley for the juniors immediately preceding intermission.

Working with Betty Youngberg, who is general chairman of the dance, are Winifred Wright, chairman of the decorations; Margaret Thomas and Lilly Bec Gray, co-chairman of tickets; Anne Garnett, Marjorie Lee, and Kathleen Jones, refreshments chairmen; and Mary Harvie, floor chairman.

Tickets will go on reserve for juniors this week while tickets for members of the entire student body will go on sale next week at the table on second floor Rotunda.

This year marks the first time the junior class has had the opportunity of presenting a class dance.

Dr. Wynne Attends Philosophy And Education Meeting

Dr. J. P. Wynne, professor of Philosophy, attended the convention of the Philosophy of Education Society at Columbus, Ohio, on February 13 and 14.

Gathered at Columbus in the Nell House, were about forty scholars interested in philosophy of education. Some of these men had met before in Philadelphia last year in a convention that was the forerunner of the new organization.

The society is composed of two classes of members, Fellows and Associates. The Fellows have all written dissertations on Philosophy of Education, are all teaching the subject, and have all made outstanding contributions in the field of educational philosophy. These are the active members of the society. The Associates are students of philosophy of education, teachers of the subject, or teachers of general philosophy, with a particular interest in philosophy of education. These members have no vote, but are privileged to participate in the discussions.

The organization of such a society shows decided growth in the philosophy of education, since until recently a degree could not be obtained in this field because it was not considered important enough.

Parker, Bell Debate Roanoke College

Elizabeth Ann Parker, senior, and Marilyn Bell, freshman, will travel to Salem tomorrow to debate the question, "Resolved that the twenty-six democracies should form a federation based on the eight Churchill-Roosevelt principles." The S. T. C. girls compose the affirmative side and will meet a negative team from Roanoke College.

A negative team, Allan Senie and Charles Reese, from the University of Virginia will meet Alice Nichols and Virginia Sedgley on the same question next Monday night in the S. T. C. small auditorium.

Practice debates were held last week and the speaker for this trip chosen. The affirmative team consisted of Elizabeth Ann Parker and Kyle Barnhill, Ann Randolph and Marilyn Bell. Alice Nichols with Josephine Stalling and Virginia Sedgley with Alice Nichols formed the negative team.

Tentative plans are being made for members of the Debate Club to attend the National Convention at Minneapolis, Minn.; Grand Eastern Tournament at Winthrop College, Rock Hill, South Carolina; and the conference at Lenior - Rhyne College, Hickory, North Carolina.

Tigers Trounce Rattlers 286 to 268

Pi Delta Epsilon Cup Goes to H.-S.

With wits as well as claws sharpened and vengeance in their hearts, the Hampden-Sydney Tigers avenged last year's defeat by triumphing over the S. T. C. Rattlers by eighteen points in the Quiz-A-Roo last night.

Chuck Whitehouse, introduced by Mallory Freeman of WRNL as the "biggest midget in the world", acted as master of ceremonies, and kept the ball of informality rolling by his continual spontaneous wisecracks. Through the facilities of WRNL a full half hour of the program was broadcast.

An added feature was the screen upon which childhood pictures of the quiz kids were flashed as they were presented by Chuck Whitehouse. On the Hampden-Sydney team were two veterans of last year's team, Keith Eubank and Jim Cousar. In addition were Ralph Ritchie, Roy Cabell, and John Owen, the only freshman on the program. Polly Hughes was the only veteran on the S. T. C. team and she was supported by Dawn Shanklin, Harriet Cantrell, Violet Woodall, and Virginia Barksdale.

Introduced by Shirley Cadmus of S. T. C., the program got off to a good start and the end of the first round found Hampden-Sydney five points ahead. Each round was conducted in a different manner, applying methods used on well known radio quiz programs. In most of the rounds the question was open to any member of the team, but in several the individual selected the category in which he was to be questioned.

The audience round was one of the most interesting. Chuck Whitehouse went out into the audience and asked questions to "intelligent looking" victims.

As part of the half hour on the air Walton Zimmerman interviewed Virginia's only contribution to an All-American football team, Bill Dudley, currently sought by Hollywood. Bill remarked that everyone asked about Ruth Hussy, Hollywood actress who recently visited him. "She's a swell girl and I had a great time with her", he said. Bill, one of the youngest All-American ever, registered Monday and is looking forward to army life.

Another feature on the half hour radio program was the singing of "The White Cliffs of Dover" by Ed Field of Hampden-

Audience Quizzed At Intermission

Sydney and Lucy Messick, Kit Zehmer, and Louisia Sandford of S. T. C. Later in the program Peggy Bellus sang "This Time the Dream's on Me" and "How About You?" By popular request she also offered "Night and Day". Peggy was accompanied by May Wertz.

The program was made even more attractive by the gifts of gum and ice cream to the entire audience.

During the final round the audience and the contestants were equally tense since not only success was at stake but also the Pi Delta Epsilon loving cup. This cup was won by S. T. C. last year and the team winning the trophy for three successive years has the privilege of keeping it permanently.

Polly Hughes, of S. T. C., made the remark that "there aren't any dirt in a hole", but Whitehouse equalled this by asking the boys if any had ever called his girl "Saccharine" since 'tis 500 times as sweet as sugar! In the tense

Seize Your Opportunities

Lyceums are a feature of the college's social program. They are designed as cultural contributions in order that this part of our heritage may be maintained. Our failure to attend these programs means that much which is essential to the complete fulfillment of our education is neglected. Too often we excuse ourselves from these entertainments with feeble apologies for tests or laborious assignments, whereas, often, careful planning and concentrated effort would eliminate entirely this mode of "getting out of things."

The reason for not attending lyceums can not be traced to non-entertaining performers, for those who have performed for us have exhibited much appeal and talent. The variety of entertainment has been ample enough to attract the interests of all of us. Why, then, do we permit these opportunities to pass with apparently a minimum of awareness of their existence?

The indifferent attitude with which we act now will in all probability be the subject of much regret at a future date, for only by association with the fine and the beautiful in life do we learn beauty and fineness. We should take advantage of the opportunities offered us through lyceums; especially now, since the war clouded future will doubtless be filled with fewer presentations by these artists.

Our Part in the Battle

As individuals on whose every effort hangs the destiny of a democratic way of living, we are asleep. We are asleep to our utter peril, to the divine duty and heritage of our forefathers. But primarily we are asleep to the fact that we each may help at this time when our very principles and bases of civilizations are suffering grave transformations through dynamic ideas of the leaders of 'the other' nations.

Some of us seem dubious as to what we can do. Of utmost importance is our duty to ourselves. By studying hard and thoroughly we will be preparing ourselves for really valuable service if not now, later. Post-war conditions must be sensed, and methods of adjustment made ready.

Judging from actual deprivations, few of us have felt the sting of sacrifice. We have not yet learned the true meaning of "doing without". If we have wanted to see movies, our temporary desires were fulfilled. But the time when we innately feel the nobleness and the satisfaction gained from sacrifice will be a time of great realization and awakening. Let us not be caught defenseless and indifferent. Rather with a will for victory and conquest let us do our duty until it hurts. Never let it be said that our nation caught us napping when it needed us most.

The Lenten Season

Today is Ash Wednesday, the first day of Lent. From now until Easter, we should be thinking about our religion as a vital part of our lives. In addition to being the Lenten season, this is Go to Church Month, and more than ever before we should put our religion into our living.

We hear a great deal about sacrifices during Lent. For what purpose? Not merely to put our will power on trial, but to prepare ourselves for Easter.

Lent is the time to get away from the crowd, to build character, that indefinable strength which derives its power from solitude. Lent is the time to think quietly. We are in a war. Do we fully realize what it means? There is no use fighting this war if we do not work for the kingdom that must come. Not emotional excitement but deep spiritual exercise is what we need.

We—you and I—can defend America. Not by wildly volunteering to drive ambulances, but by quietly building the morale in our own communities. America needs guts as well as guns. National Character is the core of National Defense. Congress can't vote it; money can't buy it, but it's our job to build it.

During the next forty days—the season of Lent—let us not only prepare for the new dresses that are so often synonymous with Eastertide, but let us aid others in every way possible.

Gleanings

By MARY HUNTER EDMUNDS

The headlines are so big these days, important things so important, that we do not have time to read about or thoughts to waste upon minor happenings such as the starving of the people of the little nation of Greece.

Time says, "Bread was priced as $15 a loaf in Athens last week and there was no oread. There were no potatoes, no figs, no raisins, no tomatoes." And the people in Athens and Peiraeus alone are dying at the rate of 1,700 or 2,000 each day.

During its two months of occupation last year the Nazi Army hurried every crumb out of the country. It even "fried Greek potatoes in Greek fat and shipped them, cooked, back to Germany." Every grain of wheat, every fruit, tomato, and edible animal was "purchased" from the Greeks with the worthless German marks. All stocks of clothes went the same way, and the Greeks are so cold that at night they rob the dead of the clothes they need less than the half-living. There is no fuel and it is a bitter winter.

The stubborn spirit of the brave Greeks is broken. There is no hatred left for the Germans in the eyes of the famished Greeks. How can the spirit persist when the body is crying out for its very existence?

And the only relief the Axis have given the pitiful Greeks was a shipment of grain that the Germans forced Italy to send from her meager stores, secretly so that the starving Italians would not protest overmuch.

The Greeks are our allies! Have we forgotten how we praised them for their brave fight for us? Food is going by the thousands of pounds to England, and England is not yet at the starving point.

There is irony in the statement that "the Allies are planning a token shipment of grain to the Greeks sometime in the near future."

The Gatepost

(Who hears an awful lot)

It's hard t' know where to start this time, what with Mardi Gras, Valentine's Day, and Junior Sing coming up all at once.

Have you ever seen such a line as there was outside the post office Saturday morning? In there fighting 'em were Sexton and Lena Butterworth, who netted three boxes of candy apiece. The Sexton also received flowers from another absent admirer. Not bad, eh?

Marg Bowling was the recipient of a Whitman's sampler from Bob, her super new heart-throb from Richmond! They really enjoyed a gala time during the week end.

Seen over Libby Bernard's shoulder coming from the post office was a whole page of XXXX's, and we don't mean confectioner's sugar. . . those Roanoke College men! And incidentally, we saw in the Roanoke Times that Bob Saul was elected one of Roanoke College's best dates. Um-m-m-!

Mildred Pierce is right after thatBob Irby, we're told, and having seen the way they were looking at each other Saturday and Sunday—well, we think you'd be safe in quoting us.

Looking mighty purty in the figure Saturday night were Nancy and the court—also all the dates. Orchids to S. T. C. for having such good—looking gals.

Also exemplary of feminine youth, beauty, and charm were Queen Barbara and her court. Congratluations to the junior class for puttin' on a first-rate Sing!

Mein Kampus

We may add Elizabeth Summerfield's name to the list of engaged seniors at S. T. C.. She's taking the fatal step in July. Guess that makes 'bout half a dozen, with Nancy and Allene and Shirley McCulley and other lucky ones. Nancy Williamson and Mary Ann Biggs followed suit by coming out of the week-end with a diamond. Ah, love!

Way out in front at Mardi Gras were that smooth Med. School crowd, including Jac Hardy's Mickey James and Carol Costello's Jimmy Crosky. Alan Fox, Nicol Eskeridge, Tedo, and other H. S. lads were likewise getting potent rushes. By the way there are no files on Betty Gray Smithdeal's and Nellie Varn's brothers!

We understand that a certain Scottish lassie was rather partial to Miggie's date. Didja do any good, "Scottie"? And how 'bout Betsy Austin's getting a bid to V. P. I. private Cotillion at the dance?

Missing all the fun here, but having plenty of it elsewhere was B' Shaw, who was home to be in a friend's wedding. Jo Ware also among the missing, having gone home to see Newtie.

Look out, University of Tennessee, 'cause Betty Birchfield is heading that way this week-end! We'll let you know the details later, and also whether or not Shirley, A. P., and Butch are going to accept Hanya Holm's offer.

Quite a bit of commotion the little Mildred Cook caused the Norfolk and Western Railway Sunday evening. . . but Cookie's not to blame, really 'cause how'd she know that it was a "fast" train and they wouldn't wait for her to get off. The story goes that after excited screams the conductor brought the moving train to a halt and was glad indeed to be relieved of the passenger!

It All Happened Saturday Night

Jane Ford decided that "Every dog has her day". (She had hers Saturday night.)

Helen Ott's Valentine gift from Sonny was none other than one of those breath-taking V. P. I. Cotillion Pins. If you want to see it, I'm sure she'll be wearing it!

Since we're on the subject of Valentine gifts, we might mention the six boxes of candy which Vivian Gwaltney didn't get.

After a long spell of "infimary" we see P. Keller up and out. Life down there would be wonderful if we all could be as lucky and have as many flowers, food, and visitors—including a certain "out of state" man!

Pearsall glowed forth over the week-end with special visitors from "home", but when the time came to say farewell it was "Mep" who upped and went home to do "Easter Shopping."

Question of the Week

What Do You Think or How Do You Feel About Girl-Break Dances?

Lucille Lewis: They are much better with a date and that really keeps you busy!

Grace Ellerton: I think they are fine. Of course, you always want to dance with the good dancers! And you never can take more than a step or two.

"Lady" Folk: I think the boys have the time of their lives.

Interested In: Girl-break dances—hum-hum. Girl-break dances. Chum—.

Jane Ford: It depends on the boys that are there.

Dot Johnson: They are easier on the girls' feet.

Betty Reid: The girls really show the boys how to give their dates a rush.

Ann Ware: They make you feel awfully peculiar at first but you get used to it. At least you can pick whom you want to dance with.

Scottie: Mighty fine. Quite the stuff.

Frances Rainey: I feel "kinda" funny when I first start breaking. I like it when I once get started, though.

Gay Ward Brown: The girls aren't as reserved as they should be—where are their manners?

Frances Adams: They are all right occasionally but I like variety.

Bitter Bystander: A good place to get your date snaked.

B. Bullock: I like them but the other kind is more fun.

Margaret Kennedy: The turn about is fair play.

Anne Moore: I'm getting sick of them. The novelty has worn off by the time you are a junior.

Kelthie Bingham: She took her glasses off and smiled . . .

Anna Parker: It's a field day for snakes!

Lillian German: I'm in favor of them in Farmville, but not elsewhere—no.

D. Taylor—I had more fun at the boy-break high school dances.

One who Gets Around: There's no loafing on the sidelines.

Judy Eason: Oh! I love them (with a great deal of feeling.)

Pi Cottrell: I can't think of anything cute to say.

A Freshman (wouldn't you know): Boy-breaks are much more interesting.

M. K. Ingham: I'm a hog about them—man!

Faculty Takes "Time Out" To Answer Probing Questions

Who's Yehudi? If Mr. Myers asks this, don't get excited. It's just his hobby! And since his other avocations are hunting and fishing, it's no wonder Mrs. Myer's hobby is keeping track of Mr. Myers, and keeping him below 90 miles per hour on the Pennsylvania Highway . . .

Charlie Hop claims his chief hobby is sleeping, but the two F's—fishing and freshman—run a close second. He's still, according to Mr. Myers, trying to catch a fish larger than the one Mr. Myers caught.

Mr. Holton likes pipes, but his friends seem to think his hobby is collecting elephants since they have donated quite a number. Another collecting friend in the faculty is Miss Finch. Her unique hobby is collecting friends (not a bad point for us to consider).

Two of the faculty members have pets for hobbies. Miss London has her little Pomeranian dog, and Miss Peck, her love birds.

Dr. Jarman's hobby is simply bridge, and Miss Nichols keeps him company. Miss Nichols also likes to travel, as does Mr. Landrum. Mr. Landrum's other hobby is fishing and we don't mean just waiting for them to bite. At times he really pulls in a few.

Reading is Miss Rice's hobby. She gets more pleasure from her books, she says, than from anything else. What was to Miss Kauiarich an avocation is now her vocation—dance, and she really has been putting on great programs for us.

Mr. Strick's hobbies are varied —golf, roses, cats, and cigars. Contrary to custom his coal black cat is not named "Snowball," but hears more timely appellation of "Blackout".

Miss Jennings says she doesn't have a hobby, but that when her ship comes in, she'll take flowers. Not just a flower garden does she want, but a florist shop!

With a family as large as his, Mr. Grainger claims that the "family" must be his hobby. His specialty, however, is English but since he can't get around to that so often he turns to the third speciality which is music. This takes in the whole household and at times they really have a band.

And who can say anything about the student's continual chatter when Dr. Simpkin's hobby is "just talking"?

Red and White Captures Interclass Swim Event

Red and White swam to victory over Green and White in the interclass swimming meet which was run off at the pool Monday night, February 16.

Leading in the first event, a 50 yard free style race, the green and white team made a first place triumph with Frances Parham speeding to victory with a record 32 seconds for the distance. Swimming for red and white, Dot Darracott came in a close second. The next event brought the red and white team back in running when Gloria Pollard came in front over her opponent, Catherine May in the 50 yard back stroke event. Gaining, Nancy Dupuy against Ellen Ebel made the red team push still farther in the lead when another first place was scored in the 50 yard breast stroke by Dupuy.

Coming forth with terrific speed Parham made the last lap of the 75 yard medley, gaining on the opponents, but the race was over too soon. Swimming with her were Shirley Turner and Ellen Ebel. In the race on the other side of the pool swam Dugger, Dupuy, and G. Ellerton. This event consisted of one length of front crawl, back crawl, and breast to make up the 75 yards.

Last of the events was diving by both teams, Jean Smith, green and white; Shirley Pierce and Gloria Pollard, red and white. Pollard, Smith and Pierce placed first, second and third places respectively with various dives such as the swan, jack-knife, one and half, front twist, hand stand, and back jack.

The total score for the entire contest was Green and White 22, Red and White 35. Winning this contest gives Red and White ten points towards the class for the color cup.

Basetball Contests Slated for Teams

Tuesday, February 24, the freshman class team will compete against the sophomores in the basketball class tournament. The games will be played off in elimination style and points received from the final winner will go toward the color cup. The junior class team will compete against the seniors on Wednesday, February 25, at 5 o'clock. The following Monday, February 23, winners of the two games will compete in the finals, thus finding the winning class team.

Each individual must have at least eight practices before she will be qualified to play in any of the games. General practices will be held on Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday of this week. If it is desired to practice on Friday in order to get in more practices for the class teams arrangements will be made and also a notice to the effect.

Girls who have reported to get in their practices to play in the games are seniors, Anne Bradshaw 6 practices, Ann Cobb 1, Margaret Campbell 1, Jean Hall 8, Nell Hurt 7, Marie Utt 9, Margaret Webster 8, May Winn 1. Those in the junior class who have practiced are Alice Beote 2 practices, Edna Brown 6, Margaret Finny 8, Ann Garnet 3, Frances Quillen 4, Gary Stone 5, Elizabeth Walls 6, Rosalie Rogers 2, Nell Pritchett 4. The sophomores are Sara Wayne France 12, Lulie Jones 2, Shirley Pierce 8, Mary Lee Pittard 1, Mildred Droste 7, Vivian Gwaltney 8, Faye Nimmo 4, Dot Darracot 2, Mary Parrish Viccellio 1, Ruth Dugger 2, Betty Repass 1. The freshmen are Caroline Burrell 8, Betsy Caldwell 1, Jean Smith 2, Helen Wilson 1, O. White 3, Anne Warrick 1, Vera Womack 1, M. Baer 5, Alice Warren 1, Sugar Baker 1, Jane Mosely 1, Ruth Hauffman 2 and Polyanna Booth 1.

Ping Pong Tourney Completes 1st Round

Second round in the annual ping pong tournament is now under way after the first week's playing eliminated those who were defeated in the various challenged games. The tournament which started on Monday, February 9 will continue in this same manner until all challenged games are played off, and a final winner is left as champion player for this season.

Sugar Baker defeated Fiddle Haymes; Ruby Stewart won over Alice Marie Coberley; Frances Parham defeated Shirley Cadmus; and Bernice Laforce came out on top over Shirley Pierce after a week's set of contest games. Still to be played are games between Mary Walker Watts and Dorothey Darracott; Bobbie Scott against Ruth Dugger; Louise Phillips against Penny Munson; Frances Quillen vs. Mildred Droste; Mary Katherine Ingham challenging Eloise Lupton; Hilah Lee Parks playing with Elizabeth Barlow; and Jane Brown against Nell Hurt. In order to qualify for play in the contest these games must be played off so that the next set of rounds can be played.

Final winner of the ping-pong tournament will receive ten points for her color to be added to color cup points. Last year's winner was Helen McIlwaine, a green and white player.

Listed on the A. A. bulletin board are the names of each contest player and the person which they must challenge this week.

With Mardi Gras to concentrate on over the week-end and approaching Hampden-Sydney Midwinters to ponder over in the spare moments, the campus caravan was comparatively microscopic last week . . . A few of the braver souls ventured forth, however, to sacrifice a gay week-end here.

Mardi Gras Magic . . .

Amid gaily planned Valentinish decorations an "up to par" crowd danced to the music of the very collegiate W. and L. Collegians Saturday night—in the Gym—At ten o'clock the best looking Mardi Gras court we've seen appeared through a door of the little Gym, decorated as a large Valentine . . . Nancy Naff was crowned Queen of Hearts and Ailene Overbey, Buff Gunter, Sara Hardy, Mary Lou Tribie, Mary Lou Shannon, Cottie Radspinner, Anne Boswell, and Dot Childress were her very "hearty" attendants . . . At intermission time all the sororities entertained their guests in the various chapter rooms.

Tar Heel Tales . . . Weddings . . . Ect. . . .

Lucie Ellen Powell was chauffeur to Ora Earnest, Evelyn Cannon Mildred Morris, and Frances Quillen ,down to Chapel Hill last week-end, where they all attended the Midwinter dances at the University of North Carolina . . . Destination: wedding . . . Anne Bradshaw and Nclle Quinn were in Ocean View and Piney River (not of Lum and Abner fame) respectively to be in weddings . . . In Lynchburg Sunday at the Patterson's among those gathered from S. T. C. were Jo Bishop, Libby Warner, and Anna Mary Wilkins.

Looking Ahead . . .

Helen Hardy, Judy Eason, Sarah Massie Goode, Jean Schuikum, Jean Weller, Sara Hardy, Barbara White, Mary Evelyn Pearsall, Charlotte Worsham, Cottie Radspinner, Kit Zehmer, and Jane Lee Hutcheson are only the few planning to attend Midwinters at Hampden-Sydney . . . Polly Hughes, Lucy Davis, Nancy Hughes, and Jac Hardy are among others.

Each group will be given fifteen minutes which may be in techniques, composition or combined.

Groups will be divided into two groups for the mornings technique classes. A choice is left to each group to divide their members into three groups for the afternoon worshop section which will be signed for during registration.

Any student wishing to join the groups in the technique classes in the afternoon may do so by paying a fee of 25c at the registration table in the lounge. No charge, however, will be made for the evening program in the large auditorium. Members of the A. A. will act as ushers for the day.

Nichols Attends Fraternity Meet

Miss Mary Nichols, member of Kappa Delta Pi, national honor society in education, left this morning for the fraternity's fourteenth biennial convocation in San Francisco from February 23 to 25.

There will be present the national officers, laureate chapter members, and one delegate from each of the 127 collegiate chapters. Acting for Miss Pauline Camper, Beta Epsilon chapter counsellor at Farmville, Miss Nichols will represent Farmville in the roundtable discussion groups.

The agenda for the convocation include reports from the national officers Dr. T. C. McCracken, Dr. Florence Stratemeyer, Dr. Alfred L. Hall-Quest, Dr. R. J. Walters, Dr. William C. Bagby, and Dr. E. I. F. Williams. Addresses will be given by Dr. W. C. Bagby, by Dr. Lewis M. Terman, and by Dr. Edgar W. Knight, the banquet guest speaker. Social activities will be directed by Dr. Florence Stratemeyer of Columbia University.

On Tuesday, February 24, the day will be devoted to a roundtable discussion on chapter activities with Dr. Stratemeyer presiding and each chapter reporting. The delegates will have opportunity to consider in detail the pressing problem of how the local chapters can stimulate interest among its members and project itself in the life on the campus. Each delegate will describe effective chapter activities, plans, and projects. Since numbers of several of the chapters are composed largely of members doing graduate work, Miss Nichols hopes to give and to bring back practical project and program plans for Beta Epsilon Chapter here.

Dr. Hall-Quest writes, "Of major importance at this time is consideration of ways and means whereby Kappa Delta Pi can stand on guard in defending America, and be active in advancing the ideals of democracy among all peoples. Each delegate can return to his chapter inspired to lead in mustering the local members to join with the society as a whole in a program that has a specific and well understood defense objective."

Cast for "Death Takes a Holiday"

600 Mardi Gras Celebrators Score Dance Great Success

Nancy Naff was crowned queen of Mardi Gras celebration which took place on the S. T. C. campus last Saturday night, February 14. Approximately 600 attended this event which marks the highlight of the social season at Farmville during the winter quarter.

Leading the queen's procession, Marilyn Johnson and Mildred Cook, pages, led way to the thrown and awaited the arrival of the heart clad court and her majesty.

Crowned by her escort, Craig Burke, of the University of Virginia, the queen was then entertained by a waltz dance entitled "Young Love", casting Shirley Cadmus and Betsy Davis. Jean Weller entertained with a song and the voice of Kit Zehmer and Peggy Bellus added to the program. Master of ceremonies for the evening was Mary Owens West who announced the grand march before the queen and her court.

Jacqueline Anderson, Shirley Kersey, Mildred Ames, and Margaret Campbell were awarded prizes for the most attractive and original costumes. Jacqueline Anderson received a pair of blue dressing table lamps as featured in Life Magazine, as first-prize for the prettiest costume, while Shirley Kersey received a kodak as second prize for the second prettiest costume. Mildred Ames, dressed as a rag doll, received a modernistic electric clock as a first prize for originality, while second prize for the runner-up as most original costume went to Margaret Campbell, dressed as Carmen Miranda.

The winners were selected from those who masqueraded in the Mardi Gras parade. The judges for the occasion were J. Tucker Doyne, Farmville, Mrs. Shelton Whitaker, Farmville, and Dr. Herman Bell, Hampden-Sydney.

Valentine decorations of hearts and costumed figures formed an appropriate background for the winter frolic dance. Soft strains of music combined in with the latest of dance tunes were furnished by the W. & L. Collegians.

Three Girls Added To House Council

Jane Engleby, president of the House Council has announced that all lights in the Main building are to be out at 12 o'clock. There will be no extra late light permissions granted. Also, quiet on Sunday night is to be observed at 10:30 in accordance with the new Sunday schedule.

Ella Carrington, freshman, has replaced Maria Cheely as hall president on Library Hall while Jean Arrington has been appointed to be hall president on third floor Student to take Frances Strchecker's place. Betty Agnew, freshman is taking Betty Henritze's position as hall president on second floor Main.

First Junior Dance Will Be Staged Saturday Night

Charity Ball Uses Patriotic Setting

Gay, patriotic red, white and blue decorations will provide the setting for the first dance ever to be sponsored by a junior class. This dance will be in the college gymnasium Saturday night, February 28, from 9 to 12 o'clock. The proceeds of the dance will be given to the Red Cross and the Southside Community Hospital.

The Lynchburg Cavaliers, who have played at a number of dances for various colleges in Virginia, will play a no-break medley for the members of the junior class and their dates immediately preceding intermission.

In the receiving line will be Miss Mary White Cox, Dr. J. L. Jarman, Miss Olive T. Iler, class mam of the junior class, Mr. Raymond French, classman of the freshman class, the junior's sister class, and the junior class officers—Betty Boutchard, president; Betty Youngberg, vice-president; Agnes Patterson, secretary; and Charlotte Phillips, treasurer.

As a distinguishing feature, the members of the junior class will wear white carnation wrist corsages tied with green ribbons carrying out the class colors.

Dates for the dance will come from V. P. I., Washington and Lee, University of Virginia, Roanoke College, Medical College of Virginia, Randolph-Macon College, Davidson, North Carolina State and Hampden-Sydney College.

Working with Betty Youngberg, who is general chairman of the dance are Winifred Wright, chairman of the decorations; Margaret Thomas and Lilly Bee Gray, co-chairman of tickets; Anne Garnett, Margorie Lee, and Kathleen Jones, refreshments; and Mary Harvie, floor chairman.

Tickets are on sale now and can be bought at the table on second floor Rotunda

Chaperones for the dance will be made up of members from the faculty and home department.

Thierry Awarded Honor In Recent Poetry Contest

Capturing first place in the annual winter poetry contest sponsored by The Colonnade was Florence Thierry, senior, whose poem "I Cannot" won first place and a prize of three dollars. Florence's poem was judged first from among one hundred and thirteen entries.

Copping second place was Imogen Clayton, junior, who wrote "My Brook". Imogen will receive two dollars for her poem. Katherine Johnson, freshman transfer, carried away third place and won one dollar with her poem "On Seeing a Church Through a Snowfall."

These three prize winning poems will be published in the March issue of The Colonnade.

Lois Alphin's "Evening" found its place as first honorable mention, while Elizabeth Goodwin with "Quiet Hour" was awarded the rating of honorable mention. These poems will also appear in The Colonnade.

The Colonnade's annual winter poetry contest was managed this year by Carolyn Rouse, poetry editor.

The judges were Miss Mary Clay Hiner, and Miss Lucille Jennings, of the English department; James M. Grainger, chairman of The

FLORENCE THIERRY

Colonnade's advisory board, Mary Stuart Walmsley, student; Carolyn Rouse.

The contest started January 15 and ended February 15. All types of poetry were submitted. One hundred thirteen entries were made in the contest which have been compiled into a notebook.

'Death' No Holiday for Cast With March 14 Close at Hand

On March 14 Death Takes A Holiday, but there will be no holiday for Miss Leola Wheeler and the cast until later. They are putting everything into practices to make the spring play, "Death Takes A Holiday", as great a success as was "The Little Minister", presented in the fall.

However, "everything" includes many interesting incidents which make play practice grand entertainment. At a recent rehearsal Death, in the form of John Panake, was only half made up when his cue came. Nevertheless, he proceeded with his passionate love scene, which might well be called a wrestling match, with Jane McGinnis. The scene was interrupted only when Pancake realized that he was sharing his makeup with Jane.

The always tardy Peggy Bellus usually comes dashing in three lines after her cue has passed. Bill Van Petten is greatly perturbed since his only good line has been cut because he said it with too much relish.

The "please", too, has been cut, because they were too often twisted into "pleath" by Tedo Savage. Jack-in-the-box Savage has taken numerous lessons in bowing lest it appear that his head is completely detached from his body.

It is really quite an ordeal for Bus Etheridge to stretch his longevity to lose and then regain twenty years in the course of the play.

Backstage is almost as interesting as the play itself. The sound effects are especially unique, a clock striking being made by an empty pipe and the shots being a stick of wood dropped on the floor. Lighting is most important in such a play and the various colored spot lights are made from slides of colored paper.

Cosmopolitan Peggy Bellus and Bill Van Petten converse in German backstage.

Program of Physical Fitness Set Up By Defense Council

A defense program of physical fitness has been started at S.T.C., and is expected to be well underway by the spring quarter. Cooperation is the basis of this work and no activity will be compulsory.

The Defense Council is planning schedules which will be posted in the near future. Every girl who wishes to participate in some exercise or activity may do so at least three times a week.

Hiking, golf, ping-pong, shuffleboard, volley-ball, corrective exercise, badminton, swimming, dancing, tennis, archery, gymnastics or calisthenics, and riding will be offered. Instruction will be given in some activities by girls majoring in physical education or otherwise qualified. Classes will be arranged so that everyone will be able to participate in the sport in which she is most interested during free periods

Patriotic Revue Scheduled for STC Thursday Evening

Program To Boost American Morale

"You Can Defend America", a stirring, patriotic musical drama will be presented in the S. T. C. auditorium Thursday night, February 26, at 8 o'clock. This patriotic revue is given by a group of citizen volunteers who have offered their services without compensation to build the morale of America.

This performance, which includes a cast of fifty members who have toured America, from California to Maine, will dramatize the part that every citizen can play in this crises. Based on the Victory handbook by the same name, the revue reaches into every phase of the American life.

The program is built to meet a three-point need. It aims to build the morale of the people in order "To win the war, secure the peace, and finally to build a new armed which will provide a permanent answer to the "isms", and build a permanent democracy." The three lines of defense are dramatized in song and skit.

Returning to Virginia at the special request of the governor of Virginia and the General Assembly of Virginia, the group will give the revue Friday especially for the Virginia legislature in Richmond. Sunday afternoon at three o'clock they will appear in the Mosque theatre in Richmond for the general public.

W. C. Fitzpatrick, mayor of Farmville, saw the revue in Lynchburg last week, and was, as he expressed it, "tremendously impressed, and wanted Farmville to have it".

The revue is sponsored in Farmville by the Lions Club, the Rotary Club, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and the Junior and Senior Woman's Clubs.

Spring Cotillion Slated for May

May 9 was set as the date of Spring Cotillion at a meeting of the Cotillion Club last night in the small auditorium.

There will be a tea dance from 3:30 p. m. until 5:30 p. m. and the formal dance will be at 9 o'clock.

Harriet Cantrell, head of the music committee, is in charge of engaging the orchestra. Suggestions were made that a large name band be signed, but majority of members agreed that the usual priced band be booked.

Mary Lou Shannon will lead the figure assisted by officers of the club.

Betty Boutchard, president of junior class, which will sponsor a benefit dance for Red Cross and Southside Community Hospital Saturday night.

College Observes Religious Emphasis

Speakers—A. H. Hollingsworth, above, and Caralie Nelson, below, who will speak in chapel Friday and Saturday respectively.

Rice, Hollingsworth, Nelson Will Speak At Chapel Programs

Carrying out the central theme of Religious Emphasis Week of "College Students—what now?" Sherrard Rice of the Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, will speak in chapel tomorrow morning, Thursday, February 27, on the question, "Do We Have What It Takes?" Mr. Rice also spoke in chapel today on "What College Students are Facing Today".

Theme Is Pertinent

The Sophomore commission and the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, joint sponsors of Religious Emphasis week, have sought to bring timely discussions of what part religion plays in the world today. The central theme for chapel of "College Students—what now?" was begun Tuesday morning in chapel by the introductory worship service conducted by Dorothy Sue Simmons, Frances Lee Hawthorne, and Mary Parrish Viccellio.

In chapel on Friday, February 28, the Reverend A. H. Hollingsworth, pastor of the Farmville Presbyterian Church, will discuss the topic, "Taking Stock of Resources". Mr. Hollingsworth has worked with young people, and has studied their problems and interests.

Nelson To Speak

Saturday morning Caralie Nelson, president of the S. T. C. student body last year, will give a summarizing review of the entire week's program.

The Sophomore Commission has conducted prayers each night as a part of the week's activities, with the central theme of "Permanent Values in a War Torn World". Monday night, S. M. Holton, guest speaker from the faculty, spoke on 'Inner Peace as a Permanent Value". The Tuesday night service was conducted by Nancy Williamson on "Prayer as a Permanent Value". Tonight, Miss Mary Finch, director of religious education on the S. T. C. campus, will speak on "the Bible as a Permanent Value". Tomorrow night, Thursday, Mary Keith Bingham will continue the theme with her discussion of "Faith as a Permanent Value", and on Friday night, Julia Eason will conclude the services with the summary, "Permanancy in a War Torn World".

Next Sunday, February 29, several members of the commission and the cabinet will conduct a concluding worship program in the Episcopal Church at 5 o'clock.

Religious Emphasis Week is observed each year on the S. T. C. campus sponsored by the Sophomore Commission and Y.W.C.A. Cabinet.

The Y. W. C. A. has asked that close observance be paid to the whistle blown each night at nine o'clock as a call to prayer.

Students Prepare Day for Alumnae

Founders Day Set For March 7

M. B. Coyner, chairman of the Founders Day committee, has announced the tentative program for Founders Day, which is the first Saturday in March, falling this year on the seventh.

A basketball game between Madison College and the S. T. C. Varsity team will initiate the program Friday night, March 6. Saturday morning the annual presentation of gifts by the campus organizations will take place in the auditorium. At this time alumnae chapters will extend greetings to the college. As part of the student program Orchesis, modern dance group, will present a dance arrangement of "The Building of Alma Mater Through the Years", assisted by the fundamentals dance class and members of the Dramatic Club.

The freshman gym classes will give demonstrations of folk dances in the gymnasium at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, followed by a tea given for the alumnae at Longwood.

Members of Alpha Phi Sigma will conduct excursions to points of interest on campus.

Saturday night the lyceum entertainment will consist of a musical presentation by Jesus Maria Sanroma, the famed Spanish-American pianist.

Throughout the week end a display of pictures, showing scenes of S. T. C. when it was Farmville State Female Normal School forty years ago will be displayed in the library

Rotunda To Feature Senior Personalities

Wednesday night, February 18, the senior class elected nine girls for senior personalities from a group of twenty who were nominated. Pictures and write-ups of these girls will appear in the Rotunda, one each week for nine weeks, beginning with the issue of March 4.

Leadership and contributions to the school were the determining factors considered in choosing the nine personalities. Each year The Rotunda sponsors these sketches as a special feature

What Shall We Give?

Founders Day to be celebrated Saturday, March 7, will mark the fifty-eighth anniversary of the college's founding. It will also mark the return of many former students to S. T. C.

Founders Day is particularly significant this year. Its meaning embodies more than the traditional custom. We should regard it as a day to stop and to reflect upon the opportunities that are available to us through a democratic way of living, a way which is now being challenged in a life or death struggle. In addition, we shall celebrate the fortieth anniversary of Dr. Jarman's presidency here.

Have we ever thought what Founders Day means? Founders Day should be regarded as a day of opportunity for each member of the student body to show the visiting alumnae that Farmville girls are living up to the fine traditions which they set.

One way in which we can show our appreciation for their efforts and contributions to S. T. C. is for our local organizations to continue to contribute to the Alumnae Fund. Contributions to this fund have made possible for us Student Building, improvements at Longwood, and loans to worthy students. Only through continuing to contribute can we carry on the good work which has been done in the past.

Let us as students of S. T. C. endeavor to do our part to make this Founders Day the best one in the history of our college—whether we be freshmen, sophomores, juniors, or seniors. —H. E. D.

"Stand Behind Her . . ."

America is at war. But, do we half feel, half realize what such a situation means to each one of us? As college students, memories of twenty years ago are beyond our reaching, and we are left bare to face a war-raging world, untrained for such conditions.

They say we are the backbone of future America, but such a small unstable backbone must not be crippled or bent. Each one of us has an obligation to meet which is as vital as needed sleep each night. The part that we can play is to keep ourselves physically fit at all times—fresh air, exercise, health habits, and nourishment all add up to balance a truly "American Way."

Because we need America as much as America needs us, it is our rightful duty to awaken to the fact, then do something about it. Let it not be said that we are a bent spoke in this wheel which includes all people as a whole.

—S. H. P.

"By My Strength—"

As our speakers in this week of religious emphasis turn our thoughts to things of a more spiritual nature, we are struck by the importance of a power in our lives and in our country that will give strength, peace, courage, and wisdom in a time when the world looks dark. In this darkness, we grope for a light that is far reaching and ever-present.

Today more than ever we realize that we can do little by our own feeble power. We must have that help that comes of faith in God if we are to win over the darkness and evil that is so threatening us today. Faith, straight thinking, prayer—these are the essentials if we are to obtain peace in our own hearts that will make for peace in the world.

During this week let us consecrate ourselves anew to God and let us pray for inner peace and for world peace. Let us think straight and act straight. This week has a great meaning for us if we will do our part through prayer and consecration to find God's will for us in our time of need—and in all times. For this week must be just the beginning if it is to mean anything.

—E. B. W.

Gleanings

By MARY HUNTER EDMUNDS

The headlines were ugly last week, so ugly that one commentator at least called it the "worse week of the century," second only to the blackest days of the Civil War.

Those headlines told of the fall of Singapore, the strongest and best equipped naval base in the Far East. They related the almost complete loss of Sumatra and the attack on Java. They told of the carelessness that caused the destruction of the one-time Normandie, renamed the Lafayette which was being reconditioned as a troop ship. No more comforting were the headlines that bemoaned the escape from Brest of the three Nazi battleships, which were able to cut through the English Channel to home bases in the North Sea. They cried over and over again the sinkings of ships off the Atlantic coast, thirty-one ships in all having been attacked by submarines in about four weeks. They emphasized the criticisms against Mr. Churchill. They told of the valiant, but apparently hopeless, activity of MacArthur on the Bataan Peninsula.

Nor can we expect, we are told, that the headlines will be any more encouraging for a year or eighteen months.

What then are we going to do about it? We have been accused in editorials throughout the country of "playing war", of not realizing the great seriousness of the crisis which is upon us.

Congressman Hatton W. Sumners in a speech before the House said, "We have been losing this war from the time we began it, literally losing this war. We are being licked, and only the realization of that fact can arouse and solidify and vitalize the American people before it is too late."

We need to face facts instead of shunning them. We must replace complacency with calmness and confidence. But we must also show determination. We must realize our tasks, and we must have the will to win.

An editorial in the Richmond Times Dispatch gives this excellent advice "If that (our) war machine seems for months to come to be hitting on about two cylinders, and the whole future looks black as ink, we must set our jaws and grit our teeth . . ." and get busy.

The Gatepost

Who Hears An Awful Lot

"The Deserted Village" would be the only suitable title we could give ye old S. T. C.—hither and yon flocked the fair damsels of the institute. . .

As usual, the late train from down Norfolk way was definitely the place to be Sunday night—Jane Smith, Dottie Ann, and many, many others including Faye, were having their fling.

Ann Seay was giving her young man a brand new farewell party at the station Sunday night.

Don't think the Triggs were not doing their patriotic duty Saturday night and plenty cute, too. . . .

Elizabeth Ann was out-of-this-world this week end with Ralph.

Betty Cross wasted no time renewing a two and a half year acquaintance Sunday night. What is this—the installment plan?

Hampden-Sydney Mid-Winters kept many of the cutics up here—Wellie, Polly, Charlotte, Sarah Massie, and others were seen.

Nancy Dashiell is just the ol' prom-trotter with Annapolis the foremost on the list. . .

"Hebie" Allen had only to travel to her home town of Hebron to see her favorite man. . .

Betty Reid really had a big week end. Ask her about that exclusive road-house she went to.

We vote for more talks by Dr. Walmsley, Dr. Jeffers, and Mr. Holton. . .

Seen Sunday afternoon: Dot Childress with three young men following her.

Prize remark of the week: "Lady" Folk—"She's really cooking with gas!"

Tedo, how could you? Didn't you know that S. T. C. hearts would crack when a new girl appeared? . . .

Helen DeLong found no trouble in her extra work on the Rotunda. John gave her needed inspiration when he called Monday night.

V. M. I. did all right in its last dance of the year, as all reports go—We understand B. Gray was one of the prettiest girls there and the information came first-hand!

Carolyn Burwell, who was reported as "looking like an angel", at H. S. this week end, wonders what will come of her acute acquaintances. Yes, we said cute!

One has only to say "Charlie" to Sara Hardy to make her beam.

Wanted: One date for Junior Dance. Requirements: Must be a man! Her initials are J. S. . . .

Mish is worried about her date for Junior dance. . .

Dawn Shanklin, she of the high I. Q., and her A. Campbell were not satisfied with H.-S. Midwinters, but journeyed to Virginia.

Margie Rice's brother, Sherrard. Shall we say more? We really like him.

BIG TIME

Oh week of weeks! Scoop of Scoops! May Winn's determination to let her finger nails grow was rewarded by receiving the "third-finger, left hand" ring this past week end. Behold the Seniors!

We'd like to know who the young lady was who had to wash her face fifteen times the other morning before removing the excess redness. . . Chi is really on the warpath.

Dear Editor:

I should like this opportunity to thank, on behalf of the staff of the Colonnade, those members of the student body who cooperated with us in our recent poetry contest. There was a surprisingly large number of entries in the 1942 contest, and we are gratified to note the increasing interest in creative writing as shown through those works submitted to us.

I should also like to thank the judges for their untiring efforts in our behalf, the faculty of the English Department for their interests, and the Rotunda for the publicity which the contest received.

We sincerely hope that those poems which placed in the contest, and which will appear in the March issue of the Colonnade, will receive the recognition by our readers and contributors that we feel they are due.

Question of the Week

What Do You Think of Group Participation in Conventions Considering the Present World Crisis?

Mary Jane Campbell: I approve of the idea as long as those attending the conventions benefit from them.

Natalie Carroll: They deserve the chance to go and there's no harm done by going.

Arlene Hunt: Even if there is a war, we should go on doing the things we normally would if we can.

Gene Hardy Kilmon: I think it depends on the reason for the convention.

Jane Sanford: I think they should be held, but I think the expenses should be cut down.

Margaret Wright: As long as we're cutting down on expenses, eliminating conventions would be one of the means of saving.

Dearing Fauntleroy: I think they're all right.

Anne Rogers: I think the students benefit from them and I approve of them.

Nancy Naff: In some instances they're necessary. In that case, expenses should be as low as possible. I don't approve of elaborate ones since with less money spent on them, they will be just as effective.

Jeanne Strick: I'm in favor of them if they're not held for purely social reasons.

Esther Atkinson: It gives you a wider outlook on different situations.

Warwick Mitchell: We should go ahead and do things as we have normally done, if it doesn't interfere with defense plans.

Betsy Davis: I don't think they should be cut out unless they interfere with national defense.

Lulie Jones: It all depends on the purpose of the convention at the time.

Patsy Connelly: I approve of them if they're beneficial.

Betsy Bullock: If they will be helpful, I think they're worthwhile.

Mary Keith Bingham: We want to see how other colleges are facing the war. By visiting them we will be able to bring back ideas.

Doris Taylor: I approve of them, and I think we should keep doing the things we did before the present emergency as nearly as possible.

Frances Lee Hawthorne: If anything is gained from them, I approve of them, but not if they're motivated for a good time.

Mary Lilly Purdum: I think that it depends on the type of convention. A convention, dealing with current affairs which helps the student who attends as well as the group that sends her, is the only kind I approve of in time of war.

Mary Hunter Edmunds: It depends entirely on the convention and its program.

May Wertz: I think that when you start cutting out things for defense you have to start somewhere and conventions are a good place to start. They are all right during peace time but not during war time.

Elizabeth Ann Parker: Definitely in favor of them at present because I am directly concerned.

Texie Belle Felts: I think that we all need to do something for defense, but, on the other hand, we cannot let the thing we are doing go. Our main part in defense is to do what we are doing to the best of our ability. If participation in conventions is desirable then I am all for having a convention. I am all for having conventions in a big way!

Alene Overbey: I think conventions are wonderful in so far as they bring a number of groups together for a unity of ideals and purposes. Conventions should be continued during war time, but every extra expense should be eliminated.

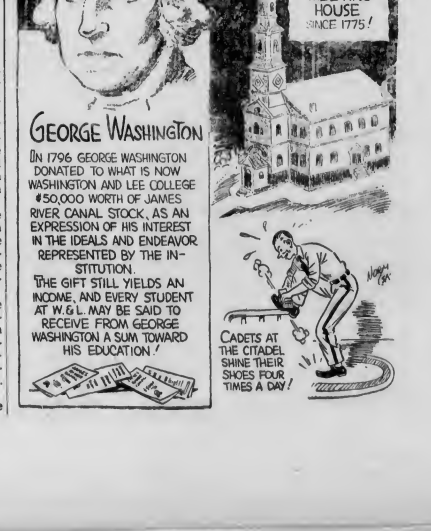
A Seat at the Cinema

BALL OF FIRE

A group of serious, college professors, a night club queen, and a gangster mob, all cohort to make "Ball of Fire", something in the way of the acme of entertainment. This picture will be shown at the State for three days, beginning March 5.

Barbara Stanwyck and Gary Cooper, who have the leads, are picturesquely cast as a night club queen and an English professor about to compose an encyclopedia. Gene Krupa, with his new song "Drum Boogie", let's go with some solid sending as Barbara sings his song.

It's qualifications, we think, meet those of an entertaining ninety minutes of romantical comedying.



LOUISIANA PURCHASE

"Louisiana Purchase" at the State Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 2-4, offers hilarity at its best with Bob Hope, Vera Zorina, and Victor Moore. The movie has an unforgettable girdle act by Hope who makes funny matters funnier throughout the entire picture.

Done in technicolor, the production has glamour, song, humor, and just enough stupid nonsense to require a little worry. Although much variety slips through the plot, the result is not wholly unpleasant.

Hope, as the politician, realizes what a dupe he's being played for and has a wild time becoming politically straight.

For swell fun and laughs, we'd say chalk up this as a "wanna see."

Sport Slants

A Challenge . . .

The ping-pong tournament is really getting underway. With the second round over, it won't be long before the champion ping-pong player of S. T. C. will be discovered! This year the person winning rewards her color with ten points toward the color cup. But—if you didn't sign up to be in the tournament you can still play at any time you wish. Paddles for the game are furnished by the athletic association and ping-pong balls are available in each building to use in games. Let's go every ping-pong player! Make your game a good one and "keep the balls bouncing" for your aim is to enjoy the game and end with your color on top!

Our Team Goes Forward

It's hard to realize that basketball season is nearly over . . . when you look at the A. A. calendar you will see that in about two more weeks we will have our last game the season, this being our only home game! Varsity members are continuing to work hard at practices to be prepared for their contests. Meanwhile have you noticed the number of girls who are playing in general practices? That freshman group really looks active, and so this is a challenge for all upperclassmen for you to be on your toes if you expect to have your team win in the round-robin tournament games which will take place within the classes! Again points will be chalked on the color cup score for the winning color. Remember green and white won the basketball tournament last year. Will they do it again?

Golf Instructions For You . . .

"Hoppy" really is eager to help you with golf instructions on Tuesday nights, and Miss Iler can teach you a lot if you go to the locker room on Wednesday nights. When the warm spring days come it will be to your advantage to be "up" on all golf knowledge . . . We have access to one of the finest courses around and we don't even have to own a set of clubs! No, all we have to do, though, is to be able to play the game and so here's the opportunity to "get in shape."

They Swam To Victory . . .

Congratulations Red and White on winning the interclass swimming meet Monday night. Even though the meet had to be postponed after scheduled several weeks ago, girls who participated got in their required number of practices, and showed a "fast" bit of swimming for their teams. Some of those green and white team girls looked mighty promising for varsity squad! And speaking of varsity . . . that's the next step on the swimming calendar because we're looking forward to having several meets booked with other colleges. Scheduled for spring quarter which incidentally is not so far off, is the intercollegiate telegraphic swimming meet for which Farmville S. T. C. is hostess. Make way, you swimmers, we're planning for the best of records ever, and this means a lot of practicing, timing and working for speed.

The Outside World . . .

All-Star professional tennis players, Fred Perry, Bobbie Riggs, Don Budge, and Frank Kovacs, made tennis the game in sports during their exciting matches in Richmond, Virginia last Friday, the thirteenth. These four experplayers are on their nation-wide round robin tournament trip. Because of an arm injury Kovacs was substituted by Lester Stoefen who suffered 18 defeats which puts Kovacs sort of "behind the eight ball"! But it won't take this fighting matcher long to work back to the top. He's a very confident young man who quit the amateurs because he became disgusted with the treatment received from the U. S. L. T. A. He does have a chance, we might say—before hurting his arm he beat Budge 4 out of 5 matches.

S. T. C. Cagers Go To Richmond Thursday

Semi-Finals Mark Third Week Events

March 6 Set For Closing Date

The first round in the great competitive ping pong tournament against those flying colors—Green and White, and Red and White—was completed last week. New results have been announced according to Patsy Connelly, manager of ping pong.

The second round ended with R. Dugger winner over D. Darracott; R. Stewart winner over L. Phillips; F. Parham defeating E. Barlow and B. LaForce victor over her opponent, J. Brown. The slate is now open for the final winners to play off their scheduled matches, the results of which will bring the games to a close and a final victor will be announced.

Green and White defeated the Red and White team last season, adding ten points to their score. The competition this season is very keen, with an even chance for both teams in the final rounds.

Balls to use for practice games may be found in all buildings. Dot Johnson is in charge of those in Senior Building, Shirley Turner in Junior Building, and Patsy Connelly in Main Building. Tables and paddles for the games may be found in the "Rec" and in the recreation hall in Senior Building.

Results of the games must be turned in to the manager of ping pong in order that the scores may be recorded.

Varsity Prepares For Swimming Meet

Varsity swimming practices have been scheduled during this week in preparation for varsity team try-outs. Ruth Dugger, manager of varsity swimming, announced this week that preparations must start immediately for the Inter-Collegiate Telegraphic Swimming meet of the Southern Region which will occur within the next week.

Farmville State Teachers College will act as hostess for the meet. All records of timing are under the supervision of a council in charge of the meet.

S. T. C.'s varsity team has been requested to enter inter-collegiate meets. Practices are required before students can accept and preparations are underway for Farmville's participation in these events.

Freshmen Trounce Sophomores 14-11 In First Game of Season

By SHIRLEY PIERCE

Green and White freshmen staged a triumphant victory over their sophomore opponents last night when the first class basketball game was played in the college gymnasium.

Awaiting the chance for a come-back to even the defeat in the annual hockey game, the midget team plunged forth with a mighty effort in their playing.

Holding a true defense, the Red and White sophomores kept the ball rolling with several scores made in the first half to bring the game to a 7-7 tie when the final whistle called the completion of the game.

Captains agreed on a final play-off which would eliminate the tie and determine a victor. Spirit pulled both teams back on their toes for one of the fastest moving games on the court this season.

First points after the tie went to the sophomore team, followed closely by a similar play by the opposing greens.

Back on their feet when the final quarter was called, both effort and concentrated playing brought several goals for each team, but the final whistle called the Green and White freshmen victors over the Red and White sophomores in the class game of the season.

Miss Elizabeth Burger refereed, assisted by Frances Parham on the side lines.

Special Riding Course Offered for Ten Weeks

There will be a special course of Riding offered for ten weeks beginning next week. Miss Fox will be in the club room every day until 3 o'clock. Consult her, or see Kay Spencer or May Wertz, if you plan to ride.

Game with W. & M. Slated for Friday At Williamsburg

Farmville S. T. C.'s varsity basketball squad will clash with the Richmond Professional Institute sextet in their gym February 26, at 4 o'clock. This game will mark the first meeting of these two teams.

The team will travel to Williamsburg Friday, February 27 to compete with William and Mary at 7 o'clock that evening.

The S. T. C. cagers will spend Friday night at the John Marshall Hotel and will return to Farmville Saturday afternoon.

Those making the trip are, seniors, Marty Roberts, and Dot Johnson, juniors, Anne Ellett, Jean Carr, Frances Parham, Hallie Hallsman, and Anne Price; Patsy Connelly, and Dottie Sue Simmons, are the sophomores who will play.

Miss O. T. Iler, coach, announced that she also is taking four sub-varsity members — Eleanor Varn, Dick Butterworth, Eleanor Wade and Edith Lovins—who will compete in an intercollegiate game for the first time.

Nell Hurt will accompany Miss Iler on the trip.

Just Looking, Thanks

Here, back in the office, the morning after, while the aspirin does its work, your diligent reporter settles down to view the events of the week-end. . . And although the bubbling bicarb is certainly no crystal ball, we can see that the possibilities of our local surroundings becoming a psuedo-country club become more and more credible each week. . .

Saddle Shoes "Gone With The War"; Present Supply Exists Merchants Say

By MARY PARRISH VICCELLIO

Go easy on those rubber-so'ed shoes, mon enfant, because the material for the soles is fast becoming a rarity. A bit curious about the now somewhat proverbial—"What do you think of the rubber shortage?" I made a tour of Farmville to see what the provoking question had by way of solution.

Mr. C. J. Cox, at Farmville Motor Company, when questioned about the tire shortage, answered that a car now was as valuable as its tires. "By the time lisences are issued again," he predicted, "the number of cars on the road will be reduced a third." Considering the future of automobile dealers and service station owners, Mr. Cox saw little chance of their being able to remain in business.

All tires, including retreaded ones, are being rationed by the government. Before last week retreaded tires were available to him who came first, but since the last emergency, the plan for distributing them has been the same as that of selling new tires. Doctors, law-enforcing agents, and those people whose professions demand the use of cars are allowed tires.

"Synthetic rubber will be used," Mr Cox stated, "but the sum apportioned by the government for its manufacture is not sufficiently large to meet our usual demands." Rubber plantations in South America, likewise, cannot satisfy the amount of rubber America uses.

A shoe salesman at Baldwin's said his business had not as yet been affected by the shortage. Saddle shoes are now available, but no future orders will be filled. A fairly accurate conjecture would have the Spalding of today converted into a leather or wooden affair for the warring foot of tomorrow. A shoe repairer at a local shoe shop was rather amazed when questioned about the shortage. "He had", he said, "been able to secure all the rubber he has needed thus far." He had been informed by a Goodyear salesman that there was a large quantity of black rubber available.

Summer Session Includes Library Science Course

To Enable Students To Obtain Library Certificate in Year

A course in library science will be offered at Farmville State Teachers College, beginning with the 1942 summer session. Three of the six required courses will be taught during the summer term which will meet one-half of the requirements for the library certificate.

Beginning with the 1942 fall term, the six courses will be offered throughout the year, two being taught each quarter. This will allow a student to obtain the library certificate in one year thus fulfilling the minimum requirement of the state. The library science course is open only to juniors and seniors.

Mrs. Willa Boysworth, assistant librarian at Farmville, will teach school library administration and reference, two of the three courses which are being offered this summer. Mrs. Boysworth is well-qualified to teach these respective subjects, having had five years experience in the organization of high school libraries and four years experience with the University of North Carolina Press. Mrs. Boysworth also holds the A. B. degree and the degree in Library Science from the University of North Carolina.

Miss Mary Clay Hiner, a member of the English department at Farmville, will teach a course in children's literature, thus concluding third course which will be offered during the coming summer session.

The reference course, under the instructorship of Mrs. Boysworth, will include an examination of and practical problems in the use of general reference works including dictionaries and encyclopedias, almanacs and annuals, periodical indexes, bibliographical and biographical tools and special reference books in various fields of knowledge used in the school library; and application of reference work to the problems of the school library.

The school library administration course will concern the coordination of the library with the school program by working with the faculty and other agencies; importance of librarian's personality and background in training student assistants and in controlling pupils; special emphasis on school library standards with practical work on library quarters and equipment; appropriations; budget making and keeping; and book collection.

Sanford Will Attend IRC Convention in Ga.

Jane Sanford, junior, was elected last night to represent the Virginia Gamma Chapter of Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity, at the nineteenth annual conference of Southeastern International Relations Clubs to be held in Atlanta, Georgia, March 13 and 14.

The Georgia Tech IRC will be host to the group with general headquarters for the conference at the Atlanta Biltmore Hotel.

The Totalitarian Challenge to Democracy, After the War—What?, American Solidarity, and Cooperation in the Far East are the main topics to be discussed at the convention. Students will be chairmen of the round-tables and will present material on topics in which they are especially interested.

Among the social events will be a banquet on the Tech campus on Friday night followed by a dance in the Georgian Ballroom of the Atlanta Biltmore. Sightseeing tours will be arranged.

Farmville Debators Lost Two Decisions

Charles Reese and Allan Senie, negative team from the University of Virginia, defeated Alice Nichols and Virginia Sedgley in the debate, "Resolved that the United States and the British Commonwealth of Nations form a federation based on the eight Roosevelt-Churchill principles". This debate was staged Monday evening, February 23, in the small auditorium.

Elizabeth Ann Parker and Marilyn Bell, affirmative team, were defeated by the negative team at Roanoke College last Thursday, February 19. The question was 'Resolved that the twenty-six democracies should form a federation based on the eight Roosevelt-Churchill principles".

Ann Randolph and Marilyn Bell will uphold the negative side of the national Pi Kappa Delta question against Bill Pickard and George Rawlings, affirmative team from Randolph-Macon College in Ashland, Virginia. The debate is scheduled for Friday evening, March 6, at eight o'clock in the small auditorium.

Moore, Sanford, Wright Will Edit Publications; Andrews, Ellett, Ware Named Business Managers

Students To Elect Major Officers Tues., March 10

Nominations Begin Monday at 9 O'clock

Nominations for the 1942-'43 major officers, which include the presidents of the Student Body, Y. W. C. A., House Council, and the Athletic Association, will take place on Monday, March 9, at the table in the hall from 9 o'clock until 7 o'clock. The election of these officers will be held all day Tuesday, March 10.

On Wednesday, March 11, nominations, for the minor officers who will work with the above mentioned major officers, will be held all day. Election of these will take place on Thursday, March 12.

Minor officers for the Student Government Association include a vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and campus league chairman. The House Council and Athletic Association have the same number of minor positions to be filled, namely, a vice-president, secretary, and treasurer.

In the Y. W. C. A. the minor officers are vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and freshmen counselor.

March Colonnade Due In Two Weeks

The last issue of The Colonnade published by the 1941-'42 staff, which will be circulated in two weeks, will contain the works of many outgoing seniors.

Peggy Hughes has designed the patriotic cover for this issue. A new feature, a musical attraction called Jive and the Classics by Harriet Cantrell, will make its first appearance.

James M. Grainger, who has served for the past four years as chairman of the advisory board of the Colonnade, will be the guest editorial writer, stressing the importance of the maintenance of literary publications during war times.

The first, second, and third prize winning poems in the recent poetry contest will appear, as well as the first and second honorable mentioned poems. Along with these will be the third prize winning short story of the '41 summer contest, "Spring in the City" by Harriett Cantrell.

The outgoing seniors of The Colonnade staff are Allene Overbey, editor, May Winn, business manager, Virginia Barksdale, Mary Hunter Edmunds, Harriett Cantrell, Cottie Radspinner, Peggy Hughes, Elizabeth Wahab, Vera Baron, Margaret Wright, Jane McGinnis, and Jo Brumfield.

Virginian to Sponsor Dance May Day Night

Anne Ayers, editor of the 1942 Virginian has announced that the Annual dance will take place on the night of May Day, May 2.

Committees for the dance are orchestra, Beezie Townsend; tickets, Gay Ward Brown; decorations, Sara Trigg; floor, Martha Roberts; and lounge and check room, Susie Moore.

Decorations will be of a patriotic nature. Future plans including the name of the band will be announced at a later date.

Pictured above are the newly appointed 1942-'43 publication heads. They are left to right, Winifred Wright, editor-in-chief of The Colonnade; Susie Moore, editor-in-chief of The Virginian; and Jane Sanford, editor-in-chief of The Rotunda. Second row, left to right, Anne Ellett, business manager of The Colonnade; Elizabeth Tennent, managing editor of The Virginian; and Mary Parrish Viccellio, managing editor of The Rotunda. Third row, left to right, Anne Ware and Elva Andrews, who are business managers of The Virginian and The Rotunda respectively.

Mr. Roy Pearson Tells of Captivating Experience in War-torn Europe and Travel Through Interesting Countries

Trip From Rangoon Proves Exciting

In an intereview with Mr. Roy Pearson, who left Hongkong for Rangoon sent by the Standard Oil Company in August 1941 and who reached America on February 19, 1942, much of the peril and excitement of getting away from the war torn nations abroad was revealed. Sent over to send supplies to China via the famous Burma Road, Mr. Pearson tells of the many air raids and of the much time spent in air raid shelters. "It is Rangoon", Mr. Pearson reminded me, "which harbors the famous zoo for poisonous snakes". "I was at Canton when the Japs bombed it and saw the burning of Hongkong". Questioned about whether or not there were American soldiers in Rangoon, he said, "The American military mission compose the only soldiers there".

Mr. Pearson considers himself quite fortunate to have gotten out of Rangoon. The plane on which he made his exit had been badly bombed. "The interior of it", he said, "was badly ruined and as we were riding out, I counted sixty-five bullet holes pierced on the wings by the Japanese".

Having reached Lashio by train Mr. Pearson then went to Calcutta by plane and from there to Karachi by train, to Cairo by plane then to the Garden of Eden, a junction of the Tigris and Euphrates river where he said he saw no apple trees. From Iraq he went to the Sea of Galilee. He stopped at Basra, which is the center of dates (the kind that grow on trees!) production. He commented on the very modern hotel in which he spent the night.

His next stop was Teherias where he had lunch on the Sea of Galilee. He also passed over the Eastern shore of Palestine, Cairo, the Nile valley and the west coast of Africa. Then traveling from Brazil to the West Indies, he arrived in New York on February 19.

Making a summary of his trip, Mr. Pearson estimated that he had spent twelve days on plane, seven on train, and nine resting. Three other persons crossed the Atlantic with him and a passenger was picked up at Porto Rico. "Usually", he said, "clippers crossing the Atlantic are very crowded".

Weather, Sand Dunes Amaze Him

Mr. Pearson seemed especially interested in the deserts, verifying their description with those regularly seen on date (the edible kind packages. "It seems as if one grain of sand were added to the sand dunes, they would crumble under their very foundation". Mr. Pearson also spoke of a line which had been plowed for five-hundred miles to act as a guide to the planes when their radio equipment was inactive.

"In Africa", he continued, "the weather ranged from 112 degrees in the shade to such cold weather as demanded overcoats and heavy clothing". Also, he said, "Two days from New York, I slept under a fan. When I arrived the weather there was zero", all of which doesn't imply a cold reception but indicates the ceaseless activity of old man winter

Tennent, Viccellio Claim Managing Editor Titles

At a meeting of the board of publications, Jane Sanford, Farmville, was named editor-in-chief of The Rotunda, Susie Moore, Kenbridge, editor-in-chief of The Virginian, and Winifred Wright, editor of The Colonnade. These three girls are members of the junior class.

Elected to the positions of business manager were Elva Andrews, Farmville, The Rotunda; Anne Ellett, Jennings Ordinary, The Colonnade; and Anne Ware, Beckley, West Virginia, The Virginian. These three girls are also juniors.

Mary Parrish Viccellio will be managing editor for The Rotunda and Elizabeth Tennent will be The Virginian's managing editor. Mary Parrish and Elizabeth are sophomores.

English Fraternity To Award Degrees

Announces Plans For Guest Speaker

Mary Hunter Edmunds, Jane McGinnis, May Wertz, Margaret Wright, seniors, and Josephine Brumfield and Anne Fitzgerald, juniors, have been announced as those girls who will be awarded the first degree of membership into Beorc Eh Thorn, English honor society, at the society's regular meeting Thursday night, March 5 because of their excellent contributions of original works. These awards will be made by Miss Mary Clay Hiner advisor of the society.

Also scheduled for the program the same evening will be the reading of the works by these girls.

The latter part of the program will be a round table discussion led by Anne Fitzgerald, Jane Lee Hutcheson, and Margaret Wright centered on the life and works of Robert P. Tristam Coffin, modern American poet, and lecturer who will speak here at Farmville March 30 under the auspices of the society.

Among those girls working with May Wertz, president of Beorc Eh Thorn, on the committee planning Mr. Coffin's visit are Anne Ellett, chairman of the reception; Amy Read, chairman of tickets; Rosalie Rogers, publicity manager, and Mary Parrish Viccellio, chairman of decorations.

Junior Class Wins Annual Class Sing

Junior class captured the title for the best class sing in a contest in which the four classes participated. The announcement was made at the junior dance by Betty Beerman, a member of the Sing committee, and she presented to Betty Boutchard, junior class president, the prize which was a check for $2.50.

The sings were judged from the standpoint of forty per cent originality, twenty per cent appropriateness, and forty per cent production.

The judges for the contest were Miss Ruth Gleaves, Miss Grace Mix, and Dr. James Elliott Walmsley.

S. T. C.-R.-M. Vie In Forensic Meet

In a non-decision debate, Ann Randolph and Marilyn Bell, negative, met George Rawlings and Bill Pickard, affirmative from Randolph-Macon.

Arguing the question, "Resolved that the democracies should establish and maintain a federation based on the eight Roosevelt-Churchill principles"

Jane Sanford, who will succeed Sara Cline, is known this year as social editor of The Rotunda. She will assume the position as editor of the paper the week of April 1, which issue will mark the first one of the spring quarter.

Elva Andrews, who will replace Texie Belle Felts, was circulation manager of The Rotunda this year and Mary Parrish Viccellio, who will assume the position of Mary Lilly Purdum, was known throughout the college for her features, for she served in capacity of feature editor.

Susie Moore comes to the rank of editorship from the photographic staff of The Virginian. Elizabeth Tennent was one of the literary editors. Anne Ware worked on the business staff. Susie succeeds Anne Ayers. Elizabeth replaces May Wertz, and Anne will undertake the position vacated by Gay Ward Brown.

Coming from the ranks of the art staff, Winifred Wright will assume the editorship of The Colonnade, beginning with the Senior issue which will appear during the spring quarter. Anne Ellett has had experience along the business lines during the past year, for she was a member of that staff. Anne succeeds May Winn as business manager, while Winifred replaces Allene Overbey as editor.

S. M. Holton, Jr., T. A. McCorkle, and James M. Grainger will continue as faculty advisors for The Rotunda, The Virginian and The Colonnade respectively.

The staffs of these publications will be announced at a later date.

Sanford To Speak At IRC Conference

Jane Sanford of Farmville, junior at S. T. C., has been selected to represent the Virginia Gamma chapter of Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity, at the nineteenth annual conference of South Eastern International Relations clubs to be held in Atlanta, Georgia, March 13 and 14. Jane will speak at one of the discussion programs.

The Georgia Tech I. R. C. will be host to the group with general headquarters for the conference at the Atlanta Biltmore Hotel.

"The Totalitarian Challenge to Democracy," "After the War—What?", "American Solidarity", and "Cooperation in the Far East" are the main topics to be discussed at the convention. Students will be chairmen of the round-tables and will present material on topics in which they are especially interested.

Among the social events will be a banquet on the Tech campus on Friday night followed by a dance in the Georgian Ball room of the Atlanta Biltmore. Sight seeing tours and two luncheons will be arranged Whistle As You Go!

FRAYED nerves are beginning to show as the period of winter comes during which physical resistance reaches its lowest point. It is because winter has taken a toll of our energy. This year more than ever, with war pyramided on the usual vicissitudes of life, nerves are becoming frayed and dispositions ill.

We can not remember a time when there were more demands on everyone than at this particular moment. The several members of the average family have unusual activities. There are the basketball games, dancing classes, Red Cross drive, Hospital drive, First Aid classes, air warden service, defense classes, home demonstration work, pre-Easter services and many other activities which keep every member of the family on the jump from morning until night. Daylight saving time has added an extra hour to the already long day. As most people are rising an hour earlier.

We must meet all of the activities. Each one is important, and we must determine to enter our duties with a smile—whistle as you go. Keep your disposition pleasant, avoid harsh words and angry acts. Remember that everyone has his particular worries and problems, too, and ill-temper solves nothing but tends to complicate the work of everyone.

If you will pause to analyze each situation you will be more considerate and have a better understanding of your problems and those of your associates.

We must realize that conditions have changed since this nation declared war on two of its most formidable enemies. We will be forced to do without many things formerly considered necessary. We must cooperate to conserve those conveniences and services we now have. It will be a case of doing the best we can and all-out aid to the war effort.

The cultivation of a good disposition, plenty of rest, some recreation and a determination to meet each problem squarely and fairly will do much to alleviate the burdens that are in the offing. Let's whistle as we go. —The Farmville Herald

Our Part In the Conflict

The Defense Program which is being initiated in our college should individually concern each of us. The critical need is for action now. This all-out program should not create in us just a passing realization of a duty that we ought to do but whose action we delay. We should participate in this program with the perseverance and sacrifice of the Japanese whose unquenchable spirit finds expression in "I'm hungry—thank goodness I can do that much for my country."

The success of the whole plan revolves around personal sacrifice. Each must contribute his time and labor to the perfection of this attempt if it is to prove worthwhile. A special appeal is made to all organizations, which, it is hoped, will include some phase of the program in its outline for next year's aims. The program is varied enough to meet the different interests of each of us. There will be classes directed for physical fitness as well as a U. S. O. committee to help entertain the soldiers at Blackstone, to mention but a few of the aims of the Defense Council.

It is not the wish of those heading this program that the execution of its duties be carried out to the ommission of fun, for entertainment is a vital factor in the maintenance of morale. However, it is wholly advisable to exclude the elaborate and nonessential from dances and other forms of amusements, remembering that fun can be simplified, made less expensive, and still be entertaining.

The Defense Program is ours to make it succeed as best we can. Let us not be lacking in the will and determination to see it a vital working force on our campus. We should be infinitely grateful for such an easy way to aid in the heartless struggle that entangles our country and the world.

Gleanings

By MARY HUNTER EDMUNDS

The U. S. shipping problem has really become acute. Time calls it the "No. 1 bottleneck of the War". Looking at the map, we may think that Japan has to maintain a long supply line. It is true that she has at present a 4,000 mile line to keep open. But the United States must continue to ship materials to China, Burma, Russia, the East Indies, and Libya—all 6,000 to 10,000 miles from our shores. "These are the longest communication lines in military history."

To carry war materials such long distances demands ships, and many of them. And we do not have the ships with which to supply these areas. The saddest item in the news was the statement made by Secretary Stimson to the effect that if it were possible to send supplies to the tenacious little band on the Bataan Peninsula, we would have done it.

The munitions workers are producing planes, tanks, and guns, but the ships are not available to take them where they are so vitally needed. Even though by May the United States will average two launchings per day, there will not be enough ships to transport the necessary supplies to those areas so much in need of them.

Besides the shortage of ships, the continued and intensified submarine activity off our coasts is far from encouraging. Last week brought submarine warfare off the Venezulan- coast at Ruba. From this region the United States secures one-half to two-thirds of all its aviation gasoline. Therefore the problem becomes still more serious. Perhaps it will mean that the United States will have to formulate a convoy system. However, the use of convoys for the protection of our shipping will take many of our fighter ships from duty elsewhere. This would be playing directly into the enemy's scheme of things.

Our problem then has a double head and no end of complications tied in. We have got to have more ships and quickly, and we have got to protect these ships to the extent of getting the supplies to the important points in time for them to be effective. . . How easy it is to state!

The Gatepost

Stuff Department:

Saturday afternoon's serenity was interrupted when Mac and Jack appeared, of Elizabeth Ann and Anne Ayers fame. Mac found that his date had left town and that he had not received the telegram bearing such 'info'. And Anne had a date for the dance. Purdum and Spencer substituted. Evidently Mac didn't find Kay a bad substitute, for the young lady received a bid to Randolph-Macon Pan Hels this week-end coming up.

More Stuff:

Betty Bridgeforth, Elinor Johnson, and others seem mighty partial to the Virginia State Police force—now we've seen every —thing—

Ain't Love Grand Department:

Miriam Hanvey spent the week end in Portsmouth and came back with that third finger, left hand well decorated. We hear that it will be a summer wedding. P. S. He's a first lieutenant.

We Strongly Disapprove Of:

People who crash dances without tickets—people who go without socks or stockings in below zero weather—that's not helping defense. . . Also the long hours of waiting for Sunday dinner at the Cactus.

Selected Short Subjects:

What happened to you Saturday night F. Mallory—a slight difference of opinion?

Dot Childress and Billy James are really twoing it—Mardi Gras, Tech Mid-Winters, Junior dance, etc. Incidentally, Dot, where does Bill Spagler fit in the picture, or has his been removed?

Bud "Smoothie" Youngberg was throwing out that "easy talk" at a rapid pace. By the way, Charlotte, what did you do about your previous date?

And doesn't Pagie Francis typify the clinging vine type? Louisa was quite elated this week-end with Luke's visit. P. S. He's the attractive naval ensign. Incidentally, Louisa was up bright and early Sunday morn cooking breakfast. Hopes, Louisa?

Peculiar?

There was almost a triangle this week-end when 'Bert' Grigg and Ambrose arrived the same day—but that's difinitely over now isn't it, Charlotte?

Something new and different was Dot Darracott and Tedo—Need more be said? ? ?

True To Form:

Dearing had a difficult time deciding whether she liked her blind date or not. At first, he just wouldn't do. Then came the revelation that he was president of the student body at Lynchburg College. Such beaming the young lady did display. Ah! Prestige.

Triple Triumph! ! !

The juniors throw a wonderful dance, win the sing contest, and get a long distance call saying that Jerry Smith is the proud mother of a baby girl—all in one single Saturday night! ! !

All The World's A Stage

There seemed to be lots of fun around campus this past week-end with all the dates for Junior dance and stuff. B Gentile and Edna Brown were beaming continuously the entire time. "Cheese" Andrews wasn't doing so bad with that "blind date" was she? And how about Ruth Byrd with "Chick"? Seems as if she is to have a long nice visit from her O. A. O. Mary Keith, we like Don just lots. . . no wonder we have heard so much—Who is the young lady who plans a week-end for snaking with no date and ends up with two? How about it M. K.?

It seems that Jerry Titmus has gone V. P. I. on us instead of Camp Lee. Who was the young boy that she rushed so much Saturday night?

It was nice to meet Theresa's Jack after so long a time. Her week-end was complete. And how about Nancy Kerse rushing off to Richmond to see her O. A. O. from West Point?

It seems that B. Austin changed her course from V. P. I. this week-end but the ole flame was still present.

One of the Rotunda's reporters who "knows all, hears all, tells all" got left out of some very important news which happened in her own little suite. How about it, Lilly Bec? Are you slipping? Or have you gotten up the nerve to find out, yet?

College Women Wanted

The Civil Service commission faces a tremendous task. Recent passage of the Ramspeck amendment brings 85 per cent of federal jobs—an all-time high—under commission scrutiny. Workers in non-war agencies must be funneled into at-war agencies. Countless new workers must be found and dovetailed into the government army.

An example is the recent move to enlist college women for "men's work." As laboratory aides in army arsenals, they inspect gauges used in testing ordinance materials. Co-eds who wish such jobs should have at least two years of college work, including some physics, chemistry and trigonometry. The goal of civil service is 100 girls a month for the next 10 months. Initial pay, $1620 annually.

Although about 87 per cent of government jobs are "in the field," as Washingtonians blithely dismiss the United States, some are located here in the capital. Don't take too seriously what you read and hear of crowded and costly living conditions here. A salary of $2,000 here is equal, roughly, to one of $1,800 in a city of comparable size. Living quarters are crowded to be sure, but turn-over of tenants is high. Which means you'll always find a place if you watch closely and jump quickly.

If you were one of the some 16,000 college people who filed with civil service last month for a "junior professional assistant" job, it may interest you to know the exams won't be given until this spring. April's the best guess.

It's open season "indefinitely" on seniors and graduates in chemistry, physics and engineering. So hot is the pursuit that civil service has abandoned competitive examinations in these fields—probably for the duration. Simply show on your application blanks that you have had requisite training. In the case of successful candidates who are seniors, "provisional appointments" will be made. Which means jobs, come spring and graduation.

Others of Uncle Samuel's favorite nephews and nieces are economists. Currently favored are those with at least two years of graduate work or experience. Successful application through civil service may bring a job paying from $2,600 to $5,000.

New Selective Plan

It is unlikely, according to national Selective Service headquarters, that any student in the 20-year-old draft age group will be called up before June. The lottery isn't until March. New draft registrants won't be completely classified until sometime in May.

General Hershey's office has cleared up the confusion on how new lists will be integrated with the old. The answer is, they won't do. Not exactly.

Instead the war department will begin an entirely new plan, about June 1, of specifying not only quota numbers but also the age group from which quotas are to be filled. Thus, if the army says it wants men 21 to 35, the old list will be used; if it wants men below 21 or above 35, the new list will be used.

The latest advice to collegians from Selective Service is still, "stick to your college work until you're called." Patriotic fervor has its place, but a wild rush of volunteers will only serve to complicate planning.

The National Education Association's educational policies commission (President Conant of Harvard is a member) is recommending a plan to anticipate Selective Service by two to three years—catch promising boys as they leave high school, steer them into fields where they will be of most use in the war effort.

A "reserved category" of most promising boys 17 through 19 would be allocated to schools and colleges for training. The "reserved category" would be picked "absolutely irrespective" of financial status of their parents, with Uncle Sam financing the advanced education.

Letter: Reader Asks That Death Penalty Be Given Class Productions

Dear Editor:

In my four years at Farmville, many changes have been made, showing that the "old order changeth, giving way to the new." However, there is one custom or tradition, you might say, that we observe three times a year that should be abolished, meaning class productions.

Class productions cost a great deal in time and in effort. They interrupt the schedule of the class which undertakes to present the program. Individuals must sacrifice numerous afternoons and evenings practicing, making costumes, and constructing scenery.

And for what? Merely that one hour of entertainment may be presented to a rather small audience. It seems that either of the above reasons is sufficient cause in itself for the death of class productions.

First, the productions are not on college level as productions should be.

Second, there are too many demands now for our stray quarters so that the majority of us feel that we cannot attend these rather juvenile performances; especially when we can witness the lyceum programs. Also the attendance at productions is more a matter of courtesy than sheer delight.

The argument that productions furnish a means or are an X-ray in discovering class talent is groundless. The Dramatic Club and the dance and music groups are channels in which talent may be utilized as well as discerned.

After the present school session, let's abolish class productions.

Traditional Game

Farmville alumnae and students will witness the season's last and most anticipated basketball game next Friday night when the Blue and White S. T. C. cagers will meet Madison College of Harrisonburg, Virginia, in the Farmville gym. This will mark the first event of the Founder's Day celebration. For many years, Harrisonburg and Farmville have been rivals in the annual contest, and "traditional halls" call that same spirit to be over present this season. Last year S. T. C. was victorious over this excellent sextet, clearing up the char. for last year in which Harrisonburg scored 22, S. T. C. 18. Previous to this date, our Blue and White team led on the court clashes.

Juniors Play Ball

Basketball made quite an impression this past week on the "goal board" when the junior team scored 32 to the seniors 5. The game was a little quieter than the one played the night before between the freshmen and the sophomores, or should we say "both hit and run fights" were enjoyed by all. This leaves a final game left for the juniors and freshmen and the outcome will be—well, who knows? Green and White captured the colors on this sport it seems and so that's a challenge to all Reds to start moving if the colors are to remain on the color cup. Remember points are being added . . .

Introducing Volleyball

Here we go on another sport to bring all ye lassies back together. With a new National Defense Program in the making, it looks like more people will decide to join in the "sports round-up". Don't let yourself be made or required to have a good time in such things, but start out on your own judgment. Start now to be on the volleyball class team and help your team to lead. Announcements concerning practices will be made and a poster on the A. A. bulletin board wil help remind you when to act. Incidentally, this is an excellent sport in which to participate for the Physical Fitness program under the new Defense Council.

A Winner To Be Found

Working from the first round in the ping pong tournament, Bernice LaForce, has defeated each challenged game and now ranks in the semi-finals. Opposing LaForce is Ruth Dugger, second place winner last season, who will play off for the final winner. This means the result of the game will decide five points toward the colors. Dugger, a sophomore, represents Red and White, LaForce, a freshman, calls from Green and White. Finals will be announced next week.

Swimming Test Booked

William and Mary have asked for a swimming meet between their college and Farmville at William and Mary. Plans are to pick a varsity team as soon as requirements are met and work will begin to shape the girls for the meet. Last year only one meet was scheduled, and that one was with Fairfax Hall. It is hoped that more interest will be put into swimming as the spring season rolls around. Our school placed second place in the regional contest last year in the Intercollegiate Telegraphic Swimming meet, and such honors are hoped for again this season . . . Remember, the pool is open for recreational swimming each Saturday night from 8 o'clock until 9:30 p. m.

Golf Links Improved

With the coming of spring, golf lovers turn their minds and steps to our nine-hole golf course at Longwood. In preparation, the Athletic Association offers practices every Thursday and Wednesday nights so that students may brush-up on their driving and putting. These practices and the actual playing later on tie up with the present good health program. The golf links have been improved during the winter for matches which will be staged in the spring. Free clubs are offered along with free instruction.

Blue and White Team Upsets Indians 42-25

Richmond School Battered 35-19

Capturing a victory over Richmond Professional Institute and William and Mary College this past Thursday and Friday, S.T.C. cagers retained their title "undefeated".

Thursday afternoon the first game was played in Richmond with Richmond Professional Institute. This marked the first victory of the week-end trip when the team captured a score of 18 to 8 at the half, and by the end of the game the decision booked the Blue and White team 35-19.

After remaining at the John Marshall Hotel for the night, the team traveled on to Williamsburg where a game was booked with William and Mary College. Commencing at 7 o'clock, two mighty sextets began a game which again proved fatal to the Farmville opponents.

By the half, a close score of 17-12 showed the Farmville girls leading. Farmville defeated the Indian basketeers 42-25 which marked the sixth straight victory over the sextet.

Green and White Wins Basketball

Freshmen Romp To Win All Games

Clashing with their sister class yesterday afternoon the freshmen basketeers rallied another victory against their opposing team with a final score of 16-5.

This marked the final class game of the basketball season, each class having played in a contest tilt with another class. Sophomores bowed to the freshman in the first class clash 14-11. The second game marked a green and white triumph when the forcing junior team defeated the seniors, 25-5.

Results of this final victory mark the freshman team as winner for the basketball season and awards their colors, Green and white, ten points towards the color cup.

Joining in the new horseback riding course which started this week are left to right, Bobby Scott, Anna Parker, Nancy Hughes, Buff Gunter, and Pagie Francis.

Seven To Compose Varsity Swim Team

Freshmen Selected Sub-Varsity Group

Farmville varsity swimming team for the 1942 season has been chosen, and practices are now underway to fit the team members to compete in the annual Intercollegiate Swimming meet and several other scheduled meets with near-by colleges.

Selected to represent Farmville are Nancy Dupuy, senior; Ellen Ebel and Frances Parham, juniors; and Dorothy Darracott, Ruth Dugger, Shirley Pierce, and Gloria Pollard, sophomores.

Also a sub-varsity team composed of freshmen has been selected. Members are Jannett Jackson, Harriett Moore, and Jean Smith. Each varsity and sub-varsity swimmer is required to arrange at least three hours of swimming each week.

Slated for this week is the first trial in the Telegraphic Swimming meet which includes school records of swimming times in various slated events. Farmville is acting as hostess for the entire meet which will be run off in all registered schools within the next two weeks. Two records may be made and witnessed at each school, and the best one may be sent in as final for that particular school.

Events in the telegraphic meet include the 100 yard freestyle, 50 yard freestyle, 40 yard breast, 40 yard back, medley relay and 100 yard relay.

William and Mary College at Williamsburg has invited the S. T. C. varsity swimming team to compete in a swim meet on her campus March 14. Arrangements are now underway to arrange this event.

Last season, only one swimming meet was scheduled, at which time Fairfax Hall contested.

New Riding Class Begins This Week

Course Designed For All Riders

A special course in horseback riding was begun this week, to continue through March and April, under the direction of Miss Stella Fox and student directors.

The course is being offered for beginners and advanced rides, and will include ring work, special formations, jumping and pleasure rides.

Girls riding in March and April will be eligible to participate in the annual horse show, which will be held in May. The show will feature special performances of students, and competition among the townspeople.

The course is also designed to take advantage of the spring weather and to avoid working too strenuously in May when other interests and hot weather are a disadvantage.

In cooperation with the national defense program of physical fitness, Miss Fox has agreed to arrange a schedule for girls who would like to begin riding the spring quarter.

Local Out To Keep Season Undefeated

After uncorking one of the most outstanding basketball seasons in the history of the school, the S. T. C. Blue and White cagers will make their last home stand of the season Friday night against a strong Harrisonburg team. This game is a traditional Founders Day game.

Arriving from Harrisonburg tomorrow evening, the Madison Indians will have several workouts in the gymnasium in order to become accustomed to the S. T. C. court. Last year's game proved successful for the S. T. C. sextet when they defeated their opponents 32-19 in Harrisonburg. Breaking forth the year before, Harrisonburg scored victorious over Farmville 18-22 on their home court, so as old time tells, it should prove to be an exciting event.

Friday night at 8 o'clock the girls will begin their ball playing, and gates will be opened for spectators to join in a hearty welcome and the spirit of the evening.

Farmville varsity cheer leaders, Mary Katherine Dodson, Betty Sexton, and Shirley Pierce will be on hand to lead the crowd in cheers and carry on the singing with the gang. Farmville spectators will look on the last game of the seasons sport, the last game for captain Marty Roberts, forward; and A. A. president, Dot Johnson, guard, with four years of basketball playing with the S. T. C. varsity and freshman year sub-varsity.

Following the game a reception for the basketball teams, athletic council, and physical education heads will be given in the Y. W. Lounge. Farmville will be host for the Madison College girls from Thursday evening until Saturday morning.

"Drafted" Pancake Says; Temper Causes Frosh Debut

By Margaret Wright

"Butterflies," was Johnny Pancake's answer to his reaction just before the curtain goes up, when interviewed Monday night March 2. Johnny, who will portray Death in Walter Ferris' "Death Takes a Holiday", has the outstanding record of having had a lead every year in the S. T. C. Dramatic Club and H.-S. Jongleurs productions the four years he has been at Hampden-Sydney College.

Martha Woodhouse, a freshman, will make her stage debut March 13 and 14 as Grazia playing opposite Johnny. Idle chatter and between scenes are what she likes most about rehearsals.

"I was drafted", Johnny drawled when questioned about his start in dramatics. "It was a Sunday School play when I was little—five years old. I hated it," he added.

"Mother always said I should be an actress because of my terrible temper," said Martha. "So I tried it my sophomore year in high school."

She fell off the stage at that try-out but managed to get back on and win honorable mention in the Charlottesville State contest

Johnny, sitting in the front of the auditorium in the proverbia between-the-scenes slouch, disclosed that his most thrilling experience was when Miss Wilcher taught him how to hold a girl in his arms.

Martha laughed when asked the same question, tilted her head back and said, "My most thrilling moment was when the Hollywood talent scout looked me over and then overlooked me."

Grease paint is what Johnny dislikes most in the spring production, while Martha admitted that her scream and the three hours of practice were her dislikes.

Both said they dennitely liked the characters they portray. Johnny, however, was emphatically negative in his answer to the inquiry if he felt like Death.

The veteran thespian from H.-S. has to his credit the part of the minister in "Outward Bound", the artist, Dirth, in "Dear Brutus", and Lord Portlous in "The Circle".

"Which role did I like most?" Johnny mused while trying on an English nobleman's uniform. "My said head—the wig I wore in The Circle."

Keith Eubank, also a four year veteran of the H.-S. Jongleurs waiting for his cue to go on remarked that he thought Johnny disliked it intensely.

"Well, it grew on me," Johnny addcd.

Martha narrowed the list of things she liked about the play down to two, the chance to act and the way the play ends.

'Oh, there's one thing I have a horror of," she added in concluding, "That is of tripping over my dress and falling down the steps.'

National Scholarship Convention Lauds Farmville Chapter

Miss Mary Nichols returned February 28 from the Kappa Delta Pi convocation held in San Francisco, February 22 to February 25. Delegates were present from 124 of the 127 chapters and represented 40 states and the District of Columbia.

Members of the executive council led forum and floor discussions in which the programs and policies of the Beta Epsilon chapter at Farmville State Teachers College were recognized and commended.

The theme centered on the [illegible] m of what faculty and students as scholars can do so that democracy can survive and still improve. And important constitutional changes were made in accordance with the present day conceptions of democracy with emphasis upon scholarly service.

Some of the outstanding speakers at the convocation were Dr. T. C. McCracken of the University of Ohio, Dr. L. M. Terman of Leland Stanford University, and Dr. Edgar W. Knight of the University of North Carolina.

The national officers elected for the next diennium included Dr. T. C. McCracken, president; Dr Katherine Vickery of Amaba College, first vice-president; Dr. Frank Wright of Washington University, second vice-president; Dr. William M. Robinson of Kalamazoo, Mich., executive counselor; and Dr. W. C. Bagley, Laureate chapter counselor.

French Fraternity To Sponsor Showing Of "Les Marseilles"

Beta Pi Theta, honor society in French, announces tentative plans for the showing of "Les Marseilles". This movie will be shown in the audio-visual room in the Library, marking the first time when it has been possible to show the annual french picture on campus, due to lack of adequate facilities in former years.

"Les Marseilles" is a movie which relates the story of the writing of the national anthem of France and of its historical significance. There will be captions in English which will make it quite easy to follow the story if the french becomes too difficult.

The date of the showing has not been definitely set, but will be set at a future date.

Digest Sponsors Salon Contest

Collegiate Digest, which is distributed weekly to the entire student body, is sponsoring its annual Salon contest for photographs.

The digest will present in its first May issue the winning prints of the annual Salon competition. The contest is open to all student and faculty photographers who wish to enter. The staff of the Collegiate Digest believes that by devoting an entire issue to the group of amateur photographers, it can most effectively tell of the great accomplishments of the college camera artists.

All material must be sent not later than April 1, to Salon Editor, Collegiate Digest Section, 323 Fawkes Building, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

For the best photograph, a special prize of $25 will be awarded. First place winners in each division will receive a cash award of $5; second and third place winners, $3 and $2.

Cast Rehearses for "Death"

Tedo Savage, kneeling, questions Grazia or Martha Woodhouse, regarding her startled expression, while Peggy Bellus and Keith Eubank wonder also. This scene is from "Death Takes a Holiday", which will be persented Friday and Saturday nights, March 13 and 14, in the S. T. C. auditorium.

Final Ping Pong Game For Tonight; Dugger Vs. LaForce

Ruth Dugger and Bernice La Force, red and white and green and white, respectively, are the final contestants left in the annual ping-pong tournament which began several weeks ago with fifteen persons entered.

Winner of the match between Dugger and La Force will decide the final winner of ping pong for the season and will thus award five points to the winning color towards the color cup. Last season green and white proved victorious over the reds, but an even chance is left between the frosh and soph players.

Results of the third round which was played off last week saw Ruby Stewart victorious over Louise Phillips, Frances Parham defeated Elizabeth Barlow, Bernice LaForce won over June Brown and Ruth Dugger, winner of the match with Dot Darracott.

Freshman Production Date Changed to March 31

The date for the Freshman production has been changed from March 7 to March 31. This change was necessitated due to the inability of the freshmen to secure the auditorium for practices.

Thespians to Stage 'Death Takes a Holiday'

Play Scheduled For Two Night Run In S. T. C. Auditorium

Interest, anticipation, and even curiosity are increasing among the students of S. T. C. and Hampden-Sydney as they await the presentation of "Death Takes a Holiday" by the Dramatic Club of S. T. C. and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs on Friday and Saturday evenings, March 13 and 14. The two organizations have agreed that the proceeds shall go to the Red Cross. Miss Leola Wheeler is the director of the production.

The male lead is John Pancake in the role of "Death", who influences the lives of all during his brief interlude at the home of Duke Lambert.

Martha Woodhouse, as Grazia, a poetic and dreamy young girl, has the leading feminine part.

Peggy Bellus plays the role of Grazia's mother, princess of Sam Luca, while Keith Eubank takes the part of Duke Lambert, at whose house the scene is laid.

The role of Corrado, son of the Duke and a reckless youth who is very much in love with Grazia, is enacted by Tedo Savage.

Among the guests of the Duke are Baron Cesara played by Bus Etheridge; his daughter-in-law Alda, whose part if taken by Jane McGinnis; Eric Fenton, portrayed by Oliver Van Patten; and his sister Rhoda Fenton, enacted by Margarct Hiner. Helen Fuller will portray the part of Duchess Stephanie, wife of the Duke.

The story of the play concerns the appearance on earth of Death, under the name of "Serene Highness Prince Sirki of Citalba Alexandri". His quest, for which he has three days, is to find out what love is, and why pepole fear him. During these three days when Death takes a holiday, no living thing on earth dies in the final hour as the guest of an Italian duke, he finds the answers to his two problems.

An English version of the play, which appeared first in Italy, enjoyed a long run on Broadway, starring Philip Merrivale. Later Frederick March and Evelyn Venable performed in a Hollywood production of it.

Walter Ferris' immortal play is being staged by Susie Moore and Addison Campbell, with the assistance of the staging group. Mary Lou Shannon will be in charge of all make-up, while Nelle White will be in charge of the lighting. The costumes, which are modern, are under the supervision of Gene Hardy Kilmon.

Students To Elect Minor Officers

Cast Final Votes Thursday, March 12

Election of minor officers by the student body will be conducted all day tomorrow, Thursday, March 12. Method of election will follow the same plan as used for major elections.

Nominated for vice-president of the Student Government were Fiddle Haymes and Ella Marsh Pilkington. For secretary Mary Evelyn Pearsall, Betty Bridgforth, and Jane Smith vied with each other. Those up for treasurer were Hannah Lee Crawford, Nell Quinn, and Mary St. Claire Bugg. Fay Johnson, Anne Blair, Marilyn Bell, and Dora Jones will run for the Campus League. Nominations for the dining room chairman include Elizabeth Bernard, Betty Reid, and Leona Moomaw.

Nominations for the Y.W.C.A. office of vice-president were Eleanor Folk, Nancy Allen, and Catherine May. Those up for secretary were Louise Bell, Frances Lee Hawthorne, and Sally Overbey. Betty Bridgforth, Hannah Lee Crawford, and Anne Ellett vied for treasurer. Contending for Freshman Counselor were Ella Banks Weathers, Dorothy Sue Simmons, and Julia Eason.

Rotunda Staff Guests Honor Twenty-First Birthday of Paper

In celebration of the twenty-first birthday of The Rotunda, the staff and its guests held a banquet at Longwood this evening at 6:30 p. m.

Guests included the present Rotunda staff, Dr. J. L. Jarman, Miss Mary White Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lancaster, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Holton, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Barrye Wall.

Allene Overbey and May Winn, editor and business manager of the Colonnade this year, and next year's heads, Winifred Wright and Ann Ellett, were present as were Ann Ayers, May Wertz, and Gay Ward Brown, editor, managing editor, and business manager of the Virginian for this year, and the publication's new heads, Susie Moore, Ann Ware, and Elizabeth Tennant, represented the other publications on campus.

Lilly Bee Gray and Margaret Mish were in charge of the banquet.

Alumnae Present Portraits To S.T.C.

Scholarship Fund Dedicated to Pres.

Introduced by a prologue given by Frances Rosebro, the Fundamental Dance Class presented "The Building of Alma Mater Through the Years" and "The Building of Our House of Learning" as a feature of the Founders Day program Saturday, March 7.

Nancy Staff, president of the Student Council, presented forty roses to Dr. Jarman, symbolizing his forty years of service to S.T.C.

Miss Mary Peck, president of the Alumnae Association, introduced Mrs. Fannie Littleton Kline, who presented a portrait of Celeste Parrish. Then Mrs. Louise Pruden Apperson presented, in behalf of the Norfolk Alumnae, a figurine dressed as Celeste Parrish as a girl.

M. B. Coyner presented a portrait of Dr. T. D. Eason, who was a former faculty member at STC and was associated with the State Department. Miss Minnie Rice presented a portrait of Estelle Smithy, another former faculty member. These last two portraits were painted by Miss Julia Mahood, an S. T. C. Alumna.

Mrs. M. B. Coyner introduced the representatives from various alumnae chapters who gave reports of activities, and gifts to funds. A scholarship was begun and dedicated to Dr. J. L. Jarman.

Y.W.C.A. Abolishes Soph Commission

Program Replaced By Government

A change in the Y. W. C. A. constitution to the effect that the Sophomore Commission be abolished has been recommended by the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet and passed by the student body.

The Sophomore Commission was organized on this campus in 1939 because of the need for a body to assist in freshman orientation. However, in 1940 the Student Government Association revised its program for freshman orientation. Since the two bodies overlapped, the Y. W. C. A. requested that the Sophomore Commission be abolished.

Present plans are that the Freshman Commission will remain in office until November of each year, at which time the Y. W. C. A. will conduct the election for a new Freshman Commission.

Art Fraternity To Initiate Four

Winifred Wright, president of Gamma Psi, honor society in art, has announced that four girls will be initiated into that society Thursday night, March 12 at 8 o'clock.

Mary Moore McCorkle, Sarah Trigg, Ann Berry, and Jean Arrington, members of the sophomore class, are those who will be initiated.

New Officers Will Assume Positions Beginning With Spring Quarter

Agnes Patterson, from Winston-Salem, N. C., was elected president of the Student Government Association in the major elections held Tuesday, March 10. She will succeed Nancy Naff. Amy Read, from Hampton, will serve as the new Y. W. C. A. president for next year. Amy will take Frances Rosebro's place. Margaret Mish, from Lexington, was elected to the presidency of the House Council and will succeed Jane Engleby. Hallie Hillsman, from Farmville, was elected president of the Athletic Association, and will take Dorothy Johnson's place.

Agnes was secretary of Student Government this year, and served as Campus League Chairman her sophomore year. She was a member of the Sophomore Commission and has been secretary of her class for two years. Agnes is a member of Pi Gamma Mu, Alpha Kappa Gamma, Granddaughters Club, Kappa Delta Pi, Association of Childhood Education, and Cotillion Club. This year she is a member of May Court and is a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority.

Amy is junior representative to the Student Council, and chairman of the public affairs committee of the Y. W. C. A. Last year Amy was secretary of the Sophomore Commission and treasurer of the Choral Club. Amy holds membership in Beorc Eh Thorn, Alpha Phi Sigma, Alpha Kappa Gamma, A'Capella Choir, Collegc Choir, Dramatic Club, Cotillion Club, and French Club. She is a member of Pi Kappa Sigma sorority.

Margaret Mish was treasurer of the House Council her sophomore year as well as a hall president. This year she has served as secretary of the House Council. In the Y. W. C. A. Margaret was on the Sophomore Commission and the social committee her sophomore year, and the public affairs committee this year. She was a member of junior staff of the Virginian, and Choral club. She has been a member of the Rotunda staff for the past two years, and a member of the Dramatic club all three years. She is a member of Cotillion Club and Gamma Theta sorority.

Hallie Hillsman has displayed and active interest in athletics. She has made varsity hockey and basketball teams for three successive years, and was elected captain of the varsity hockey team this year. She has also served as captain of her class hockey team for three years. Hallie is a member of Orchesis, Alpha Kappa Gamma, the Wesley Foundation and the French Circle.

Installation of these officers will take place in the near future.

Aumnae Luncheon Honors Dr. Jarman

Many Pay Tribute To College Head

"Teacher, leader and friend" epitomized Miss Grace Mix's tribute to Dr. Jarman which constituted a feature of the Alumnae Association's luncheon Saturday, March 7, at which time Dr. Jarman celebrated his fortieth anniversary at the College's fifty-eighth Founders Day conclave.

Mrs. E. H. Ould, Roanoke and a member of the class of 1902, told the alumnae that for her the "Spirit of Farmville" began when she entered the picket fence which formerly surrounded the State Female Normal School.

Continuing her talk on the "Spirit of Farmville", Mrs. Ould said, "The Farmville spirit is the light that gives direction. It is the light that we put in our lanterns, and the Farmville spirit gives us those lanterns".

Miss Mary Peck, president of the Farmville Alumnae Association, presided as toastmistress at the luncheon and recognized members of the "two" classes.

Four members of the class of 1892 were present. They were Mrs. Annie Burton Cox, Farmville; Miss Julia C. Davidson, Farmville; Mrs. Myrtis Spain Hall, King and Queen Courthouse; and Mrs. Louise Twelvetrees Hamlet, Powhatan.

Representing the class of 1902 was Mrs. E. H. Ould. The class of 1912 was unique in its representations in that in addition to its four classmates, Mr. J. M. Lear, former professor of history at S. T. C. and now at the University of North Carolina, was present for the occasion. Members of this class who returned were Mrs. Agnes Burger Williams, Lynchburg; Mrs. Esme Howell

Troubles Begin at Twelfth Hour for "Death's Holiday"

By JANE RUFFIN

Even at the twelfth hour there are troubles with Death's Holiday. Jane McGinnis just recovering from pink eye, is very alluring in goggles. Then there were the Founders Day figures floating across the stage where play rehearsal went merrily on. Johnny Pancake seems to have quite a bit of trouble with his skirts—and I don't mean women!

There are excuses and excuses for being late to practice, but Peggy Bellus took the cake when her dog had puppies. The first was immediately christened Tedo. Mother and offspring are doing fine, thank you.

In spite of the many that are rightfully his, Buster Etheridge, in the role of Baron Cesara, has difficulty in describing his conquests. Addison Campbell has definitely never been a rat at S. T. C. or he'd have no trouble bracing for his bows.

The many experiments with lighting and makeup have resulted in uncanny effectiveness, and if he can take Mary Lou Shannon, head of makeup, and Nelle White, in charge of lighting, with him, Johnny Pancake is qualified to replace Boris Karloff as the horror of the movies.

As the days before the play decrease, the number of cigarettes consumed by the cast, increases. However, William Oliver Frederick, Albert Van Patten III is bearing up remarkably well under the burden of his appellation.

The play itself deals with Death's strange visit to Life and his search for its meaning.

The cast includes Death, Johnny Pancake; Grazia, Martha Woodhouse; Princess Marie, Peggy Bellus; Duke Lambert, Keith Eubank; Corrado, Tedo Savage; Alda, Jane McGinnis; Eric Fenton, Bill Van Patten, Rhoda Fenton, Margaret Hiner; Duchess Stephanie, Helen Fuller; Baron Cesara, Bus Etheridge; Major Whitehead, Richard Cornwall, and servants, Addison Campbell and Martha Higgins.

Your Part As a Student

If American armies decided to "put off" fighting for a week; if our naval forces determined to halt the hunt for enemy submarines until next month—how long would America remain free?

If the producers of armament "just forgot" to turn out guns and tanks and planes; if American generals "didn't have time" to map our campaigns — how long would America remain an independent democracy?

This is a war of minutes; procrastination has become synonymous with perfidy. And yet. . .

While we can't think of one person who hasn't commented favorably on United States Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps, and who hasn't said "I'm going to start buying Defense Stamps without fail!"—we can think of several people who have "delayed their purchasing", who "won't start buying for a few days," or who had "just forgotten" to buy a Stamp.

We're not writing this because we feel that the students of Farmville believe that V stands for Vacillation. Rather, we want to make plain our assurance that it is vitally important for students to invest their dimes and quarters in the United States as wholeheartedly, as regularly, and as systematically as their parents invest their pay-day dollars.

Wholeheartedly, regularly, and systematically. . . just as our war is more than one isoluted infantry attack; just as it requires much more than one concerted navul drive; and just as it necessitates infinitely more than a single bombing flight—everything we do must be continuous, unfaltering, and constant.

There is more to this war than victory; America is fighting not only for today, but for tomorrow. . . for future peace and for the future good of all peoples. The Bonds and Stamps we buy are not only fighting the war, but fighting for the peace.

Students of American colleges are thinking about this world to come; many of them are fighting for it. We who remain here are talking about it, reading about it, planning for it. We must also help pay for it, just as all Americans must help.

The dimes and quarters we set aside are important to the war effort, yes; but only if they are put aside regularly and systematically. Only if they reflect both the urgency of paying for this war, and the continuous, dynamic philosophy behind it.

Make a pledge to yourself. Remembering that our search in the seas and the sky is continuous, that the flow of machines and munitions is never-ending, pledge yourself to fall in line with America . . .

Start buying Defense Stamps today. Start buying them regularly. And do not waver from your course.

It Has Happened Here

Three months have passed since Pearl Harbor. During this time, the entire world has witnessed a greater "All-Out" program for defense than in any other war. As students in this titantic struggle, we have enlisted in a defense program which the Defense Committee has set-up.

We have heard the purposes of various defense committees outlined. We have read in the newspapers about civilian defense classes and wardens learning their jobs. We have agreed that each one of us should build ourselves physically.

In brief, let's get going. We can spend many hours formulating programs, but unless each of us resolves to sacrifice ourselves, then the entire program is merely a straw in the wind. We must not content ourselves to maintain our present level. We must do that and more too.

In other words. . .

Let's have more blackouts and less backouts.

Gleanings

By DR. FRANCIS B. SIMKINS

The inquiring student asks the historian what light, if any, does the experience of our country in past wars throw upon the possible outcome of the present one? A powerful and determined people have accepted the leadership of a President who says, "There can be no peace with the Dictators". This means no compromise, a war that can only end in the annihilation of the enemy, in total victory.

Our five major wars have been successfully waged by a people who have, through force and moral zeal, imposed their aggressive will upon the enemy. In 1783, the American people, feeling that they were denied the traditional liberties of Englishmen, won complete freedom. The greatest imperialist power of all times was forced to acknowledge the loss of its richest province. In 1848 the American people, moved by what our historians call agricultural imperialism, forced Mexico to surrender Texas and California. Thereby was the proudest of Spain's daughters deprived of half her territory. In 1865 the majority of the American people, fighting for freedom for blacks and for "big business", forced the minority to give up a way of life dominated by slavery and agriculture. It was "a ight into oblivion" for the Confederate government and "a going with the wind" for the Southern social system. In 1898 a superior might and superior moral greed imposed American progress and the American profit system upon the dark people of the tropics. Spain was forced to surrender most of what was left of a great empire. In 1918 the strength of superior money power exercised through the will of the people—the wonderful American combination of plutocracy and democracy—humbled the forces of militarism. Germany accepted a dictated peace at our hands.

If history repeats itself the present war will end like the five before it. Existing circumstances point in that direction. We have the material strength, an inherited valor, and moral idealism. These circumstances should spell total victory, a world without dictators, a country which then can mobilize for other battles, military or otherwise.

The Gatepost

Life's Little Incidents: Peggy Bellus delayed practice for "Death" one hour because Wiggles, her dog, was having puppies. By the way, she named the first puppy "Tedo."

And So Our Predictions: This columnist predicted only last Wednesday that Dot Childress and Bill Spangler would no longer be linked together. However, this columnist was surprised to learn the following day that Bill had middle-aisled it with another.

Who Blew Out the Flame: This columnist is wondering if Emory is as interested in Virginia Alexander as he appears . . . or if it is to allure Mow back to him. The former attended the Pan Hellenic dances with him, but what about the messages that were sent to Mow.

Founders Day Scene: It was about four o'clock when two young men dressed in Naval Reserve attire appeared at the door of the Rotunda. The two were warmly greeted by Connie and???? Dr. Jeffers ,who came up the walk, noticed Sadie standing by and went over to the said young lady. Tapping her on the shoulder, he said, "None for you?"

Death Takes Time Out: Johnny Pancake who is portraying 'Death' in the forthcoming Dramatic Club play was noticed by your observant correspondent as he entertained Virginia Mae Ellett Monday afternoon on the campus. Take it or leave it???

Ramblings from Doc Cupid: Alumnae Essie Milliner and Sara Booth will wed shortly . . . Jane "I Work Fast" Engleby reports Graham may be able to say "I Do" in Roanoke instead of "Deep In the Heart of Texas" . . . Gerry found perfect bliss Sunday with Wyn, who is now located in Washington.

Picked Up .Here and There Mary Martha went to Washington for a dance, intending to stay only until Saturday. She returned Sunday . . . by the way, Mary Martha, we thought you were going to Randolph-Macon Pan Hels . . . Mary Hunter was heard to say that "she'd like to wring Paul's neck" . . . hmmm.

Maybe There Is Hope: Freshmen who failed to wear white on Saturday were greatly criticized. Maybe you think it's proper to be individualistic, but there are others who don't agree. We could mention names, but we'll wait and see if there's to be a change.

Could Someone Tell Me: A romance which had the possibilities last year of being is still continuing . . . at least from the appearance Sunday, specifying Bill Lyle and Catherine Dunton. Maybe it was the spring that called that young man from Death Valley hither. What have you to say, Catherine?

Straws In the Wind: Chuck Whitehouse is a constant guest here. If he can't date one, there is always another. Florence Thierry was the latest one noted with this "Little Red Riding Hood".

Freshman Martha Woodhouse not only cops the lead role in the play, but also edges out Jimmy Traylor, a current heart beat for many STC admirers of Death Valley.

Add to the List: Buck Crockett, that flash from Death Valley, may have been burnt at STC before, but, believing that nothing ventured, nothing gained", upped and gave his Kappa Sig pin to the little Charlotte. And last year about this time, it was Boswell who made the young man's heart leap. Now Buck and Kossen can compare notes.

Ramblings: Ann Boswell displayed a lovely blush in Mr. Grainger's Shakespeare class this morning when the professor asked what men prefer and Anne retorted, "Blonds" . . . with Pan Hellenic dances coming up, the little red books are being called into use . . . Dodson promises to have a date.

Big Time: That senior Roanoke quintet—Engleby, Naff, Ayers, Hurt, and Cline are planning an Easter houseparty at Engleby's cabin. Habble, Gay Ward, Marty, Dodson, Wright, and Scottie will be present for the affair which promises to be gala. It is rumored that (censored) (Darn those censors).

"Teacher, Leader, Friend" Characterize Dr. Jarman

Editors Note: The following is a tribute paid Dr. J. L. Jarman on his fortieth anniversary as president of Farmville State Teachers College by Miss Grace Mix at the Aumnae Luncheon Founders Day ,March 7.)

When I was asked to give a tribute to Dr. Jarman at the Founders Day luncheon I felt that I must first examine my own credentials to see if I was the suitable person to do this. I remembered that the Alumnae Association had graciously made me an honorary member so that was one credential. Then, too, I have lived in Virginia for twenty-five years, so that I may claim to be an adopted Virginian.

As I thought of what I should say in my tribute to Dr. Jarman I heard of the flowers which would be on the luncheon table on Founders Day, a class flower from each one of the classes for the past forty years. I remembered the words of the lovely, pathetic Ophelia, "Rosemary, that's for remembrance. Pansies, that's for thoughts."

So I have tried to gather thoughts, thoughts that I knew would be put into words, if the authors of the thoughts were here. First, are the thoughts of appreciation and affection that would come from the learned men, the College Presidents that Dr. Jarman confers with when he goes on those long journeys to the meetings of the Southern Association of Teacher Colleges.

Then there are thoughts from the leaders of the State of Virginia, past and present governors and educational leaders. Just here, I remembered one past governor n particular, Governor Trinkle, who, in his lifetime, was so warm a friend of Dr. Jarman and of our College. If he could reach us today, I knew that his thought would be one of deep appreciation.

I would wish to gather the thoughts of Dr. Jarman's past and present facuity and of his loyal alumnae throughout the State. To these, I would add the affectionate tribute of his giris who are now in college.

If I could put these thoughts together in a visible form, I would like them to be expressed in three ways, a tribute to Dr. Jarman, as a teacher, as a leader and as a friend... He has taught us many things without entering the class room doors, he has always been at the forefront in leading toward steps of progress, and best of all we know him as a friend. I am confident that all in this room will join with me in giving to him our tribute as teacher, leader and friend, to Dr. Jarman, a distinguished servant of the State of Virginia.

Question of the Week

Alumnae: What Impresses You Most About the Changes That Have Taken Place in the College?

Miss Trevvett ('91): The size impressed me when I first came back—the growth in the buildings. Student Building and the library are wonderful assets. We had oil lamps when I was here.

Miss Louise Brewer ('21): The library is beautiful. But the nicest thing is that the spirit of the girls hasn't changed.

Miss Virginia Price ('38): It is such a short while since I have been here, and yet there have been so many changes. I have been wanting to come back as a student ever since I first saw the wonderful new library.

Miss Margaret Turpin ('25): The spirit is wonderful.

Mrs. Hazel Clark ('14): I think the senior "Rec" is lovely.

Mrs. Jarrett ('18): The girls seem happier. The donations, such as the portraits, have certainly added to the general improvement.

Miss Louise Clayton ('32): There have been physical changes, but the spirit hasn't changed. The little things mean a lot.

Mrs. Bondurant: You girls stay up all night.

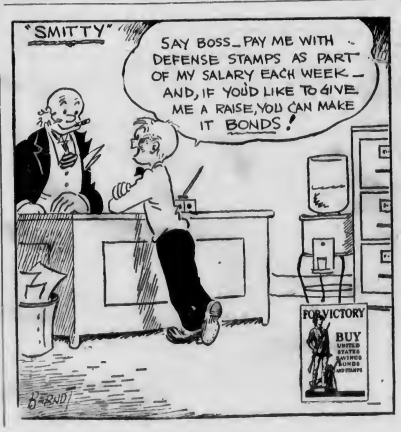
Mrs. Lippett ('98): All the new buildings and the spirit of the girls. I reckon we had it, too, but it is wonderful.

Mrs. Eason ('11): From an artistic standpoint and practical planning it is remarkable what has been done, considering that the school is on the street.

Mrs. Charles Rucker ('12): The freedom of the girls. When I was here there were no boys dropping in at all times. If a girl had a date everybody in school knew about it.

Mrs. Thompson ('30): The changes are lovely—the new library, the swimming pool, everything.

Mrs. Richardson ('94): There have been wonderful changes. You know, there was just one building when I was here.



Miss Evelyn Ferguson ('37): The Browsing Room is a credit to any institution. Audio-Visual Education is fine, too.

Mrs. Thomas Stark ('14): I love every "drop". Longwood is wonderful.

Mrs. H. B. Claytor ('13): Despite the changes, it feels like home. It is wonderful having Dr. Jarman and Miss Mary White Cox for so many years. It gives one a feeling of stability.

Miss Katherine Watkins ('18): The changes have been gradual, and I have just grown up with them.

Mrs. T. M. Netherland ('94): The buildings and the spaciousness. There were only twenty-one in my class. I don't see much that could be added now. You have everything.

Alumnae To Hear Lyceum Artist Saturday Evening

Louise Meiszner, Pianist, To Appear

Saturday evening, March 7 State Teachers College will honor its almunae by presenting Louise Meiszner, pianist, at a lyceum program in the college auditorium, at 8 o'clock. Students and faculty members are also invited to attend.

Louise Meiszner was born in St. Louis, Mo., August 24, 1924, of Hungarian parentage. Her youth is an incident and only one of many attributes that make her America's most exciting woman pianist.

She started to play the piano when three-and-a-half years old and gave her first recital at the age of five. When she was six, she entered the Franz Liszt Academy of Music in Budapest where she studied until three years ago with Erno Dohnanyi.

Louise Meiszner has appeared as Soloist in Budapest with the Concert Symphony Orchestra, Erick Kleiber conducting; Budapest Philharmonic Orchestra, Dr. Erno Dohnanyi conducting; Holland, Hilversum Symphony Orchestra, Avert van Rualle conducting; Paris, Farnce, Radio Nationale; Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra, Karl Krueger conducting; Topeka, Kans., Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra, Mr. Blumberg conducting; Kearney, Nebr., Symphony Orchestra, Harold Cerny conducting.

The program for the evening includes Bach-Liszt's Organ Prelude and Fugue is C Minor; Beethoven's 32 Variations; and Liszt-Sibolis Benediction de Dieu dans la Solitude.

After a short intermission Miss Meiszner will conclude her concert with Chopin's Sonate in B flat Minor, Grave-Choppio movi..ento, Scherzo, Marche funebre, and Presto.

She will also present Griffe's Scherzo, Brockway's A Serenade, and Ravel's Toccata.

Norfolk Alumnae Honor Dr. Jarman

Norfolk alumnae chapter gave a banquet Friday night, February 27, at the Hague Club. The table was laid for 72 almunae, and the central decoration was a huge birthday cake with forty candles for Dr. Jarman's forty years of service at Farmville.

In Dr. Jarman's absence, on account of a slight attack of "flu", Mary Katherine Dodson, president of the senior class, represented the college. The address on "Our Task in this War" was made by Dr. James Elliott Walmsley. Dr. Walmsley brought back the cake to Dr. Jarman.

Farmville's First Student Expected for Founders Day

By Mrs. M. B. COYNER

Returning for Farmville's fifty-eighth Founders Day will be Mrs. E. C. Tredway, of Emporia, who deserves special recognition for being one of S. T. C.'s first students. Mrs. Tredway, formerly Miss Bettie McIvor Mayes, was a students here when S.T.C. opened its doors in 1884.

When she arrived from her home, "Hicksford", the walls were not dry enough for the girls to move in immediately, so she was placed in the home of Mr. Frank McKinley, who was afterwards the Governor of Virginia, and whose old home here now is occupied by Dr. James Elliot Walmsley. Governor McKinley was first cousin to her husband, who was then a student at Hampden-Sydney. (Note that matches were made between S. T. C. and H.-S. C. from the very beginning).

Miss Bettie remembers well Miss Celeste Bush who was then the head of the Home. She often visited at Longwood, and enjoyed horse back riding.

Miss Bettie has lived up to the traditions of a true Farmville daughter. She is one of Emporia's most beloved citizens, a friend and neighbor to everyone, always most charitable and kind to the underprivileged. She is an active member of Christ Episcopal Church, and contributes to the progress and welfare of all civic and religious affairs.

During the last World War, she served as the first Hostess at the Hostess House of Camp Lee, and was known to the boy in Service as "Mother Tredway". Later she became a member of the Red Cross Staff there and rendered a valuable service in that capacity.

One of her fellow citizens wrote: "She is still living a useful, full life, always with one point in view, namely, serving God and her fellowman. We don't know what we would do without Miss Betty."

Seated at her desk is Dr. Amelia V. Tutles, new college physician.

Dr. Tutles Named College Physician

Dr. Amelia V. Tutles of New Britain, Connecticut, is the new director at the S. T. C. infirmary. She replaces Dr. Helen Todd.

Dr. Tuttles attended the Connecticut College for Women for two years, and did four years of medical work at the Woman's Medical College of Philadelphia. She interned at the Metropolitan Hospital, N. Y., New Britain General Hospital, and Woman's Medical College of Philadelphia.

In the New Jersey state department of health she has done public health work

Class of 1917 Will Celebrate Twenty-Fifth Year

On the fifty-eighth anniversary of the founding of State Teachers College and the fortieth anniversary of Dr. Jarman's presidency, the almunae once again turn their thoughts to their college as it has progressed through the years. It is expected that about one hundred and fifty alumnae will return and a representative from each class since the college's founding will be present.

The two classes will have reunions, 1892, 1912, and 1922. The class of 1917 will celebrate its twenty fifth anniversary. In a letter from an alumna of the year wondering about the growth of Farmville since her college days, there is a sincere expression of the joy of returning to meet old friends. She says, "Wouldn't it be fun to meet again Founders Day and see how many of us still recognize each other, I'm wondering, too' if we don't have some poetess, authoress, or great personage from our class of 1917?"

Her life typifies many of the alumnae who will return. "Personally I've done only the commonplace—taught, married, raised a family (no prodigies)—grown gray of hair, scarce of teeth, full around the hips, and still hope my girls will go to Farmville."

The program for the occasion starts with a basketball game Friday with Madison College. On Saturday Orchesis, Fundamentals class, and the Dramatic club will, through words, music, and dance, show how Farmville has grown through the years. Miss Mary E. Peck, president of the Alumnae Association, will greet the alumnae, and Mrs. M. B. Coyner will give a report of the alumnae. At this time too, there will be presentation of gifts and figurine.

Alpha Phi Sigma will conduct an excrcusion to points of interest on the campus. At 1 o'clock there will be a luncheon in the Recreational Hall. The freshmen, as custom has it, will present a demonstration of Folk dances at 3 o'clock. A tea at Longwood beginning at 4:30 o'clock and a piano concert by Louise Meiszner at 8:30 p. m. will complete the plans for a busy Fonuders Day week-end.

Costuming And Make - Up Of "Death" Baffles Stagers

Behind the scenes of "Death Takes a Holiday" there is increased activity as March 14 draws near. The minute details of lighting, costuming, and make-up are taking definite shape for the play.

Busy at work on the scenery for the forthcoming S. T. C. Dramatic Club-H.-S. Jongleur play is Lillian German.

Mary Lou Shannon, who is in charge of make-up, is according to Johnny Pancake, because of the many experiments with his make-up, "the bane of his existence". To get the wierd experience of Death and the shadows at his advent and departure require careful make-up and intricate lighting. One of the greatest difficulties is at the end when Pancake has to appear as Death, ghastly in a green light, while Gratzia, in the same light must seem normal.

The lighting is extremely hard since there are so many spot lights necessary when Death's face must be reflected or when shadows are needed. Dim lights are used throughout the play, according to Nelle White, in charge of the lighting.

Out in the workshop the girls are working on the scenery, garden backgrounds and arches for the play. In the play there are steps needed in the room, and a platform is being prepared for this.

Gene Hardy Kilmon, in charge of the costuming, reports that modern costumes are being used. The scene is in an aristocratic home and the costumes are in accordance with the settings.

One of the greatest difficulties with practices is getting the auditorium and getting the players there on time.

The cast as it stands includes Johnny Pancake, as Death, the Shadow; Martha Woodhouse, as Grazia; Peggy Bellus in the role of the princess of San Luca; Keith Eubank, as Duke Lambert, his son Corrada is played by Tedo Savage; Jane McGinnis plays the Duke's daughter-in-law, Alda; Eric Fenten is portrayed by Oliver Van Patten, his sister, Rhoda, by Margaret Hiner, Duchess Stephanie is played by Helen Fuller, and Baron Cesarca, by Richard Cornwall.

"Which shall it be", Gene Hardy Kilmon, costume chairman for "Death Takes a Holiday", wonders as she examines the numerous outfits in the Dramatic Club workshop.

Debaters To Clash At Lenior-Rhyne

To compete in the debate conference at Lenior—Rhyne College, Hickory, North Carolina, March 5-7, Ann Randolph, Marilyn Bell, and Virginia Sedgley, left this morning.

Ann and Marilyn will debate the affirmative and negative of the the question, "Resolved that the democracies should establish and maintain the eight Roosevelt-Churchill principles." Serving as alternate is Virginia Sedgley, who will also enter as an extemporaneous speaker.

Virginia Colleges Meet In Richmond

At the recent meetings of the Association of Virginia colleges in Richmonud, Dr. Jarman represented S. T. C. M. B. Coyner, who has worked for two years with the committee on Causes of Freshman Failures in Colleges, was in attendance on the report of this committee. Dr. James Elliott Walmsley spoke of the work of the Farmville Defense Council.

College Launches All-Out Defense Program

Work Begins In Morale Set-up With Open Forums

K. D. P., P. G. M. Sponsor Meetings

In a talk given during the Defense Council meeting in the large auditorium Monday night, March 2, at 8 o'clock Mary Hunter Edmunds explained the purposes of the morale organization committee, of which she is chairman.

To aid the student in gaining knowledge and understanding of European, as well as American, news and thereby create a confident attitude rather than an hysterical one is the chief purpose of this committee. College courses which may be taken pertaining to this were cited as one of the ways in attaining the goal of this committee.

In cooperation with this committee various organizations will sponsor open forums based on current events. Tuesday night, March 3, Kappa Delta Pi, honor society for scholarship, opened this series by holding an open meeting at 9 o'clock in the Honor Room. At this time Miss Mary Nichols discussed American defense and the advancement of democracy in regard to the conclusions reached at the Kappa Delta Pi convention held at San Francisco from February 23 to February 25. Pi Gamma Mu, honorary social science fraternity, will begin its open forums on Tuesday, March 10 with a discussion on Australia. Programs concerning similar topics are being held within the meetings of these organizations and others.

The morale organization setup is sponsoring weekly analysis of the news by Dr. James Elliott Walmsley each Wednesday morning during chapel and is also in charge of a table in the college library with selected reading on current events which is available to every student.

Mary Hunter stated that the committee is attempting to utilize the things already available in the college for the work of this committee rather than bringing in new devices.

Miss Pauline Camper is the committee faculty advisor and will be assisted by other committee members who will be appointed later.

THE WORK OF THE DEFENSE COUNCIL

(An Editorial)

By DR. JAMES ELLIOTT WALMSLEY

It goes without saying that every student in college as well as every member of the faculty and administration is ready and eager to do all that is possible to win this war and to "nobly save this last best hope of earth." But unorganized work is largely ineffectual. For that reason, the Council was organized.

It should win the enthusiastic cooperation of each student and of each department of work. It is not a faculty project; it is a student movement, supported and advised by certain official advisors and by all faculty members. Its definite purpose is to see that every college organization academic or social, fits somewhere into a closely articulated system; that every student has an opportunity to do her bit where it is most effective.

The small council at the head is purely an organizing body to see that no needed work is neglected, that no willing worker is idle, that someone knows what everyone is doing, and that the defense workers make up, not unorganized companies, but a closely knit army.

We feel sure that anyone who has an idea will bring it to the Council, and that anyone who is asked to contribute time, skill, and money will know that it is given not to a committee chairman, but to our country in her hour of crisis.

Lilly Bee Gray, above, is pictured here looking up the record of Southside Hospital patients as part of the Red Cross Staff Assistance course which is being offered as part of the defense program.

Hurt Formulates Air Raid Plans

Neil Hurt, chairman of the air-raid defense committee, in cooperation with S. L. Graham, has announced that well-organized fire drills in preparation for air-raid drills will begin at once at State Teachers College.

The school fire alarm will be sounded each Saturday afternoon at 1:45 p. m. in order to acquaint the students with the fire routine and the school will cooperate with the town of Farmville in a total black-out at an early date.

Air-raid shelters have been set up in the basements of the Junior and Senior buildings and under the street near the new athletic field in an old creek bed.

Fire marshals on each dormitory hall will assist Nell in carrying out the drills.

Accelerated Program Set Up By Physical Fitness Committee

Physical fitness committee, under the direction of Martha Roberts, has outlined a program to include suitable exercises, a medical examination or health inspection of each student by the college physician each year, correction of remedial defects, and establishment of a daily routine of health habits.

Dr. Tutles is now carrying out the aim for having medical examinations. First year students are completing their examination this week, and second year students will be examined at their physical education class hours next week.

Juniors and seniors are requested to report to the infirmary for a health check-up any afternoon next week, excluding Saturday, from 2:50 p. m. until 4:50 p. m. Each check-up will take fifteen minutes.

Student Consumer To Be Instructed By Committee

Four-fold Goal Shown In Displays

Using the motto, "Save, simplify, and substitute", as the basis of her talk Monday night, March 2 at the Defense Council meeting in the large auditorium at 8 o'clock, Mary Katherine Dodson presented a four-purpose goal to be used in the education of the student consumer at State Teachers College.

Stressing the necessity of first knowing what we have to spend and then how to spend it, Mary Katherine, chairman of the consumer education committee, stated that each individual in order to become an intelligent consumer must maintain consumer goods, preserve food, live simply, and get the most out of available supplies.

In connection with this program, the committee will demonstrate with posters and displays the importance of proper food, the shortage of food and clothing which could arise from careless consumption and what substitutes can be used, and the necessity of cutting general expenses. The committee will also attempt to educate the student on principles of price control and economics, rationing, and taxation.

The committee members appointed by Mary Katherine to work with her are Elizabeth Townsend, Sara Seward, Peggy Hughes, Charlotte Greeley, Alice Seibert, Louise McCorkle, Frances Strohecker, and Lucy Manson.

The committee works in cooperation with the Civilian Defense Office under the direction of George P. Nellson.

Eason Suggests Ritual Plans

Caroline Eason, chairman of the Ritual committee of the State Teachers College Defense Council, offered several suggestions for the use of the American flag by the student body at the meeting of the student body Monday night, March 2, at 8 o'clock in the large auditorium.

She announced that the flag over the Rotunda will either be mended or replaced by a new one and that S. T. C. will observe all national holidays, during which flags should be flown, by placing flags along the street in front of the main buildings of the college.

Caroline advocated the use of the flag on the rostrum of the large auditorium and stressed the need for chapel programs devoted to the instruction of flag etiquette. Old and recent patriotic songs of the United States and of the Allied Nations along with the flags of these countries will be used in such programs beginning at an early date. The purpose of this suggestion is to acquaint the S. T. C. student with the flags and songs of the other nations.

Miss Grace E. Moran is faculty advisor for the Ritual committee and will have charge of buying the foreign flags to be used by this committee.

Student Chairmen Outline Work of Defense Council

"We need to build up a spirit—the right kind of spirit, meaning of course, the spirit of sacrifice", Dr. J. L. Jarman emphasized, Monday night, March 2, to the students of Farmville State Teachers College at which time the student body assembled in response to a call to coordinate the college with the national defense program.

The added smile to Shirley Pierce's countenance is due to the fact that she is viewing a $100 defense bond which had just arrived for The Rotunda.

Dr. James Elliott Walmsley, head of the college Defense Council, outlined the purpose in having a Defense Council, explaining that the council will act as a clearing body in regulating the work of the various organizations along the lines of defense activities.

Students Speak

As a means of outlining the defense work in the college, brief talks were made by the student chairmen of the various defense committees.

Neil Hurt, air raid committee, explained that definite steps had been taken toward providing protection for students in case of fire or air raids. Neil announced that a siren will sound at 1:45 p. m. every Saturday, beginning this Saturday, March 7, to acquaint students with the air raid alarm. Fire drills will also be staged at various intervals.

Physical Fitness Emphasized

Keeping physically fit through a program of physical exercise, having a medical examination or health inspection of each student by the college physician each year, correcting remedial defects, and establishing health habits will comprise the chief work of the physical fitness committee under the direction of Martha Roberts.

Informing students of the work being done on the campus for defense, as well as the people of Virginia through the medium of the state papers, and bringing press releases from the office of Civilian Defense to the students' attention will be the purpose of the publicity committee which is headed by Sara Cline.

Need For Morale

Mary Hunter Edmunds, chairman of the morale committee, pointed out the need for building public morale. Mary Hunter outlined a specific program which included special classes in geography and history concerning world conditions, open forums by Pi Gamma Mu, Kappa Delta Pi, and Pi Kappa Delta on current topics of the war, and music programs.

"Save, simplify, and substitute", was adopted by the consumer education committee, directed by Mary Katherine Dodson, as the motto of the work which this committee has set up.

First Aid Courses

Shirley Turner, first aid committee, showed what work the college had already done along this line, including an advance first aid course, the standard first aid course, and the Red Cross Staff assistance course. Detachments will be formed from these two courses to serve in the main building and junior and senior buildings in case of disaster.

Collecting newspapers, toothpaste tins, used stamps, and other items which can be salvaged for defense purposes will be directed by Nell Richards and her committee on conservation and salvage.

Defense Stamps Go On Sale

Selling defense stamps in the hall every day after chapel and after lunch was the novel idea presented by Mary Lilly Purdum, war finance committee. Mary Lilly also announced that her committee would keep an accurate account of all contributions made by the college and its organizations to defense projects.

Dorothy Childress, USO committee, will begin a program of recruiting talent from the student body in order that girls may be available to the local Red Cross chapter when called upon to provide entertainment for the soldiers at Blackstone when the camp is completed, as well as to provide entertainment for other purposes.

The ritual committee, headed by Caroline Eason, will initiate a program to instruct the students in the correct salute to the flag,

Students To Sell Defense Stamps

Committee Plans To Cut Dance Costs

War finance committee will be in charge of drives, benefit affairs, bonds and stamp, and knitting. The general purpose of this committee is to aid the Defense Council as a whole in creating and keeping up active student participation, and for all organizations on the campus to have a definite place to report what they are doing for defense along the financial side.

"Dances or other forms of entertainment will not be discontinued, but decorations will be less elaborate and music less expensive", Mary Lilly Purdum, chairman, said. "The money that would have been for decorations and music, could be used to buy a defense bond", she continued.

The most familiar work of this committee will be the selling of stamps and bonds. Miss Maude Taliaferro has arranged for her assistants in the post office to sell defense stamps at the table in the hall. Beginning today, and each day hereafter, defense bonds will be sold in the hall after chapel and after lunch.

In this committee is included knitting for those who can afford to give money and time, as well as those who cannot afford to give money.

"Each student is asked to feel free to give to the committee any suggestions she might have to help promote student participation in the defense work of the country, as well as for each organization to report what they have done in a financial way and what they expect to do," Mary Lilly Purdum emphasized when outlining the aims of the new finance committee.

Farmville Sets Up School to Teach Citizens Air Raid Warning and Fire Precautions

Offer All Types Of Defense Work

Under the supervision of W. E. Hill, fire school instructor of the State Division of Trade and Industrial Education, a school to teach the men and women of Farmville how to protect property and human life against possible air raids and fires was begun Monday night, March 2 at 8 o'clock in the Circuit Court room at the Farmville courthouse.

Farmville Is Strategic

Mayor W. C. Fitzpatrick, Civilian Defense coordinator in Farmville, stated that this instruction is particularly fitting and of great importance now in time of war; and although he said that he did not wish to be an alarmist, he noted the fact that Farmville is only 125 miles from the Atlantic Ocean at Norfolk, a distance which can be covered in 20 to 25 minutes by modern bombing planes, traveling at 300 or 400 miles an hour.

"In other words, planes from an enemy carrier can reach Farmville in a very few minutes. These modern planes carry about 4,000 pounds of bombs. If they fail to attack military objectives due to anti-aircraft fire or fighter planes, they will naturally drop their bombs somewhere near-by before returning to the carrier," said Mr. Fitzpatrick.

"It is quite possible that they may drop bombs on Farmville, particularly in seeking to bomb the military encampment now under construction at Blackstone before returning to their carrier," Mr. Fitzpatrick continued.

Classes Scheduled

All defense efforts, according to Mr. Fitzpatrick, will be organized and co-ordinated in the defense school which started Monday night. The instructor is being brought to Farmville by him and by Fire Chief Claude Butcher through the cooperation of the Virginia League of Municipalities and will conduct classes for two hours on Monday and Tuesday nights starting at 8 o'clock for the next four or five weeks. Mr. Hill is heading similar classes in cities and towns throughout the state, and because his services are so much in demand can conduct only two classes here each week.

S. T. C. Membership Desired

Membership at S. T. C. is voluntary. "It offers an excellent opportunity for college students to receive civilian defense training as well as the citizens of Farmville, and students of Hampden-Sydney and State Teachers College are urged to attend", Mr. Fitzpatrick remarked. Already 219 men and women of Farmville have enrolled, including town students at S. T. C."

Courses in all types of defense-preparedness are offered. The units to make up the organization, with the number of people in each unit, according to J. W. Simmons and Police Chief Reds Nolen who have out-lined the set-up, including Defense staff, 30; messengers, 20; auto drivers, 25; fire wardens, 50; fire watchers, 75; medical aides, 15; and nurses aid, 30. Each of these units is made up of both men and women.

Units composed entirely of men will be firemen, 20; rescue squad, 10; police, 20; demolition squad, 20; road repair, 15; decontamination squad, 8; which makes a total of 358 men and women who are needed.

A Race for the Color Cup . .

Who's ahead in the color cup clash? Well, we're almost at the end of another quarter and only one more term left to gather points for the cup . . . and to date it is close running for both teams. The first of the sports season brought gala colors for the Green and White when they won the color rush and copped the coveted points for their side, but to tie that mark, Red and White tackled 10 during the hockey games played between classes. About the same time archery came to a close with the final tournament leaving a Red and White winner and 5 points to add for the color cup. With a complete "turn out," the Green and White gained 10 points in the basketball class tournament. The interclass swimming meet proved very helpful to the Reds as they hauled a first over their opponents to capture 10 points for their score. Now that the ping pong decision has been won by Green and White,, an even total has been scored by the Greens and Reds . . . 25 to 25! Keep a good watch on the oncoming events and start worrying about those colors that are to fly from the cup next season!

STC vs. STC

Two State Teachers Colleges met in a contest tournament in our college gymnasium last Friday night — the mighty Blue and White S. T. C. cagers of Farmville and the romping S. T. C. Indians of Harrisonburg who clashed in the season's closing basketball match. This, the traditional game which added to the celebrating of Founders Day, brought students and alumnae to witness one of Farmville's most exciting games of the season. With effort and fast moving players, the ball was tossed from one team to the other bringing the scores for each side before a short period had elapsed. Quarters seemed like seconds and the half came to a close before one realized it. Three minutes left in the game and the Blue and Whites carried the game by three points, 21-18. Action caught their spirit and scores became evident as each player carried out the full team work that made the scoring possible. Ending the game with a whistle from the side lines, the score stood 32-18 in favor of Farmville.

Volleyball's Debut

Have you noticed the new volleyball stands that have just been added to the physical education department equipment? Yes, those newly added locks in the floor solve the problem of how they remain standing. The iron stands replace the old poles which hardly ever remained upright during the entire game! Practices are now scheduled for classes and it is hoped that a large number of girls will start and get into the spirit of the game. Competition games will be played off in the future between the classes and 10 points will be awarded to the color cup for the winning color!

Swimming Meet Booked

S. T. C.'s varsity swimming team will begin trimming up for a scheduled meet for the early part of April, Ruth Dugger, manager of swimming, announced this past week. Seven upperclassmen compose the varsity squad, and three freshmen have qualified for sub-varsity. On March 15 all tabulations for the Inter-Collegiate Telegraphic Swimming meet will be sent out announcing the ranks of the various schools which entered. The second timing for our girls must be run off this week. Last year Farmville ranked second in the district.

Water Carnival . . .

Plans are now underway for the annual water frolic which will add great entertainment and spirit to all who participate and witness the affair. Frances Parham has been named general chairman this season. With her committee she is working on a general theme, but the title and complete information has not been revealed as yet. Last year the carnival was based on Hawaii with the many swimmers performing in group formations and diving. The affair will be one of the biggest highlights in the season of swimming and a large number of girls will participate. Group formations and special selected designs are expected to add a great deal to the show. The carnival is sponsored by the H20 club and presented free of charge for entertainment of the students.

Telegraphic Swim Meet Climaxes For STC March 14

Twelve Schools Vie For Coveted Titles

Final contest for the Farmville team in the Intercollegiate Telegraphic Swimming Meet will be held Saturday, March 14. The first contest has been completed and the best results will be entered.

Farmville State Teachers College is hostess for the Southern Region and the twelve schools entered will wire the best results of their two contests to Ruth Dugger, chairman, by Sunday, March 15. The winners will be announced by March 25. Last year Farmville won third place in the Southern Region.

Swimming in the contest are Nancy Dupuy, breast stroke; Frances Parham, 50 yard crawl; Dot Darracott, 100 yard crawl; Gloria Pollard, 50 yard back stroke. In the medley relay, a combination of breast stroke, the back stroke, and the crawl, are Nancy Dupuy ,Ruth Dugger, and Gloria Pollard. In the 100 yard relay are Nancy Dupuy, Gloria Pollard, Ruth Dugger, Frances Parham, and Dot Darracott.

The swimming meet with William and Mary has been postponed until April. At that time the Farmville swimming team composed of Nancy Dupuy, Frances Parham, Gloria Pollard, Dot Darracott, Ruth Dugger, Shirley Pierce, and Ellen Ebel will go to Williamsburg to compete against W. & M. varsity team.

Volleyball Season Begins This Week

Each afternoon from 5 o'clock until 7 o'clock volleyball practices are being held in the gymnasium. In order to become a qualified player or to be chosen on the class team, each individual must have at least eight practices.

These games will be played in round robin fashion with each class playing the other class until the winning team is determined. The tournament for the final points on the color cup will be played off after examinations.

Ellen Ebel is in charge of volleyball. A schedule chart listing time and days of practices will be posted on the A. A. bulletin board.

H20 Club Names Ebel President

Club Formulates Carnival Plan

Ellen Ebel was elected president of the H2O Club for the coming year, at a recent meeting of the club. Mildred Droste will serve as secretary-treasurer. Miss Barlow will continue as the club's adviser.

New members are Shirley Turner, Gloria Pollard, Harriet Moore, Janet Jackson, Catherine May, Nellie Varn, Margaret Kitchen, and Dottie Sue Simmons.

Further plans were made for the April water carnival ,which will be patriotic in theme, and in which the whole school will participate. Frances Parham will serve as chairman of the undertaking.

The H2O club tries to recognize girls who have been outstanding in swimming and in work along that line. It promotes all such activities and cooperates in any way with the Athletic Association. The club is in charge of equipment used in connection with the pool.

Last Game of Season Bags Farmville Title of "Undefeated Champions"

Bringing the 1942 basketball season to a close, the S. T. C. Blue and White cagers defeated Madison State Teachers College of Harrisonburg 32-18 in one of the fastest games of the season Friday, March 6, in the Farmville gymnasium.

Students and alumnae filled the balcony in order to witness this traditional game which introduce the events of Founders Day.

Cheers and songs set a general feeling of enthusiasm throughout the crowd as both sextets warmed up for their fighting clash which would mark the final game of their seasons.

Swiftly moving Madison girls carried the ball down the court capturing several goals, while Farmville sank a quick under the basket shot and a free shot due to fouling of the opposing team. At the end of the first quarter, Farmville led 4-3. Beginning the second quarter, the playing became more accurate, but both teams fouled occasionally because of such close guarding.

After the singing of Alma Mater, the second half of the ball game again went under way with both referee and umpire on their toes keeping up with the fast moving girls. With three and a half minutes left for playing, the score stood 21 to 15. In the last minutes, Farmville scored eleven points, gaining against the flying Indians a score of 32-18.

In the last two years, Farmville has remained undefeated, having encountered ten teams, Last season S. T. C. ranked over Radford, Madison, Upsula, Hofstra, Catonsville, and Alumnae. This season the cagers won over Radford, Richmond Professional Institute, William and Mary, and Madison.

LaForce Captures Ping Pong Title

Green and White Cop Five Points

Bernice La Force, freshman from Charlottesville, claimed victory for Green and White in the final playoff of the Ping Pong tournament when she defeated Ruth Dugger, sophomore from Newport News, on Wednesday, March 4.

This decision brings the annual battle for top honors in ping pong to a close. For the past three weeks representatives from each of the classes have met keen competition in the process of elimination which resulted with points toward the color cup going to Green and White.

Bernice comes to S. T. C. from McIntyre High School in Charlottesville where she was ping pong champion prior to her entrance here.

Open Forum Centers Discussion on Far Eastern Situation

Australia and the Far Eastern situation was the general topic for the open discussion conducted last night, March 10 in the Student Building Lounge, by Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity. This program was open to the student body and faculty members in cooperation with the morale committee of the College Defense Council.

Ann Elliott and Jean Hatton, juniors, had charge of the program. Anne's talk included a brief outline of how geography ties up with the predicament today. Time'y articles in the newspapers were reviewed, concerning the strategic position of Australia and what it is doing to contribute to the entire allied War against the Axis nations.

The significance of the Australian-U. S. relationships in the midst of world conflict today was Jean's main point of emphasis. She discussed this relationship from the cultural, political, strategic, and economic sides, using the book "Australia and the United States" by Fred Alexander as the basis for her talk.

STC Debators Tie For Second Place At Hickory, N. C.

Ann Randolph and Marilyn Bell, debating team from S. T. C., tied for second place in the South Atlantic Women's tournament at Hickory, North Carolina, March 5-7. Lenoir-Rhyne College, first place winner, was defeated once by the Farmville girls. The team won four debates and lost four.

Virginia Sedgley placed second in the radio extemporaneous speaking. In the poetry reading contest Ann and Marilyn also received second place.

Results from the fall tournament at Winthrop College in Rock Hill, South Carolina, were announced last week. Virginia Sedgley and Ann Randolph won five out of eight debates. Alice Nichols and Jo Starling received the same score.

Alumnae Honor

Smith, Bristol; Mrs. Lilly Purcivall Rucker, Bedford; Mrs. Anne Wilkinson Cox, Newport News; and Mrs. Edith Willis Read, Appomattox.

Class of 1922 welcomed Miss Annie Alvis, Richmond; Kentucky; Mrs. Mildred Dickinson Davis, Hampden-Sydney; and Miss Mary Finch, Farmville.

The class of 1932 topped the reunion classes by having ten return. They were Miss Louise Clayton, Miss Susie Floyd, Mrs. Ruth Hall Claytor, Miss Annie Kathleen Hundley, Mrs. Mary Ellen Johnson Garber, Miss Doris Robertson, Miss Katherine Watkins, Mrs. Fannie Haskins Withers, Miss Myrtha Watkins, and Miss Mariet'a Wilson.

Celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary, the class of 1917 presented to Dr. Jarman twenty-five silver dollars to be used for the college or for the purchase of a defense bond. Mrs. Richard Straton, Staunton, made the presentation. In addition to Mrs. Stratton, Miss Louise Bondurant, Farmville; Mrs. Lucille Garter Barlow, Stony Creek; Mrs. Jannie Hiner Hanrick, Staunton; Mrs. Lillian Obenshain Cocks, Farmville; Mrs. Hattie Robinson Brinkley, Petersburg; Miss Kathleen Wimbish, Nathalie; and Mrs. Martha Bondurant Wilson, Farmville, attended the luncheon.

Mrs. Barrye Wall, class of 1920, and a resident of Farmville, paid tribute to Dr. Jarman on behalf of the town. "Dr. Jarman has contributed to the most worthwhile things in town," Mrs. Wall told the alumnae.

In addition to the 140 alumnae present for the luncheon were Miss Julia Mahood, who did the portraits of Dr. Thomas D. Eason and Miss Estelle Smithey, and Dr. and Mrs. Dabney Jarman, son and daughter-in-law of Dr. Jarman.

Fifty Freshmen To Debut In "Meet Me at Shannon's"

Approximately fifty freshmen have been cast for roles in the freshman production, "Meet Me at Shannons," which will be staged Tuesday, March 31, at 8:30 p. m., in the College auditorium.

In the talent group, Pat Maddox and Alice Sparger will sing solos, and they will be assisted by a chorus including Jane Brown, Mildred Carter Clanton, Betty Blackwell, Lucy Messick, and Lindsay Watkins.

Betty Burns and Hilah Lee Parks will give an exhibition dance.

Other members of the cast include the names of Jane Ruffin, Barbara Scott, Jane Mosley, Martha Patterson, Lillian Goddin, Tanny Norfleet, Pamela Starling, Susan Durrett, May Lou Dondley, Mary Ann Biggs, Fay Johnson, Ann Seay, Sugar Baker, Alice Green, Ann Martenstein, Mary White, Elizabeth Butzner, Jean Smith, Will Hall.

Alice Feteig, Peggy Becker, Helen Wilson, Nancy Dashiell, Mary Lee West, Lula Moss, Pat Garth, Sherry Knight, Barbara Hudson, Jane Johnson, Ann Blair, Peggy Steel, Mary Ann Jarrett, and Martha Walsh.

Original songs written by Marian Orange and Frances Wentzel will be used in the production.

As indicated ,the freshmen have attempted to give a take-off on Shannon's and its occupants. Many upperclassmen will be characterized as well as individuals in the class itself. Even the famous "Lucy" will not be forgotten.

Honors Dr. Jarman

Betty Sexton and Anne Ware vied for vice-president of the House Council. For secretary were Mildred Droste, Mary Elizabe'h Grizzard, and Anne Pharis. Warrick Mitchell, Nell Quinn, and Jane Smith were the nominees for treasurer.

For vice-president of the A. A. were Shirley Turner and Jean Carr. Those up for secretary-treasurer of the A. A. were Patsy Connelly, Ruth Dugger, Sara Hardy, Sara Jeffreys, and Dorothy Sue Simmons.

"Noise, Noise" Is Reaction Of Young Artist to Jazz

"If Virginia is always like today has been, I'd love it", responded the seventeen year old pianist, Louise Meizner, in an interview after her concert in the College auditorium Saturday night. Though her concert at Farmville State Teachers College was her first in Virginia, she made an extended tour of the Midwest and South last year, giving nineteen concerts in less than four weeks.

"Ordinarily I practice about four hours a day", Louise said "That's as much as I really fee' is worthwhile". However, when on a tour, Louise gets in very little practice and there are several weeks in the summer when she does not practice at all.

"I couldn't help being musical" Louise remarked, "My whole family is!" When she was six her Hungarian parents moved back to Budapest because they cou'd not enter Louise in any good music academy in America on account of her age. She returned to America at thirteen and since she has been at the Juilliard Graduate School in New York.

"We have academic subjects as well as music", Louise explained. "And if we miss work while on a concert, we have to make it up. Sometimes," she added, "it seems almost impossible to make up certain subjects as literature".

"It depends on the selections", Louise said when asked if she likes popular music. "Some of it is good", she continued, "but some of it is just noise, and noise, and nothing else".

Louise doesn't remember what he played at the age of three, but her concert at five included Mozart's "Sonata", Paderwski's "Minuet", Humoresque", and several other Sonatas.

"My biggest thrill", said Louise as she smiled reminiscently, "was in Budapest just before I returned to America. The conductor Erich Klieber, who was for twelve years director of the Berlin Orchestra and is now in South America, came to Budapest. He needed a pianist and so he advertised. He held auditions and numbers of people, including two professors from the school I was attending, played the same piece. And I was selected".

"I can't ever remember being afraid", Louise laughed. "And I expect to go on playing concerts in America", she added.

Boutchard, Nimmo, Holt Triumph In Elections

Bridgeforth, Haymes, Moore, Parker, Ware, Weathers In Government Positions

In elections which can be characterized as "spirited", Betty Boutchard was victorious in the class for president of the incoming senior class, while Faye Nimmo copped the presidency for the junior class, and Myrtle Lee Holt won out in the freshman election.

Betty Boutchard, of Newport News, is president of her class for the second successive time. Faye Nimmo, from Suffolk, continues as president after rising from vice-president as a result of Dot Gaul's failure to return last quarter. Myrtle Lee Holt, from Richmond, succeeds Harriet Moore.

Fiddle Haymes and Anne Ware were elected Student Government representattives for the incoming senior class. Both Fiddle and Anne served on Government this past year.

Nancye Allen captured the office of vice-president, succeeding Betty Youngberg. Libby Bernard was elected secretary and will succeed

Betty Boutchard who was elected president of the incoming senior class.

Agnes Patterson. Shirley Turner was elected treasurer, succeeding Charlotte Phillips. Student Standard representatives for next year are Rosalie Rogers, Frances Parham, and Anne Moore. Rosalie and Frances represented the class this past year.

Betty Bridgeforth and Ella Banks Weathers were chosen Student Government representatives for next year's junior class. Ella Banks succeeds Hannah Lee Crawford who was elected treasurer to Student Government in the past major elections. Betty was this year's representative.

Patsy Connely triumphed in the race for vice-president of the incoming junior class, Mary Keith Bingham was elected secretary, and Mary Parrish Viccellio, treasurer. Julia Eason and Nell Quinn were re-elected to Student Standards.

Ruth Parker and Harriet Moore copped the positions of Student Government representatives for the incoming sophomore class. Harriet Moore is the retiring president and succeeds Fay Johnson on Government.

Marilyn Bell won out for the office of vice-president of next year's sophomore class, while Eleanor Wade was elected secretary and Gwen Sampson copped the office of treasurer.

Kappa Delta Pi Elects Folk Head

Eleanor Folk, from Salem, was elected last night to head Kappa Delta Pi, national honor fraternity for scholarship, for 1942-'43. Eleanor will succeed Mary Hunter Edmunds.

Rosalie Rogers, from Melfa, will fill the position as vice-president succeeding Elizabeth Anne Parker. Brookie Benton, from Locust Dale, was elected to take Sarah Chambers' place as secretary. Alice Scibert, from Tazewell, will serve as treasurer, succeeding Lillian German.

Miss Pauline Camper was elected counselor for the next six years.

At the meeting Miss Mary Nichols reviewed the business in connection with the National Convocation recently held in San Francisco which she attended.

S.T.C. Choir Sings At Duke Thursday

Group Schedules New York Concert

State Teachers College Choir will leave Thursday morning for Durham, N. C., to sing with the Duke Glee Club, the Brahms' Requiem in the Duke Chapel Thursday night.

This same choir will go to New York City on March 27 and will sing in St. Thomas Church Sunday, March 29. Extended plans have been completed for the spring concert and also for the spring tour.

Saturday the choir will be taken for a sight-seeing tour of the various colleges and universities and other places of interest in and around New York. Saturday night, the Farmville Alumnae of New York, under the chairmanship of Miss Pauline Williamson will sponsor a dinner-concert in the ballroom of the Great Northern Hotel. Many famous lovers of music are expected to attend.

The highlight of the trip will be the Sacred Recital in historic St. Thomas Church in New York.

The opportunity of singing in St. Thomas Church is rarely afforded a college choir.

Shake-Up In Rotunda Staff For 1942-'43 Results In Few Changes

Jane Sanford, incoming editor of the Rotunda, has announced that few changes will be made in the Rotunda staff for the coming year.

Ella Banks Weathers, sophomore, will continue as news editor and Shirley Pierce, sophomore, will again hold the position of sports editor. Marilyn Bell, freshman, has been appointed feature editor, Jane Smith, sophomore, has been selected social editor, and Lilly Bec Gray, junior, will be copy editor. Each of these positions is temporary and all are subject to change.

Assisting Elva Andrews, recently appointed business manager of the Rotunda, will be Mary St. Clair Bugg, circulation manager and Mary Keith Bingham, who will be advertising manager. Both are members of the sophomore class and have been assistants on the business staff for the past year.

Appointment to the position of photographic editor has not yet been made and the position is open for tryouts from any member of the student body during the first three weeks of the spring quarter.

The present staff of reporters and business assistants will not be changed but will be cut down so that the entire staff of editors and assistants will not exceed 35 members.

At an early date try-outs will be held for the editorial and business staffs for anyone interested. The new elections to the staff will be based on merit as shown in classes in newspaper journalism which the editor, assisted by the new staff, will conduct. Jane Sanford has announced that these classes will include discussions of newspaper make-up, advertising, editorial policies, and news writing and will be open to anyone interested in newspaper work as well as to those trying out for staff positions.

First issue of the Rotunda under the supervision of the new staff will be the issue of April 3.

Hatton Will Head Pi Gamma Mu

Jean Hatton, from Richmond, was elected president of Pi Gamma Mu, national social science honor fraternity, at the regular meeting held last night, March 17, in the Honors Room. Jean succeeds Mary Lilly Purdum from Danville.

Jane Sanford, from Farmville, will take Mary Hunter Edmunds' place as vice-president. Helen Wiley Hardy, from Farmville, succeeds Betty Peerman as secretary. Virginia Sedgley, from Bristol, takes over Anne Ayers' place as treasurer.

Dr. James Elliott Walmsley of the faculty takes over S. M. Holton's position, who has resigned, as faculty advisor. Mr. Holton has served for the past six years, and Dr. Walmsley was elected to serve for the next four years.

S.T.C. Alumna Braves Pearl Harbor Attack; Says Hands are Tired From Making Bandages

Teacher Cites Gas Shortage

By GLADYS WILSON

This time it is "Hawaii calling". America listens. And at Farmville, we pause to salute "Billie" Holladay, teacher at Pahala, Hawaii. Miss Holladay, who graduated from S. T. C. in 1928 with a B. S. degree, is at present continuing her teaching at Hawaii where her first teaching assignment carried her. Her years there have been happy ones, she writes; and the recent disaster has only made her affirm forcefully, "I have thrown in my lot with these people, and I intend to stay as long as I am needed."

Miss Holladay is an instructor in English and Science and the librarian in one of the plantation schools. Her puplis are 250 in number and represent many nationalities — Japanese, Chinese, Germans, English, Spanish, French, Italian, Filipinos, negroes from Haiti and Americans from "The States". But no disgord is apparent. On New Year's Day the Chinese and the Japanese held a joint service in the little Christian church at which they prayed for all the warring nations of the world.

The people, in general, have no sense of fear or alarm. They perform their daily tasks and listen to the radio as usual. But it is only natural that there should be an exodus of many, and those remaining seemed depressed at first. Miss Holladay and some of her friends got together and gave a party for them. This relieved the situation. She writes, "All had a good time, and we did, too."

There has been no food rationing as yet. Of course, sugar is plentiful, for Hawaii is a land of sugar plantations. It has been necessary to camouflage the sugar works to carry on production. But rationing of gasoline has come with only ten gallons per month allowed to a person.

School could not reopen until January 26 because provision had to be made for the digging of trenches and the erection of air raid shelters in the school yard. Pahala, like the rest of the island, is under martial law, and blackouts are strictly observed each night from 6 p. m. until 6 a. m.

Natives Observe Blackout Each Night

Despite her teaching duties, Miss Holladay finds time for Red Cross work. "My hands are so tired from making bandages and knitting that I can hardly write," she says in one of her letters.

As if the haunting awareness of the Japs were not enough the island has experienced severe earthquakes within the last two or three weeks. And there is the constant expectation that the volcano will become active soon.

Miss Holladay hopes to visit her mother, Mrs. Genevieve Holladay of Farmville, this summer. Perhaps she will come to the west coast by clipper. She must book her passage two or three months ahead of time; two hours before the scheduled departure she will be notified of her reservation.

But for the present her chief concern is to keep the light of knowledge glimmering in the gathering twilight. "As long as school is in session I will not leave. I think all of us should stick to our jobs and set an example even if it is a small thing."

Honor Group Will Sponsor Coffin, Poet, In Talk March 30

Pilkinton, Folk, Ware, Turner Win In Minor Elections

Reid Wins Race For Dining Head

Ella Marsh Pilkinton from Richmond, was elected vice-president of the Student Government Association in the minor election held last Thursday, March 12. Eleanor Folk, from Salem, won in the election of vice-president of the Young Woman's Christian Association, while Ann Ware from Beckley, West Virginia, was victor in the race for vice-president of the House Council. Shirley Turner from Petersburg, will serve as vice-president of the Athletic Association.

Ella Marsh, who succeeds Caroline Eason, was a representative of her class on Student Government last year. She will also edit the freshman handbook for next year.

Eleanor Folk, replacing Lucy Turnbull, was on the Freshman Commission, chairman of prayer committee of the Y. W. C. A. last year, and is the newly elected managing editor of the 1943 Colonnade.

Succeeding Elizabeth Ann Parker, Ann Ware is the vice-president of the House Council.

Mary Evelyn Pearsall is the new secretary of Student Government, while Hannah Lee Crawford, treasurer; Anne Blair, Campus League chairman, and Betty Reid, dining room hostess, are the other officers.

Victorious in the Y. W. C. A. elections were Frances Lee Hawthorne, secretary; Ann Ellett, treasurer, and Ella Banks Weathers, freshman counselor.

Elected to positions in the House Council were Nelle Quinn, secretary, and Jane Smith, treasurer.

Patsy Connelly and Ruth Dugger won as secretary and treasurer, respectively, of the Athletic Association.

These newly elected officers will be installed in the near future.

Pulitzer Winner Will Discuss "What a Poem Is"

Robert Peter Tristram Coffin, noted writer, poet, lecturer and Pulitzer prize winner will speak in the S. T. C. auditorium Monday night, March 30, at 8:30 p. m. under the auspices of Borc Eh Thorn, honorary English Society. "What a Poem Is" will be title of his lecture. He and Mrs. Coffin will be entertained after the lecture at a reception given by the members of Borc Eh Thorn and S. T. C. faculty members.

Mr. Coffin is well-known in literary circles and is the author of outstanding volumes of poetry, and is also a teacher, biographer and novelist.

Phi Beta Kappa Poet

He was with Welles College, Aurora, New York, from 1921 until 1934, and was largely responsible for founding and carrying on the Oxford idea of honor work in English literature. His selection as Phi Beta Kappa poet was made at the Harvard commencement in 1932 and at the University of Virginia in 1938.

In 1935, he was awarded the gold medal as national honor poet, but his greatest honor came in 1936 when he received the Pulitzer prize in poetry for his volume, Strange Holiness.

Talented Poet

Mr. Coffin is known for his sincerity and simplicity of style, his intimate understanding of country things and feeling for country folk, and has had numerous poems of New England rural life published in many current American periodicals. In 1937, he became book review and poetry editor of The Yankee. Although Mr. Coffin is primarily a poet, he does not confine himself to the field of writing. He is also a painter and woodcutter and has designed illustrations for some of three dozen books which have been published.

Will Autograph Books

Books which Mr. Coffin has written will be on sale at the College with a 25% discount. The poet will autograph the books at the reception following the lecture. These books are Strange Holiness, Maine Ballads, Saltwater Farm, Lost Paradise, Collected Poems, John Dawn, The Golden Falcon, and The Yoke of Thunder.

May Wertz is general chairman for program. Rosalie Rogers and Anne Fitzgerald with Miss Lucille Jennings are in charge of publicity. Miss Willie London and Anne Ellett are on the social committee. J. M. Grainger is in charge of tickets assisted by Betty Youngberg and Kitty Powell. Mary Stuart Walmsley and Elizabeth Tennent with Miss Mary Clay Hiner's help are selling his books. Miss Mary Nichols and Mary Parrish Viccellio have charge of decorations.

Students May Take Home Nursing Class In Spring Quarter

Home Nursing will be taught next quarter by Miss Sprunt Hall. This class is being sponsored by the home economics department, but will be an elective at large, that is, any student may take it.

A general outline of the course includes personal and public health, simple nursing procedures, and practical nursing in special conditions. This is not the Red Cross course.

Three credits will be given for this class which will meet on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 1:50 p. m. in Room 35. Those who wish to take this course will report at the above time and place the first day of the new quarter.

Because of the present crisis a need was felt for this particular course, as well as having been requested by many girls at the college. This same class was given several years ago, and in the future it will probably be a regular part of the curricula

House Council Lists Examination Rules

Margaret Mish, president of the House Council, has announced the rules for the examination period that will go in effect Thursday night, March 19, and continue through Tuesday night, March 24.

Quiet will be observed from 8 o'clock until 11 o'clock and will be resumed promptly at 11:30 p. m. The penalty for one call down received during this period will be one week on campus.

There's Nothing To Say . . .

. . . about "Death Takes a Holiday". It speaks for itself. But if you really want our opinion, we think it's the finest dramatic production of the S. T. C.-Hampden-Sydney Thespians since we've been here.

Especially convincing was Johnny Pancake in his personification of "Death." His well-memorized, long speeches impressed us admirably. To Nell White, who was responsible for the lighting effects, to Susie Moore who now probably really does think the world is just a stage, and to Gene Hardy Kilmon, in charge of costumes, much credit is due for the faithful hours they spent on the production. Others in make-up, properties, and all assistants are equally deserving of praise.

But no play is complete without Miss Leola Wheeler. We who have seen her at work forever marvel at her ingenuity and ability. To her goes our appreciation for a splendid two hours of "Death Takes a Holiday."

Epilogue

Tonight we lay aside our journalistic pen, realizing that this issue signifies the last "Rotunda" for the present staff. Thus, "the old order changeth, giving way to the new."

It is with a real regret that we abandon our post; however, we feel that the incoming staff is well qualified to serve the student body in editing the news of the campus.

At this time it seems but fitting that we cite those whose services have been given willingly toward making possible each week's paper. To Mary Lily Purdum, our managing editor, we are indebted for her constant work with the associate editors; to Ella Banks Weathers for accurate news coverage; to Mary Parrish Viccellio for delightful features; to Shirley Pierce for bringing us the news of Farmville's sports; and to Jane Sanford for telling us what went on in the social circles.

Bouquets are also the order of the day for the business staff whose work made possible the publishing of The Rotunda. To Mr. S. M. Holton, we are indebted for his counsel and criticism.

For the past year we have endeavored to steer our course down the middle of the stream, to avoid radicalism, to bestow praise to those things which warranted it, and to condemn those things which we felt were unmeritable. It has been our policy never to publish anything which violated our conscience; also to display all news according to its seeming importance.

We can look back without regret. We can look forward with confidence.

Last Call

Before the government started playing games in a fish bowl which resulted in the migration of several million young men into service camps all over the country, colleg, campuses were overflowing with men who were headed for the professions.

Now away from their college campuses, the same crop of America's finest are still looking forward to careers after the emergency, all they need is a few text books. Algebra, geometry, English grammars, accounting, shorthand, photography, geography, and up to date technical and scientific books are on the preferred list of the fellows in the armed forces who want to continue their education.

The Victory Book Campaign, organized and sponsored by the American Library Association, the American Red Cross, and the United Service Organizations is dedicated to the task of collecting gifts of books for soldiers, sailors, and marines to supplement the library services in forts, camps, posts, stations, and on ships.

Headquarters on this campus for donations is the local Library. Those old text books that won't bring much from sale or perhaps even some new ones along with all the fiction material that can be spared are welcome, according to Miss Mary Snead, librarian.

Adventure, aviation stories, historical novels, humor, mystery, sports and western stories are the books the boys in the services like to read just before taps or in their other odd moments.

From the national headquarters in New York City, announcement has been made that if this drive for text books and fiction for the men in camps is successful, the campaign will be carried on still further to supply libraries in industrial areas where activity has increased the population so that existing library resources are inadequate or non-existent.

In the Months to Come

IN the months to come we are in for many changes in civilian living habits. The specific changes we are not now able to determine. Certainly many articles will be rationed in addition to tires and sugar. According to present indications ladies wearing apparel will lose most of its frills, men's suits without patch pockets, no trouser cuffs, narrow or no lapels. This is cited only to indicate the fact that many minor charges are in the offing, too.

America is being streamlined for the greatest war in history. It must give up non-essentials and be required to take its part in a world now ruled by ruthless power. In the months to come many unforseen conditions must be met and sacrifices made.

Uncle Sam's Need

UNCLE SAM needs $18,000,000,000, eighteen billion dollars for war expenses this year. How much of it can be secured by the sale of Defense Bonds? That question is in the minds of the financial wizards. To answer it, each citizen will soon be asked to indicate how many Defense Bonds he expects to buy during this year. With this information at hand, the treasury officials and budget makers will know how much will be needed in new taxes.

Senior Personality

ANNE AYERS

Out-Going Editor of The Virginian

Anne Ayers, who introduces the first of nine senior personalities, typifies the harmony of sincerity, dependability, cheerfulness, and gaiety. There's something in her charm, a twinkle in her eye, that makes her animation and vivacity irresistible. . . Sincerity and unselfishness mark her word, her work, and her relations to others.

For three years Anne has given willingly her services to The Virginian, being this year's editor-in-chief. Alpha Kappa Gamma has also recognized her willingness to serve, her ability to lead, and the quality of her high ideals. Anne is a member of Pi Gamma Mu, Cotillion Club, Mu Omega sorority, and was cited in "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Anne has that rare and invaluable quality of knowing when to be serious and when to be gay. With her fun-loving nature you may be sure that where there's activity there's always Anne.

The Gatepost

For The Best Remark of The Week: Goes to Shorty Beale who said, we quote, "Boswell, I'm gonna penalize you fifteen yards for backfield in motion." We don't like to mention this young lady constantly, but then she does happen to be where we are—some of the time. The scene is laid in Shannons at which time Boswell swishes by a booth and is invited by Cecil Carpenter to sit with him. Did she blush, for there was her date right behind her. . .

Doc Cupid Enters: And this time the visit is to Ella Banks who will beam at the slightest mention of the name "Bill". The young man showers her with telephone calls and candy.

It Happened Here: Hattie Cantrell was exposed to embarrassment Sunday when May Winn insisted that she tell what happened in front of Junior Building. The secret: Both of her hose fell down.

Is It True: Somehow your correspondent failed to note that Cottie is now wearing Jimmy's frat pin. That young man has tried hard enough, and we are happy to see that he is at least looming ahead of the others whom, incidentally, we haven't noticed around.

Very Touching: "Ace" accompanied Anne to Richmond. But thats not all. He went shopping with her, too. Just for experience, Ace?

Snaking (or what have we?): Mary Martha you must be slipping—is that why Sherry had the invite from Randolph-Macon?

Kinda Chummy: Margaret Thomas and her flame from Hampden-Sydney who stroll every afternoon, not holding hands, but with arms around each other. . . Jackie Anderson and her H.-S. lover. . . Oh! Nancy Hand, could-a tell me what Danny-boy thinks about his Hampden-Sydney competition? Do you treat them all the same way? Kyle Ainsworth and Gordon Leach back stage Saturday night. . . Nothing slow about them.

Letter: Last Week's Gleanings Challenged

To The Editor of The Rotunda:

I am not the type to write letters to the editor whenever his paper carries something with which I disagree, but last week's Rotunda featured an essay by Dr. Simkins that I cannot permit to pass unchallenged because to me his implications seem charged with danger for our country in this her hour of great peril.

Dr. Simkins sets out to give the historian's opinion as to the outcome of this war. Briefly, his thesis is that America has engaged in five major wars from all of which she has emerged victorious. Therefore, we are going to win this one. 'Tis just as easy as that.

The most sinister aspect of Dr. Simkin's essay is the implication that all of our wars have been aggressive wars, a state of mind characteristic of liberal historians. I am forced to concede that there is some truth in this assertion, but I am not ready to admit that the path of duty is never the way to glory. Furthermore, our very existence is at stake and this is no time for "every nice offense to bear his comment".

Even Dr. Simkins assumes that there are differences between wars, else how could he differentiate between major and minor wars? We are supposed to accept his designation as to what constitutes a major war. Expertly he passes over the War of 1812 when the British sailed up the Potomac and set fire to the White House in Washington. If this was not a defeat it was, to say the least, a humiliating incident even if the history books skim over it. Does the writer perchance fail to include this among his 'major' wars because it happened to be a defensive war, one in which America did not seek to impose her "aggressive will" upon the enemy?

Because a nation wins five major wars is no guarantee that it will win the sixth. How many major wars did Rome win before she ran up against the Barbarians? I object vigorously to the tacit assumption that we are going to win this war. The cold facts point in a different direction; we are doing our best to lose it. The spirit that breathes through Dr. Simkins' communication is one with the spirit that permeated France two years ago. A similar complacency seems to be settling like a pall over a large part of our population in America today. To prate that history or God will take care of us is to court disaster.

To win this war will require the maximum effort of every man, woman and child of us, and thus far only forty-two per cent of our potential war strength has been marshalled to combat enemies geared to 100%. Not words but cold steel is the only thing that can match the forces of evil that have been let loose upon the world. Blood, Sweat and Tears constitute the trail to victory whereas we are pursuing a detour to our goal.

Not that I am a defeatist, not at all. We do have the resources necessary for victory. But I cannot share Dr. Simkins' optimism, and I dare not until our own college community shows evidence of steeling itself by discipline to meet the issue. This is no ordinary war but a world revolution that will determine the fate of mankind for a thousand years. I hope and pray that Dr. Simkins is right in his conclusions. He goes to history for his answer, but as for me I prefer to stick to observable fact and will 'string along' with the boys on Bataan. I think they know how this thing must be done, and it is the hard way.

History also tells us that Nero fiddled while Rome burned. Let not history of the future award the same verdict upon us. Generations yet unborn await our choice.

Question of the Week

What Is Your Opinion of Exams Here at S. T. C.?

Elizabeth McCoy: I think people with high scholastic averages should be excused from exams.

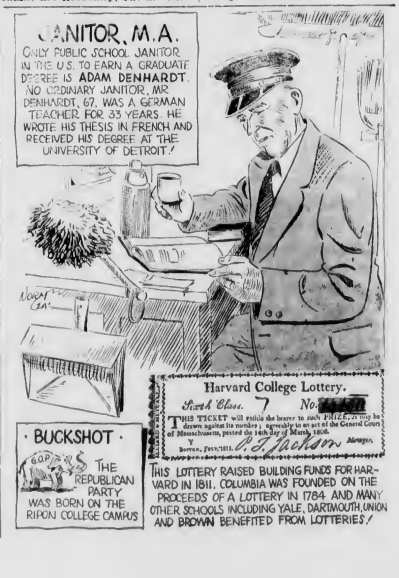
Mary Evelyn Pearsall: Personally I think exams condense the knowledge of the quarter into a whole unit instead of leaving it in disconnected parts. For improvement the last week could be given over to organize the review through discussion.

Rosalie Rogers: I think we ought to have them, but we should organize our studying throughout the quarter so that "cramming" at the end would not be necessary.

Lois Alphin: Reviewing for exams gives meaning to the quarter's work. However, I do believe the method for giving exams certainly could be improved.

May Winn: In some subjects exams are necessary, but in others a term paper or some summarization of the course is sufficient.

Beezie Townsend: Well, I tell you—I don't have to take any—that is except one, only one.



Lucy Davis: I don't think they do us any good because you are so scared, you forget everything you ever knew. I approve of grades based on daily work and frequent written work.

Virginia Campfield: Exams? I think they are wonderful—when they are over!

Lucy Turnbull: It seems to me it would be an ideal situation if we didn't have to have exams, but I don't think it would work.

Nancy Bondurant: I think we should get through on Friday and start classes on Monday.

Dearing Fauntleroy: Exam week is my favorite week.

Sport Slants

School's Minor Sports Schedules Affected

The automobile and tire shortages have begun to affect intercollegiate and interscholastic athletics. University of Richmond and the College of William and Mary have canceled several baseball games because of the increasing scarcity of tires. William and Mary has also canceled several tennis matches and Virginia Military Institute has completely abandoned tennis for the duration. Other Virginia colleges have made no announcements of plans to hold their minor sports schedule to as little traveling as is essentially necessary without disrupting or injuring the athletic program. All, however, are endeavoring to hold down traveling to a minimum. It is also true of high schools throughout the state. Richmond teams have planned their spring schedules so that they will not have to travel more than 50 miles. In Norfolk and other Tidewater cities the situation is the same. George Hope, athletic director of Maury High School, Norfolk, stated that all of the Tidewater teams are confining their schedules to that general area.

Sandlot Boom on the Way

Manpower is one of the backers of defense today in America; therefore it is most important to carry on the training of youth and those who must carry on for the country. Plans are being outlined for a nation-wide registration of men and boys for a huge physical fitness program. The semipro baseball congress is working to organize sandlot baseball throughout the country. Team sponsors will be found to share in the Hale American Health program. Young and old will register in the poll to be taken March 30 from Father Flannagan's Boy's Town, Nebraska, to Connie Mack, 79 year old manager of Philadelphia's athletics.

Volleyball Highlights

Volleyball is now leading the season's sports schedule on our home ground. Practices have been scheduled each Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons from 5 o'clock until 7 o'clock. During this time quite a number have turned out to join a group in fast and exciting games. Required to qualify for a class team is eight practices of this type. In order to be prepared for class games as well as the enjoyment of it, several halls have made up their own teams. Several challenge games were called last week. In a fast and glorious game the seniors from all the various halls in their building played against a group of juniors. Following that game the sophomores of first and second floor annex were challenged by a freshman group from all parts of the school. A real spirit is found in such games as these and it gave a time for real recreation. The volleyball class games will be played off after the Easter vacation, according to an announcement made by Ellen Ebel, manager of volleyball.

Swimming Competition

Varsity swimmers have just completed competing in the Intercollegiate Telegraphic Swimming meet staged by numerous teams throughout the United States. Farmville lies in the regional district which includes colleges from this section of the country down to Florida. Results are made as to placement in districts as well as national. Attention is now turned to the swimming meet called between S. T. C. and William and Mary at Williamsburg. After exams practices will begin and plans, which are not definite yet, will arrange for the meet to take place around April 18 or April 25. Competition in the meet will include the 50 yard free style, 50 yard back, 50 yard breast, 75 yard medley relay, 100 yard relay and diving. This is the same type of contest as held at Famville last year between S. T. C. and Fairfax Hall.

Classes To Vie In Volleyball Clash March 25-27

Practices Continue During Exam Week

Volleyball practices are being held in the gymnasium every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons from 5:30 p. m. until 7 o'clock. These practices will continue during the week of examinations in order to enable the girls to get in their eight required practices before the final games.

Schedule

On Wednesday, March 25, the final games will start. That night the juniors will clash against the freshman, while the sophomores will play their sister class, the seniors.

The freshmen will challenge the seniors Thursday night, March 26 after dinner, and the juniors will play the sophomores.

The final games will be played Friday night, March 27 after dinner between the juniors and seniors, and sophomores will play the freshmen. At this time the winner will be announced and these points will contribute toward the color cup.

Tennis Conference Slated March 23-28

Randolph-Macon Woman's College in Lynchburg, Virginia, will be hostess for a tennis refresher course from March 23 to March 28. The conference will take place of the regular annual tennis camp held each year in Maine.

Miss Dorothy D. Randale will conduct a five day intensive course in individual and group instruction and in tennis officiating for teachers and major students of physical education. An hour of social dancing will be given each evening under the direction of Eleanor Struppa.

Four representatives will go from Farmville to receive instruction and build up their ability to play.

S. T. C. Places Fourth In Southern Region Telegraphic Swim Meet

Farmville State Teachers College placed fourth in the entire Southern Region Telegraphic Swimming meet, Ruth Dugger, manager of the southern district, announced.

Florida State College for Women took first honor, while Mary Washington copped second place, and William and Mary placed third.

In the minor rating which included colleges with less than an enrollment of 1000, S. T. C. placed second.

Nancy Dupuy, senior at S.T.C., placed first in the Southern Region in the forty-yard breast stroke with the record of 32.1 seconds. Frances Parham, junior, placed fourth in the region in the forty-yard back stroke.

S.T.C. ranked first in the region in the 100-yard free style contest. Swimming in this contest were Nancy Dupuy, Ruth Dugger, and Frances Parham. Their time was 1.3.

In the 75-yard medley relay, S. T. C. captured second honor. Competing for Farmville were Gloria Pollard, back crawl; Nancy Dupuy, breast stroke; and Ruth Dugger, crawl. Their time was 55.3.

Farmville was hostess for the Southern Region in the Telegraphic Meet this year. Results of the National Telegraphic Meet rating will be announced by March 25.

Red Cross Courses Begin Next Quarter; 100 Complete Course

One section of the Red Cross First Aid Standard and Advanced Course will be taught during the spring quarter by Miss Mary Barlow at 1:50 p. m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. If there is enough demand for an additional section, it is possible that one may be offered, Miss Barlow said.

During the winter quarter almost 100 students were enrolled in the three first aid courses under Miss Barlow, Miss Burger, and Nancy Dupuy, student instructor.

Dramatic Role of "Death" Mystifies, Charms Audience

By JANE WARING RUFFIN

From the rise of the first curtain to the fall of the last, "Death Takes a Holiday," presented on Friday and Saturday nights by the S. T. C. Dramatic Club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs, was a superb performance.

The play centered around Death who pays a mysterious visit to earth and takes a three-day holiday to find the meaning of life and why he is feared. Death selects as the scene of his experiment the home of Duke Lambert and the Duke's guests are puzzled by, attracted to, and yet afraid of Prince Sirki, as Death as known to them, though they do not realize his true identity.

A more suitable cast would have been hard to find. Keith Eubank as Duke Lambert was not out of character a moment while he was on the stage. He was the only one who knew who Sirki really was and his nervous actions seemed almost too real to be acting.

Martha Woodhouse, a freshman at S. T. C., was magnificent in the role of Grazia whom Death chose for his lover. Her husky voice gave to the part the faraway spiritual and dreamy tones needed. John Pancake, a senior at Hampden-Sydney and an actor of unusual ability, gave a new meaning to death in his portrayal of "The one who waits." He was aptly described by Rhoda when she compared him to a "symphony by some mad Russian." As Sirki, Pancake appeared as a worldly prince when he borrowed the Lamp of Illusion; but when he donned the garb of Death for his departure, he seemed as men imagine Death—stark and terrible.

Baron Cesarea, the elderly guest of the Duke who lost and regained twenty years during Death's short holiday, was nobly portrayed by Bus Etheridge. Bus stole several scenes in the play with his rheumatism and dry wit.

Outstanding also was Peggy Bellus' portrayal of Maria, Princess of San Luca and mother of Grazia. Peggy's best scene was near the end when Grazia chose to go with her lover Death rather than to remain with her mother and mortal friends.

Cosmopolite Eric Fenton was done by William van Patten. His worldly air and simple profanity created the exact atmosphere wanted. Rhoda Fenton, Eric's sister was played by S. T. C. freshman Margaret Hiner. Rhoda was strangely attracted to Sirki and did particularly well her love scene with him. In his search for a love that casts out fear, Death also tested Alda, played by Jane McGinnis.

Carrado, the Duke's son who was very much in love with Grazia, was portrayed by Tedo Savage, with hair dyed black for he play, was quite boyish and showed his hatred for Sirki by actions rather than speeches. The difficult role of Duchess Stephanie ,the Duke's wife was played by Helen Fuller. She was a particularly gracious hostess for Death, but came out of her role after her speeches.

In the supporting cast were Martha Higgins and Addison Campbell, servants, and Richard Cornwall as Major Whitread.

During "Death's Holiday" there was a sort of cosmic springtime when nothing withered or died and the ivy tried to burst its way into the house. The marvelous lighting and the falling leaves made the final scene—Death's departure extremely effective.

Orchids are due to Miss Wheeler for her spendid directing, to Nelle White for lighting, which "made the play", to Susie Moore for staging, to Gene Hardy Kilmon for costuming, to Louise Phillips for properties, to Mary Lou Shannon for make-up, to all who helped in these groups, and to the entire cast for a wonderful play.

Freddie Lee To Play For Pan Hel Dance

Freddie Lee's orchestra has been selected to play for the Pan Hellenic dance Saturday, April 11.

Sue Marshall, chairman, has announced that decorations will be very simple, and the proceeds will go to pay for the Pen Helenic contribution to the Founders Day fund and the Red Cross. Each chapter will have its customary no-break dance.

Jean Weller heads the floor committee with the alternates to the Pan Hellenic assisting her Mary Harvie, chairman, and the winter quarter pledges will decorate while Ann Boswell is in charge of tickets, and Amy Read is responsible for decorating the Student Lounge.

Date tickets are being issued to the active members, while the pledges and guests will attend as stags.

Pan-Hel Prom Swings Out Royally April 11

Post-Easter Dance Features No-Breaks

In a setting of simple and plain decorations the annual Pan-Hellenic dance will be held in the college gymnasium from 8:30 o'clock until 12 o'clock, Saturday night, April 11.

Dr. J. L. Jarman, Miss Mary White Cox, Miss Carolyn Cogbill, advisor of the Pan-Hellenic association, Jean Weller, Pan-Hellenic president and the faculty advisors of each sorority will compose the receiving line in the Student Building Lounge.

Intermission will be at 10:30 o'clock. At this time the sororities will entertain their guests in the chapter rooms.

No-Breaks

Freddie Lee and his orchestra, who will furnish the music, will feature a requested no break number for each sorority. "Story of a Starry Night" will be Sigma Sigma Sigma's choice, while Gamma Theta's request is "Tonight We Love". Alpha Sigma Alpha's no-break number is "Night and Day", Mu Omega's is "Leibstraum", while Pi Kappa Sigma is requesting "All the Things You Are" and Alpha Sigma Tau, "Everything I Love". "I Don't Want to Walk Without You" will be Theta Sigma Upsilon's choice and Phi Zeta Sigma has asked for "Moonlight Cocktail".

Jean Weller heads the floor committee with the alternates to the Pan-Hellenic assisting her. Mary Harvie, chairman of decorations will have the new pledges from each chapter on her committee, while Ann Boswell is in charge of tickets, and Amy Read will decorate the Student Lounge.

Sue Marshall is general chairman of the dance.

We Define Our "Bill of Writes" . . .

From This Day Forward

. . . The Rotunda is in new hands. Once again a new staff has taken over the guidance of this publication's future. As we do so it is with the full realization that a difficult task lies ahead. We are receiving our posts from competent, energetic hands, and we pledge ourselves to constant endeavor in maintaining the sound quality of college journalism which they have established. Before we proceed further, we pause to formulate and present to you, the readers, our two-fold policy of expression . . .

We first believe in writing only that news which will be of major interest to the majority of our readers, the student body at State Teachers College. The interests of the faculty and administration, and the friends of State Teachers College will also be expressed when they coincide with the student interests.

Second, in actually writing such news, we will place more emphasis on individuals, if the efforts of the individual merit public recognition. But likewise, if necessary, the right of criticism will be exercised where, according to our evaluation, it can be constructive in solving problems concerning and relating to campus life.

As a third point we add that we encourage frequent expression of opinions from the readers. If you do not think the Rotunda interprets news as it should be, submit your comments to the staff; any reasonable one submitted for publication will be printed.

(Signed) The Editors

Ruffin To Assist In News Editing

Jane Waring Ruffin, freshman, has been promoted to the position of news editor on the Rotunda staff and has taken over her duties assisting Ella Banks Weathers, news editor, who will continue in her present position.

Jane Ruffin has been a reporter on the editorial staff of the Rotunda for the past year and has won recognition on the basis of her feature stories. Her promotion to the position of news editor marks the first time that this post has been filled by two members of the Rotunda staff at the same time and raises the number of associate editors

Dramatic Club Heads H. S. Plays

Tournament Runs Through 16, 17, 18

The Southside Virginia Dramatic Tournament, sponsored each year by the State Teachers College Dramatic Club will be held this year on the nights of April 16, 17 and 18 in the S. T. C. auditorium.

High schools from all sections of Southside Virginia will present one-act plays in this contest and in this way will attempt to promote good drama in the high schools.

On Thursday night Tappahannock, Mitchell, Amherst, Powhatan, and Appomattox high schools will participate in the contest. The Friday night program will consist of plays by Warrenton, Culpeper, LaCrosse, New London, Amelia, and Buckingham high schools. On the closing night, Saturday, April 18, Hopewell, Emporia, Crewe, Randolph-Henry, and Farmville high schools will contest.

Schools having the prize-winning play each night will receive a silver trophy cup. If one school wins this cup for the third successive year, the trophy will be given to that school to hold permanently. The judges each night will be three persons who are familiar with the techniques of dramatic production.

S. T. C. students are invited to attend each night.

Parker and Sedgley Debate For Virginia in Minneapolis

Elizabeth Ann Parker and Virginia Sedgley will represent the entire state of Virginia at the national Pi Kappa Delta Student Assembly in Minneapolis, Minnesota, April 3 through April 13.

The subjects for particular consideration at this assembly will be the national debt and inflation. Elizabeth Ann Parker has prepared three bills entitled "Limit on Prices and Wages", "Payment of our War Debt After the War", and "Payment of National Debt."

Present at Minneapolis will be representatives from schools all over the United States. The governor of Minnesota will be a speaker on the program.

Virginia Sedgley is to participate in the extemporaneous speaking contest while in Minneapolis. Topics will be limited to the Western Hemisphere, and can be chosen only a few minutes before a talk is made.

Students' participating will conduct meetings similar to the national Congress. A speaker will be selected to preside at the meetings and representatives will prepare bills suitable for consideration by the United States government. Majority and minority leaders will be chosen and action will be determined in a party caucus. Political moves as log rolling and lobbying will also be used.

District Meet

On Saturday, March 28, Virginia Sedgley attended a district meet of the Pan-American Cooperative at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville. From two round-table discussion groups in the afternoon six representatives were selected to speak that night, and Virginia Sedgly was one of the six chosen. The winners were representatives of the University of Virginia and Mary Baldwin College. They will enter a regional tournament in Atlanta, Georgia at an early date, following which there will be a national contest in Washington, D. C., the winners of which will tour the South American coun-

Kitchin To Head Education Group

Margaret Kitchin was elected president of the Association for Childhood Education at a meeting March 18, in the Y. W. C. A. lounge.

Eleanor Feagan was elected to serve as vice-president while Ann Lyons was elected secretary and Brookie Benton, treasurer. Jean Guy was elected to head the Ways and Means Committee.

An illustrated lecture, "Creative Art in the School", was given by Miss Virginia Bedford at the meeting.

Plans were announced for a musical to be presented by the children of the Campus Training School on Wednesday, April 15 at 8 P. M. in the college auditorium. The concert will be open to the public and a silver offering will be taken.

Coffin Defines Poet's Duty As Inspiring Optimism

"Poets should make people feel good about living", said Robert Tristram Coffin in answer to the question of a poet's duty in war time.

When interviewed Monday, March 31, the poet expressed the opinion that poems about air combat would be the only worthwhile ones emerging from the war because warfare now is on such a steep and destructive scale. He commented on the fact that most good poetry comes out of times of trouble and cited Dante and Chaucer as examples.

About his latest book, "There Will Be Bread and Love", Mr. Coffin said, "Every poem is about the things that will always be left after the world has smashed up—water, hills, and cows to milk". And he added, "Spring will come to the end of time".

"By the time I was ten, I had read all of Shakespeare", said the poet from Maine twisting his mustache in a characteristic gesture. "When I was five or six, my father read Shakespeare aloud to me under the trees. Although I only understood every third word", he continued, "I knew it was poetry and that poetry was better than prose because it said more in a shorter space."

Discussing humor as a device used in serious poetry, Mr. Coffin expressed his belief in it as an invaluable aid in creating an effect and stated that he was a pioneer in combining humor with seriousness.

"Your drive through the Valley and the mountains of Virginia is one of the most beautiful drives in America—especially from Abington to Winchester" was the

French Society Re-elects Hatton

Jean Hatton was re-elected president of Beta Pi Theta, French fraternity, at the meeting of Beta Pi Theta members on March 30, in the library.

Other officers elected were Mamie Snow, vice-president; Margaret Hiner, secretary; and Frances Lee Hawthorne, treasurer. Mary Parrish Viccellio was elected publicity chairman.

Plans were formulated for the next meeting, at which time a French bridge party will be held at the home of Miss Helen Draper, French professor.

3-Man Brain Trust To Heckle Goatees During Goat Week

Amid loud cheerings by the active Cotillion Club members, Ann Boswell, president of the Cotillion Club, announced to the new members on Tuesday, March 24, that May Winn, Anne Ayers, and Martha Cottrell, seniors, will direct Goat Week activities, which will take place the first three days of the week following Spring Cotillion dance on May 9. At this time the recently bid Cotillion members will be formally initiated into the club.

At the same meeting it was decided that the decorations for Spring Cotillion will be simple and will be centered around a theme less elaborate than those used at previous dances. The new members will be in charge of decorating.

Editors Revise Literary Staffs

Winifred Wright and Susie Moore, incoming editors of the Colonnade and the Virginian respectively, have announced the staffs for each of the publications for the coming year.

Eleanor Folk will serve as managing editor of the Colonnade. The staff of literary editors is entirely new and will include Mary Williams Calvert, Helen Crute, Anne Fitzgerald, Virginia Sedgely, and Jane Waring Ruffin. Carolyn Rouse will continue as poetry editor, and Helen Wiley Hardy has been selected book review editor.

On the Colonnade staff of art editors for the coming year will be Mary Lou Dondiey, Elizabeth Gates, Betty Sexton, Josephine Starling, Elizabeth Tennent and Sarah Trigg. Fiddie Haymes will serve as joke editor.

Assisting Anne Ellett, business manager of the Colonnade, will be Dick Butterworth, Mildred Corvin, Margaret Kitchin, Anne Payne, Charlotte Phillips, and Nelle Quinn. The typists will be Mary Ann Reid, Clara McCormick, and Lindsey Watkins.

Mary Stuart Wamsley will serve as chairman of the Board of Contributors, and serving on this board will be Peggy Becker, Elizabeth Goodwin, Lulie Jones, Jane Knapton, and Warrick Mitchell.

Virginian Staff

Elizabeth Tennent will be managing editor of the Virginian for next year. Elizabeth McCoy is the new literary editor and on her staff will be Virginia Firesheets, Harriet Moore, Jane Waring Ruffin and Stella Scott. On the art staff, headed by Sarah Trigg, will be Jane Knapton, Imogen Claytor, and Eleanor Correi.

The photographic staff, with Sara Wayne France as editor, will be composed of Fay Johnson, Louise McCorkle, Hilah Lee Parks, and Sara Byrd Williams. Mary Moore McCorkle will serve as assistant business manager, and the business staff will include Mary Ellen Frantz, Margaret Hiner, and Shirley Pierce.

Y. W. Installation Set For April 8

Amy Read, recently elected president of the Y. W. C. A. has announced her cabinet for the coming year, and also the two newly-elected advisors.

Miss Winnie Hiner has been reelected for another year, while Miss Grace Moran was elected for the first time as advisor.

The members of the 1942-43 cabinet include Louise Bell of the Church Cooperative committee, who will replace Polly Keller; Julia Eason who will succeed Catherine May as head of the Library committee; Dorothy Childress, who will continue as chairman of the membership committee; Eleanor Feagans, taking over the duties of Sarah Chambers as music chairman; Gwen Sampson, chairman of Prayers committee who will succeed Frances Lee Hawthornc; Hannah Lee Crawford, who will replace Amy Read as head of the Public Affairs committee; Alice Siebert, succeeding Harriett Walker as Publicity chairman Nancye Allen, taking Neil Richard's place as chairman of the Service committee; Charlotte Phillips replacing Polly

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 1, 1942

A Toast To . . .

A pause in the swirl of daily activities to switch on the radio Saturday afternoon brought with at a deep feeling of gratitude and a keen sense of justified pride in this college at Farmville. For at that moment one hundred and twenty mixed voices representing choral clubs from Duke University, Princeton University, and State Teachers College blended in a magnificent performance of the sixth annual presentation of Johannes Brahm's Great Requiem by the National Broadcasting Company. The ethereal quality of the well-trained voices was beautifully impressive, and listeners felt that each group is a credit to its college.

State Teachers College is indeed fortunate in having on her campus such choral organizations. They are an honor to her tradition and heritage. These organizations —the choirs and choral club—are in turn particularly fortunate in having as leaders competent musicians: Mr. Alfred H. Strick, Miss Virginia Richards, and Virginia Barksdale and other student directors. But the talent of each member of the choral groups is worthy of such efficient direction.

It is then to the music department at State Teachers College that we pay tribute. Its success has not only contributed greatly to the advancement of music in Virginia, but it has helped put Farmville "on the map." May it continue to advance!

If You're a True Nature Lover . . .

. . . You'll stop treading on our angiospermous monocotyledonous poaceous plants covering the terrain hereabouts.

Our front campus, soaked by recent rains, wears another unsightly scar each time a heel falls upon the sod. It is due to come forth in all its splendid beauty soon, but not until we begin getting our money's worth out of the many walks traversing the campus. Not until certain duffers cease thinking in terms of roughs, fairways, and traps.

In other words . . . won't YOU please stop walking on the grass?

Twenty-two years ago Shannon's advertised in the Rotunda, then The Dummy, as Shannon's Home Bakery, home of good food, good pastry, and good people.

Keep Up Teaching Standards

The task of national defense is not the relatively simple one of accumulating arms, munitions, ships, soldiers, and other means of destruction. It is also of supplying a steady flow of intelligent, well-educated, conscientious, skilled citizens into the population. The safety of the nation must not be neglected, but full safety, even in time of war, involves the promotion of the welfare of the civilian population, adequate instruction for the youth, and proper consideration for the problems of a post-war world.

To weaken unnecessarily the educational system at this as at any time is to increase definitely and materially the vulnerability of the nation. Maintain a high standard in your studies and thereby maintain the teaching standards.

Let All Keep Faith!

(Reprinted from the Commercial Appeal, Memphis, Tenn., February 28, 1942.)
"To The Commercial Appeal:

"My only son was born while I was in France during the first World War. Today he is a member of the United States Marine Corps. He sailed from California the first of January, and we have heard nothing from him since. We know he is somewhere in the Pacific. We are anxious about him. Thousands of other parents are like us.

"The President says we do not have enough ships to send supplies to our troops and that we must build ships in a hurry. Even as he spoke several hundred shipbuilders refused to work on Washington's Birthday because they were not paid double time.

"How can fathers and mothers of boys who are in the danger zone and who are being called to sacrifice their lives feel any 'surge' of unity when the President and the Congress permit a bunch of shipbuilders and munitions workers to quit when they get good and ready?

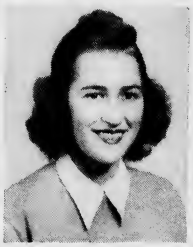
"Do our boys at the front get 'overtime' and 'double time' in the fox holes of the Philippines? Do our sons who are giving their lives to protect the jobs of these and others like them quit on holidays? Like hell they do!

"One of my friends, who is a good mechanic, with a family to support, went to get a job in a munitions plant. Every day we hear on the radio and read in the newspapers that such men are needed to turn out munitions for our soldiers, sailors and marines. But this man was refused a job until he could get a union card. He could not get a union card because he did not have enough money to buy one.

"Is it the idea of our Government that it is more important to preserve labor unions than it is to preserve the American Union? Why can't a freeborn American citizen get a job in a plant where the Government needs workers without having to pay tribute to a high-powered labor leader?

"If our sons are to be drafted to give their lives for their country, why should not Labor and Capital be drafted to supply them with munitions of war? Why should Congress, which has the power to make laws, be so tender of the regard for laborers and management who work and prosper in safety while having an utter disregard of the boys at the front?

"We don't like it, and we don't mind saying so right out loud. Maybe it is time we were electing some senators and congressmen who will crack down and compel Capital and Labor to get into this war. And, come to think of it, this is election year, and we might as well get busy while we have the time and opportunity.



"John C. Sheffield"

Helena, Ark.

Files of the Rotunda for April 2, ten years ago, reveal that S. T. C. audiences had been entertained the night before at a concert by the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club and Benjamin Franklin, III, a talented magician and graduate of Hampden-Sydney.

All About A . . .

Senior Personality

SARA CLINE
Past Editor of the Rotunda

A dependable, scholarly, capable, and loyal girl with a devilish smile, a contagious laugh, and sparkling brown eyes full of animation . . . these remind us of "Sadie" Cline.

We can but wonder how Sadie managed so efficiently her many editorships this year. To say nothing of the Rotunda, with which she lived all year and into which she put her competent efforts and clever ideas, she was also editor of the Alumnae Magazine and the Tributum, national magazine of Sigma Pi Rho. Now, although she is doing her practice teaching, she still finds time to help anyone who asks for her assistance.

Sadie's versatility is readily shown in the outstanding work she has done in each organization in which she is a member. As a junior her leadership was recognized by Aipha Kappa Gamma and this year she was cited in "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities". She holds membership in Beore Eh Thorn, Kappa Delta Pi, Cotillion Club and is a member of Mu Omega sorority.

Things about Sadie we will remember long after June 2 are her selling cheese sandwiches on second floor Senior Building, talking to Bob over long distance, jitterbugging up the hall, and snapping pictures for the Rotunda. All in all we think Sadie is, in Mr. Mac's definition, "a chipper girl", and one who has occ'pied a niche in State Teachers College life which will not easily be filled after her graduation.

We just couldn't think of anything nicer to get the girls' minds off their studies during exams than for Tech to get a "furlough". At least that's what Sex'on and Nimmo and about um-teen others said!

A Little Bright Light on the Subject—

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try again". That . . . my friends, seems to be the motto of the boy (or girl) who insisted on the "blackout" in the Rec Saturday night. We hear tell that a permanent "all clear" was sounded the same night!

CAPITAL to CAMPUS

ACP's Jay Richter Reports from Washington

By JAY RICHTER
ACP Washington Correspondent

War . . .

For those who are wondering what to do during a war-time summer vacation, here's a suggestion: Check with your postoffice for tips from your nearest Civil Service field office on temporary jobs. In addition to whatever openings might normally appear, there are reports that offices of "decentralized" government agencies are shorthanded. Hundreds of their employees elected to stay behind in overcrowded Washington rather than move into "the field."

War . . .

Look for "reactivation" of CAA training programs in some 100 colleges and universities where the CAA program had been allowed to lapse. The expanded program for next year, announced recently by CAA and the War Department, will require use again of dormant college facilities, and possibly establishment of new ones, too. Goals are for an increase of 20,000 in both elementary and secondary training courses. Men who are accepted will acquire status as enlisted reserves in the air corps, or will, on finishing, serve as CAA flying instructors.

Signs point to a major Washington effort to sell the University of Iowa's "Phoenix Fund" post-war scholarship plan to all U. S. colleges. If the idea can be "cleared" through Treasury department bigwigs, the Department's Defns Savings action will attempt to get a national educators' committee to back the plan. This committee, in turn, would attempt to build up well-oiled organizations in colleges throughout the country this Spring and Summer—preparatory to a campaign splurge when Fall terms open.

Briefly, the Iowa plan provides that each student buy a 10-cent Defense Savings Stamp each week to build up post-war scholarship funds for students in the armed forces.

Treasury officials consider the plan the best collegiate stamp-selling idea to date, and frankly admit they have no suggestions for improvement. Credit for the original idea goes to Francis Weaver, first year law student at Iowa.

Incidentally . . .

Maryland's Hood college, in relaxing its rules to permit married girls to attend school, observed that the move is an effort to adjust "to situations arising from the war emergency."

Question of the Week

"In view of the present situation should boys give girls flowers for Easter?"

The Women Reply

Elsie Smith: Yes, because flowers aren't used in National Defense.

Irma Dell Moore: We really ought not to get flowers; but if I don't get any, I am going to be plenty mad.

Jean Hatton: They really should not, but some girls will receive flowers, and that will make the others feel bad.

Margaret Webster: Yes, even if there is a defense program it would not be fair to the florist business not to buy flowers.

Nancy Allen: Me too! (same as Webster).

Betty Reid: Defense stamps won't fade, but flowers will!

Shirley Pierce: Yes, we might as well get them while we can.

Rachel Abernathy: I think boys should give girls something of more lasting value than flowers.

Sara France: I thing that they should give flowers but not make them so elaborate.

Ann Blair: Defense or no defense, I'd be a hog about them.

Will Hall: I think that they should give them defense stamps; then they can really collect ten years from now.

Ann Randolph: In most cases defense stamps would be more appropriate in the present emergency, but for special occasions nothing can take the place of flowers.

Violet Woodall: I think that girls would appreciate a small remembrance; it doesn't have to be expensive.

And the Hampden-Sydney Boys Retort . . .

Marshall Doswell: Yes, they should, but I believe the flowers should be translated into defense stamps.

Ben Irving Johns: Think it's O. K. Somthing like a V for victory corsage would lend a more patriotic note.

Powell Tynes: Why certainly they should. . . But let Hank do it!

Randy Munt: Agree with Doswell. Defense stamps are more appropriate in the present situation.

Tedo Savage: Never have approved of flowers much anyway. Confidentially, I think the present situation is an excellent excuse!

"When the Great Recorder comes
To write against your name,
He writes not that you won or lost
But how you played the game."

Many people think good sportsmanship is limited to being skilled in sports and games. This is truly a part of it because when a game is learned there is team play, self-control, and knowledge of how to hold the body, but also there is added to this the important fact of putting the good of your team ahead of yourself and never disputing decisions made by the referee or coach. Rules of good sportsmanship hold strongly in any group and to remember them is an asset. Juliette Low, founder of Girl Scouting in the United States, left to the girls of the country this phrase—

"To play fair,
To play in your place,
To play for your side and not for yourself."

On Roller Skates . . .

Second childhood isn't the name for it, but some of the same mishaps take place when one falls down! Maybe it's just because it's been a long time since last using the dusty skates—fresh from the closet—but at any rate its fun when those four little ball-bearing wheels roll round and round. Lately quite a number have blossomed forth on such wheels—Dearing Fauntleroy, Anne Rogers, Mary Kathryn Ingham, and Jane Ford find the walks quite hard! After Easter holidays we'll be expecting to have a lot of sunny warm weather and with it ideal days for skating.

Nets and Balls . . .

Last week's set of volleyball matches provided added excitement for the many team members who have been practicing each Monday through Thursday afternoons in the gym. The first game was played between the juniors and freshment with the juniors victorious; the second between the seniors and sophomores with the sophs leading. Scheduled practices will continue after Easter and inter-class games will be played between each of the classes. Just to make a bit of fun before study period several groups of girls have gathered in the gym and played contest games. These rounds have added much to their game as well as to the spirit of playing. Balls are available at any time for use for playing purposes and nets are always set up in the gym.

Tennis Courts "Not Open" Yet . . .

Tennis weather will soon be here and lately the warm days have lured some early players to the tennis courts, but nets have not been put up, lines have not been marked and the courts have not been rolled for playing use. Please do not ruin the new courts by playing on them before they are in condition! This is a very important call which must be observed if the courts are expected to be suitable when playing time comes. Nets will be put up when they are in shape and an announcement will also be made concerning the courts.

Frosh Walloped: Sophs Get Wins In V. Ball Fight

Juniors and sophomores triumphed in the volleyball matches, which were played Thursday night, March 26, in the gymnasium, and which officially opened the intramural volleyball tournament on the S. T. C. campus.

A favored junior team was victorious in two slow-moving games with the freshman class team and chalked up 18 points against freshman—scored five points in the first clash and 16 points to 7 points in the second.

In closely fought contests between the seniors and sophomores, the sophomores squeezed out a 15 to 11 point victory in the first match and an 11 to 9 lead over the veteran seniors in the second.

The seeded junior team was captained by Ellen Ebel, who was ably assisted by Margaret Kitchin, Elizabeth Walls, Margaret Bowling, Anne Ellett, Anne Moore, Jean Carr, and Kitty Parrish, while the ill-fated frosh team, led by Marilyn Johnson, was composed of Anne Payne, Helen Wilson, Eleanor Wade, Beryl Roberts, Harriet Levinson, Julia Belle Glenn, and Jane Moseley.

Sophomores were co-captained by Patsy Connelly and Grace Elerton, who were assisted by Mildred Droste, Ruth Dugger, Faye Nimmo, Vivian Gwaltney, Betty Repass, and Mary Lee Pittard and the defeated seniors were led by Nelle White and assisted by Dot Johnson, Cottie Radspinner, Mary Katherine Dodson, Peggy Hughes, May Winn, Marty Roberts, and Nell Hurt.

Tennis Enthusiasts Ready for Matches

Representing State Teachers College at the tennis classes sponsored by Randolph Macon Woman's College in Lynchburg from Monday, March 23 through March 26 were Frances Parham, Ruth Dugger, Hilah Lee Parks, Katherine Baker, and Eleanor Varn.

Dorothy Randel, noted professional tennis instructor, was in charge of the classes, and many Virginia colleges sent representatives.

Instructions on recently improved form and stroke techniques were held each day from 9:30 o'clock until 11:30 o'clock in the morning and again from 2:30 o'clock until 5 o'clock each afternoon on the Randolph-Macon courts, and an hour of social dancing was directed each evening by Eleanor Struppa, physical education head at Randolph-Macon.

These classes were attended by S. T. C. tennis players as a preparation for matches which will be scheduled with other colleges at a later date.

ATTENTION!

Physical Education 316, a one-credit class emphasizing folk and ballroom dancing, has been added to the class schedule and can be taken on Tuesday and Thursday at 10:05 o'clock. If this hour is not satisfactory for those who would like to take the class see Miss Emily Kauzlarich at once. If there is a demand for it, another class will be formed at an early date.

Juniors Loom As Top Team

With a faster combination and captained by Ellen Ebel, the junior class team has odds strongly in their favor for capturing the Intramural Volleyball title on Tuesday night, April 7, at 9 o'clock in the college gym.

At that time the juniors, if successful in a combat with the seniors, will challenge the winner of the sophomore-frosh tilt. The two winning teams will clash for the coveted volleyball crown and thereby win color cup points.

Spring Season Saturates Spirit of Students poet's remark about Virginia. "When the wheat has ripened in June, it's magnificient—the white wheat against the Blue Ridge".

When asked his favorite poem, he replied emphatically and without hesitation "The Secret Heart, because to me it seems to be the best".

In answer to the type poem he liked to write, Mr. Coffin first named the ballad about Maine and America at large. A ballad, he continued, tells or implies a story and is simple in its imagery. Homely, everyday things were included next, and he mentioned such subjects as plowmen, boys, and people in general. Giving "The Secret Heart" as an example of his third type of poem, the poet spoke of writing a poem inspired by seeing a beautiful sight or by remembering one.

He concluded his interview by saying that his audiences like to hear about Maine because it reminded them of home. "When I have succeeded in writing a good Maine poem, it is essentially a good Maryland or Virginia poem also, because it's all human nature."

Volume XXI FARMVILLE, VA., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 15, 1942 NO. 23

War Effort Reinstates Bicycles As Ideal Conveyor

The bicycle was introduced into England in 1873, into America in 1877, and was adopted by Farmville and other cities of the country in 1942 during the war crisis and the sudden tire shortage.

There are ways of traveling and ways of traveling, but at this point Miss Elizabeth Burger, assisant science professor, selects cycling. She rides her up-to-date bike the mile and a half from her home on the Hampden-Sydney road to the college each day. (And she has an 8:05 o'clock class every morning!)

S. T. C. students, too, are relearning the skill of cycling and are rapidly taking to the pedal. Among the town girls who ride often are Peggy Allen, Sara and Helen Wiley Hardy, Jane Lee Hutcheson, and Louise McCorkle.

Many other Farmville citizens have also oiled their bikes in preparation for riding to work and to market daily in a wartime effort to conserve tires. Among the biking marketers is Mrs. W. C. Fitzpatrick, former instructor of physical education at S. T. C., and the wife of Farmville's Mayor W. C. Fitzpatrick. The assistant postmaster of Farmville, Mr. Frank W. Fallwell, also purchased a new shiny red two-wheeler recently, which he rides to work each day.

To prove that the bicycle bug has bitten more than a few, there is the cycling fraternity, Zig a Zag Zigga, recently formed at Hampden-Sydney College with officers called the Illustrious Front Spoke, the Grand Coaster Brake, and the Honorable Handlebar Grip. The fraternity was initiated under the auspices of Dr. Herman E. Bell, French professor, when he noticed the once frequent rides to Farmville had been cut down because automobile tires are no longer available.

Not to let Hampden-Sydney push ahead, the town girls who Farmville Girl Will Head A.K.G.

Jane Sanford, editor of The Rotunda, was elected president of the Joan Circle of Alpha Kappa Gamma, national leadership fraternity for women, for the following year on Wednesday night, April 8. She will succeed Caroline Eason as head of the local group.

Betty Youngberg was elected vice-president, and Agnes Patterson, was chosen secretary. Hallie Hillsman was elected chairman of the college circus, which is sponsored each year in the Fall by Alpha Kappa Gamma. Winifred Wright was named editor of the Alumnae Magazine and Amy Read was elected associate editor of The Torch Bearer, official journal of the society. The office of treasurer will be filled at a later election.

Gamma Psi Installs Claytor New Prexy

Imogen Claytor, junior, who was recently elected president of Gamma Psi, local art fraternity, officially took over her post as head of the honor group when she was installed by the out-going president, Winifred Wright, on Thursday night, April 9, in the honors room.

At the same time Elizabeth Gates, sophomore, was installed as vice-president; Betty Sexton, junior, was installed as secretary, and Jo Starling, sophomore, took over the duties of treasurer. Elizabeth Tennent, sophomore, was appointed chairman of the poster committee.

After the installation of the new officers took place, Sarah Trigg, who was recently bid from the sophomore class by Gamma Psi, was initiated into the society.

To the Editor of The Rotunda
Dear Editor:

I have been asked to write you that your reporter became quite confused on the write-up of the figurine of Miss Celeste Parrish. (This is now placed in the College Library.)

This figurine was presented to the college through Dr. Jarman by the Alpha chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma society of Newport News, Virginia, not by the Norfolk Alumnae chapter as was published in The Rotunda. The members of Alpha chapter are requesting that you have this correction made.

Yours truly,

War Conditions Will Keep S. T. C.'s "Princess" at Home

Due to uncertain war conditions the annual Apple Blossom festival, to which State Teachers College has sent a representative for the past nine or ten years, has been cancelled for this year, according to an announcement made by Dr. J. L. Jarman today.

The festival, which has been held in Winchester, Va., each year at the time of the blossoming of the apple trees in the Valley of Virginia, has become a nationally famous occasion to which S. T. C. and other selected colleges have sent "princesses" to serve in the court of the Apple Blossom Queen for many years.

Princesses representing S. T. C. have been chosen in the past by Dr. J. L. Jarman. Frances Ellett, '41, of Roanoke, represented State Teachers College at the eighteenth annual festival last year

Rogers To Head Student Standards Assisted by Four

Honor Group Heads Suggest New Bill

Rosalie Rogers was elected chairman of the Student Standards Committee for the following year on Wednesday afternoon, April 8. She will succeed Ellen Royall in this position.

Having served on Student Standards for the past three years, Rosalie Rogers is also a member of Boerc Eh Thorn, Kappa Delta Pi, and the varsity hockey squad. The position of secretary on Student Standards which she has held this year will be filled by Frances Parham.

Other officers chosen at the same time were Mary Evelyn Pearsall, who will succeed Lucy Turnbull as Chairman of the school calendar, and Julia Eason, who will take over the office of chairman of the point system which is being vacated by May Wertz.

Resolution Introduced

Upon the approval of the administration, a new resolution will be added to the constitution of Student Standards for next year. The rule, if adopted, will provide for the compulsory payment of debts and dues by student members of campus organizations no later than the end of the third quarter of each year. This will be enforced through the cooperation of Miss Virgilia Bugg, registrar, who will, upon the recommendation of Student Standards, withhold the grades of any student who has not paid dues she owes by the specified time.

This ruling was introduced to Student Standards by the presidents of Kappa Delta Pi, Pi Gamma Mu, and Boerc Eh Thorn.

Heading commitees for May Day are, left to right, Harriette Walker, Martha Roberts, Mary Hunter Edmunds, May Wertz, general chairman of May Day, Ann Bradshaw, Beezie Townsend, and Winifred Wright.

May Day Practices Make Progress Under Direction of Wertz

The college's annual May Day festivities will be held Saturday, May 2 at 5 o'clock. This fete will have a colonial setting, and the members of the court will represent the belles of George Washington's day and will be dressed in costumes of that period.

May Wertz, of Roanoke, is serving as general chairman of May Day. Working with her as business manager is Martha Roberts.

Sarah Chambers, chairman of the music committee, is being assisted by Eleanor Feagans, May Wertz, Ada Claire Snyder, Elsie Stossel, Elizabeth Walker, and Catherine Bodine.

Elizabeth Townsend is general chairman of the costumes and is being aided by Peggy Hughes, Virginia Campfield, Gene Hardy Kilmon, Elizabeth Summerfield, Gay Ward Brown, Charlotte Greeley, May Bernice Rice, Sara Seward, and Dot Laurence.

Mary Hunter Edmunds has charge of the dance routines and has as her assistants Frances Parham, Ann Bradshaw, Shirley Pierce, Janet Jackson, Louisa Sanford, Eleanor Varn, Ann Covington, Sally Overbey, and Helen Wiley Hardy.

Harriet Walker is in charge of properties, while Margaret Wright is chairman of transportation.

Miss Emily M. Kauziarich, assistant professor of physical education, has charge of the dance. Miss Leola Wheeler, professor of speech, is dramatic advisor while Miss Katherine Tupper is costume advisor. Miss Olive T. Iler, professor of physical education, is directing the May Pole dance.

Mass rehearsals for May Day will start Monday, April 20, and will be held every night of that week in the gym at 7 o'clock.

G. Mahy Discusses Chinese Experiences, Work in Outpost

Gordon Mahy, Jr., who has returned recently from service at an outpost of the Christian Church in Shantung, China, the scene of guerilla warfare today, was the speaker at Chapel yesterday and this morning April 14 and 15. "The Christian Attitude of War-torn China" was his topic.

Last night students met with Mr. Mahy in the Student Lounge and discussed his experience in China.

Mr. Mahy was head of the outpost school which endeavored to care for the educational, medical, and spiritual needs of the surrounding country.

He is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and has done graduate work at Princeton Theological School and at Yale.

Defense Drive Adds Physical Fitness To School Program

Plans to Include Seasonal Sports

An extensive sports program has been set up by the physical fitness committee of the college war council. In order to offer various sports to upperclassmen who are unable to participate in any physical education classes, as well to those students who wish to add out-door sports to their daily schedule, the physical fitness committee has organized a period known as an activities period.

Sports Program Listed

Beginning at 7 P. M. each evening and continuing until 8 P. M. activities directed by specified leaders will include archery, softball, croquet, tennis, and badminton. Also during the afternoon golf, archery, swimming, softball, and croquet will be offered. The pool will be open for a free period three nights a week from 9:30 o'clock to 10:15.

Schedule to Continue

Such a schedule as shown below will continue throughout the spring quarter and is open to all students for their need and enjoyment. A chart will be posted daily on the A. A. bulletin board for each of the activities listed. Students are asked to sign up here if they wish to participate.

Educator to Speak In Chapel, Forums

Mrs. Jessie Burrall Eubank lecturer, writer, and social scientist will be on the college campus April 20 through 25. "Individual Seeking The Best Life Today" will be the theme of her chapel programs, classes, discussions, and individual conferences.

Mrs. Eubank is a noted lecturer in this field and has spoken on campuses throughout the United States, and appeared at State Teachers College last year in the early Spring. She served on the editorial staff of the National Geographic Magazine for several years. While holding this position, she organized and directed the largest women's Sunday school classes in the world, its membership being 1800.

Mrs. Eubank later headed the department of religious education at Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., and at present is the Baptist representative to the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America and is a member of the executive committee of that organization. She is also a member of the Baptist World Council on Marriage and the Home.

Notice—Seniors

The Senior Song Contest, sponsored by the senior class, has set May 1 as the deadline for all entries. Any senior who wishes to submit a song to be used at the senior chapel service on May 22, please note the above date.

Defense stamps will be given for the first, second, and third most appropriate songs.

Encourage Good Drama

This week will bring to the campus at State Teachers College more than one hundred dramatic club students representing high schools in many sections of Virginia. The tournament is known as the Southside Virginia Dramatic Club tournament, but in reality it now embraces more than just the surrounding part of Virginia. For under the watchful eye and the competent direction of the State Teachers College Dramatic Club, the sponsor, this contest has evolved from the original one-night performance, with only a few high schools participating, to a full-fledged three-night affair with as many as twenty high schools taking part.

This year marks the eighth annual production of these high school plays, and each year's presentation so far has scored another success for the S. T. C. Dramatic Club. This project has become well worth public recognition and support, for not only does it tend to promote higher standards of dramatics in Virginia high schools, but the plays presented by these competing high schools are interesting and delightful, furnishing good entertainment for anyone attending the productions.

So even if you're not a dramatic student yourself, why not attend the contest—if even for only one night—? You'll encourage the Dramatic Club on this campus to continue future contests through your support and you'll help insure the dramatic clubs in many high schools against loss of interest in good drama.

Those Allergic to Poison

Hermann Rauchning in The Voice of Desruction, his treatise of German tactics under Hitler, quotes the German frankenstein as saying, "America is permanently on the brink of revolution; it will be a simple matter for me to produce revolts and unrest in the United States, so that these gentry will have their hands full."

Simple matter?

That depends on us. It depends on whether "we, the people" profit from the lessons of Europe. It depends on whether our minds are fortified agains pollution by propaganda and false rumors. And it depends on whether we keep our mouths shut.

We have seen how Hitler's strategy created internal distress in every nation he attacked. We have seen how he undermined civilian morale, separated governments from their allies, set group against group through incessant torrents of propag.

We have seen the extent of his subtlety and the depth of his terror—before invasion, during invasion, and after occupation.

The United States remains intact. But Mr. Hitler plans to destroy that unity, physically and mentally. All his sugar-coated tricks are now being directed against unsuspecting, loquacious Americans. These propaganda tactics appear under a thousand false faces; they never announce themselves as "Nazi". And they always appear where least expected.

The job of each American today therefore is one of individual awareness. He should know if that latest news is legitimate before he passes it on. He should, if possible, find out its source, to test its legitimacy, and above all he should ponder well what he hears, remembering the cynical effects of former "Nazi" opiates. It is not impossible for them to paralyze American thoughts also.

Defense Bulletin . . .

(Note: In cooperation with the Defense Council at State Teachers College, The Rotunda will publish frequently a defense bulletin giving information which should be valuable in carrying out the work of the committees of the Defense Council. Much of the information will be based on lectures given by W. E. Hill, graduate of Edgewood Arsenal, Md., who recently conducted classes for the citizens of Farmville in preparation for setting up a defense unit in the Town of Farmville.)

The Incendiary Bomb

Any attempt at invasion brings with it air raids. We have learned from England that the chief weapon used in modern warfare to facilitate destruction is the incendiary bomb and that a single plane can shower these bombs over a large area in a very few seconds.

There are four types of incendiary bombs, the most commonly used being the magnesium bomb. It weighs approximately 2 2-10 pounds, is 2 inches in diameter, and 9 inches long. A tail-fin, added to the body of the bomb to produce a shrieking noise as the bomb falls, is approximately 5 inches long, making the entire bomb 14 inches long.

The magnesium bomb does not explode. Ignition occurs on impact which acts as a detonator, and the violent phase of its action continues for approximately a minute. When this action subsides, the body of the bomb may be approached at a relatively close range. Then if sprayed with a very thin stream of water from a garden hose or any other available utensil, the flame can be extinguished within approximately 2 minutes. If water is not available, dampened sand may be used to smother the flame long enough to remove it to an area where it will do no damage. If the bomb falls outdoors, sand is the better choice in smothering it quickly, for magnesium bombs give off a brilliant flare when burning, and thereby furnish light in a blackout to aid the enemy.

"Education for national unity was achieved by the Nazis at the cost of a general depreciation of intelligence, lowering of scholastic standards, and corruption of national morality. Absolute indoctrination was achieved by grotesque falsifications of history and by inculcating certain emotions before the critical faculties had a chance to develop. The Nazis proved masters not only in the psychology of education but in its organiaztion, as they did in other fields. They organized new educational agencies and institutions which took educational leadership away from the schools. I am referring to labor camps, so-called land years and, above all, the youth organization of the party. The result has been a reversal of educational values: of greatest importance now are physical fitness, indoctrination, the development of the 'will,' silent obedience and absolute loyalty; of least importance is intellectual development." — Dr. Frederick Lilge, instructor in education at the University of California, who came to the United Staes from Germany in 1934, say the Nazi regime, has dealt intellectual development in Germany a severe blow, whatever the result of the war.

All About A . . .

Senior Personality

MARY KATHERINE DODSON

President of the Senior Class

Twinkling brown eyes, a cheery smile, and a contagious laugh characterize Mary Katherine Dodson, president of the senior class.

Seniors of '42 will always remember Mary Katherine, affectionately called "D. D.", as a true, fine, and loyal president. The record which the class of '42 has made is due largely to D. D.'s leadership for she is always thinking and acting in terms of the class. However, graduation will not sever her from her class, for she has been elected alumnae secretary for the class of '42.

D. D.'s ability to lead and to work with people was evidenced at Columbia, S. C., last fall when the regional convention of Alpha Kappa Gamma conferred upon her the honor of national president. She is also vice-president of the Joan Circle of A. K. G. and was cited this year in "Who's Who Among Student in American Colleges and Universities." She is a member of Cotillion Club and Gamma Theta sorority.

Being a Home Economics major, D. D. always presides as chief cook for all "brand new parties" in senior kitchen; she also acts as chief consultant for the aspiring seamstress or maybe it is adding up calories for the Diet Club, one thing certain—we'll all miss D. D. next year.

A Seat At the Cinema

Come Friday and Saturday, April 17 and 18, you better make way for the screen's sunniest mirth and madness makers—Bud Abbott and Lou Costello in "Ride 'Em Cowboy" ! !

Clad in chaps, spur-bedecked boots, and ten-gallon hats these star comedians become entangled in a mesh of feminine pulchritude, wild steers, bucking broncos and last, but not least, a tribe of Indians. Besides being zany there is plenty of romance and music. Anne Gwynne, Dick Foran, and Johnny Mack Brown take care of the heart beats all too well while the music making is taken over by the Merry Macs and Ella Fitzgerald—so don't wait for the hit parade to hear the song, "I'll Remember April".

"Roxie Hart", which comes to the State Monday and Tuesday, April 20 and 21, is interesting and intriguing for many reasons. Need you be convinced that Ginger Rogers is definitely one reason?

This story first played on Broadway as "Chicago" in 1926. Then in a 1928 filming, an impulsive blonde took a revolver to her man but relied on more natural weapons at her disposal in order to overwhelm a jury. Now in a more hilarious filming the roaring 20's become a realm of fabulous nonsense. The latest Roxie, a redhead, gum-chewing, wisecracking dancer, has an eyebrow raising trick of her own besides a shyster mouthpiece—Adolphe Menjou.

Wednesday and Thursday, the 22 and 23, brings to the State "The Lady Is Willing"—Marlene Dietrich is that lady—and who wouldn't be willing when it comes to Fred MacMurray and Arline Judge—this picture should win your approval by a long shot.

This Week's Headline Highlights

By MARY HUNTER EDMUNDS

For several weeks now there has been a lull in spectacular war activity. But clouds had been gathering, and the storm broke last week when the Americans and Filipinos on Bataan Peninsula were brought to defeat, having been cut off from reinforcements, out-numbered by probably six to one, "tragically deficient in air power," and utterly exhausted physically. Some of the men were able to escape to Corregidor, even swimming the shark-infested waters of the channel, and are continuing the struggle on that stubborn island fortress. However, many of the estimated 36,853 were killed and many others taken captive. It was a bitter, if inevitable, end to the heroic stand since January 3 against growing odds in numbers food shortage, and disease.

Friday brought the crushing news to the Allies that the All-India Congress party had definitely rejected Britain's plan for post-war dominion status. Although Nehru has pledged support of Allied defense of India, Gandhi is the idol of the great mass of Hindus and his policy, as always, is that of "passive resistance" . . . The Japanese sent two cruisers, Dorsetshire and Cornwall, and the aircraft carrier, Hermes, to the bottom of the Bay of Bengal, which it would seem will greatly hinder the Allied defense of India. Already all who can have have been asked to leave the seaport of Madras.

Farther south the Australians and the Americans have been battling away from the air the ring of islands about Australia, and the Japanese have retaliated with a series of attacks on the Solomon Islands.

The Russians still are holding their own on the most encouraging of all battle front as far as the United Nations are concerned. Recent news relates that the resourceful Reds changed the course of one of their rivers and thereby wrought havoc in the German camps. The arrival of General Marshall and Mr. Hopkins in London may indicate an opening of another front in Europe to relieve the pressure on Russia. At any rate, "chiefs of the staff do not fly the ocean for nothing."

The editor of the Richmond Times Dispatch wrote, "This nation has lost the war, to date, and the only way in which this trend can be reversed is through the whole-souled and instantaneous awakening of the American people to the fact that an Allied victory is far from inevitable". And the nation was trying hard with labor legislation slated for April 20 and argument centered around the 40-hour week. But still it was dabbling in trivial matters as Mr. Roosevelt announced briskly that "what the country needed was a name for its war". American women by the million, so reports "Time," have renounced skirts in favor of slacks, Countrywide sales average 500 per cent over all previous records. Th War Productions Board issued more rulings to regulate styles in suits, coats, and dresses that will eliminate frills and permit 15 per cent more garments out of the same amount of cloth. Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, forgot the dignity of his office momentarily as he seized Eugene Myers, publisher of the "Washington Post", by the shoulders and shook him until his glasses fell off. It seems he objected to an editorial that appeared in that paper! Babe Ruth of baseball fame is recovering from a severe attack of influenza. (The fact that he had been attempting reduction to his former baseball "figure" for a movie he is making, may have had a slight bearing on the case). Actor Lew Ayres has been enrolled in a camp for conscientious objectors.

BETWEEN YOU 'N' ME AND . . .

The Gatepost

(Who hears an awful lot)

Pan-Hels in Review . . .

Sara Jeffreys had Ann Cover's Jack Price from H.-S. to the dance and sported very scrumptious gardenias . . . And then there was Jo Ware looking like a reg'lar florist with three bounteous big orchids . . . The old faithfuls: Nancy and Billy, beaming as usual; Gerry and Wynn; Jean Hatton and "Sugar-Lugar"; Helen Ott and Sonny; Mary Harvie and Ed Reaves—whose name is now, incidentally, "General"—; and B. Youngberg and Sonny getting "thatway" . . . The snakes (as usual not reptiles) included "Cov", who waxed especially partial to a Tech junior . . . And Sarah and Betsy Trigg and "Liz" Tennent lost no time in eyeing the "General" Reaves . . . Bill Lashley here . . . warming the cockles of the old hearts . . . And Tedo, who was incidentally getting The Rush . . everyone heckling him with their "no-breaks" . . . and to climax it all at the beginning, his great social faux pas of the evening was greeting Dr. Jarman as Dr. Walmsley (force of habit), much to the embarrassment of the Scribe, who graciously chuckled instead of blushing as she should've done . . .

Cupid? . . . Libby Bernard had little Doggett down to the dance on her bid and then when Harpoo arrived on the scene, she and John patched up their little quarrel . . . Then there were the brothers . . . Dot Childress, Crowgey, and Libby Carter do have nice ones . . . To say nothing of Lulie Jone's bon frere, Catesby . . . Ask Jean Weller about him . . . 'Tis said we'll see him again at May Day with her . . .

Then there was Moomaw, who also was in the snaking game, and as a result will date Billy Baskervill next week-end in the Magic City . . .

And Charlotte Phillips cannot go unmentioned . . . For upon seeing an old flame at the dance with another femme fatale, she immediately renewed the acquaintance and proceeded to invite the fellow to the next dance. Besides monopolizing him for the entire evening.

Added Leftovers .. .

. . . And speaking of Clinestein, ask her about Dr. Jarman and the receiving line at Pan-Hels. The prize for the longest long-distance call for the week went to Lois Baughman, who had a call from California the other night . . . Ada Claire's Bob finally arrived from Fort Knox on a twelve-day furlough. And such a welcome! All of which accounts for her being "completely out of this world" . . .

Anna George returned like the true native on Easter with the third finger left hand well covered,thanks to Johnnie . . . And then there were the wedding bells which rang quite loudly for Dot Massie and Jo Bishop . . .

Prom-trotters . . . .

Mary Lou is looking forward to Easters at Virginia with Jimmy Dodson. As are Elizabeth Ann and Mildred Pierce . . . But one of the chief dance fiends, Pagie Francis, proved to be bait for the Betas at W and L. last week-end, even though she was attending the First Class Hop at V. M. I. . . .

No Hooks or Slices Here . . .

Exhibiting good form following through her tee-off at the number one hole on the Longwood Golf Course is Peggy Allen, Farmville senior, who with other S. T. C. students has found golfing an excellent way to spend Spring afternoons.

Sports Program Introduced . . .

An activities schedule has been added to the physical fitness program which is a part of the defense plan carried on by the physical education department. Various activities will be offered from the hours of 7 o'clock to 8 o'clock in the evening. Students at this time will report to the location of the sport which they prefer and teams and contests will be organized. The swimming pool will remain open each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday night from 9:30 to 10:15 and on Saturday night from 8 to 9:30 for the benefit of those who wish to take a dip, and three life savers from the H20 club will be on guard duty at each of the specified times. Tennis courts will continue to be open for games in the afternoon when leaders will instruct in techniques and rules of the game. The entire program will continue throughout the spring quarter with each sport led by one or more members of the A. A. council.

Tennis Shoes Required . . . .

Although the tennis courts are open and occupied by many interested players, there have been a large percentage of students on the courts without the proper type of shoes for playing. It must be noted that TENNIS SHOES are necessary for anyone playing on the courts. This is a rule that must be carried out by each player. The courts have been re-marked and are now in shape f or spring playing. Go out and play, but remember the tennis shoes!

Water Carnival Nears . . .

The H20 club will present its annual water carnival next Wednesday, April 22 at 10 p. m. Frances Parham is general chairman of the entire program which will include formation swimming and diving exhibitions. Practices and plans are already underway, and quite an elaborate affair is promised.

S. T. C. Splashes with William and Mary . . .

The first swimming meet of the spring quarter has been scheduled with William and Mary College at Williamsburg on Saturday, April 18. Seven varsity swimmers will make the trip accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Burger. Ruth Dugger manager of varsity swimming, has scheduled regular practices for team members in order that they may be well prepared for the occasion, and has promised more contests with other colleges at an early date.

Duo Teams Volley For Color Points; Four Classes Battle

On Tuesday, April 7, at 9 o'clock, Green and White turned back Red and White in the competitive volley ball games held to help determine the color cup.

The seniors vied with the Freshmen and outpointed them 15 to 12. In the second game between the frosh and the juniors, the freshmen were completely handcuffed with a score of 18 to 5. The sophomores experienced a similar fate in a tough tussle with the freshmen, winning only 11 points to their 22. On a re-play, the tables turned, and the sophomores secured a well deserved 20 points to the frosh's 15.

The juniors were all out for victory, downing the seniors 17 to 12 and in a later game 14 to 12.

The last two games featured a round-robin combat between juniors and sophomores. Although the sophs won the first game with a score of 10 to 9, the juniors doled out a majority of successes to capture the volleyball points toward the color cup.

The freshman team included Helen Wilson, Bobby Scott, Sugar Baker, Beryle Roberts, Nancy Wilkerson, Eleanor Wade, Ann Payne, and Eleanor Varn.

Those playing for the sophomores were Mildred Droste, Patsy Connely, Ruth Dugger, Fay Nimmo, Vivian Gwaltney, Betty Repass, and Mary Lee Pittard.

Playing for the juniors were Margaret Kitchen, Margaret Bowling, Ellen Ebel, Elizabeth Walls, Ann Ellet, Frances Parham, and Jean Carr.

Seniors playing for Red and White were Dot Johnson, Mary Katherine Dodson, Nell Hurt, Ann Ayres, May Winn, Nelle White, Martha Roberts, and Cottie Radspinner.

Hillsman Names Athletic Council

Hallie Hillsman, newly elected president of the Athletic Association, has announced the incoming A. A. Council which will be installed tomorrow, April 16, during chapel.

They include varsity hockey, Sara Hardy; general hockey, Helen Wilson; varsity basketball, Sara Wade Owen; general basketball, Bobbie Scott; freshman basketball, Jean Carr; varsity swimming, Mildred Droste; general tennis, Sugar Baker; volleyball, Elizabeth Walls; archery, Sara Jeffreys; archery assistant, Margaret Kitchin; badminton, Eleanor Wade; shuffle board, ping pong, and croquet, Dottie Sue Simmons; baseball, Dot Darracott; social, Nellie Varn; publicity, Shirley Pierce and Ann Berry, posters.

Other officers of the A. A. are vice-president, Shirley Turner; secretary, Patsy Connelly; and treasurer, Ruth Dugger.

Pegasus Club Makes Plans For Spring Horse Show To Be Given April 17

Plans for the Spring Horse Show and Riding Contest will be made at the Pegasus meeting on Friday, April 17. The event has been scheduled for May. Miss Stella Fox, riding instructor announced earlier this week.

There will be five classes, including junior and senior beginners, junior and senior intermediates and advanced classes. An open horsemanship class will be provided for those S. T. C. students who do not take riding lessons.

Classes in horsemanship, three-gaited and five-gaited riding, jumping, old Virginia riding, and costuming will be open to Farmville riders. These classes, with the exception of horsemanship, will also be open to S. T. C. students.

More than one hundred riders are expected to participate in the Horse Show and Riding Contest, and approximately thirty - five horses have been entered to date.

In addition to plans for the Spring event, new officers will be elected at the Pegasus meeting on Friday night.

Dramatic Tourney

Virginia. On Friday night Mr. Albright will again serve as judge with Mrs. Thomas B. Gresham, head of the Little Theater League in Lynchburg, and Phillip Ropp, professor at Hampden-Sydney College. Dr. Bell and Mrs. Gresham will with Kenneth Erfft, head of dramatics at Petersburg High School, serve as judges on Saturday night.

Admission to the tournament is fifteen cents for one night and thirty cents for all three. Tickets may be bought at the door.

S. T. C.'s Varsity Crew Will Provide Stiff Competition

Farmville S. T. C. varsity swimming team will meet the college of William and Mary on Saturday, April 18, in Williamsburg. The team will leave here Saturday morning and return Sunday and will be accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Burger.

Farmville swimmers will compete in the 100-yard free style relay, the 40-yard breast stroke contest, the 40-yard back stroke, and 40-yard free style relays, diving, the 60 yard medley relay, and the 80 yard free style relay.

Those making the trip will be Dorothy Darracott, Ruth Dugger, Nancy Dupuy, Ellen Ebel, Frances Parham, Shirley Pierce, and Gloria Pollard, who make up the varsity swimming team.

Ruth Dugger, manager of the team, has announced that at present plans are being made for swimming meets with other colleges in Virginia and will be held at an early date.

Pan-Hels Provide Gay Week-end . . .

In a setting of very defenseful blue and white decorations, Pan-Hels went off with a bang Saturday night with a bevy of stags to capture the favor of the date line. Highlights of the evening were Freddie Lee's congas and jive . . . And then the special "No-breaks" . . . Along with sorority intermission parties.

Among those present with dates were Caroline Bargamin, Dick Clark; Virginia Mae Ellett, Cecil Carpenter; Mildred Ames, Hugh Mackey; June Smith, Cosby Summerhill; Nancy Watts, Billy Hanbury; Nancy Langhorne, Tom Langhorne; Gene Eardy Kilmon, Marshall Doswell; Frances Wentzel, John Gayle; Lucille Lewis, Tom Armstrong; Lena Butterworth, Robert Little; Kendall Nottingham, Jimmie Fowden; Stella Scott, Albert Smith; Catherine Dunton, Bill Lyle; Ella Marsh Pilkinton, Bob Fuller; Libby Bernard, John Doggett; Dot Childress, Sonny Childress; Polly Keller, John Terrell; Ellen Royall, Tommy Smith; Nancye Allen, James Gordon; Emma Louise Crowgey, Hugh Crowgey; Hattie Cantrell, Bill Lashley; Sara Cline, Dave Wolf; Hilah Lee Parks, Hilston Ryan; May Winn, Webb Johnson; Broadnax Harrison, Dick Bridgeforth; Mary Harvie, Ed Reaves; Mary Evelyn Pearsall, Roland Pearsall; Hannah Lee Crawford, Horace Adams; Sara Jeffreys, Jack Price; Lindsay Watkins, Ruper Droope; Dodie Jones, Doug Coffey; Mildred Pierce, Bob Irby; EmilyIrby, Buster Smith; Jean Hatton, Bill Lugar; Jane Sanford, Tedo Savage; Jo Brumfield, Dick Garnett; Peggy Bellus, Richard Corwall; Jane Lee Hutcheson, Blanton Hanbury; Kitten Easterly, Forrest Jeesee; Emily Wescott, Bill Gladden; Nancy Naff, Billy Austin; Anne Turner, Ace Livick; Jane Scott, Tom Veneris; Mildred Corvin, Bobby Dixon; Eleanor Folk, Fred Smith;and Jane Brown, Pat Paulett . . .

Other Dances . . .

Missing at the Kappa Sigma parties at Hampden-Sydney were many of the S. T. C. girls who had planned to attend when first-minute plans of the Kappa Sigs provided for the parties to be held during Easter . . . Missing also were the usual colorful display of decorations and corsages . . . For to comply with present conditions the dates were given war saving stamps and the decorations were simple. Among the more fortunate town girl students attending were Helen Wiley Hardy, Louise McCorkle, Hannah Lee Crawford, Elva Andrews, and Carolyn Smith . . .

Among those off to Easters at V. M. I. were Anne Page Francis, Janet Jackson. Helen Gilliam, Nancy Williams, and Mary Jane Ritchie. Joel Palmer furnished the music for the occasion and proved to be a virtual Benny Goodman.

Belles and Wedding Bells . . .

Honeymooning in Florida is Dot Massey of Amherst who was married to Perkins Faulkner at her home Thursday, April 9.

The engagement of Jane Lee Hutcheson to Blanton Hanbury was announced Easter Sunday. The wedding will take place in the Fall after Blanton returns from four months training in the V-7 Naval Reserve course at Notre Dame.

Sorority Socials . . .

The members of Pi Kappa Sigma sorority were entertained at a banquet at Longwood on Friday, April 10. Toasts were given by Ellen Royall, Margaret Bowling, Alice Seebert, Frances Adams, Elsie Smith and Virginia Ellett.

S. T. C. To Observe War Week May 4-8

All-out War Drive To Wake Up College

Nancy Naff, chairman of the College War Council announced yesterday that War Week, to be observed May 4-8, will be opened by a special prayer's service in Joan Court on Monday morning May 4.

Tentative plans for the week include a flag raising service at sunrise Tuesday. On Wednesday Dr. James Elliott Walmsley will bring news knowledge up to date with a news analysis in Chapel. Thursday will be considered Conservation Day and a booth for the sale of War Saving stamps will be set up in the Rotunda. On Friday there will be a practice air raid. The week's program will reach a climax with a flag lowering service on Friday evening.

Each night emphasis at prayers will be placed on the students' part in the war and particular attention will be paid to the whistle which blows each night at 9 o'clock for prayer.

Student members of the War Council are Nancy Naff, Agnes Patterson, Frances Rosebro, Amy Read, Betty Boutchard, Mary Katherine Dodson, Faye Nimmo, Mary Evelyn Pearsall, Ann Blair, Caroline Eason, Betty Youngberg, Sara Cline, Jane Sanford, Charlotte Greeley, Mary Hunter Edmunds, Eleanor Folk, Dot Childress, Spilly Purdum, Jean Hatton, Shirley Turner, Nell Richards, Nancy Allen, and Libby Bernard.

A.C.E. Will Present Musical Program

The Farmville Chapter of the Association of Childhood Education will sponsor a musical program given by the children of the Elementary School on Friday evening, April 24, at 8 o'clock in the large auditorium. A silver offering will be taken at the door and the proceeds used for the English child whom the A. C. E. Chapter has adopted.

Caroline Eason will begin the program with a talk on "What Music Means to Children". This will be followed by the First Grade Rhythm Band which will play "March" from Aida, "Turkey

Rogers Leads Boerc eh Thorn; Youngberg Selected Vice-Head

Rosalie Rogers, a junior from the Eastern Shore of Virginia, was elected president of Boerc Eh Thorn, honorary English society, at the meeting of the members on Thursday night, April 16. She will succeed May Wertz in this position.

Betty Youngberg copped the position of vice-president to replace Jo Brumfield, and Jeanne Strick will take over the office of secretary, succeeding Rachel Abernathy. Betty Reid will serve as treasurer, and Virginia Sedgley will replace Eleanor Folk as historian, while Marie Davis will hold the office of corresponding secretary.

At the same meeting a resolution was introduced and passed which will eliminate the annual spring picnic this year. The money instead will be used to assist in the purchase of First Aid Kits for the various dormitories in the college.

Boerc Eh Thorn has become an outstanding organization on the State Teachers College campus in the past several years and has sponsored the appearance of many noted authors and lecturers during that time. Robert Frost, Carl Sandburg, John Erskine, and Nancy Byrd Turner are among those who have appeared on this campus under the auspices of Boerc Eh Thorn. This year Charles Morgan, English critic and author, was presented by this society in the Fall, and early in the Spring, Robert Peter Tristram Coffin's lectures were sponsored by this group.

Successful Season Terminated by Choir With W. & M. Concert

The college choir of Farmville State Teachers College gave a concert in the Phi Beta Kappa auditorium of William and Mary Wednesday, April 15 at 8 o'clock p. m.

The madrigal group, Junior A' capella, Senior A'capella, and the choir all presented selections. Professor Allan Sly and John Stewart Bryan, president of William and Mary, entertained the choir at a dinner. Professor and Mrs. Sly gave a concert here last fall, and at that time invited the choir to come to William and Mary.

Solos were by Peggy Bellus who sang "Ave Maria", and Patricia Maddox who sang "None But The Lonely Heart".

The concert was a program of religious music with the selection "How Lovely is thy Dwelling Place" chosen for presentation. The entire choir sang "Sing Unto God" at the end of the program. This was the selection that the choir sang at Saint Thomas's

Popular Lecturer Makes Return Visit

"Individuals Seeking the Best Life Today" is the theme of Mrs. Jessie Burrall Eubank's lectures on the campus which began Monday and will extend through Saturday.

Mrs. Eubank spoke in chapel yesterday morning and this morning and will lecture Friday and Saturday on marriage.

Monday night Mrs. Eubank talked with the senior class, Tuesday the junior class, and Thursday night, the freshmen in Student Lounge and on Friday night she will speak to the sophomores in the Y. W. C. A. lounge On Thursday and Friday after-

In the top photo is pictured Mary Hunter Edmunds, who is the first honor graduate and valedictory speaker of the graduating senior class in June. To her right are Jane Lee Hutcheson and Sara Cline, who tied for second honor, the latter being chosen to make the salutatory address.

Lancaster, Hicks To Make Addresses

Dr. Dabney B. Lancaster, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, will be the principal speaker at graduation, according to an announcement made by Mr. T. A. McCorkle, chairman of the Commencement program, last night.

Prior to his appointment by former Governor James A. Price as State Superintendent, Dr. Lancaster had served as a member of the State Board of Education. He also worked for some time at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute under the leadership of Dr. Joseph Eggleston, now president emeritus of Hampden-Sydney College.

Dr. J. Emerson Hicks, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Bristol, Va., will deliver the Baccalaureate address on Sunday, May 31.

Important Senior Positions Copped by Three for First Time

Mary Hunter Edmunds, of Danville, was named first honor graduate and valedictorian for the class of 1942 according to an announcement made by Dr. J. L. Jarman in chapel on Friday, April 17. Sara Cline, of Roanoke, and Jane Lee Hutcheson, of Farmville, were named second honor graduates. This is the first time in the history of the school that two girls have tied for either first or second honor positions.

Mary Hunter Edmunds concluded her college work with a 2.94 average, while the two second honor students have a 2.84 average. The valedictory address will be made as usual by the first honor student, while Sara Cline will make the salutatory address at the commencement exercises.

Edmunds President of Scholastic Fraternity

While taking her first two years of college work at Stratford Junior College in Danville, Mary Hunter Edmunds was business manager of the Stratford newspaper, vice-president of the class of '38, president of the International Relations Club, and valedictorian of her class. While at State Teachers College, she has held the positions of president of Kappa Delta Pi, vice-president of Pi Gamma Mu, and co-chairman of May Day dances for this year. She has also had the leading roles in two Dramatic Club productions, "What Every Woman Knows", and "First Lady".

Cline Edits Rotunda

Sara Cline was editor-in-chief of The Rotunda this year as well as editor of two other publications, The Alumnae Magazine, and The Tributum of Sigma Pi Rho. She also held membership in Boerc Eh Thorn and Kappa Delta Pi.

Hutcheson Heads Latin Society

Jane Lee Hutcheson was president of the local chapter of Sigma Pi Rho her senior year, a member of Orchesis for two years, head of the Town Girls' Committee of the Y.W.C.A., and a member of the honorary societies, Kappa Delta Pi, Pi Gamma Mu, Boerc Eh Thorn, and Beta Pi Theta.

NOTICE

All Rotunda editorial staff members must attend the meeting at 9:30 o'clock tonight in the publication office.

Barry McKinley To Lead Off Gala Cotillion Week End

Anne Boswell, president of the Cotillion Club, has announced that Barry McKinley and his orchestra from Richmond will play for the annual Spring Cotillion tea dance and formal on May 9 in the college gymnasium.

Mary Lou Shannon, leader of the Cotillion Club, will lead the figure with James Dodson, senior at the University of Virginia.

Decorations for the dance will be simple and will be done by the new members of the club.

The band of Barry McKinley, who for many years was a prominent radio vocalist before organizing his own group, has been a featured orchestra in Richmond for the past several months. The group consists of four saxes, two trumpets, two trombones, piano, bass, and drums.

As a singer, McKinley appeared on such programs as the Lucky Strike Hit Parade, with Russ Morgan on the Phillip Morris program, the Ford Sunday Evening Hour, and the Gruen watch program. He has made a number of popular recordings, and his rise to prominence began about nine years ago when he began work as a singer at radio station WLW in Cincinnati.

Other officers of the club who will assist in leading the Spring formal figure areAnne Boswell, Dorothy Lawrence, secretary - treasurer, and Hattie Cantrell, business manager. Their escorts will be announced at a later date.

Concentrated Work Begins on May Day

Mass rehearsals for May Day began in the gym on Monday, April 20, and will continue there through tomorrow. Tonight at 7:30 p. m. the first dress rehearsal will be held in the gym, May Wertz, general chairman announced today.

Next week rehearsals will be held every afternoon at Longwood, the scene of May Day.

Dance forms for May Day include Indian tempoes, Military forms, Negro dances, May Pole dances, English, Irish and Scotch folk dancing and several presentations by the modern dance class.

Mary Lou Shannon will be crowned queen by Jane McGinnis, representing Alexander Spotswood. In the court are Nancy Naff, maid of honor, Dot Childress, Buff Gunter, Sara Hardy, Mary Lou Tribble, Polly Keller, Gay Ward Brown, Helen Wiley Hardy, Allene Overbey, Ann Bradshaw, Agnes Patterson, Nancy Dashiell, Pi Cottrell, May Wertz, Ann Boswell, Dot Lawrence, Cottie Radspinner, Frances Rosebro, and Sarah Massie Goode.

May Wertz, general chairman for May Day is being assisted by the following girls as chairman of May Day committees, dance, Mary Hunter Edmunds and Ann

By JANE WARING RUFFIN

Paper Progresses In 22 Years

On October 29, 1920, the first issue of the student paper at State Teachers College appeared under the editorship of Helen Skilliman and under the heading of The Dummy. For four issues following, the weekly newspaper of State Normal School for Females at Farmville was The Dummy, and not until, after searching far and wide, was a name found for the paper "right here at home". The Rotunda was then christened as such and has remained under the same name since.

In developing from a small three-column, four page paper to its present size and appearance, The Rotunda has undergone many changes. The first heading contained the paper's name entwined in a sketch of the railing on the interior of the Rotunda building. Later the heading was a cut of the entire main building of the college, and finally became only The Rotunda.

There have also been changes in print, in the paper used, and in the style of writing. The "dog ears" were added early in the paper's life, and by the time it was several years old, The Rotunda even carried pictures each week. In its youth it was filled with poetry, jokes, and organization columns. And consequently as the content of the paper changed, the organization of the staff changed frequently. At one time there were eight associate editors, news, organizations, athletics, YWCA, joke, literary, exchange, and alumnae editors.

The Rotunda volumes contain a complete history of S. T. C. for the past 22 years. Recorded on its pages are the arrival and departure of teachers and classes, changes in rules and regulations,

Volumes Disclose Unusual Customs

improvements, and much about the town of Farmville.

In the older issues much space was given the articles covering the erection of Jarman Hall, better known as Student Building. The issue of November 11, 1922, carried a cut of Dr. J. L. Jarman breaking the ground for the building, and a December, 1925, issue carried the first picture of the completed structure.

The Rotunda has recorded the appearance and disappearance of many customs at S. T. C. One of the most interesting of the early innovations was the practice of having each class edit an issue of the paper sometime during the year without the assistance of the staff. In 1925 when rat rules were first made, the freshman class issue of The Rotunda appeared printed on red

Plea for Prayer

Prayer is needed today. Especially for men in the service—those here at home and those who have joined in actual pursuit. Prayer is a thing that we can rely upon, not just as a medicine for every little ill; but prayer constitutes thanksgiving and repentance as well as pleading for guidance.

It is true that we do not know all the men in the service, but God does. We, as church goers, are too prone to make the church our only place for prayer. We must realize that God is everywhere—even in the Phillipines and Manila Bay and He does not require a church or any particular problem in order to be spoken to. We are certainly being affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age if we take the stand that praying went out with the Victorian era. We can see in our own President one who trusts in communion with God through prayer. we must preserve that same faith, so that we can be sure of a tomorrow with everlasting peace.

—J. S.

'Divide and Conquer'

Warning that the Axis powers are cutting loose with every trick in their bag of propaganda magic in an attempt to destroy our national unity, the Office of Facts and Figures recently circulated a pamphlet designed to put its readers on guard against a type of warfare which has served Hitler so well in his drive to remake the map of Europe.

Entitled "Divide and Conquer," the pamphlet reveals some of the devices by which Hitler scored all-important spiritual victories in France and other continental nations before setting his machine of physical destruction into motion, then warns that our enemies, in an attempt "to destroy our national unity, create unrest in all groups of the population, and deflect us from our major purpose—the defeat of the Axis—" are trying "to set capital against labor, white against Negro, Catholic against Protestant, Christian against Jew."

These, warns the OFF, are the things which Hitler wants us to believe:

That Democracy is dying.
That our armed forces are weak.
That the "New Order" is inevitable.
That we are lost in the Pacific.
That our West Coast is in such grave danger that there is no point in fighting on.
That the British are decadent, and "sold us a bill of goods."
That the cost of the war will bankrupt the nation.
That civilian sacrifices will be more than we can bear.
That Stalin is getting too strong, and Bolshevism will sweep over Europe.
That our leaders are incompetent, our Government incapable of waging war.
That aid to our allies must stop.

That we must bring all our troops and weapons back to the United States, and defend only our own shores.

That American democracy will be lost during the war.

Hitler's propaganda strategy will follow no set pattern, warns the OFF pamphlet. "One line will be pursued today, another tomorrow. But always his broad aims will be the same: to separate us from our allies by arousing distrust of them; to create friction within the United States in order to divert us from our true enemy—the Axis; to paralyze our will to fight.

To illustrate the subtlety of Nazi methods, the OFF points to the story about the Englishman, Dutchman, Frenchmen and Greek who were flying toward England in a crippled plane. To lighten the load and save the plane, advised the pilot, some people would have to jump out. The Frenchman and the Dutchman promptly dove out the door. "For our countries!" they cried. The plane still faltered, and the pilot called for one more to sacrifice his life. The Englishman arose, his face grave. "For England!" he said solemnly—pushing the Greek overboard.

The story, first told by German propagandists, was widely circulated by unwitting people who failed to realize its aim: "to create contempt for our ally, and leave the impression that other people fight his battles."

Such is one of the types of warfare employed by our enemies—a type which all of us can help combat.

Difficile Dictu

The problem of administration-student relationship sometimes presents difficult situations and the criticism and apparent misunderstanding of the former is often a sore subject.

One has only to seek higher help to concur with such hurdles as reluctance to be of assistance, a none too whole-hearted approval of plans that are generally considered of definite value to the prestige of the school, and unwillingness to adopt or understand a student's viewpoint.

Such cases are, of course, rare among the administration considered as a whole; most of the teachers and home heads are eager to aid in situations where their aid is sought. But exceptions tend to overrule normalities and sometimes the exceptions are not too easily forgotten . . . notably when objections and refusals seem baseless.

Criticism by the higher authorities and heads seems unfair when a better plan of spending time, of entertainment, if that be the case, is not proposed and initiated.

We are young and can rightfully err. Youth can only be guided by its experiences and those of its predecessors superior in age and life situations.

Eager as we are to unite this existing relationship, we are hand-tied and helpless without the common understanding and genuine assistance of our faculty and home heads.

"Every high school, junior college and college should provide selected courses designated as National Service courses and should require every student to select a series of such courses that would prepare him to meet the nation's need. Rigid standards should be maintained and provision should be made to refreshed courses. Willions of children and youth moving steadily through the schools, trained and ready to meet any national emergency would cause schools to rise to the challenge."—Dr. Frank W. Hart.

All About A . . .

Senior Personality

CAROLINE EASON
Past President of A. K. G.

Faithful, competent, willing, Caroline Eason is always ready to help when there is help to be given. She is known to all by her gracious smile and her friendly disposition.

Those of us who have come to know her intimately value her judgement and esteem her sincerity of motive and character.

Keenly disposed to understanding and actively capable, her ability to live and work with people is perhaps best seen through her work in the Training School. For four years she has served there in many capacities—managing the playground and supervising the classroom with equal interest and efficiency.

But her influence is felt far beyond her sphere of major work. She has served on Student Government for four years and her judgement has been in every way fair and reliable. As president of Alpha Kappa Gamma leadership circle she has exemplified the qualities of that organization through charm and grace of character and womanly service.

"Miss Eason" will always find a place in the hearts of those who know her.

A Seat At The Cinema

Friday and Saturday, April 24 and 25, the State offers an opportunity that none of us will want to miss—that of seeing Carole Lombard in her last picture "To Be Or Not To Be" costars Jack Benny at his best in a surprisingly different comic role. The internationally famous Ernst Lubitsch's says, "Directing Miss Lombard was a rich experience. Her reactions were always instantaneous—her answers were like a flash of lightning. Although Carole was keyed up at times and worked quickly with tightly recoiled reactions to every bit of action, emotion and setting, she was an entirely different person off the set. Happy disposition, quick wit and boundless enthusiasm gave her an ability to make friends that few people possess."

The gay, sparkling Noel Coward farce "We Were Dancing" coming Monday and Tuesday, April 27 and 28 will be something to look forward to after the week-end. The ever charming Norma Shearer and one of Hollywood's most in demand stars Melvyn Douglas, are devilishly captivating as professional guests. Their love affairs are very involved or did you guess?

"Sullivan's Travels" brings the all-too-welcomed Veronica Lake and Joel McCrea to the State Wednesday and Thursday, April 29 and 30. This picture directed by the interesting and original Sturges mixes satire, slapstick, drama, melodrama and comedy. With all of this it has many novel hilarious moments. McCrea as a director, under the name of Sullivan, hobos with the underprivileged. This gives the picture its name and McCrea a chance to team up with Veronica Lake—What an explosion when this blonde bundle of concentrated dynamite bumps into Sullivan in a lunch wagon at 2:30 A. M. one morning. Bingo! They're off on the wildest series of mad adventures that ever made your heart spin.

Question of the Week

What will be one of your most "remembered memories" of your life in college?

Louise Rice: The association with the other girls from every section of the state and other states.

Gwen Long: The different Springs and all the things I've done in them.

Frances Rosebro: Friday chapel—seeing the Seniors and marching to the Alma Mater.

Louisa Sanford: The times I walked as a little sister in the daisy chain and the lantern parade, never realizing that some day I would be the graduating senior myself.

Jane Engleby—Bull sessions in the wee hours—visiting on my rounds at night.

Harriett Scott: Commencement in 1941. Especially that Commencement!

Texie Belle Felts: I'd say the pleasures I've had working in extra-curricula activities.

Nellie Smith: Lyceums and May Day fetes. Rooming with a Puerto Rican, too.

Katherine Gough: Rat week last fall.

Florence Thierry: The sense of peace and fellowship at prayers. And the closeness of other people to you when you need them most. The eternal spirit of cooperation which still amazes me. But I could go on and on . . .

Betsy Austin: The first time I walked down the aisle in Chapel in my cap and gown and my high and mighty sophomore year.

Lucy Ellen Powell: The weeknds and the Septembers when I had just come back.

Kay Spencer: First Spring horseback ride we took in the country and the picnic afterwards.

Lillian German: The inspiration received from working with different professors.

Arlene Hunt: Cooking and eating in my room! Long hikes in the Spring. Studying—and well, everything!

Louise Phillips: Hikes to Longwood.

Irma Graff: Cabin parties at Longwood with the A. A.

BETWEEN YOU 'N' ME AND . . .

The Gatepost

(Who hears an awful lot)

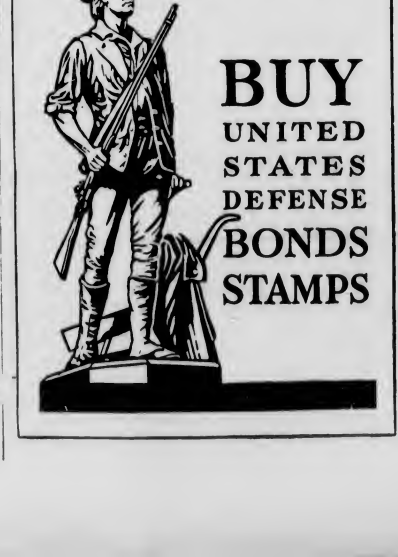
Gay Ward Brown has joined the other members of her class it seems, now that she has just received that little emblem from "Sam'l."

Grace Ellerton takes a little trip to Williamsburg with the swimming team and returns with a bid to finals . . .

The chosen few are getting mighty eager about Ring Dance . . . Ott and Sexton can't wait for those miniatures . . .

Nancy Naff is really the most excited girl on campus. Question of the Week: Will she live until May 3.

'Tis heard that Margaret Bowling had a rare party last week-end—even Campfield's Jerry was there.



Betty Reid was also hostess to another mighty wild crew namely, Hurt, Gray, Weller, and Cline. Details of the cabin party have not been fully revealed, but each is paying "hush money" especially "B".

The love bug seems to have got Kitty Parrish but also the confusion bug—for May Day dates just ask her.

Virginia Alexander seems to be having man trouble in a big way. The young lady was overheard asking for a blind date for May Day.

Mary K. Zehmer was a lil' bit (?) embarrassed last week when Mrs. Tabb called out to her at the tea room, "You look so pretty. It's a shame Tynes can't see you now."—And there sat Nancy Hughes—Oh, well, Kit, you saw him first.

Then there was the girl who had the U. of Va. boy down to Pan Hels and there was another girl who snaked him. The first girl refused his bid to Easters, but after a slight correspondence with the second he invited her—she had other week-end plans so could not go either—Moral: when you have a date watch for snakes—anything can happen! We purposely omitted the names but the parties concerned know.

Tankmen Stroke to 30-30 Tie

Seven Swimmers Uphold STC Fame

Farmville S. T. C. varsity swimming team tied a 33 to 33 score with William and Mary girl team last Saturday evening, April 12 in Williamsburg. This marked the second meet of the year, the first being the intercollegiate telegraphic meet in which Farmville placed fourth and William and Mary placed third, for this district.

Seven varsity swimmers, Nancy Dupuy, Ellen Ebel, Ruth Dugger, Gloria Pollard, Dot Darracott, and Grace Ellerton, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Burger, represented Farmville in the meet.

Starting at 7 P. M. in the athletic pool of William and Mary, both teams gathered to start the numerous events scheduled. The first event was the forty yard free style with Dugger and Pierce swimming for Farmville. This race was won by William and Mary. Following was the forty yard breast stroke with Dupuy and Ebel placing first and second. Ellerton placed first in the back crawl and Pollard third. Swimming in the 100 yard free style for Farmville were Darracott and Pierce who placed second and third, respectively. Pollard was Farmville's diving representative and ranked first place in the diving class.

The final races included a 75 yard medley with Ellerton, Dupuy, and Dugger swimming for Farmville, and chalking up another win. Another mark was scored for S. T. C. by Darracott, Dupuy, Dugger, and Pollard in the 100 yard relay.

paper with the announcement, "We are proud to admit that we are rats, but we're prouder still to say that we're not green. Just look at us. We're red all over!"

And among the dining room regulations printed in an early issue was the rule, "Avoid the old fashioned style of pantalettes. Do not wear bedroom slippers to the dining room—low heels are not dressy."

As well as the development of S. T. C., The Rotunda records the changes in Farmville. The building of the Southside Hospital and the Weyanoke Hotel were scoops for the paper only approximately fifteen years ago. And Shannons has gradually progressed in its advertisements in the paper, for through the years it has been known first as Shannon's Home Bakery, Shannon's Soda Shop and Bakery, and last, but not least, Shannon's Rose Room.

All ready for an ace is Sugar Baker, student tennis instruc-tor, who is beginning a serve to her unseen opponent in a practice set on the college courts in preparation for the coming tennis tournament.

Hockey Camp Opens In August At Pocono

The twenty-first season of the Hockey and Lacrosse Camp for coaches, clubs, and college play-ers will open for three weekly ses-sions on Thursday, August 27th at 3:00 o'clock at Camp Tega-witha, Mt. Pocono, Pennsylvania.

Coaching will include practice and match games, instruction on strokes, tactics, and discussion groups on coaching, playing, um-piring, and organization of teams. In the evenings a period has been set aside for English Country Dancing.

Any students interested in at-tending this year's camping sea-son is asked to notify Hallie Hills-man or Miss Olive T. Iler, who have the necessary entry blanks. Students who attend in groups and at the same period will be entered a special price so it is necessary that plans be complet-ed at an early date.

Cheatwood Heads Pegasus Riders

On Friday night, April 17, Joyce Cheatwood, freshman, was elected president of Pegasus, riding club, for the coming year. She will succeed Kay Spencer in this po-sition.

Polly Cammack, freshman, was chosen vice-president to replace Nelle White. Gloria Pollard, sopho-more, will succeed Buff Gunter as treasurer, and Rebecca Spicer, sophomore was re-elected secre-tary.

On Friday afternoon, May 8, the members of Pegasus will ride to Longwood to attend a picnic supper. Ann Page Francis will be in charge of the arrangements for the supper.

Spring Horse Show Slated for May 23

Saturday, May 23, is the date set for the Spring Horse Show and Riding Contest, Joyce Cheat-wood, recently elected president of Pegasus, the riding club, an-nounced this week.

There will be equitation classes open to all S. T. C. students, and classes open only to Farmville owners and riders, in which only the rider's general skill in hand-ling the horse will be judged.

Cups and ribbons will be award-ed to first prize winners in each class. Ribbons will be given to those placing second, third, and fourth. There will be a small en-trance fee for each class.

Carnival Exhibits Aquatic Talents

Pool Transformed Into Desert Isle

On Thursday, April 23, at 9 o'clock, the college pool will be the gally bedecked scene of the annual water carnival.

The story of the carnival is the entertainment given by na-tives of a South Sea Island to the captain of ship while he is under the influence of Morpheus. In his dream the captain is crowned by the natives and there follows a gala celebration, consisting div-ing, singing and formations in the water. The carnival is in pantomine, with Jean Hatton reading the script.

Those who will enter in the for-mations and diving are Ruth Dug-ger, Gloria Pollard, Barbara Scott, Marion Orange, Janet Jackson, Sherry Knight, Dot Darracott, Margaret Kitchin, Ellen Ebel and Frances Mallory. Also Jane Mose-ly, Frances Parham, Jane Brown, Virginia Edward, Evelyn Chris-tian, Harriette Moore, Grace El-lerton, Nellie Varn and Shirley Pierce.

The islanders, who will wear sorongs and lais, are Betty Ag-new, Nancy Harrell, Mary Ann Jarrett, Louise Turner, Ann Mar-tenstein, Marguerite Sizemore, Helen Wilson, Ann Berry, Mildred Ames, Betty Cross, Betsy Cald-well, Jean Garland, Ruth Parker and Ophelia Whittle. Also Elea-nor Wade, Nancy Wilkinson, Gwen Sampson, Mary Lou Tri-ble, Helen Gillum, Mary White, Beryl Roberts, Julia Glenn, Mar-ilyn Johnson, Mildred Cook, Mar-tha Patterson, Patsy Crews, Vera Pifer, Margaret Barksdale, and Sugar Baker.

Dick Butterworth will take the part of the captain.

A Clean-up Campaign:

For the town of Farmville the week of April 20 to April 25 a campaign of real, persistent, and constructive effort will be conducted to make our town a cleaner and more attractive place place to live. In this worthy move-ment Mayor W. C. Fitzpatrick asks that each individual make an effort to keep our community clean, healthy, safe, and beautiful. With such a widespread campaign made throughout Farmville it is hoped that S. T. C. students will cooperate to the fullest with the town people in order to make the effort one of success. Since our range of living leads us beyond our campus grounds we may not only con-tinue to promote an attractive and clean campus, but use waste cans elsewhere.

Freshman in the Sports

Freshmen are now engaged in a wide physical fitness program similar to that carried on by upperclassmen. Two classes of physical education each week are required with an additional period left for any recreational sport such as tennis, golf, or archery. This third class is taken at a specified time and taught by a student manager or instruc-tor, but does not interfere with the program in the evenings from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. which is set aside for juniors and seniors.

Tennis Sets Are Popular

Each day there has been a rush for the tennis courts and because of this demand, a chart has been posted on the A. A. bulletin board which notes the hours the courts are open for playing. In order to reserve a court for the day, you must sign up on the posted notice. Such a procedure will be carried on throughout the spring quarter. Instruc-tion will be given any afternoon from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m. and during the evening recreation period. All girls signed up for the TENNIS TOURNAMENT will begin matches the latter part of this week. "Sugar" Baker, manager of gen-eral tennis, is in charge of the tournament and will have a chart posted indicating opponents and positions. Every-one using the tennis courts are again requested to use regulation tennis shoes while playing and no bare feet on the courts. This request is made by Miss Olive T. Iler and must be noted by every player.

Badminton and Archery

New equipment has been ordered to be added to the badminton supplies. Badminton courts will be set up be-hind the College library and games will begin this week.

Sara Jeffreys, manager of archery, assisted by Mar-garet Kitchin conducts classes each evening for upper-classmen from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. in the achery meadow with five targets now in use.

Swimming Varsity Ties W. & M.

S. T. C. varsity swimming team splashed a 33 to 33 tie with William and Mary College squad at Williamsburg on Saturday, April 18. This marks the first out of town meet scheduled this year. Our team was composed of seven win-ners including Ruth Dugger, manager.

Students Evacuate Shannon's; Migrate to S. T. C. Sundecks

By LULIE JONES

The Weather Man is showing quite a sunny side to Farmville girls, for he has been beaming down upon them full blast for the past couple weeks. The sun-worshippers have, in turn, been no less responsive if roof reports have any basis. Rain protectors over the dining room and junior building are finding new uses for sun-hungry girls who eagerly crowd their surface each day during sun hours.

Local coke joints are being deserted daily for basking in the sun. Testing the veracity of such an unbelievable idea, we went trekking off to Shannons only to find it void of its usual stampeding multitudes. In other words we were completely without associates and other display shops were equally bare.

We realized why when we became aware of the neatly tanned legs, blushing faces, peeling noses, and burning backs which have resulted from too long peeks at the sun. The lilly white damsel of the not too distant winter time is a thing burrowed in memory. Why the sun bathers hereabouts are giving the ancient sunlovers quite a deal for popularity. Their ceaseless acts of praise are daily and long.

That the sun-total of results are gratifying is obvious. Farmville has become a veritable summer resort even though it lacks the traditional sand, umbrellas, and beach combers. Our fine grain sand has proved to be nothing more than fully-developed hard gravels, but which nevertheless serve well the purpose.

So we're all in favor of the school's declaring a blanket leave to bring out the native in us full force. We're for browner and more sun-worshippers and the delightful salmon pinked creatures who wander herabouts.

Price Will Head TSU For Second Year

At the regular meeting of Theta Sigma Upsilon on April 7, Anne Price was re-elected president of Tau Chapter of Theta Sigma Upsilon Sorority. Anne Garnett will succeed Mary Charlotte Jones as vice-president, and Alice Belote will replace Ruth Fraughnaugh as secretary. Taking Mildred Bowen's place as treasurer will be Katherine Dunton, whose position as Pan Hellenic representative will be filled by Marjorie Lee. June Smith, the former editor, will be succeeded by Kathleen Jones.

May Day Facts and Figures

Figures for the 1942 May Day present more interesting forms than those of previous years. Financial figures reveal that over $900 is being spent for costuming and over $100 for general properties this year alone.

Helping with the festival are more than 300 students from all four classes or approximately one-third of the student body. Thirty-five hours are being spent in mass rehearsals, a time which is equivalent to three school days.

Yardage for May Day materials in the costumes has reached 1,500 yards. If all the materials were laid end-to-end, a path from the college to Longwood, the scene of the festival, would be very elegantly furnished.

Covering the more intriguing figures are a variety of costumes, which will be predominately in pastel shades. Period costumes are to be used for the court, May Pole dancers, children, and Spotwood's men, the folk dancers, Indians, and negroes will wear the typical dress of their respective groups.

W. and L. Band Will Swing Forth May 2

The Washington and Lee Collegians will furnish music for the Virginian dance on the night of May 2, Anne Ayers, editor of the annual revealed this week. The decorations will follow the May Day theme.

in the Straw", "Pizzicati" and "The Anvil Chorus".

The third part of the program will be composed of "Walking in the Sunshine", "Animal Parade", "Wooden Soldier March", and "Waltz Rythms". Spring songs by the Kindergarten and junior primary grades will be "This is my Father's World", "For the Beauty of the Earth", "Haste Thee, Nymph", 'All the Girds are Here Again', "Music in the Air", and "The Lark".

Singing games of the second grade group will include "Pop Goes the Weasel", "Little Bo-Peep", "Indian War Dance", "The Circus", and "The Cowboy". The Second and Third groups will present "Jolly Miller", "Froggie Would A-Wooing Go", and "You Can Defend America".

Following this the fourth, fifth and sixth grades will continue the program with "The Fiddle Song" and "Fair Hills and Valleys". Popular songs by the sixth grade group will consist of "Any Bonds Today?", "Deep in the Heart of Texas", and "The White Cliffs of Dover". "The Mill", "April's Wand", "Stars of a Summer Night", and "The Daffodils" are the selections of the Fifth Grade. "Welcome Sweet Springtime", "Santa Lucia", and "What Can We Do?", sung by the fourth grade will conclude the program.

Bridge and Fun En Francais Confuse and Amuse French Fans

The French have a word for it, too. Any resemblance to any corresponding American term is, of course, purely coincidental, but the bridge party given Beta Pi Theta, French fraternity, by Miss Helen Draper, on Monday night, April 20, was convincing proof that contracts can be made in French and understood!

Each of the prospective Bridgettes was armed with a score of terms with which to combat the rather too-quick repartee of Miss Draper. Mary Stuart Walsmley must have overlooked the startling difference between diamonds and clubs, for she energetically bid five diamonds thinking all the time that they were clubs, with which her hand was crowded. The score pad would lead us to believe, though, she lost a neat five hundred on that contract.

The conversation throughout the entire evening was carried on in French. And there was conversation, too! Miss Bouton dared look in on the game, but quickly scurried away. It could have been a jumble of "Je passe", "Je declare deux Coeurs", or "Un sans atout" (a no-trump to you). That scared her away. Or it might have been "c'est a vous de donner les cartes". Although they weren't bid, several "petits schelms" were made before the evening was over.

"Creme de glace" and pound cake (for which we don't know the French equivalent) gratefully concluded "cette partie de bridge." Warrick Mitchell is still wondering if the word for pound cake isn't "le livre gateau". It was with an satisfied feeling that the group adjourned, expressing their appreciation in French idioms they felt were vastly inadequate for the fun they had had.

Alpha Kappa Gamma Taps Boutchard, Mish, Moore, Turner, Ware

Five Juniors Receive Honor Bid At Chapel Service

Membership Based Upon Character Leadership, Service

Betty Boutchard, Margaret Mish, Susie Moore, Shirley Turner, and Ann Ware were tapped by Alpha Kappa Gamma, national leadership fraternity for women, at the annual Spring tapping service in chapel yesterday, April 28. Each of these students is a member of the junior class.

Eligibility for membership in Alpha Kappa Gamma is based upon character, qualities of leadership, and service to the school. To be a member, a student must have an average scholarship. "She must have caught the spirit of her college and proven her worth as a member of its student body," added Jane Sanford, president of Joan Circle of Alpha Kappa Gamma, in an introductory talk.

Betty Boutchard, of Newport News, has recently been re-elected president of the incoming senior class, having served as president of the junior class this year. In this position she will continue as associate head of the College War Council for the second year. As a first year student Betty Boutchard was representative of her class on Student Council. She is president of Pi Kappa Sigma social sorority and is a member of the Cotillion Club, the Commercial Club, and Pegasus.

Margaret Mish, of Lexington, newly elected president of the House Council, has served on this council as hall president and treasurer in her sophomore year and as secretary during this year. She was active in the Choral club and A'capella choir her freshman year and was a member of the Virginian and Rotunda staffs her sophomore and junior years and is a member of the Cotillion Club and of Gamma Theta, social sorority.

Susie Moore, of Richmond, is the editor-in-chief of the 1943 Virginian. She has worked on the Virginian staff for three years, and is head of the staging group of the Dramatic Club, having been a member for three years. She is also a member of Beore Eh Thorn and Kappa Delta Pi, national scholastic fraternity.

Shirley Turner is incoming vice-president of the Athletic Association, is head of the first-aid committee on the College War Council, and conducts the first aid classes as student instructor of first-aid. As a sophomore she

May Day Fete Climaxed by Dance

Collegians to Swing Tempo to Allegro

Concluding the May Day Festivities, from 8:30 o'clock until 12 o'clock on Saturday evening, May 2, the Washington and Lee Collegians, under the direction of Paul Thomas, will swing out for the Virginian Dance.

"Decorations for the annual dance will continue the May Day theme, using the May pole colors, green and yellow," announced Sara Trigg, chairman of decorations for the dance, early this week.

Ann Ware, May Wertz, Ann Turner, Winifred Wright, and Martha Roberts, chairman, will compose the floor committee. Other committees for the dance are Anne Ayers, editor of the Virginian, general chairman; Beezie Townsend, in charge of orchestra; Gay Ward Brown, in charge of tickets; and Susie Moore, in charge of the lounge and check room.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. McCorkle, Dr. J. L. Jarman, Miss Mary White Cox, Miss Virginia Bedford, art advisor for the Virginian, May Wertz, Gay Ward Brown, and Anne Ayers will compose the receiving line. Chaperons for the night will be members of the faculty and home department.

Tickets at the usual price may be obtained from any members of the Virginian staff this week.

Sara Jeffreys Named Chief Photographer

Sara Jeffreys, sophomore, has been chosen photographic editor of The Rotunda for the coming year as a result of tryouts conducted by The Rotunda staff for the past three weeks.

She will take over this position immediately.

Themes For May Day Undergo Variation Through the Years

A May Day celebration has been observed with the coming of Spring for hundreds of years. The ancient Romans celebrated the arrival of Spring an entire week. They, too, had May Pole dances with small children twining garlands around the columns of the temple of the goddess Flora, and then joining hands and dancing around the figure.

May Day has been institution at Farmville for over thirty years. The celebration has gone through many changes in three years, and yet it still holds a precious symbolism for each of us. When May Day was first observed at State Teachers College, then the State Normal School, it was a short entertainment presented on the lawn in front of the infirmary. At various times the celebration has been held on the front campus, in front of Longwood, and now is given in the Dell, at Longwood, an ideal amphitheater.

The theme of May Day, too, has changed with the years. Three years ago, in the Spring of 1940, the program was based on Old English customs with Robin Hood as the outstanding character. Last year the theme was the development of America and the court a Court of Nations. This year the setting of May Day is placed in Virginia a few years before the birth of George Washington, when Alexander Spotswood was governor and the capital was in Williamsburg.

In the early history of the fete, it was on the grounds of the training school, then part of the college, and on the campus of S. T. C. in alternate years. In 1922 the festival was first called Field Day.

Through the years, May Day has ever been a major event of the year. Only with hours and days and weeks of intensive practice can the May Day be put in the commemorable mannar traditional at S. T. C.

Kappa Delta Pi Bids Eleven New Members

Kappa Delta Pi, national scholastic fraternity, selected eleven candidates for membership at a recent meeting.

Those girls receiving bids into the fraternity were: Eleanor Boothe, Hazel S. Gay, Charlotte Greeley, Martha Hammock, Winifred Harrell, Myrtle Harrison, Jean Hatton, Mary Fidele Haymes, Warwick Mitchell, Virginia Sedgley, and Mrs. Irene Anderson Clark. These new members were pledged Tuesday, April 28, and will go through a period of orientation before their initiation, which is to be held at a later date.

On Wednesday morning, May 29, in chapel, there was a recognition service in which those girls who received and accepted bids were recognized.

Eleanor Folk, president of Kappa Delta Pi, has announced that the annual reception will be given Friday, May 15. The purpose of this reception is to entertain those freshman and sophomores who rank in the upper quartile of their class. Members of the faculty will be present, also. Although the plans for the reception have not yet been completed, it is thought that there will be a prominent guest speaker for the occasion.

Costume Dances Music and Sports Permeate Festival

Mary Lou Shannon will be crowned "the fairest and noblest of all the ladies of Old Williamsburg" by Jane McGinnis, representing Governor Alexander Spotswood, as the climax of the May Day Festival at Longwood on Saturday May 2, at 5 o'clock P. M.

The theme of the program is centered around the historic visit to the Shenandoah Valley by Governor Spotswood and his knights, the first white men to go beyond the Blue Ridge Mountains. The young and daring governor had gathered twenty followers to accompany him on the journey, and all Virginia awaited anxiously their return.

The program is opened by an Indian ritual, Hymn to the Sun, in a garden in Williamsburg. The members of Orchesis depict the Indians praying for the safe return of Spotswood.

As the Indians leave Spotswood appears and reveals to his men his plan for the journey, using a large map. The Indian guide is shown the route and they depart over the hills into the valley.

The second part of the program takes place three months later, when all Virginia has heard of the successful trip and has journeyed to Williamsburg to celebrate. The next dance represents the preparation for the celebration by the Negroes in Ring Shout, Work Song, and a Spiritual.

All the children of the town appear to offer their contributions to the celebration. They do a hoop dance and the gayer ones play tag while the May Pole is brought forth. Then follows the traditional May Pole dance.

The stage is then set for the entrance of Governor Spotswood and his men. Three colorful folk groups appear, an English group representing the English citizenry of the town, an Irish group representing the Irish settlers, and a Scotch group representing the descendants of early colonists. Also the more accomplished sportsmen of the town display their skill. Four targeteers exhibit their prowess and there is a duel. A fanfare of music an-

Collegiate Digest Features Madrigals

Professor Alfred Strick, head of the music department at State Teachers College received word early this week that a picture of the Madrigal Singers of State Teachers College will be featured in the twenty-fourth edition of the Associated Collegiate Digest to be released in Farmville on May 13.

Professor Strick also announced that an invitation has been received from Dr. Edgar G. Gammon, president of Hampden-Sydney College, for the Madrigal Singers and Senior A' capella choir to sing at the Hampden-Sydney alumni dinner to be held at Longwood Friday evening, May 1. Miss Virginia Richards, an assistant instructor in music at S. T. C., will accompany the groups as soloist at this time.

NBC Praises Choir; "Virginia Gazette" Reviews Recital

Mr. S. LaPrade of the National Broadcasting Company recently sent his compliments to the State Teachers College choirs on their recent performance in New York. He also included an invitation to the choir to return to that city for another performance.

A favorable review of the choirs' trip to Williamsburg on Wednesday, April 15, appeared in "The Virginia Gazette", Williamsburg paper. In it, the reviewer stated: "The outstanding criticism of the performance was that it was too short from the standpoint of one at all interested in music."

"Not only was the musicianship competent, well balanced, and pleasing, but much was added to the general effect by the fact the A'Capella choirs were dressed in maroon vestments while the balance of the group wore vestments of blue."

Much credit was given to Director Alfred Strick "on his material" and upon "his personal industry," for the "major faults of a college chorus were reduced to a minimum throughout the whole program", the review continued.

Favorable criticism was also given the two soloists, Pat Maddox and Peggy Bellus. "The two solo numbers were rendered by Miss Patricia Maddox and Miss Peggy Bellus. Miss Maddox has a competent contralto voice and sang "None but the Lonely Heart" by Tchaikowsky. Miss Bellus has a sweet, but not powerful voice that was well suited to a reverential interpretation of the "Ave Maria" of Schubert".

The Madrigal Singers led by Virginia Barksdale "created a diversion by appearing in white gowns, capes, and hoods." In this group "the particularly solid and pleasing alto voices" werea noted favorably.

Special recognition was also given the A'capella rendition of "Pueri Hebraeorum", sung by the junior and senior choirs. The whole was "an outstanding performance and well merited the prolonged applause which it received."

make-up committee. Jeanne Strick was elected chairman of the acting group, while Sally Robertson will head the properties committee and the costume committee will be headed by Jane Smith.

Other officers of the club elected at the same time are Ella Banks Weathers, who was chosen parliamentarin and Fay Johnson, who was elected chairman of the ninth annual Dramatic Tournament which will be held next year. Ann Warrick was elected chairman of the poster committee and Martha Higgins was chosen head of the social committee.

War Council Appeals For Current Interest; Special War Savings Drive Begins May 7

Prayers Theme Initiates War Week Mood With Loyalty in Service to God and Country

On Monday night, May 4, War Week will begin at State Teachers College at a special prayers service in Joan Court. This service will be the initial prayer service stressing the theme for the week, Wartime Loyalty in Service, and will emphasize loyalty in service to country. Amy Read, Y. W. C. A. president will lead this service.

Tuesday night, May 5, the theme of War Week will be developed by the central idea of "Service To God" on Wednesday night, "To Others;" and Friday, "To Self".

Ritual Exercise Staged Tuesday

The War Week program will be continued in chapel Tuesday with a ritual exercises. On the stage at this time a background of the flags of the free people of the world and the allied nations will set the mood of liberty and freedom. Mimeographed copies of the national songs of the Allies will be distributed, and the exercise will consist chiefly of the singing of these anthems which Miss Lizabeth Purdum has been instructing in freshman chapel each Monday during the past quarter The freshman class will lead the singing.

Mary Hunter Edmunds, chairman of the Morale Committee, will give a talk on the history of the flag and flag etiquette, and then will lead the entire student body in the flag salute. Caroline Eason, chairman of the Ritual Committee, and Mary Fidele Haymes are in charge of the program.

Sometime during the week, the Farmville Silver Band will again furnish music of national songs for a retreat ceremony of lowering the United States flag on the dome of the Rotunda.

Stamps Booth To Open Wednesday

On Wednesday, May 6, Conservation Day, a more intense drive will be made for the collection of old paper, tooth paste tubes and other useful materials. In chapel on the same day, Dr. James Elliott Walmsley will give a news summary and analysis of the week's news.

A booth which now is being constructed and at which war savings stamps will be sold is to be opened Thursday immediately after chapel in the Rotunda. Eugenia Ramsey will be in charge of the booth at this time. The booth will remain open to students each day for the remainder of the school year. Betty Sexton and Anna Mary Wilkins are in charge of decorating the booth, and Mary Lilly Purdum, chairman of the War Finance Committee, is in charge of selling the stamps.

Friday, May 8, a special program for instruction of self-protection in air raids will be conducted by Nell Hurt, chairman of the Air-raid Defense Committee. This program, along with the flag lowering ceremony will close the special week of war emphasis.

War Week Stresses Nine O'clock Prayer

Each night during War Week, May 4 through May 8, special attention will be paid to the nine o'clock whistle which is blown at the Buffalo Shook Company in Farmville.

One night during the week, the lights in all the dormitories will be turned off for two minutes while the whistle is blowing. At this time the students will be asked to spend this period in brief meditation and prayer for peace.

First Aid Instructor. .

Shirley Turner, student director of First Aid course at S. T. C. and chairman of the First Aid Committee of the War Council, will be among the committee heads directing War Week activities next week.

War Week Heads . . .

The heads of the College War Council who will direct War Week activities May 4 through May 8 are Nancy Naff and Agnes Patterson.

S. T. C. Students Lend U. S. A. Five Thousand Dollars

"Make every pay day Bond Day", "Any bonds today?" "You can defend America". These war slogans have penetrated S. T. C. and in order to follow them through, the College War Council has sponsored the sale of war savings stamps and bonds for the past several months.

A recent poll conducted by the War Finance Committee shows that 31 S. T. C. girls have started five dollar stamps albums, 75 have begun stamp albums for $25 bonds, 43 have started stamp albums for $50 bonds, and five are working on albums for $100 bonds.

"Since Christmas over $225 has been spent by S. T. C. students in War Savings Stamps bought at the college postoffice," stated Miss Maude K. Taliaferro when recently interviewed.

Many organizations have also purchased bonds and stamps. Prizes in contests, locally sponsored, have been awarded in war savings stamps and bonds. Among the organizations which have purchased bonds are the Town Girls Club, the Athletic Association, The Commercial Club, THE ROTUNDA, and Pi Kappa Sigma and Sigma Sigma Sigma, social sororities.

The Dramatic Club, the Panhellenic Association, Gamma Psi, Orchessis, and the sophomore, junior, and senior classes have done their part by contributing generously to War Relief and the Red Cross their time and talents, and benefit performance proceeds.

The five thousand odd dollars thus lent to the government by S. T. C. students will go far in the army, navy, or marine corps. This amount will buy 35 parachutes or ten motor trailers.

Each and every ten cent stamp purchased plays its part in the defense of America. Ten cents will buy a set insignia, or five cartridges. Twenty-five cents will buy a dozen bandages, or a soldiers' mess kit. Fifty cents will purchase 12 yards of barbed wire and one dollar will buy an arm splint. Two dollars will buy a woolen blanket, and two leg splints can be had for five dollars. Ten dollars will buy a tent and seventy-five dollars will purchase a complete field range. One hundred eighty-five dollars will buy a life float for ten persons. Three hundred seventy-five dollars will buy 17 surgical beds, and one thousand dollars will buy two motor trailers.

Government Seeks Junior Chemists

War demands have created unusual opportunities for technically trained persons in Federal employment. The United States Civil Service Commission is now seeking Junior Chemists to perform research, investigative, or other work in some branch of Chemistry. The postions pay $2,000 a year. No written test is required. Applicants' qualifications will be judged from their experience, education and training.

Women especially are urged to apply. The Navy yards, arsenals and other Government laboratories, it is reported, are now employing women in chemical work. Completion of a 4-year course in a recognized college with 30 semester hours in chemistry is required, although senior students who will complete the required course within 4 months of the date of filing application may apply. No experience is required, although preference in appointment may be given to applicants showing experience in chemical or related work.

There are no age limits for this examination. Applications must be filed with the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., and will be accepted until the needs of the service have been met.

Application forms and further information regarding this and other opportunities open to chemists in the Federal Government may be obtained at first and second class post offices throughout the county.

Consumer Education Group Advocates Optional Nutrition

By MARY KATHERINE DODSON
Chairman of Consumer Education Committee

The astounding fact has come to the people of the United States that about 50% of her youth are undernourished or improperly nourished. In examining young men for service in the United States army, many symptons of unbalanced and improper diet were evidenced.

The call to arms is now one of proper food and diet. The duty of American citizens in a time of crisis such as the present, is to sponsor optimal nutrition—not just adequate nutrition. They must also keep up their spirit and morale, physically as well as mentally. This can be done only through careful observation of the basic principles of hygiene—rest, exercise, cleanliness, and last but most important—an optimal, well-balanced diet.

It is a well-known fact that optimal nutrition requires at least one pint of milk every day for adults, one meat or substitute, two vegetables (one leafy green and one raw) and potatoes as substitute, two fruits (one citrus and one raw), some whole grain product—cereal or bread, and miscellaneous foods such as butter, sweets, and seasonings.

If the provision of this call for optimal diet is answered by these foods, the call for vitamins A, B, Niacin (B complex) C, D, G, (B2) E, K, and H as well as the minerals should be answered. The majority of people have very little difficulty in getting the proper number of calories that they as individuals require. The real test comes in getting the proper kinds. Coffee and sugar are soon to be rationed. Since many Americans consume too much of these for health's sake it is perhaps a wise move even were it not economically necessary.

If each person would check each day on her diet, every American citizen should be qualified to answer the call to arms. The duty of American citizens is for maximum physical and mental intelligence, and it can be gained.

Unsung Heroines . . .

Too often endeavors receive publicity and notice which is far inferior to the importance of the role they play in our college life. Such is the case with the one hundred students who are working behind the scenes to make 1942's May Day celebration at Longwood on Saturday the best yet.

These unsung heroines are playing an important role in their all-out cooperation with the May Day chairmen. The two hours which they have devoted daily for the past three weeks in ceaseless practices for dances, to work on costume and properties, and careful direction can not easily go unnoticed. Through the time and efforts of many such as these, May Day has become a vital institution at State Teachers College, an essential tradition. With the increasing complexity of the present world affairs it is evident that such a project can reap many values.

We congratulate the members of May Day, Inc., and we pay tribute to them for their splendid cooperation in keeping alive this medium of expression of State Teachers College talent and efforts.

Wake Up!

The College War Council as well as the Athletic Association urges us to sign up for participation in various sports. We may either hike, swim, play tennis or golf, with an archery meadow also, nearby. The Council urges us to take at least three hours of exercise a week; how many of us get this much? Are we cooperating with this council and with our country by signing up to take part in these sports? It is up to us to be physically fit, and certainly this is one of the best ways.

We are lucky in having four new tennis courts; let's take advantage of them.

Those interested in golf should also take advantage of the splendid opportunity offered them now; for transporation, clubs, and lessons, are offered free of charge. There are not green fees nor caddy fees to be paid.

Then there is the swimming pool. If we had nowhere to swim, we would really complain; yet, how often do we take advantage of such an excellent pool? For those who are interested in swimming and yet don't know how to swim, regular classes are offered plus a very thorough Red Cross Life Saving course.

It is a shame that we don't take more advantage of these splendid opportunities offered to each of us. We are obligated to the Athletic Association, the War Council, our country, and ourselves to take more exercise in order to fit ourselves physically.

I Like America . . .

By TED OWEN

(Reprinted from The Yellow Jacket, Randolph-Macon College weekly newspaer, the issue of January 16, 1942).

America has been good to me. I am lucky that she will have me, that she will let me exercise the ambition, the energy I possess that lets me feel big and strong, clean and confident.

Everyday material things, little intangible things make me like America. America is America because of Coca-Colas, hot dogs, motor cars, trees for logs, horoscopes for dogs. It is pretty girls with shining eyes, tilted noses, and nice figures. It is baby-carriages instead of bayonets, homes rather than arsenals.

America is a wonderful land. Big. It's big in more than area. The bigness of a man is not judged by the girth of his waist alone. America is big though. Rolling mountains, endless plains, winding rivers, streams that crinkle when they laugh at the immensity of the sea. It is big with friendliness. The care with which it is always able to find "room for one more," one from an alien land, and make him add to America's greatness because of the gratitude realized in this heaven.

Ninety thousand people at a football game, millions of golfers, horse racing in every season, baseball and tennis enthusiasts add to the American mosiac. America is just one of those people eating ham and eggs, toast and coffee for breakfast, or playing the slot machine, or putting a nickel in the musical juke box. It is the fellow who asks you to join him at the Joint for a beer.

America is a crossword puzzle. So many beautiful things are melted into its armor. It is honesty and truthfulness and youthfulness; it is straight-forward, raucously sometimes. It is free, like a laugh over a comic-strip character. It is strong because it can laugh at itself. It is music on the radio, hand-tailored cigarettes, good books, a wealth of magazines, news ideas, a gesture of friendliness; it is love for other people. It is love for other people that I like.

Victory Begins at Home

When Arthur Godfrey, in Washington, D. C., insists that "Victory Begins at Home" he knows what he's talking about and proves it on each of his CBS broadcasts with authentic governmental material.

Godfrey talks about sugar rationing. By cutting the ration from one and half pounds to three-quarters of a pound per person per week, each person can save enough sugar to make over 20 pounds of smokeless powder a year.

He talks about wool and explains why it's going to take two-thirds of what we have to keep our army equipped. The average citizen uses two and a half pounds of wool a year. The average soldier needs 100 pounds a year. That's why next year's suit won't be so woolly.

He talks about refrigerators. By cutting out refrigerators, the Government saves enough steel for 7,000 light tanks, 5,000 medium tanks and 1,500,00 machine guns, enough aluminum for 900 heavy bombers, enough rubber for 4,000,000 army rain coats and 1,000,000 gas masks, enough tin for 5,000,000 tin cans.

Godfrey also talks about automobile tires, which used to be made of rubber from the Dutch East Indies—and Malaya. It takes the rubber for four auto tires to make two tires for a fighter plane, the rubber from seven tires to make ONE tire for a big bomber and the rubber from 125 tires for one medium tank.

That's why "Victory Begins at Home."

JANE ENGLEBY

Past President of the House Council

Her friendly greeting and sincere interest in each and every person she meets gives Jane Engleby those qualities that make her admired by all.

Possessor of such efficiency that she can manage big jobs as well as the small ones is shown by the fact that she has been called upon by many to assist in numerous undertakings.

For three years Jane has served the House Council, being this year's president. Alpha Kappa Gamma has recognized her willingness to serve, her ability to lead, and the quality of her high ideals. Jane is a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority and was cited in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

She has been a midnight visitor on the halls nightly seeing that all was well and quiet, but her visits were more welcomed than feared. Her graciousness, her sunny disposition, and her sincere interest in others—all of these have made us admire her.

A Seat At The Cinema

May 1-2, Friday and Saturday

Hampden-Sydney movie-goers will not be more pleased with "Song of the Islands" coming to the State Theatre on Friday and Saturday than the S. T. C.'ers. This gay, colorful musical has Betty Grable, for a long time princess in many hearts, as princess of a South Sea island tribe. Victor Mature is a part of the romantic throb that makes this picture alive with romancing. And romancing in the South Seas is different—when a girl loves the boy. Jack Oakie, the provincial clown, adds to the humorous dialog. "Sing Me a Song of the Islands," "Blue Shadows with White Gardenias", and "O'Brien Has Gone Hawaiian" are some of the song scoops. The short subject, "War Clouds Over the Pacific" is different and something no one should miss.

May 6-7, Wesdnesday and Thursday

"The Lady Has Plans" coming Wednesday and Thursday would be something to see only for the stars—needless to say Paulette Goddard and Ray Milland will be given the studio's best. Who can forget Miss Goddard in "The Women"? Ever since then her attractive charm and good looks have gathered many admirers for her. Ray Milland is a feminine favorite of long standing—almost too good looking to exist outside of dreams and wishful thinking. His part in "Arise My Love" proved that. Remember: a movie is more enjoyable if you get there in time for a good seat.

BETWEEN YOU 'N' ME AND . . .

The Gatepost

(Who hears an awful lot)

Incidentals . . .

Jocelyn Gilliam it seems had a chipper time at a recent wedding and incidentally the best man might have gotten the wedding idea too—he's been rushing said girl evir since - - -

V. M. I. was on campus full-force in white last week end—E. Mush and Mary Jane were the lucky ones and incidentally—M. J. went to the great institute Sunday.

Bob Irby of Death Valley fame, has been in a rather despondent state lately from all reports—Reason: No publicity, plus a neatly sewed up hand the cause of which was sustained in a recent clash by night with a window pane in Second Passage—Our deepest sympathy, dear sir - - -

Ring Dance Rattle

Of major importance last week end was Tech Ring Dance—to mention some high lights from the Farmville viewpoint - - -

Last minute date to the dance was "Cov". She had a "right" time—from all reports—even lost her voice.

Mildred Carter Clanton made the faux-pas of the evening by dropping the ring under the arch; Anna Mary Wilkins can't decide whether to keep the miniature from Tinky—Shirley Turner got one and also Alice Beiote—On the subject of miniatures—Anne Ware met Buster in Lynchburg and also returned with a miniature - -

But Mary Harvie's ring is really the loveliest one yet - - -

A thing of real beauty was Nancy Hughes last week end, bare-footed from Lynchburg to Farmville, but this was not enough, she also had to get out at Appomatox for a coke - - -

Dere Brutus: How Are You?

In answer to a recent Gatepost report, one clever chap from Wakeoland immediately slipped to a near-by post-office to post us the following "paper bullet of the brain" - - - Charlottesvlile, Va.

Dear Gatepost:

(Who hears an awful lot but not all!)

Concerning the U. Va. man who got "snaked" ("She—Wolfing", to us) at Pan Hels and was denied an Easter week date by both the "fair one" and the "snake" of S. T. C., we would like to inform you that the rejected Casanova recovered in fine style with a most luscious blonde from Washington.

("We could tell you more, but it would only lead to bloodshed".)

(Signed) Brutus

Question of the Week

In the light of present conditions, do you think May Day should be continued next year?

Anne Moore—I do, but I think it should be done on a less elaborate scale.

Irma Page— There are arguments on both sides, I think; if conventions and trips are to be continued by other departments in school, I think May Day should be, too.

Shirley McCalley—I think it should be continued—definitely!

Lulie Jones—I think that if costumes don't cost too much, it should be continued. However, I don't think the occasion should be nearly as expensive as it is this year.

Betty Reid—Due to the tire situation, I don't think that as many parents and friends could come. And after all, they are the main spectators.

Sara Eschan—It will be so very expensive I don't think we should have it.

Ruth Dugger—No—entirely too much money is spent on costumes.

Betty Kiger—I don't think it should be discontinued because of the dark war situation. This little bit brightens the dimness of war talk.

Lula Moss — There should always be a May Day. But in view of the present situation it should be on a smaller scale—maybe using the costumes this year for next year.

Martha Woodhouse—Of course, there must be a May Day!

Kyle Barnhill—May Day should be continued because it's a tradition and promotes school spirit.

Doris Fogus—Not if we have to make the costumes!

Kay Spencer—Sure!

Allene Overbey—That question couldn't really be decided until next year, because the war is so uncertain. If the situation is worse, I hardly see how we could afford it, but, if the situation is brighter, it certainly should be a part of our school year.

Ruth Parker—Yes. School morale certainly needs it.

Betty Blackwell—Yes, I think we have to have some sort of good entertainment.

Virginia Hall—We need it now more than ever.

Lucy Messick—I really think that dancing and things like that are the things needed to spur us on in times like these.

Vera Womack—If the girls take their spending money (that they ordinarily throw away) for their costumes—why, I say have May Day every year.

Eleanor Folk—May Day affords a great many people a lot of pleasure and it's certainly something that the student body likes to see.

Jane McGinnis—May Day is educational as well as providing entertainment. I think that the pleasure it provides far exceeds the expense involved.

Spring Tennis Season Swings Into Action; Archery Tourney Nears

Net Ball . . . Take Two

Once again the tennis courts are rolled and marked—ready for speeding balls and traveling players to enjoy. True enough, such scenes are featured each day as the courts are filled with players. For the benefit of those who wish to play, courts must be reserved. This may be arranged by signing on the schedule sheet of paper on the A. A. bulletin board. A new sheet is posted each day and players must report at specified time with proper shoes for playing. Because it is necessary to keep the courts in shape, regulation tennis shoes and no bare feet are required while playing.

At present a singles and a doubles tournament is underway. Because of May Day practices each afternoon of the week the program has been slowed up a bit, but next week games will determine final players. A deadline for the tournament will be announced next week.

Don't Wait Too Long . . .

Facts concerning the leading color in color cup points have not been released, but we are aware that all through this year they marched side by side in wins and losses. We can guess by comparing the close color winnings to date that neither green and white nor red and white are apart on score, so with only a few more chances to grab points—LET'S GO!

Archery Tourney Nears . . ..

Here we reach one of the final events of the sports season when the spring archery tournament awards of five points to the winning color for the color cup. Red and white shot high score in the annual fall contest. In order to qualify for a team, a number of practices must be on record, so get busy and join your color in a team.

Babe Ruth Pitches Ball . . .

And on the athletic field each eyeing a "big league game" captures the hearts of many baseball fans. Of course, the balls don't travel over the fence or get autographed, but the game is fun and all who try it have a good time. Why not organize teams as the classes did in volleyball, basketball, etc? That would bring more people up to bat and maybe more home runs. Dot Darracott, manager of baseball, is in charge of the games during the activity period from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. each evening.

Golf Links at Longwood . . .

Have you golf players received your season tickets to the golf greens at Longwood? Have you noticed the newly decorated club room for players? The little club house is located just above the parkway at tee off to hole one, and has lockers for players' equipment. Mr. Norman Myers has tickets for students wishing to use the lockers, and locks must be furnished by golfers.

The greens have been revnovated and are well taken care of with a daily touching up by the course foreman. Even the roughs are lacking in the usual clusters of jungle grass, making it almost a pleasure to get lost "in a trap."

A.K.G. Challenges Faculty to Baseball

Proceeds Will Be Used to Buy Books

Alpha Kappa Gamma will sponsor a softball game between it members and members of the faculty on Thursday afternoon, May 7. The proceeds from this game will be used to purchase books for the enlargement of the Elementary School Library.

Captain of the A. K. G. team is Mary Katherine Dodson. Her team is composed of Dot Johnson, Betty Youngberg, Shirley Turner, Lucy Turnbull, Betty Boutchard, Winifred Wright, Hallie Hillsman, and Mary Hunter Edmunds. Other members of Alpha Kappa Gamma will also play and act as substitutes.

Miss Barlow, captain of the faculty team, has as tentative teammates, Miss Olive T. Ikr. Miss Marjorie Booten, Miss Emily Kauzlarich, Mrs. Adele Watkins, Miss Virginia Bedford, Miss Bessie Jeter, Miss Mary Nichols, and Miss Helen Draper. Other faculty players will be announced at a later date.

Professor from the faculty will act as umpire for the contest.

Hughes and Dugger Teach Life Saving

Nine Students have signed up for the American Red Cross senior life saving course which has been added to the pool schedule for the Spring quarter. The class is conducted by Peggy Hughes, instructor, assisted by Ruth Dugger.

Enrolled are Jane Engleby, Irma Graff, Ellen Ebel, Nellie Varn, Harriette Walker, Frances Mallory, Patricia Maddox, Jean Carr, and Janet Jackson.

A twenty hour course is required before a certificate in this field can be awarded. Any student interested in receiving instruction must sign up for entrance in this class this week.

Special Class Added To Contest

Pegasus Urges Riders To Enter

Girls not taking riding instruction at State Teachers College will be placed in a special class in the Spring Horse Show and Riding Contest on Saturday May 23, and will not compete with girls who are receiving instructions, Joyce Cheatwood, president of Pegasus Riding Club, and general chairman of the Horse Show announced this week. An entrance fee will be charged for this class.

Transportation will be provided to and from Longwood, beginning at 1:30 o'clock for a small fee. The first class will begin at 2 o'clock and there will be no gate admission.

Approximately forty local horses have been entered to date, outside the school horses.

Chairman for the Horse Show and Riding Contest are Joyce Cheatwood, general chairman; Harriette Levinson, transportation: parking, Betty Grey Smithdeal; ribbons, Kay Spencer; posters, Joscelyn Gilhum; entrance, Rebecca Spicer; concessions, Elizabeth Goodwin, and programs, Nelle White.

Tigers Triumph Over Indians 7 to 6

Special to The Rotunda

WILLIAMSBURG—Earl Wood, a southpaw, allowed but seven hits and whiffed a dozen batters yesterday as he hurled the Hampden-Sydney Tigers to a 7-6 victory over William and Mary. The defeat was the third straight for the Indians.

The Tigers, taking advantage of an error and a slashing single by Pete Johnson, pulled the battle out of the fire with a pair of tallies in the ninth frame. William and Mary had assumed the lead with a five-run splurge in the eighth when the Indians coupled four hits with three bases-on-balls and a wild pitch.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 6, 1942

Prize for Miss Glasgow

It had to happen sooner or later, and the only cause for surprise is that it didn't happen sooner. We refer to last night's award to Miss Ellen Glasgow of the Pulitzer Prize in the novel, "In This Our Life", her latest book, thus receives an accolade which it fully deserves. Already it had been chosen by four leading critics representing the Southern Women's Democratic National Organization as the most distinguished book of 1941 by a Southern-born writer on a Southern subject.

In 1940 she was accorded the extraordinary honor of being given the Howells Medal for fiction by the American Academy of Arts and Letters, an award made only every five years for distinguished American fiction. The particular novel which brought her this recognition was "Vein of Iron". Then in 1941 the "Saturday Review of Literature" conferred on her its special award for "Distinguished Service to American Literature."

It is cause for gratification, therefore, that the Pulitzer Committee has seen fit to add its guerdon to her many other distinctions. That gives her about everything to which she might aspire, except the Nobel Prize. When the Nobel trustees resume operations after the war, we shall look for them to recognize the achievements of the most distinguished writer Virginia has produced.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Drafted: Sugar

United States citizens could not rightfully buy a pound of sugar last week anywhere, and this week they have been lined up at their local schoolhouse for rationing books. On May 5 a new era began in America. For the first time in the land of plenty, a common foodstuff has been doled out on ration coupons: one-half pound a week of sugar for each citizen until the end of June, and an undetermined amount after that.

Again on May 15, 10,000,000 motorists along the Atlantic Seaboard and in Farmville will also receive ration books for Mr. Ickes' gasoline shortage of last summer is now a flat fact.

The first headlines predicted only 2 1-2 to 5 gallons per week for each motorist, but last week made breathing a little easier for the motorists: their ration will only be about 25 to 30 gallons a month.

Mr. United States Civilian has now run smack against the facts of war. With ration books in pocket and purse, he will soon know that World War II is too vast and not half so skimp as the first. This looks like a real war.

Words and the War

America's participation in the world struggle has brought out the fact that we do not know the languages of the peoples in the areas in which we are having to fight. To remedy this situation in the shortest time a comprehensive program has been worked out by the Committee of the National School of Modern Oriental Languages and Civilizations under the sponsorship of the America Council of Learned Societies.

Americans have never been language conscious and because of this we are now raced with the present situation.

This newly formed committee is now engaged in the difficult process of "tooling up" for the production of competent scholars in such languages as Malay, Siamese, Persian, Northwest African Arabic, Hungarian, Russian and Japanese. Already work is under way and more will be starting at Yale, Columbia, University of Penn. sylvania, Michigan, Harvard, and George Washington as the tools are produced.

In ordinary times there is little impetus for the production of these World War materials, but now that there is a concrete need for capable scholars in these languages, they will be produced within a fairly reasonable time. Since American linguistic experts have had invaluable experience in the scientific study of the languages of the American Indian, experience which can be put to work in the present situation, Mortimer Graves of the American Council, states that in seven or eight months results in this drive for words in war will begin to be apparent.

Too Footloose . . . And Campus Free

What we do affects not only ourselves but our school. That a chain is as strong as its weakest link is inevitably true when individual actions compose a basis for judgment. There has been much criticism on our campus etiquette in regard to dates and guests, and too much of it, we fear, has a justified foundation. Since the reputation of us that gets abroad determines, to a great extent, our guest's reactions, in that light, it is only fair that much discretion and careful thinking be done before we do things that will definitely be helpful in creating wrong impressions.

Gravely concerned about this existing situation, Dr. Jarman in a chapel reminder advocated a war against too much freedom in our actions toward boys on campus. Visitors to the college have as a sole standard for the formation of opinions about the school what they see as they pass by or what they hear from others. It is then, up to us personally to see that such actions as would harm the reputation of our school are not permitted and, most important, that we are not found guilty of such misconducts.

If demonstration of affections is the thing we want, it should still be remembered that there are those of us that have retained some of our old-fashioned sense of modesty and blush to see publicly loving twosomes adorning campus benches. But if do this we must, let us make it private, please.

There is too much concern about this problem to let it go uncorrected if some people don't mend their ways. And privileges now common to us all are at stake. So it is cruelly unfair for a majority to be threatened with corrective measures which have resulted from the thoughtless action of a few. So let us show the stuff we're made of and abolish all outwardly uncomplimentary conduct that might lead to misinterpretation. It's for our own good. — M. P. V.

The Gatepost

(Who hears an awful lot!)

"Dodie" Doswell went all the way to Lynchburg for Randolph-Macon May Day, but he did manage to get back here in time to go to the dance with Gene Hardy.

Kitty Parrish, the girl with so many dates for May Day just got an I. C. C. from Charlie Wilson mailed in Lynchburg—(looks like Randolph-Macon again-.

A little scene on the dance floor last Saturday: Betty Reid is talking to a former flame, who did not catch her name when introduced. In the course of the conversation they are discussing the people they used to know. Then he makes the slip of the evening. "Do you remember that nice Betty Reid I used to go around with?" Needless to say great confusion ensued.

Bouquets to the loveliest May Court we've ever had and one of the best May Days.

"Campie" is now wearing another V. P. I. Cotillion Club pin from Ambrose this time!

Brickbats to Nancy Hand and Jackie Anderson again for their disgusting date etiquette — it seems as if they would have learned by now.

SPECIAL TO THE ROTUNDA FROM ROANOKE: The mighty group that journeyed to the "wedding of the year" returned all but mighty! Second floor Senior Building displayed "Sleeping" signs for the duration of Monday morning, afternoon, and night—sidenotes: Jules went to sleep on Marty's shoulder on the return trip, while Ayers drove! ! Dot Childress celebrated her birthday in fine style at the Hotel Roanoke—big time!

Ask Mollie Irby Hardaway about the wild party she went to at home last week end and why she didn't get back to the dance here.

All About A . . .

Senior Personality

NANCY NAFF AUSTIN

Past President of the Student Body

It is an appropriate coincidence that the girl whom we chose to reign as Queen of Mardi Gras and as Maid of Honor in May Day this year, as representing the ideals and beauty of this institution, should be among those nine who will fill the little niches of reverence by which the class of '42 will be remembered long after they have passed along the caps and gowns to others.

Nancy Naff Austin has made friendliness more than a word—she has made it her very own laugh of good nature and her dependable sympathy and understanding. For her sense of fairness, for her talents of leadership and cooperation, for her charming personality, for her willingness to give her time and energy to State Teachers College, for her enthusiasm in many fields of college life—for these plus her striking dignity and poise, we honor her.

She has been honored for them before—with the major offices of Student Government—this year's presidency; with membership in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities; and with membership in Alpha Kappa Gamma and many other organizations.

Possessed of a true executive ability, enviable poise and gracious poise, Nancy Naff has been a student body president of which her fellow students and workers can be rightfully proud.

Threats of Sugarless Tea Motivate General Concern

Now that some of us have been threatened with no sugar in our tea next summer, the shortage of this vital liquid sweetner has assumed a personal concern. For the past week the sale of sugar has been frozen by the government, and yesterday a rationing card was necessary if sugar was what you went to the grocery store for.

The scarcity of this valuable product is the result of a shutting off of imports from the Philippines and other places in the war zones. Also responsible is the sinking or diversion to other causes of the ships which formerly brought sugar here from Latin America and other places.

Rationing books have been initiated here as in other European countries as a means for a democratic division of sugar for Americans—diabetics and all. The local A. and P. manager was doubtful about whether or not the plan of the books was understood. The customer must present his ration book to the clerk who tears out a stamp. The clerk, in turn, saves the stamp which is sent to the government and the number of stamps the store has sent in determines the amount of sugar it can receive.

For the past few days schools all over the county and state have disbanded and suddenly found themselves centers for the issuing of rationing boows—a fact which has greatly chagrined the pupils. The book contains enough stamps for a year's supply of sugar. The penalty for the violation of any rule or regulation of this plan is ten years in prison, or a fine of ten thousand dollars, or both—so we're strictly against hoarding, or being oversweet lest it cause suspicion.

CAPITAL to CAMPUS

ACP's Jay Richter Reports from Washington

May 3, 1942

Jobs . . .

WASHINGTON—(ACP)—The weatherman is likely to be a weatherwoman for the duration, Civil Service is looking for college women to fill vacancies at weather stations west of the Mississippi.

If you're interested, go to the weather station where you would like a job and ask for blanks (Incidentally, some stations are still averse to hiring women—which is something you may want to know in advance.)

At least two years of college work is required, with emphasis on mathematics and physics. The salary is $135 a month—$120 or 105 if you are willing to take less. You'll have to take a written examination.

Reports filtering into the Capital from "the field" indicate that farmers generally are reacting favorably to the student farm-work plan of McNutt's Manpower Commission. The newly-created Commission is going to enlist college and high school students to work on farms in areas where shortage of help threatens.

Of course, the Department of Agriculture here had already advised its field personnel to use students. And many students and farmers have been planning ahead of any Washington agency. For example, in Eastern truck gardening areas students and farmers have been working together more than two months.

The Manpower Commission will obtain students through Employment Service offices.

The Navy needs about 50 girls for technical and scientific aides. They'll itake almost anyone who has had one or two years of chemistry or physics. The openings are in arsenals and ordnance plants at Dover, N. J.; Watertown, Mass.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Rock Island, Ill.; Cincinnati, Ohio; St. Louise, Mo., and Birmingham, Ala. The salary is about $1600.

Social Notes . . .

Attention, prom-goers—the girls in this instance.

Russell Sage college girls got in a huddle one evening at a sorority meeting and the next issue of the campus publication carried a big splash on improper prom ettiquette.

The girls agreed that the first improper move is that the girl should invite her escort "no sooner than three days before the ball."

"Having arrived, the firs thing you do is to suggest that he take you out to dinner", the girls wrote. "Once at the most expensive place in town, order the most expensive dinner on the menu."

The next step, providing you're still eager to spoil the evening for your date, is to suggest "that nothing but an orchid will go with your dress."

The night of the prom—you have asked your escort to call for you at 9:30 p. m.: After he arrives, make him wait at least an hour.

"Once at the dance, the first think you do, is to look all over the floor for every man that you know," the girls said. "Having found all your friends don't introduce your escort, as that might embarrass him and give you too much competition from all the other girls.

Tennis, Baseball Loom as Spring Sports Favorites

Clashing Competition Continues . . .

With fair weather continuing and still further cheerful predictions by the weather man, it looks as if the tennis season will swing along without interruptions. Anyway, to date the "all clear" sign has allowed freshmen classes, tennis matches, and other players to enter the courts and enjoy games. Two tennis matches are now underway. The first round has now been completed out of the five scheduled rounds. Games must be played off as soon as possible in order to keep the final deadline from running into exam week. Courts are open to students during the day, and in order to reserve a court you must sign up for a reservation on the A. A. bulletin board. In the evenings from 7 o'clock to 8 o'clock the courts are open to juniors and seniors in collaboration with the physical fitness program.

Baseball Teams "To Be" . ..

Dorothy Darracott, manager of baseball, has announced that class teams will be organized and contest games are to be played off between the various classes. Practices are required in order to be eligible for a class team. Each evening during the activities period games are played and later practice contests will be organized to act as lead-ups to the final games.

—V for Vigor . . .

The archery spring tournament nears and a final date for the play off has been set for Wednesday, May 20. At this time Red and White contestants will again face Green and White aces in the concluding match of the season. A larger number of girls will take part in this contest because of the added program of the freshman classes. In the fall the "red" team was awarded 5 points for first place and again the fierce challenge will bow 5 points to a winner towards the color cup. Sara Jeffreys, manager, assisted by Margaret Kitchin, is in charge of the tournament. New targets are now ready for use and all practicing takes place in the Archery Meadow.

"Big Six" Track Meet Saturday . . .

University of Virginia will be hosts for the state's "Big Six" college track meet next Saturday and for the second time in a decade the Cavaliers' reign on the cinder paths has been challenged by V. M. I.—in the State meet. The meet may bring together the largest group of track and field contestants ever assembled within the Old Dominion. In addition to the "Big-Six" competition of varsity and freshmen squads the annual meet of the Virginia High School Literary and Athletic Leagues will be run off in four classes.

Wildcats Clash With A.K.G. Panthers In Ballfest On Tap For Thursday

The Brainy Wildcats of the S. T. C. faculty intend to conquer those eager Panthers of A. K. G. in a baseball game tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock on the Athletic field. The money from the admission price of ten cents will be used for the purchase of new books for the training school library.

Those professors who will trade their caps and gowns for a baseball cap and an occasional "Bronx cheer" are: "Doc" Tuttles, "Nonstop" Wynne, "Batty" Holton, "Fly" Burger, "Two-base" Kauzlarich, "Speed" Meyers, "Homerun" Boysworth, "Flash" Booten, "Four-ball" Moran, "Strike-out" Nichols, "Three-bagger" Draper, "Spike" Ier and "Foul-ball" Craddock. "Boo' Coyner will act as umpire.

Panthers who will get a chance to stand on equal ground with the faculty are Shirley Turner, Mary Katherine Dodson, Dot Johnson, Winifred Wright, Hallie Hillsman, Jane Engleby, Amy Read, Anne Ware, Frances Rosebro, Lucy Turnbull, Betty Boutchard, and Sara Cline. The game will be played in the gym if it rains and a first aid detachment will be available in case of emergency.

H.-S. Netmen Blast Seeded W. & L. Team In Matches at S. T. C.

Washington and Lee ace tennis players clashed and lost a series of spectacular games with Hampden-Sydney College yesterday afternoon on the S. T. C. tennis courts. Beginning at 2:30 o'clock, singles were begun with all four courts in use.

Six games were played with a final 3-3 tie in the singles round. Barrie of W. & L. defeated White of H.-S. 7-5, 6-2. This game chalks up another win on Barrie's record of an undefeated season. McCormick of W. & L. downed Pugh of H.-S. in a three set game 6-3, 8-10, 6-2. The third match brought a H.-S. victory when Taylor defeated Taggart 6-2, 6-4. Again W. & L. scored another win when Allison scored over Johns 6-1, 6-4. The last two games were scored by Hampden-Sydney with Stuart over Ballinger 4-6, 6-4, 6-4 and Amorette over Phillips 6-4, 6-2.

Doubles which followed brought the eager spectators ready and waiting for action. Hampden-Sydney triumphed over their opponents with a final 2-1 victory when the netters slashed a fighting gain over the hard hitting visitors. Barrie and McCormick scored 7-5, 8-6 over White and Pugh in a fast and close match giving W. & L. a score on the first game of doubles. Amorette and Taylor downed Taggart and Allison in the second set with a final score of 6-4, 6-4. The finishing match between Stuart and Johns matching Phillips and Ballinger placed H.-S. first when the score ended 6-3, 6-4.

Big League Players To Clash With Tigers In Farmville Friday

Five big league baseball players, Bob Feller, Ace Parker, Sam Chapman, Fred Hutchinson, and Sam Weight will be among the Naval Training Base team players offering stiff competition to the Hampden-Sydney Tigers on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Wilck's field, Farmville.

Feller, young mound star, is a right-hand hurler and has played with the Cleveland Indians in the American League for several years.

Parker, better known as a professional player, has played collegiate ball at Duke and professional baseball with the Philadelphia Athletics and Baltimore in the International League.

Chapman joined the Philadelphia Athletics, and Freddie Hutchinson was added to the Detroit Tigers several years ago. As a member of the Philadelphia Phillies, Weight has long played a fierce game.

Yesterday's win over W. & L. placed Hampden-Sydney with six wins for the tennis season, matches ahve been played with W. & L. (there), Loyola, Randolph-Macon, W. & M., Richmond, and W. & L. (here).

Washington and Lee "Blue-Rackes" have five games to their season this year with a defeat to Virginia 5-4, Hampden-Sydney 5-4, Emory and Henry 5-4, and again yesterday with Hampden-Sydney 3-3, 1-2.

Ready for action are these "slugger dodgers" who will meet the "fighting faculty" tomorrow in baseball. Left to right are Johnson, Dodson, Engleby, Cline, and Ayers.

Pegasus Riders Add 13 Classes To Show

Joyce Cheatwood, president of Pegasus Riding Club, announced recently thirteen classes for the Annual Spring Horse Show and Riding Contest at Longwood on Saturday, May 23, at 2 P. M.

The first class will be the junior beginners for S. T. C. riders only. The girls will be judged on horsemanship, including walking and trotting. Tht senior beginners class will include also cantering and the left lead. The three gaited class will be open, and the horses, shown at walk, trot, and canter, will be judged on soundness, confirmation, and performance. The five gaited class, also open, will include in addition, slow gait and rack. The junior and senior intermediates will be judged on walking, trotting, cantering, and right and left leads, and will be open to S. T. C. students only. There will also be an advanced horsemanship class for S. T. C. students. The judges may request any phase of riding, three or five gaited riding, the figure 8, gallop, jumping, bareback, side saddle, mounting, dis-mounting. The girls will enter the ring on three gaited mounts.

There will be a class for pairs of riders in which each rider will be judged 50%. This class is open. There will be an horsemanship class for local adults and one for local students of high school age or under. The old Virginia riders class, the costume class and the jumping class will all be open.

Just Looking, Thanks

And now for a review of the week's news in the social stratas. For the first time in quite a while migration showed trends toward instead of away from. The fortunates had their parents, little sisters and friends up for May Day which in case you don't remember took place at Longwood on Saturday afternoon . . .

Perfection of queen and court set against a background of a beautiful day. And then to end a perfect day the annual dance sponsored by the Virginian staff to the swing of the Washington and Lee Collegians . . . The gym all dressed up in green and yellow in tune with Sweet Springtime . . . and blending in with the host of pastel dresses . . . orchids . . . attractive men and the added attraction of a large crowd of spectators.

Sunday found many S. T. C.ers at Roanoke attending Nancy's and Billy's wedding. Some of those who went were Mary Haymes, Dot Johnson, Margaret Mish, Frances Rosebro, Amy Read, Betty Reid, Martha Roberts, Lillian Wahab, Anne Ayers (who incidentally was one of the bridesmaids), Gerry Ackiss, Margaret Bowling, Dorothy Childress, Sara Cline, Mary Katherine Dodson, Jane Engleby and Lilly Bee Gray.

Home again went Jane Freeman, Helen Ott, Ernestine Morgan, Dorothy Anderson, Martha Woodhouse, Natalie Carroll, Helen Cobbs, Cecile Parr, Betty Agnew, Jean Akers, Jo Brumfield, Elizabeth Barrett, Virginia Barksdale, Ann Berry, Joan Haddon, Spilly Purdum, Libby Bernard, Eleanor Folk and Irma Graff.

Gallivantin' Ida Billups, Jane Foster and Frances Whichard trekked to Annapolis, Margaret Pray to Duke University and Nell Quinn to Princeton. Martha Anderson and Violet Woodall attended a Sigma Pi Rho convention at Carbondale, Illinois.

Week-ending with Frances Mallory in Lawrenceville were Margaret Kitchin, Ellen Ebel, Margaret Webster, Nancye Allen . . . and May Winn visiting her majesty the queen of May in Richmond. Baylis Kunz and Jo Brumfield capitol cavorting around Washington . . Just as you are—

Those screams from the "rec" last Thursday night weren't boogies or burglars just the Mu Omegas in stitches. The new girls threw a "come as you are party" for the old girls and some of them appeared in apparel that was out of this world. After a vigorous game of "going to Jerusalem" the mob settled down to a 10 o'clock snack.

The members of the Baptist Student Union held a picnic at Longwood on Monday to discuss plans for the coming year . . . plenty of food and fun.

Fantastic Fantasia Features Famous Musical Masterpiece

"Fantasia", Walt Disney's exciting new musical production, presents a concert for both the ye and ear. While the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra under the brilliant direction of Leopold Stokowski plays seven great treasures of music the screen is filled with the visual interpretation of this music. Everyone has his own mental images provoked by the music or else wonders what others see in what to him is just rythm and melody. Now these two personalities can go hand in hand to see, hear, and enjoy "Fantasia" through Disney's many strange hilarious, beautiful and exciting forms.

Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Suite" opens the picture. Many music lovers will be pleased that this beloved music is accompanied by some of the artist's most fascinating work. Mickey Mouse is staired as a student magician in the section background by Dukas' lively and catchy "The Sorcerer's Apprentice".

Walt Disney has long sought to utilize a prehistoric setting in a film. Seeking music that would be interesting and appropriate he chose "Rite of Spring" because of its savage and exciting character. Dinosaurs, volcanoes, boiling oceans, and a world in the throes of creation are used in interpreting this significant composition in modern music.

Beethoven's Symphony Number 6 Sequence follows closely the composers own interpretation of this masterful score known the world over as the Pastoral Symphony. The only variation makes the filming more pictorial. The human folk enjoying their day in the country became mythological characters like centaurs, centaurettes, unicorns, flying horses, cupids, gods, and goddess.

Another idea Disney has been considering is a broad burlesque of a ballet. This division set to the music of Panchielli's "Dance to the Hours" is a smash hit. Mlle. Upanova, an ostrich with a shy, coy, manner and feet the size of gunboats assisted by a ludicrous Hyacinth Hippo, Ben All Gates and his elephant pals dance a ballet in such a way that there's no doubt that Disney did a tall bit of considering.

Moussorgsky's "Night on Bald Mountain" and Shubert's famous "Ava Maria" were chosen because of the possibility of contrasting the two. The first is powerfully drawn with a maniacal revel by uneasy ghosts, devils, and creatures of evil. The second ends "Fantasia", with a high note of great inspirational appeal.

When this picture comes to the State Theater Monday and Tuesday, May 18th and 19th it will not give any two people the same impression, but cannot fail to arouse the greatest enthusiasm.

Virginian Dedicated To Miss Mary W. Cox

Presentation Made By Anne Ayers In Chapel Tuesday

Anne Ayers, editor of The Virginian, announced yesterday, May 12, in chapel that the 1942 Virginian is dedicated to Miss Mary White Cox, Head of the Home Department, who for many years has filled this position.

The annuals, in a cover of brown leather with a sketch of the library embossed in gold, were distributed to the students yesterday afternoon.

The opening pages of The Virginian show views of the Rotunda, the library, Cunningham Hall, Student Building, and the equestrian statue of Joan of Arc, the patron saint of State Teachers College.

The first section, "Interaction of Teacher and Student", features the faculty, administration, and the Home Department, as well as the senior, junior, sophomore, and freshman classes.

"Academic and Physical Alliance", the second section, includes student activities in the organizations of Student Government, Y. W. C. A., the Freshman and Sophomore Commissions, and the House Council. Also in this

G. W. Jeffers Heads State Science Meet

Discussion Forums Include All Fields

Dr. George W. Jeffers, Dr. Edith Stevens, Mr. M. B. Coyner, Rosalie Rogers, Vera Baron, Dottie Sue Simmons, and Marie Brickert represented Farmville State Teachers College at the twentieth annual meeting of the Virginia Academy of Science, of which Dr. Jeffers is the retiring president, in Roanoke on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 7, 8, and 9.

The meeting was divided into smaller sectional groups with special emphasis laid on the various fields of science. In these sectional meetings people outstanding in the field of science read reports of research and directed round table discussions on such phases of science as Astronomy, Mathematics, Physics, Bacteriology, Biology, Chemistry, Geology, Forestry, and Engineering.

Dr. Jeffers responded to the address of welcome at the banquet in the ballroom of the Hotel Roanoke on Friday night and introduced the speaker, Dr. W. H. Sebrell, a native Virginian, who is now chief of the Division of Chemotherapy, National Institute of Health, in Washington, D. C. Dr. Sebrell spoke on Nutrition and Defense and listed the eight points of a balanced diet.

Among the other talks given was one by a representative of Hampton Institute whose subject was "The Negro Health Problem in National Defense".

There were exhibits on many phases of science and the exhibits included an exhibit of marine studies made by the Virginia Inland Fisheries Commission, a mounted butterfly exhibit, and the Roanoke River pollution problem in display.

District Legion Meeting Thursday

With 75 to 100 men and women expected from about 20 Southside Virginia posts, the Fourth District conference of the American Legion and the Auxiliary will be held here Thursday, May 14.

Dr. J. P. Wynne, of Farmville, is district commander. The principal speaker, at a public meeting at 8 o'clock next Thursday night in the S. T. C. auditorium, will be Dr. John B. Winn, pastor of the Mount Vernon Methodist Church, Danville. He will speak on "Christianity and the War".

At 6 o'clock there will be a banquet in the Methodist Church, at which Hon. Emory P. Barrow, of Lawrenceville, attorney and member of the General Assembly, will speak.

At the banquet, young William Forbes Watkins, Jr., Farmville High School student who won the recent District Legion oratorical contest and placed fourth in the statewide contest, will deliver his winning oration, "Liberty and Justice for All".

LastColonnade Will Feature Senior Articles

The final issue of The Colonnade will be released late next week and will be the first under the editorship of Winifred Wright who succeeds Allene Overbey as editor-in-chief. The majority of the contributions will be made by members of the senior class, to whom the issue is dedicated.

The guest editorial is written by Dr. George W. Jeffers, head of the Biology Department.

Rachel Abernathy's story, "Remember Now Thy Creator" will be published, as will "Maggie" written by Allene Overbey. Other students whose short stories will appear are Margaret Wright, Jane Lee Sink, Virginia Sedgley, and Jane Knapton.

Nancy Saunders, a former student and a member of the class of 1943, has submitted an essay entitled "Cicero", which is based on the style of Munro Leaf. Irma Pace and Carolyn Beard are among the other student authors whose essays are published.

Contributing to the poetry sections are Florence Thierry, Virginia Hall, and Violet Woodall.

Betty Sexton has prepared the middle pages, which will feature several seniors as objects of a cartoonist's interpretation.

"Squibs, the joke collection, has been compiled by Fiddle Haymes. The book reviews will include summaries of the recent works of John Steinbeck, Andre Maurois, Virginius Dabney, and Harley Gratton.

Featured articles and stories will be illustrated by Elizabeth Tennent, Mary Lou Dondley, Josephine Starling, Sarah Trigg, and Winifred Wright.

Peggy Hughes has adapted the cover design from an original sketch made by Anna Mary Wilkins.

Commercial Club Names Corvin Head

Picnic Scheduled Tuesday, May 15

Mildred Corvin was elected president of the Commercial Club for the coming year at the regular meeting last week. She is a member of the junior class and served as secrtary of the Commercial Club this year. She will succeed Marie Thompson as president of the group.

Other officers selected were Opal Nelson, vice-president; Catherine Dunton, secretary, and Carolyn Caldwell, treasurer.

At the same meeting plans were formulated for the annual cub picnic to be held on Tuesday, May 19. Ruth Wiley is in charge of the picnic.

Debate Club Chooses Ann Randolph Prexy; Work Outlined Today

In an election held Tuesday May 12, Anne Randolph was named president of the Debate Club. Kyle Barnhill was elected vice-president, Alice Nichols secretary, and Marilyn Beil treasurer. Josephine Starling was chosen historian, Jane Smith reporter, and Virginia Sedgley counselor.

In chapel this morning May 13, Virginia Sedgley and Elizabeth Ann Parker representing the Debate Club and Pi Kappa Delta, honorary forensic fraternity, summarized the activities and accomplishments of the two organizations during the past year.

Elizabeth Ann Parker briefly outlined the work of the national Pi Kappa Delta convention which met in Minneapolis in April, and Virginia Sedgley presented data on the debate tournaments and

Brock Challenges S. T. C. Students To Wartime Duties

Robert K. Brock, in cooperation with the finance committee of the college war council, addressed the student body in chapel Thursday, May 7 on "Money and Defense".

He suggested sacrifices that college students might make in view of those being made by young men in training camps. The services of both, he said, were interdependent, Especially challenging was an editorial Mr. Brock read which clearly predicted the way our country would be run if it were in charge of Hitler and his Nazi regime. This editorial appeared in Liberty Magazine.

Concuding his talk, Mr. Brock urged the students at S. T. C. to realize that their part in winning this war could be a vital and important one by their knitting, purchasing defense stamps and bonds, and by their quiet but necessary assistance in relatively unconspicuous positions.

At the same time the official sale of war stamps and bonds was initiated, with a booth being placed in the Rotunda for this purpose.

Last Calls Issued By Contest Officials

A last call to compete for the National Poet - Laureate title and for top poetry honors in the state of Virginia was extended this week by the American Poet Laureate Committee from national headquarters in San Diago, Calif. Poems to be accepted must be mailednot later than May 30. The announcement was made by Claude B. Coldren, national sponsoring committee chairman.

Amateur and professional poets alike may participate by contributing poems of any length.

Entries should be mailed to H. M. Hudson, Secretary, Poet Laureate Committee, Broadway Bldg., San Diago, Calif.

Garrulous, Gawky, Giddy Goats Personify Flappers, and Daisy Maes for Hecklers

By Faye Johnson

The long feared Goat Week started off with early morning preparatons—as usual at the last minute we found that we didn't have all the necessary equipment. Somehow we got to breakfast where you saw people you hadn't seen for months—at breakfast. Of course we felt terribly self conscious with all that strutting. That passed and there was comfort in the thought that "No matter what the outside world looks like, I'm realy me on the inside"—and then you wondered!

By 12:30 we all had the nervous jitters as we asembled before the Colonnade and jeering Cotillion members.

Sugar had to replay her game of tennis from rat week—Dodie and Lulie Jones were absolutely screams as they ambulated rather pendulum like out to the center of the circle. Best thing this side of Mae West and was it appreciated not only by S. T. C. onlookers but visiting gentlemen across the way at the hotel.

Hattie Cantrell pinned our unprotruding ears back by loudly explaining what worthless goats we were. We mentally sank down in our heels. The long strut into lunch seemed endless. We made it—only to find we had to eat soup with our knives—a gentle reminder that goats have horrible manners. By the second day it seemed natural to eat a meal with your chair back to the table and you uncomfortably straddling it. Ann Engart was told to eat her dessert in the middle of the center aisle. After meals we always scrambled to the side doors to get back to the privacy of our rooms and quicker. A watchful Dugger directed traffic to the main entrance and well, the privacy we thought about was just thought about.

The picnic in the "Rec" was successful in that a good time was has by all except worried goats who were trying desperately to think up skits at the zero hour. To be remembered was Baylis Kunz and the others who took off on May Day. Cadmus and B. Davis deserved the encore on that cute dance. K. Powell and M. Kitchin ungracefully split our sides on their rendition of the dance. And Ann Seay can sing off tune and get an honest laugh from it.

Goat Week Trust—Included chief hecklers Pi Cottrell, Anne Ayers, and May Winn, who formulated the rules of the Cotillion initiation activities early this week.

Class of '42

This year State Teachers College will send out her graduates into a world that knows no code of ethics, a world perilous, insecure, a world demanding a nation rather than the individual. But the Class of '42 is not the first to take over its place on this war-wrecked Earth. This college has graduated countless numbers from her hallowed halls in the past hundred years. Many of these were war years as is this, and yet those graduates have met the responsibilities and hardships which were forced upon them. They met them, took them on, and were successful.

Thus, too, will the Class of '42 triumph over surrounding obstacles, whatever they may be. Her graduates will triumph for they have a steadfast faith and trust placed upon them by their Alma Mater, by their fellow students, and by their friends, a faith which binds them to the trust that educated men and women trained in values as well as knowledge in their sphere the hope of the universe.

Such training State Teachers College has given her students, and such hope she has placed in their hands! May that light never fail.

Our Responsibility

The beginning has come. The nation, and along with it, this college, stood last week in its first rationing line. After waiting turn in an inching column, all of America now owns slips of paper entitling each one of them to one cup of sugar per week.

The end is a long way from sight. How many more slowly-moving lines we shall stand in, we do not know. Just as we do not know and would rather not guess, how many will not answer to roll call when the war is over.

It is good, however, that we are getting our eyes open to the fact that war is an inescapable part of our everyday lives. College students are no different from anyone else; they are not apt to be of much service to the Stars and Stripes if their attitude is noe of let-come-what-may-indifference.

For today, and in the war-marked peace to follow later, there is a greater need for expert nurses, teachers, dietitions, business women, and laboratory workers than ever before.

Now is the time to be making education count, for education is our best bet to help democracy the "one for all and all for one" business it was meant to be.

College education has a double responsibility. We owe it not only to ourselves, but to our nation as well, to get as much out of studies as possible. America needs her citizens as well trained, as well prepared as they can possibly be.

WEDNESDAY MAY 13, 1942

The Sugar Habit

Using large amounts of sugar is chiefly a habit. The health experts have been worrying for years because most of us use too much sugar.

Americans use two pounds of sugar per person each week or one hundred and four pounds each a year. Europeans average only 19 pounds per person a year!

Sugar has no vitamins, no minerals, no proteins—only calories to give energy—and a nice sweet taste.

You don't need candy. You just think you do. Its use crowds out protective foods that are essential to sound, healthy bodies. You can get all the sugar your body actually needs from fruit and vegetables.

Maybe sugar rations are not so bad after all.

Education for Victory

An extensive survey conducted by the Women's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor disclosed the following facts relating to women in the war effort.

It is estimated that more than 2,000,000 women will be needed for work on the production of war materials before the end of 1942. New jobs are being created through the breakdown of "big" processes into the simpler and less skilled operations. Shorter training periods are called for.

Women are being employed in the machine shops, on the assembly lines, and at inspection posts. A few of the outstanding examples of the expected demands for women are listed here:

Aircraft plants—one plant having none but male employees heretofore, expects to take more women; in February they had 27 women on the production line, and this may increase to 6000 by summer.

One large company with branch plants in different parts of the country has tried out women in one of its locations and expects to hire them elsewhere as soon as plans are formulated for various occupations.

A large rubber goods manufacturer had representatives touring the country visiting the various co-education and women's colleges, seeking women who had majored in chemistry.

Ammunition plants already employ large numbers of women for making ammunition for small arms and for artillery. In the mechanical time-fuse department of a government arsenal 96 per cent of the workers are women.

Some electrical manufacturing companies are asking for women college graduates who have concentrated in mathematics, chemistry, or physics to serve as assistant engineers for work on estimates and mathematical computations; some women will also be able to find positions as radio physicists and technicians.

It is the feeling of the Women's Bureau that qualified college women trained in mathematics, chemistry, and physics can find a place in any of these industries leading to a career after the termination of the present emergency. Courses qualifying women for positions as draftsmen, inspectors, supervisors, engine testing, computation, and a wide range of precision work, are now available to women through the opening of their defense training courses by some of the engineering schools of the universities.

Steinbeck's "Moon" Provides Unique Slant On Nazis

John Steinbeck's The Moon Is Down was a best seller almost from the day it was published early in March.

The novelty of the story, a suggestion that a Nazi conqueror may be a man with a heart and human memories after all, expands into an account of how some unnamed but obviously Nazi invaders take an unlocalized but obviously Norwegian mining town, meet with icy resistance and are themselves worn down. They encounter in every citizen the simple skill and steeled courage that private experience had schooled them to expect. The hero-villain, Colonel Lanser, knows before he arrives, for instance, that one of his lieutenants will go all but mad learning that at most his army has conquered "fly-paper".

The theme provokes a hot debate as to how sound and how salutary is Steinbeck's' thesis: that a free people cannot be conquered. It is a good message and a reassuring one to a too optimistic United States.

Quotable Quotes

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

"There is a possibility of the United States suffering defeat in the present war as a result of Americans failing to recognize their peril." John DeBoer, director of student teaching at Chicago Teachers college, blames American voters for the presence of "persons in public life who do not believe in democracy."

"Americans have always paid great difference to European culture patterns and the more uncritical among us have held a sense of inferiority. The average college graduate has had a greater knowledge of European culture than his own. The future will see a revival of interest in the cultural history of the United States. Close attention will be paid to American history, philosophy, literature and language.

All About A . . .

Senior Personality

ALLENE OVERBEY
Past Editor of the Colonnade

Through her genuine ability and amazing versatility, Allene Overbey has made her influence felt through the entire school. Possessed of an active desire to lend her help and assistance whenever sought, she will leave an indelible impression on those of us who have been included in her circle of influence.

She was twice editor of The Colonnade, and her efficiency at this task has been especially noteworthy for its attempt at an honest expression of our school.

Possessed of a natural sense of humor, Allene can always manage a laugh. Her poise and personal charm have made her a member of May Court and Mardi Gras for the past two years. Extremely industrious and cooperative, she undertakes many tasks and does them well. Her many abilities and honest efforts of leadership have been recognized by all those who know her and by recognition in Alpha Kappa Gamma.

That she is adept at making friends has been shown by her many friendships here at S.T.C. She is a person whom to know is to admire. Her abounding graciousness and loyalty to her school to her have become a working ideal.

The Gatepost

(Who Hears an Awful Lot)

"Cov" had a little trouble getting a date last week-end. First she called John Bursley at Tech. The next night he called her and said he wouldn't be able to come. Then she called "Ox" and was at last successful.

"Campie" is looking for a ride to Blacksburg this week-end which will mean her third successive week-end with Ambrose . . .

Latest couple is Charlotte Phillips and "Goo"—Hampden-Sydney finals and Kappa Sig picnic!—Anticlimax!

How the dates last Saturday and the dates last Sunday differed! More brand-new confusion per second . . .

Buck Crockett: May Wertz—Saturday; Betty Burns—Sunday.

Jimmy Kay: Ann Boswell—Saturday; Hilah Lee—Sunday ("Bos" had a date with Shorty.)

The whole crew on the Kappa Sig picnic came back in good shape—take Parham and John Harlow f'instance!!!

Snake-of-the-week prize goes to Carol Costello who was seen with Clemmer Peck at Cotillion.

"Ace" Livick has slightly definitely changed his dance-floor technique—he's becoming friendly for a change.

What happened to Perky, Jane Scott? Certainly missed him at the dance.

A new personality at the dance was Jim Cousar—it was good to see him here and here's hoping it won't be the last time.

Nearly beaming when Graham arrived was "Jingleby"—we don't blame her.

Buff Gunter's diamond is simply lovely—one more in the class of '42.

"The Triggs" as usual were rushing the Army—what is their main trouble?

How did all the men's clothes and shoes get in Dot Childress's room last Sunday? It looked like a haberdashery—This calls for a real explanation Dot!

This editor sincerely hopes that Virginia Snead's knowledge of Emily Post references far exceeds said acquaintance with the Great Sport of Baseball . . . Her amazing queries at the Big League gathering on Friday afternoon wree proof enough that she knows the sum total of zero about said sport . . . Yet her batting average is almost perfect these days . . . W. and L. one week-end; and Billy Trinkle the next, with whom, incidentally, she attended the game last week.

The Rec was almost entirely renovated Friday night in Navy blue following the baseball clash of that afternoon . . . the officers' uniforms bedecking the sidelines . . . Anne Ellett with Freddie Hutchinson . . . Versatile Wright and Ray Brown, among others. The Big League-ers proved to be most attractive, and eligible.

Landslide Vote Again ElectsA Glenn Miller Nation's Top Bandsman in Fifth Annual "Billboard" Music Poll of 158 Leading Colleges

He's done it again!

For the third consecutive year, Glenn Miller, in competition with 34 other bands, has been voted the nation's top bandleader in Billboard's Fifth Annual College Music Poll of 158 leading colleges, selected throughout the 48 states.

In a veritable landslide, the leader of CBS's "Moonlight Serenade" received 316.5 votes out of a possible 468, giving him a plurality of twice as many votes as the combined total of all the other bands.

It was only a few months after his Columbia network debut during Christmas week of 1939 that Glenn won the first intercollegiate award.

Beginning Tuesday, May 5, the blue-ribboned 'Moonlight Serenade" moved to a Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday schedule at an earlier hour and added a rebroadcast for the West Coast. (CBS, 7:15 to 7:30 P. M.,EST. Rebroadcast 11:15 to 11:30 P. M., EST.

Facts On File— —

"Vox Pop", on Columbia network Monday nights, has interviewed more than 5,000 persons who have answered some 250,000 questions in nearly 800 programs. For people who enjoy statistics, the show has given away more than $60,000 in currency and merchandise to those interviewed. They have come from all the 48 states and all territories of the United States as well as 47 foreign nations.

Baseball Clashes To Begin Soon

Baseball Teams To Clash . . .

Red and White will once again face Green and White when the final baseball games bring the two rivals in a hit and run tournament at an early date. Practices are held each evening on the athletic field from seven until eight and eight practices are needed in order to qualify for a team. If enough class members make up a team, competition will allow extra practices. This the last competitive sport for the season. We are wondering how the banners will stand on the color cup. A complete chart of this will be revealed in the very near future.

A Score for the Faculty . . .

And speaking of competition we certainly enjoyed our fast and furious faculty versus A. K. G. b-ball players when the "Slugger-Dodgers" were downed 13-12 by their opposing "Fighting Wildcats". Due to a spring shower the gymnasium was turned into the proverbial diamond and the closed area allowed the teams to compete as scheduled.

Netmen Continue Games . . .

The annual tennis tournament is progessing slower than usual due to wet courts, but the games will be pushed forward this week as the second round in doubles should be completed by this date. Records of the winners of each match is marked on the chart on the A. A. bulletin board, thus allowing advancement to be publicly shown. Color cup points were not given in the fall as tennis was not scheduled in the cup competition, but it will name in the spring singles tournament now underway.

VMI Heads "Big Six" . . . .

Virginia Military Institute won the annual Big Six track meet last week-end when the six clashing schools competed at Charlottesville. Scoring four first places and several second, third, and fourths the V. M. I. trackmen were followed up by Virginia who captured a second place; Virginia Tech, third; Richmond, fourth; William and Mary, fifth; and Washington and Lee, sixth.

News has been released that the "Big Six" championship track team will not compete in the Southern Conference this Saturday at Durham, N. C. Early graduation at V. M. I. has forced cancellation of Keydet participation in the Southern conference carnival and thus the possibilities of bringing the Old Dominion its first conference track prize in many seasons is out.

Norfolk N. T. S. Turns Back Tigers

Hampden-Sydney displayed a fair game of baseball before a hopeful Farmville audience last week-end when the Norfolk Naval Training Station team whipped them 13-0. The no-hit, no-run pitching performance turned in by hurler Maxie Wilson, former member of the Piedmont League was on the ball. Bobby Feller, ex-Cleveland player was expected, but was unable to make the trip. Chances for Feller to remain in active trim seems uncertain. Notice has been issued to the former Cleveland pitcher that he will soon be transferred to Newport training station which incidentally has no team!

Riding Club Entries

Gloria Pollard will be in the Riding Club Room every evening after dinner to take entries for the Horse Show and Riding Contest to be held at Longwood on Saturday, May 23.

All girls taking riding must be entered in at least one class.

Sexton Will Head Orchesis Group For Coming Year

Betty Sexton, junior from Macon, Georgia, was elected president of Orchesis, dance group, to succeed Ann Bradshaw, at a meeting Monday night, May 11. Succeeding Louisa Sanford, Alice Seebert, from Tazwell, was elected to fill the position of secretary-treasurer, and Ellen Ebel, of Richmond, was selected to replace Harriett Walker as costume chairman.

Orchesis is an honorary society in the modern dance and has sponsored a symposium and has sent representatives to other meetings in New York and North Carolina this year.

At the same meeting ten girls were selected to be issued bids to the dance proup.

Racquet Wielders To Play Off Finals In Clash Tomorrow

Pointing to the toughest tilt of the net season, racquet wielders Nancy Dupuy and Dot Johnson will defend Red and White against Green and White netters Sugar Baker and Anne Payne in the play-off of the semi-final doubles in the tennis tournament Thursday evening, May 14, on the college courts.

For the past several weeks the tennis tourney has progressed slowly due to repair work done on the courts, but the finals will be run off this week end according to a statement made by Sugar Baker, chairman of the tournament, late yesterday.

At present the runners-up in the singles tourney are Nancy Dupuy, Dot Johnson, Ruth Dugger, and Mildred Droste. Finals in this section will be completed this week also.

To reach those top positions and become the seeded favorites in the net volleys tomorrow, Nancy Dupuy and Dot Johnson will have to meet the netmen Sugar Baker and Anne Payne. The previous match by Dupuy and Johnson was played with Hallie Hillsman and Jean Carr. Still in the running are Ruth Dugger and Mildred Drostes who have not played their first match.

section are the honor societies, Alpha Phi Sigma, Kappa Delta Pi, Alpha Kappa Gamma, Pi Gamma Mu, Gamma Psi, Pi Kappa Delta, and Boerc Eh Thorn, the athletic teams and the Monogram Club.

The third section, "Significance of the Social", gives prominence to the social sororities, the music organizations, the Dramatic and Cotillion Clubs, Chi, and snapshots taken around campus. Concluding this snapshot section are scenes of May Day, the queen, maid of honor, and the court.

Combining the themes of "Academic and Physical Alliance" and "Significance of the Social", "Reflecting the Many Facets of a Well Rounded Girl", the last section is a mirror of outstanding seniors. Those included are Nancy Naff, president of the student body; Frances Rosebro, president of the Y. W. C. A.; Mary Katherine Dodson, president of the senior class; Anne Ayers, editor of the 1942 Virginian, Allene Overbey, editor of the Colonnade 1940 and 1941; May Wertz, editor of the 1941 Virginian; Jane Engleby, president of the House Council; and Sara Cline, past editor of the Rotunda.

The sophomore and senior statistics state the organizations in which each member of these classes has been, and the offices sh has held during her stay at S. T. C.

Many Shine For Victors As Faculty Edge Out Close Lead In Clash Thursday

By M. P. V.
(Rotunda's Ace Reporter)

In an uprooting 13 to 12 ballfest between the A. K. G. Panthers and the Brainy Wildcats in the gymnasium Thursday, May 7, a fair proof that brains help even in athletic skills, was exemplified. Because of weather conditions which we must censor, the game was played inside.

"Speed" Meyers offered competition to the big-leaguers with his rapid pick-ups and fast play, and non-stop Wynne usually managed a one-bagger with a gallop and a slide. "Fly" Burger, "Spike" Iler, and "Two-base" Kauzlarich, though not always true to their sobriquets, were stiff competition for the students and proved themselves handy with a ball. "Four-ball" Moran and "Doc" Tutles, easy hitters, guarded the outfield with the assistance of "Doc's" canine helper, "Buttons". Home-run Boysworth guarded third base with her life, and "Batty" Holton made a wicked catcher with a high batting average. "Flash" Booten managed to keep the score on the incline and "Strike-out" Nichols stole the show by her pctiteness. "Boo" Coyner was quite efficient as referee.

Fighting to suppress the Wildcats were the A. K. G. Panthers who gave the faculty and honest workout. Sara Cline kept the bats handy while Dodson slipped the curved balls close over the left inside corner. Winifred Wright guarded an unapproachable first base and Jane Engleby a third. Rosebro and Boutchard outfielded while Hillsman short-stopped to the Wildcat's disadvantage. Read kept second while Turner caught.

Miss Mary Barlow captained the faculty while Dodson managed for the students. Myers and Burger side coached for the faculty and saw that runners were safe. From the first, the outcome of the game was dubious; the score advanced by some hard-hits in the last inning.

Just Looking, Thanks

By JANE SMITH
(The Rotunda's Social Noter)

Most of the poor old planet's two billion residents spent the week beating each other's brains out, but at S. T. C. the fun went on as before . . .

Highlight of the week: Spring Cotillion . . . Tea Dance . . . gay new dresses . . . refreshing decorations . . . Barry McKinley and sweet jive . . all added up to produce one grand week-end.

Rushing Climaxes . . .

Spring rushing climaxed with numerous pledge parties and banquets. Among those celebrating in rare style was Alpha Sigma Tau, whose members entertained the seven AST pledges in the chapter room on May 8. Phi Zeta Sigma members held their annual Spring banquet Tuesday, May 12. Besides active members and new pledges the guests included Dr. Jarman, Miss Mary, Miss Carlyn Cogbill, Misses Lila and Wilhelmina London, Mrs. John H. Collie, and Mrs. John McCurdy Milton, first president of the sorority.

The Gamma Thetas also feted at a luscious banquet on Friday night at Longwood with several alumnae present along with faculty members and heads of the administration and home department.

Rain Check . . .

Miss Mary E. Peck entertained the members of Alpha Phi Sigma from 4 o'clock until 6 in the 'rec" on Thursday, P. S.—It was supposed to have been a lawn party, but the inconsiderate weatherman sorta changed the plans.

Likewise the Cotillion Club members—250 strong yesterday decided to make their supper party a swimming party . . . after much persuasion by dark clouds above.

Another picnic that turned out an outdoor affair was the Riding Club picnic given on Thursday by the members of Pegasus. The "Rec" again served as picnic grounds and the fun went on as arranged—rain or shine.

Hampden-Sydney Retreats . . .

The Hampden-Sydney Monogram Club, the social orders of Kappa Sigma and Pi Kappa Alpha, and the—whatever it is—ribbon society of Phi each gave very rustic picnics at near-by lakes during the past week with the guest lists including many from S. T. C.

Travelers . . .

And now for those who forsook this fair campus for happy landings elsewhere:

Tarheeling it went Harriet Levinson to Chapel Hill and Helen Fuller, Margaret Kitchen and Mary A. Thomasson to Raleigh to N. C. State dances . . . Nancye Allen, Ella Marsh Pilkinton, and Polly Keller journeyed to Radford to help establish a chapter of Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority there . . . Conventioning for science's sake were Rosalie Rogers, Vera Barron, and Dottie Sue Simmons . . . For Sigma's sake was Allene Overbey, who went to Orkney Springs to attend a pre-view meet of the national convention slated for August . . . There were those more fortunate souls who journeyed home for Mothers' Day . . . and last but by no means least, those girls who trotted up to Tech, M. K. Ingham, Florence Carr, Faye Nimmo, Frances Wentzel, Martha Watson, and Sarah Wood.

Cotillion Dance Register . . .

For those who went and "with whom" to Cotillion Saturday, the dance register is as follows:

Mary Lou Shannon, Jimmy Dodson; Hattie Cantrell, Frank Blanton; Ann Boswell, Jimmy Kay; Sarah Massie Goode, Kossen Gregory; Glen McAdams, Anne Rogers; Jac Hardy, Shep Boothe; Sarah Wade Owen, Clyde Edwards; Betsy Bullock, H. T. Walker; Shirley Pierce, Richard Boyette; Shirley Turner, T. C. Bowen; Virginia Campfield, J. M. Johnson; Grace Hutcheson, Tommy Nicholas; Eloise Williams, Walter Carlton; May Winn, Webb Johnson; Anne Page Francis, Johnny Phillips; Dot Johnson, Billy Baskervill; Kay Spencer, Tom T. Atkinson; Anne Ellett, Charlie Varn; Mary Parrish Viccellio, Sudie Warren; and Lillian German, Russell Paulett.

And Anne Ayers, Jules Lund; Jane Sanford, Tedo Savage; Sara Cline, Les Cundiff, Nancy Hutter, Will Rogers; Jo Brumfield, Rick Cornwell; Jane Lee Hutcheson, Blanton Hanbury; Connie Knighton, Sammy Geyer; Lulie Jones, David Davis; Emma Louise Crowgey, Junie Chitwood; Dot Childress, Frank Lawton; Margaret Mish, Eddie Norwood; and Connie Boatwright, Fred Gerheart.

Also Jean Hattton, Bill Lugar; Mary Owens West, Robert Williams, Louise McCorkle, Jimmie Overton; Sara Hardy, Charlie Blanton; Helen Hardy, Dick Reid, Spilly Purdum, Dick Scully; Eleanor Folk, Mac Brown; Elsie Stossel, Burdette Cicer; Nancy Dupuy, Ed Byrne; Buff Gunter, Paul Butz; Imogen Claytor, Bud Downey; Nancy Bondurant, Elmer Wilson; Beth Johnson, Charlie Llewellyn; Pattsy Connelly, Boyd Beal; and Betty Bridgeforth, Dick Sydnor.

And Charotte Phillips, Wright Gouldin; Ellen Ebel, Bill Varn; Leona Moomaw, Ned Crawley; Lucy Davis, Ed Davis; Brookie Benton, Jim Cousar; Cottie Radspinner, Jimmy Peden; Virginia Alexander, Dave Forrest; Frances Parham, John Harlowe; Mary Evelyn Pearsall, Horace Adams; Anne Turner, Ace Livick; Betsy Austin, C. P. Smith; Kitty Powell, Wayne Mears.; Beezie Townsend, Chick Tasker; Margaret Wright, Carl Messerschmidt; Mary K. Officials Make Plans For Sigma Convention Camp Strawderman

Officials and leaders of the Virginia and Washington, D. C. chapters of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority met last week end in Harrisonburg and completed plans for the national sorority convention, which will be held August 20-27 at Camp Strawderman, Miss Margaret Hoffman's camp for girls near Orkney Springs, Va.

Miss Mabel Lee Walton, national president, arrived on Friday from national headquarters at Clermont, Fla., and at Harrisonburg met the other members of the camp committee. Aliene Overbey, past president of Alpha chapter, represented the local Sigma group, while Johnny Bess Hale, president of Alpha Theta chapter at Radford State Teachers College; Margaret Moore, president of Alpha Upsilon chapter at Madison College; and Beatrice Slade, head of Alpha Tau chapter at Wilson College, Washington, D. C., made up the committee.

Alpha chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma will be one of the four hostess chapters at the national convention and Jac Hardy will be the official representative with Eleanor Folk as alternate.

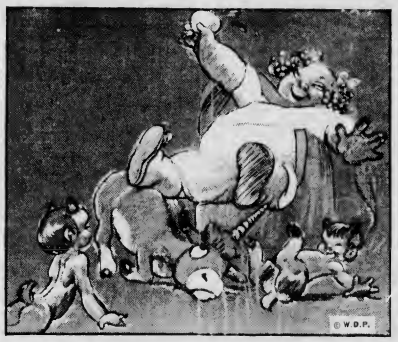
Class Day Slated For June 1

The Senior Class Day Program on Monday, June 1, at 10 o'clock will open with a welcome by Mary Katherine Dodson, president of the senior class. The members of the class will then present the class song, and Allene Overbey will briefly outline the class history. Following the Presentation of Symbol of Office, Polly Hughes and Elizabeth Ann Parker will present the class gifts.

Miss Mary E. Peck, president of the Alumnae Association will initiate the graduates into that association. The class will then sing the Farewell Song by Mary Katherine Dodson. The traditional Daisy Chain on the campus will conclude the Class Day Exercises.

On Monday night at 8:30 o'clock there will be a final reception for the seniors in the Student Lounge. The Lantern Parade will be given on the campus at 10 o'clock Monday night.



June 2 To Be Date of Final Exercises

Commencement Exercises will open Tuesday morning, June 2, with the singing of the Alma Mater. Dr. E. S. Sheppe, pastor of the Farmville Methodist church, will deliver the invocation. Sara Cline, one of the second honor graduates, will give the Salutatory address. Jane Lee Hutcheson, of Farmville is the other second honor graduate.

The principal speaker at the final exercises will be Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, from Richmond. Following his address the Senior A'Capella Choir will present "God Hath Now Ascended" by Gallows. The valedictory address will be given by Mary Hunter Edmunds.

Dr. J. L. Jarman, president of the college, will deliver the diplomas and degrees, followed by the announcement of honor graduates. The singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" will close the program.

Life of the Party . . .

The famous motion picture, "Fantasia", which ran for a year in New York and was recently shown in Richmond, will be at the State Theatre May 18 and 19.

Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Suite" opens the picture. Many music lovers will be pleased that this beloved music is accompanied by some of the artist's most fascinating work. Mickey Mouse is starred as a student magician in the section background by Dukas' lively and catchy "The Sorcerer's Apprentice".

Walt Disney has long sought to utilize a prehistoric setting in a film. Seeking music that would be interesting and appropriate he chose "Rite of Spring" because of its savage and exciting character. Dinosaurs, volcanoes, boiling oceans, and a world in the throes of creation are used in interpreting this significant composition in modern music.

Beethoven's Symphony Number 6 Sequence follows closely the composers own interpretation of this masterful score known the world over as the Pastoral Symphony. The only variation makes the filming more pictorial. The human folk enjoying their day in the country became mythological characters like centaurs, centaurettes, unicorns, flying horses, cupids, gods, and goddess.

Another idea Disney has been considering is a broad burlesque of a ballet. This division set to the music of Panchlelli's "Dance to the Hours" is a smash hit. Mlle. Upanova, an ostrich with a shy, coy, manner and feet the size of gunboats assisted by a ludicrous Hyacinth Hippo, Ben Ali Gates and his elephant pals dance a ballet in such a way that there's no doubt that Disney did a tall bit of considering.

Moussorgsky's "Night on Bald Mountain" and Shubert's famous "Ava Maria" were chosen because of the possibility of contrasting the two.

USO Selects Partners For Pickett Soldiers

On Tuesday, May 12, 50 S. T. C. juniors and seniors in cooperation with the U. S. O. committee of the college war council headed by Dot Childress, went to Blackstone to a dance given in honor of the soldiers at Camp Pickett.

It is the special duty of the U. S. O. committee to provide entertainment for soldiers at nearby camps, and in this way aid national defense.

The girls travelled to Blackstone by bus. Miss Olive Iler, Miss Virginia Bedford, Miss Mary Nichols, and Mr. Raymond French were the chaperones for the students at the dance.

Wesley Group Elects Catherine May Head

Catherine May was elected president of the Wesley Foundation, the Methodist organization on campus, at a meeting last week. At the same time Roberta Davis was elected secretary and Louise Bell, treasurer.

Committee chairman Betty Watts, worship; Mary Elizabeth Grizzard, social; Nancy Hall, publicity; Anne Hamlin, membership; and Dahpne Williams, community and world service, were appointed at the same time.

Rotunda Again Rated "Excellent": ACP Judges Laud Sports Section

The Rotunda has been rated a "First Class Excellent" newspaper by the Associated Collegiate Press in the regular critical service conducted by that organization for college papers issued this year. The issues judged were those of the fall, 1941. A First Class rating is second only to the highest award possible, that of All-American-Superior.

The sports section was particularly lauded in the ACP Scorebook recently distributed to the 600 college newspapers holding membership in ACP. The judges made the statement that sports coverage and treatment was superior and "By far the outstanding sports section of any girls' school entered in ACP service".

The picture coverage of news events was also commended and was given the rank of "very good". The judges added that "the photos had action and showed originality in posing".

The feature department was given a rating of "very good" also, with special mention given to the "Question of the Week".

The editorial page was rated "excellent" and the general news writing and editing was also given an "excellent" rating.

In the fall of 1940 the rating of "Second Class-Good" was awarded The Rotunda and the issues of the Spring of 1941 were judged "First Class".

The judges for The Rotunda in this year's service were Oz Black, a graduate in journalism at the University of Nebraska and a staff member of the Minneapolis Star-Journal, and Otto Quale, a graduate in journalism at the University of Minnesota, the former sports editor of the Minnesota Daily, and at present a staff member of A.C.P.

Among the issues which were awarded the first class rank this year were those which won for The Rotunda the award of first prize among the weekly paper published in the colleges of Virginia last year. This award was made at the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association meet which was held on this campus in the Fall.

J. L. Jarman Makes Centennial Address

College President Represents All State Colleges

Dr. J. L. Jarman, president of State Teachers College, this week officially represented the colleges of Virginia at the three-day celebration marking the centennial anniversary of Hollins College. In an introductory talk at the program given on Tuesday, May 19, Dr. Jarman made the official greeting to Hollins on behalf of the colleges of Virginia.

Briefly, Dr. Jarman outlined the history of educational institutions in Virginia and added, "From those early days to the present, we have looked to Hollins for high leadership. We have watched with warm hearts the quiet dignity, the simple thoroughness, the genuine culture, and the spiritual tone of home life that mark the Hollins of today."

Graham, Dewey Speak

Among those speaking on the second day program was President Frank Porter Graham of the University of North Carolina, who gave the introductory address, "Some aspects of American Liberty In the Present World."

John Dewey, professor emeritus from the philosophy department of Columbia University, gave the second address of the morning. Professor Dewey's topic was "Religion and Morality in a Free Country."

President Theodore H. Jack, of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Dean Frances B. Blanshard of Swarthmore College, Dr. Elizabeth Gilmore Holt, Dewitt H. Parker, professor of philosophy at University of Michigan, and Harlow Shapeley, professor of astronomy at Harvard University, were among the other prominent educators making talks at the meetings and symposium held Monday.

House Council Lists Examination Rules

Margaret Mish, president of the House Council, has announced the rules for the examination period that will go into effect Monday night, May 25, and continue through Thursday night, May 28.

Quiet must be observed from 7 o'clock until 10 o'clock and must be resumed promptly at 10:30. No radios must be played during the study hour or after 10:30. Busy signs are good after 10:30 as well as during the sudy hours. Unnecessary moving in the halls is prohibited and all must abide by these regulations.

A Student Government F will be recorded on the reports of anyone who breaks the above rules.

USO Plays Host To One Hundred Pickett Soldiers

On Friday night, May 22, at 8 o'clock the Recreational Hall at State Teachers College will be converted into a veritable casino crowded with one hundred soldiers from Camp Pickett in Blackstone and an equal number of Farmville's most adept hostesses. The entertainment is sponsored by the U. S. O. committee of the College War Council and is headed by Dot Childress. The Pan-Hellenic Association wil serve refreshments.

There will be two groups of amusements; one-half of the soldiers will play bridge while the other plays at such games as pingpong, checkers, shuffle board, and bingo. In addition, there will be group singing and fortune telling. Jean Weller is in charge of the bridge, while Sara Cline will supervise the games.

Floor Show Included

Gerry Ackiss will head the program which will be in the form of a floor show, with general entertainment for the whole group. Alice Seebert will be in charge of refreshments. Prizes will be offered to those successful in bridge and also to those who win at the various games.

Anyone who wishes to may sign up on the Y. W. bulletin board to help with entertaining the soldiers by playing or directing the games.

In cooperation with the National Defense, it is the special duty of theU. S. O. committee to provide entertainment for soldiers in nearby camps. Last Tuesday, May 12, 50 juniors and seniors from the college went to Blackstone to attend a dance given there by Camp Pickett soldiers.

Biology Students Win Scholarships

Three To Assist In Research Work

Three students who are Majors in the Department of Biology have been granted scholarships for further study and research in the field of biology during the coming summer. Rosalie Rogers, a junior, and Vera Baron, a senior, will receive scholarships for work in Marine Biology at the Virginia Fisheries Laboratory at Yorktown, while Marie Brickert, a senior, has been offered a scholarship to begin work on her master's degree at the University of Virginia Biological Station at Mountain Lake.

This will be Rosalie Rogers' second summer at the Virginia Fisheries Laboratory. Last summer she was associated with Dr. Margaret E. Lockhead in experiments on the artificial rearing of the famous Blue Crab. Her name was mentioned in a scientific paper on the hatching of larval crabs written by Dr. Curtis L. Newcombe, Director of the Laboratory, and Dr. Lockhead and was published in the Virginia Journal of Science this spring. This is Vera Baron's first summer at the Yorktown laboratory.

Marie Brickert will take courses at the Mountain Lake Laboratory, which is under the direction of Dean Ivey F. Lewis of the University of Virginia. While there she has been pursuing for several years.

Each of these girls accompanied Dr. George W. Jeffers and Dr. Edith Stevens to the recent meeting of the Virginia Academy of Science in Roanoke.

Episcopal Students Observe Communion On Sunday, May 21

On Sunday morning, May 24, at 7:30 o'clock there will be a Corporate Communion Service in Johns Memorial Episcopal Church for all Christian students. This day has been set aside as Youth Sunday and there will be similar services all over the world.

This special celebration is in connection with the Youth Movement of the Episcopal Church.

Commercial Department Graduates Seventeen Four-Year Students

For the first time in the history of the Commercial department, four year graduate students are leaving Farmville. The seventeen girls that have completed the four year course are Mable Carlton, Mary Owen Carson, Jean Hall, Winnie Harreld, Mildred Bowen, Catherine Hawthorne, Elizabeth Jennings, Mary Anna Motley, Emma Nobin, Esther Partridge, Eva Reid, Harriet Scott, Ethelyn Shepard, Jean Shulkcum, Marie Thompson, Edith Vassar, Lucille Wilkerson, and Edith Wood.

Until four years ago, with the introduction of Mr. M. L. Landrum into the college commercial department, shorthand and typing were the only courses offered in this field. Now a third of the students in school are commercial students and the range of commercial subjects has been greatly increased so that it now includes commercial subjects comparable to any in schools of a similar class.

Calverts, of Baltimore, in a school search for secretaries, was particularly impressed with the department here and the representatives praised it highly in comparison with other Southern girls schools. There is definite realization of the weak spots in the commercial department and an unceasing effort is being directed in ironing them out. The primary interest is placed on the training of four year teachers not just on the preparation of secretaries and stenographers.

Senior Chapel Set May 21

With the singing of the Alma Mater, the senior class will march into Chapel on Thursday, May 21 for the traditional Senior Chapel Exercises. The junior class dressed in white will sit directly behind the seniors.

After devotions led by Dr. E. S. Sheppe, Dr. J. L. Jarman will sing "Keep on Hoping". Mary Katherine Dodson, president of the senior class, will make a farewell talk and offer a challenge to the junior class. This challenge will be accepted by Betty Boutchard, president of the junior class. At this time she will also announce the honorary classmember of the class of '43, who will lead the figure in the Senior Dance next fall.

The seniors will then sing the farewell songs, concluding with "Joys We Have Known". To the Alma Mater the seniors will form an arch with their caps. The juniors will pass through the arch, marching to the Alma Mater for the first time. That night juniors will have senior privileges.

Art Exhibit in Rec Reviews Year's Work In Student Display

Reviewing the work of the art classes of 1941-42, which included approximately 250 students, is the art exhibit, which opened this afternoon, May 20, in the Rec. There are displays by girls majoring in art and by girls taking art education, displays of craft for camp work, unit constructions by those planning to teach in the elementary grades, and illustrations and figure drawings.

Girls who made outstanding contributions to the exhibit are Ann Berry, Catherine Rucker, Josephine Starling, Mary Frances Quillen, Mary Stuart Wamsley, Anna Mary Wilkins, Betty Sexton, Jane Scott, Cottie Radspinner, Winifred Wright, Sara Trigg, Elizabeth Tennent, and Elizabeth Gates.

P. G. M. Centers 1943 Theme On 'New World Order'

"A New World Order" with subtopics developing the various phases of world problems which will come out of the present war has been chosen as the theme of discussions and programs to be directed by the local chapter of Pi Gamma Mu, national honor fraternity in social science, for the school year beginning in the Fall. The sub-topics will relate to economic, racial, religious, and political problems.

The program and project committees are in charge of the theme. The project committee is headed by Anne Ellett, assisted by Miss Grace Moran, advisor, and the program committee chairman is Jane Sanford, vice-president of the local chapter, Miss Mary E. Peck is advisor to this committee.

DON'T FORGET

The Colonnade Short Story Contest. The Contest will run through the summer months and entries will be due on October 15. All entries must be type written and will become the property of the Colonnade.

All students are eligible except members of the Colonnade staff. Prizes of $5, $3, and $1 will be awarded to the first, second, and third place winners respectively in War Saving Stamps.

Picket for Pickett

We talk a lot about being nice to the men in service and on Friday night we shall have an opportunity to put our words into action. One hundred soldiers from the Medical Corp Base at Blackstone will be on our campus and it is up to us to give them a few pleasurable hours filled with games, dancing and quiet conversation. An interesting program has been planned by the USO Committee of the College War Council, but its success depends largely upon the cooperation of the student body.

The speaker at the Farmville Lions Club banquet last week said that the entertainment of the men from Camp Pickett is Farmville's special war duty.

Let us not fail to do our duty to the best of our ability. It is certainly not a disasteful duty, and it is the least we can do for the men who are preparing to protect our way of living—the right to life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness.

Slow Down: Exams

The time has once again come when thoughts turn examward and worried backsliders resume their quarterly headaches. It is a time for concentrated study and of making every hour include new, reviewed, or helpful ideas. It is an especially significant season for those who graduate this Spring. Thus it is only fair that each one of us be as quietly considerate and helpful in this respect as possible.

It is only natural that when we become restless from study and mental worry we should feel the desire to seek relaxation, but it is entirely out of order to do it so audibly that those who wish it can't study. There are many places besides the dormitories that welcome noise, if make it you must.

Education is a heritage with which we should not heckle. Viewed as such, it is horribly unfair to hinder time that has been set aside for concentrated study and honest effort.

It is often embarrassing to create conditions conducive to study when it means stopping other's good fun. But there's a time and a place for everything. And the time for ceasing your hilarity is definitely during exams.

Of course, this is an unnecessary reminder but a necessary one not to forget. Everyone should have a fair chance at exams, and this can only be granted through your quiet cooperation. So for exam's sake, go easy on the noise!

On Apple Polishing

It is entertaining—and sickening—to watch an expert fruit-rubber at work. He proceeds so subtly—he thinks. His efforts are obvious to many—quite frequently even the prof catches on.

The polisher begins by being very sober or very sweet-dispositioned. That creates the desired first impression that he is a "goo-o-ood scolar." The next step is flattery. One of the most successful methods is to bleat about the beauty or potence of every book the professor writes. Quotations from his latest—used in the final—will often assure a high B.

Sure, we could do the same. We might even get more grade points and a quicker degree. But we have to live with ourselves. —The Current Sauce, Louisiana.

This Collegiate World

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

The average college freshman spends most of his time sleeping, according to a survey at Ohio State university.

Seven hours and 49 minutes are devoted to sleep by the average freshman, the statistical study reveals. The average student spends three hours in the classroom, the same length of time studying, and eats for one hour and 44 minutes.

Amusement claims two hours and 37 minutes of the time budget, while the average time spent in outside employment is only one hour and 39 minutes.

The remainder of the 24-hour day is utilizer in treks to and from meals and classes and in non-classifiable activities.

College Junior Advocates Abolition of Chi on Campus

Dear Editor:

So now the spectacle of Chi is past we can all sit down to quiver in our boots until next year. Then maybe if no one has a grudge against us we won't get burned by our little amateur Ku Klux Klan.

The idea of seven girls, students as you and I, marching around a bonfire and telling other girls how to live their personal lives is essentially undemocratic.

The very theory that a few girls have a right to correct others in so public and humiliating a manner is reminiscent of the so called New Order in Europe. Chi resembles the Gestapo in that it is secret; it is not chosen by popular election; it does not necessarily reflect the opinions of the majority and there is no way to answer its accusations.

If Chi were a joke, a sense of humor would be all that is needed, but it is apparently taken seriously even by members of the faculty and administration, whom we respect.

To quote last years annual it is "a representation of spirit which is uniquely Farmville". Its boast of "the bettering of standards" and "increased understanding" needs substantial proof, unless one's standards are lowered and one's understanding is belittled.

I have no axe to grind and no revenge to take but in my opinion the abolition of Chi on the campus here would improve the reputation and the spirit of Farmville.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) Dawn Shanklin

BETWEEN YOU 'N' ME AND . . .

The Gatepost

Whose diary notes are personal but not confidential!

Dear Mr. Gatepost,

A whole week has passed since I've written to you. Please excuse my neglecting ya', but I've been so busy collecting bits of gossip here and there that I've not had time. But here goes. . .

Wednesday

Today I saw Hilah Lee Parks walking up the street with Tommy Johns, that very suave isolationist from Hampden-Sydney. (I'm so glad she's showing him our campus).

And today Irma Dell dropped her goating apparel to go picnicing with Clinton Bales. Too bad for Lee Oliver, he tried so hard!

Thursday

S. T. C.'s own little boy, Sammy, is still dating Faith Hughes. I hope they don't make those corners in he "Rec" too cozy.

Ah! Spring has had a lasting effect on Charles Llewellyn and Beth Johnson. I still can't tell whose hand is whose, in those clutches.

Friday

I heard today about the trianguiar situation including Lula Moss, Ben Johns and Marie Nichols. P. S. Maybe it's not so triangular after all 'cause Lula's going to H. S. finals.

Saturday

A rumor came to me that Mary Jane Ritchie may hear wedding bells this summer. The situation seems to be Love versus Defense!

Sunday

Long lost Rennie had a date with Gwen Sampson tonight after Becky's cutting the cards for the last two weeks.

Well, the girls came back from Tech today, Mr. Gatepost; Will Hall stayed at John Porter's home, who's evidently decided that's one way to keep her from late-dating.

And Martha Walsh finaly met the Tech gossip writer who informed her several weeks ago that Bill's roommate was writing her instead of Bill.

Am still wondering what happened to the Brooks-Ruth Parker affair. Heard tell that he had a blonde number from Mary Baldwin up to the dances.

Monday

Today's Emalgamated Press release stated that the Savage-Cornwell Combo was fiercely defeated 3730 to 2620 in a spectacular bridge clash Saturday night at Buffalo Place . . Sharpened wits (and appetites) were of no avail in attempts at defeating the feminine opposition. . .

Nancy Hand is engaged, Mr. Gatepost. So fraternity pins are due to be returned to several. (I'm glad I don't have to pay the postage bill). And Lee Foster got her diamond this week-end on a trip to Newport News.

Tuesday

I heard that Hatton and Parham are wishing that they could graduate in June; they believe that would convince two young gentlemen that four can live chapear than two!

Ha! Ha! Mr. Gatepost, I guess I fooled Jane Foster, but next time I may really tell you all about her.

But good-bye, now until next week. 'Til then; I'll have time to dig up some more dirt for ya!

CAPITAL to CAMPUS

ACP's Jay Richter Reports from Washington

High Prices Checked . . .

WASHINGTON—(ACP)—College students—because their "income" is relatively "fixed"—should benefit more than the average person from the Office of Price Administration's over-all ceiling order on prices.

... The inflationary spiral has sent retail prices up 19 per cent the last year. Were the spiral to continue, students would find it tougher and tougher to compete for goods and services in a market glutted with eager buyers.

War . . .

Quisling's order sending 500 Norwegian teachers off to Finnish labor camps in the cramped hold of the S. S. Skierstad has aroused storms of protest throughout Norway. The 500 were among thousands who refused to join Norway's Nazi Teachers Union, Norges Laerersamband.

When the "Nazi slave ship" docked in Trondheim, it was reported that all the teachers were sick and two of them had gone mad. Even Quisling satellites protested against resumption of the trip.

A Seat At The Cinema

Friday and Saturday

"The Male Animal" is just the picture to see before starting the ole grind for exams. Not only will you laugh from start to finish, but the story will hold your interest throughout. Henry Fonda is an absent - minded professor with nothing on his mind but Olvia de Havilland and lovely Joan Leslie. It's a gay comedy and a howling hit.

See if you'd attract a male animal: (Check yes or no)

1. Have you ever been pinched on the cheek? Yes— No—
2. Would you kiss a man before you learned his name? Yes— No—
3. Are you capable of changing his mind? Yes— No—
4. Do you prefer to "sit out the next dance? Yes— No—
5. Can you love 'em and leave 'em without regrets? Yes— No—
6. Would you rather have a handsome date instead of an intellectual date? Yes— No—

Monday ,Tuesday, Wednesday "Kings Row", a great novel comes to life as a vivid, powerful drama on the screen. Ann Sheridan, Robert Cummings, Ronald Reagan, and Betty Field are well cast. "Kings Row" represents a frank unmasking of a small humdrum city, where all human passions and prejudices are encompassed in small space. The results are high drama and comedy, pathos and excitement.

Woven into the intricate tale of lives and loves is the whole parcel and pattern of small city doings, the back-fence gossip, the widespread accusations, the high spots of love and sacrifice. This town like its individuals, is neither all good nor all bad. The New Yorker says, "Kings Row" is plainly too good for the Ten Best Pictures of the year."

Senior Personality

FRANCES ROSEBRO
Past Y. W. C. A. President

This week's senior personality spotlight turns to Frances Rosebro. Those who have spent four years in college with her will recall her many versatile renditions and contributions to Sings, Productions, and Circus stunts—particularly will they remember Olive Oyl.

"Ro" as she is known throughout the student body has ably led the Y. W. C. A. through a great year. She has worked faithfully and unceasingly to reach the ever present goals of this organization. Hers has been a great task and she has answered a great challenge.

Because she is always on hand to help, dependable in the highest sense of the word, and true to her convictions, she will ever be remembered.

Her high qualities of leadership and character were recognized by Alpha Kappa Gamma. Her contributions to the schools and her outstanding personality made her one of the seniors listed in "Who's Who".

We will remember "Ro" for the chats we had in the Home Office, for her enthusiasm in the Y, leading prayers, introducing speakers, and sharing in the success of college days.

The spotlight dims, but a personality such as that expressed by Frances Rosebro shall never grow faint.

Color Cup Winner To Be Announced In Chapel Friday

News of Color Cup Ready . . .

A long-awaited story of Green and White and Red and White clashing scores will be released Friday during the chapel program. After a year of challenging contests and meets between students representing these colors, the final scoring will be balanced and announced then. Thoughts turn back to the Color Rush and hockey games which gathered spirit and excitement in the fall . . . The archery fall tournament was well under way and five points were awarded to the winning color . . .Ping-pong brought forth a group of sportsters who paddled their side to a lead . . . Towards the winter basketball season produced another undefeated varsiy with both colors represented . . . Classes clashed in a series of round-robin games for cup points . . . A swimming varsity team was selected and each of the four classes turned out girls . . . Volley ball games, tennis matches, baseball, and archery—all led the year's sport program. And now—we wait and wonder if Red and White will continue to carry the ribbons on the cup or will Green and White once again take the lead?

Bows and Arrows . . .

All about targets and targeteers . . . This afternoon the Robin Hoods of S. T. C. met in the archery meadow to "hit" the bullseye of the targets and score for color cup points. The contingents were representatives of each of the classes and the winner was chosen for the highest number of points. In the fall tournament the Red and White team scored first place.

First Base in Baseball

Do you play catch? Are you a pitcher or are you a fielder? Your team needs your support no matter what the position is when the baseball game begins tonight on the athletic field. For the past few weeks practices have been offered after supper and classes have been organizing teams to compete in the baseball contest. Dorothy Darracott, manager of baseball, announced that the game will begin at 4 o'clock on the athletic field. Any spectators will be admitted free.

Netmen Continue . . . .

The tennis courts are active with tournaments as the finals in the tennis matches are underway.

Slate to Provide Keen Competition Among Contestants

Students taking riding instructions and the Farmville riders who have entered promise keen competition for the Spring Horse Show and Riding Contest to be held at Longwood on Saturday afternoon, May 23. The program includes thirteen classes, five of which are open to only S. T. C. students, two open to local riders only, and the remaining six being open to both.

Transportation to and from Longwood will be provided for a small fee paid to the Riding Club. The first class begins at 2 o'clock.

Chairman for the program are Joyce Cheatwood, president of Pegasus, general chairman; Nelle White, in charge of programs; Betty Gray Smithdeal, parking; Kay Spencer, ribbons; Joscelyn Gillum, posters; Rebecca Spicer, entrance; Elizabeth Goodwin, concessions; and Harriet Levinson, transportation.

A trophy will be awarded to the first place winner in each class, and ribbons will be presented to those placing first, second, third, and fourth in each class.

There will be no gate admission.

Color Teams Will Clash Bats In Class Fray on Thursday

Red and White and Green and White again clash in a contest tilt when the two colors enter into the baseball tournament on Thursday afternoon, May 21. The activities will commence on the athelitic field at 4 o'clock.

For the past two weeks practices have been scheduled several times a day and six such practices are necessary to qualify a girl to play on the class team. Eligible for Green and White are Susie Moore, Elizabeth Walls, Anne Price, Jane Mosely, Mary Walker Watts, Winifred Wright, Margaret Bear, Hallie Hillsman, Lue Rowe, Jean Carr, Vera Womack, and Helen Wilson. Girls eligible to play for Red and White are Mildred Droste, Mary Nancy Marsh, Louise Rice, Ruth Dugger, Elsie Verelle, Sara Jeffreys, and Dot Darracott.

Umpire for the big game will be Miss Olive T. Iler.

after dinner the winners will be announced.

will clash against Mildred Droste and Ruth Dugger in the final matches. Five points will also go to the winners in doubles for color cup points.

Orchesis Initiates Shirley Cadmus; Bids Girls As Apprentices

Shirley Cadmus was initiated into Orchesis Dance Group last Thursday night, May 14. After serving a regular year's service as an apprentice, she was received into the honor dance group by the officers and members.

The new girls who have been issued bids to become apprentices for the coming year are Jane Brown, Lillian Goddin, Anne Martenstein, Constance Powell, Jane Hobson, Ella Marsh Pilkinton, Mildred Droste, and Madelaine Sprinkle.

Tentative plans for the fall quarter have been made by the Orchesis group and include a recital to be given during the winter quarter of 1943.

The club has planned to use the voice in more of the dance productions as was done in the composition, "Bowl of Blood", which was presented in a recital this winter and featured the voice of Johnny Pancake. Hampden-Sydney student.

In accordance with a new Student Standards regulation, the grades of all students will be held until they meet all obligations in the way of dues to class honor societies, and the Dramatic Club. These dues must be paid by May 25.

All organizations concerned should notify all members who have neglected to pay their dues immediately.

Monogram Club Elects Carr Prexy

Minor Posts Filled By Parham, Owen

Jean Carr, junior, was elected president of the Monogram Club for the coming year at the regular meeting of the club Thursday night, May 14.

Frances Parham and Sarah Wade Owen will serve as vice-president and secretary-treasurer, respectively. The Monogram Club is an honorary organization for those juniors and seniors outstanding in the field of sports and athletics on the State Teachers College campus.

For the past year Jean has been manager of freshman basketball and a member of the varsity basketball squad. She is a physical education major, a contestant in the spring tennis tournament now underway, and active in school minor activities.

Frances Parham is a member of the varsity basketball team, swimming team, and Athletic Council. Sarah Wade Owen has served as treasurer of the A. A. for the past year and was volley ball manager as a second year student.

Net Tourney Reaches Singles Semi-Finals; Duos Clash in Finals

Tennis tournaments are rapidly being played off and have resulted in no up-sets so far. Tuesday afternoon, May 19 at 4 o'clock Sugar Baker defeated Edith Lovins 6-2, 7-5. At this time quarter-finals were played off between Ruth Dugger and Ophelia Whittle with a score 8-2, 6-0. Sugar Baker out played Vera Wommack in quarter finals May 18, with a score 6-2, 6-3. Ann Payne challenged Mary Owens West in quarter finals and came out with flying colors 6-1, 6-2. Frances Parham defeated Nancy Dupuy with a score 6-2, 6-4.

These girls who have won matches entered into the semi-finals which were held at 4 o'clock today, May 20. Those who played were Frances Parham and Anne Payne, and Sugar Baker who opposed Ruth Dugger.

The winner of these two court clashes will play in finals to be held Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Five points will go toward the color cup.

Just Looking Thanks

By Jane Smith

Blacksburg held its usual charm during the week-end and V. P. I. attracted Anne Covington, Nancy Duval, Anne Evans, Betty Kiger, Nell Shafer, Betty Sexton, Martha Walsh and Betty Coleman.

How tempus does fugit—finals at V. M. I. Seems only yesterday when it was openings and Midwinters—Ora Earnest, Anna Mary Wilkins, Virginia Barksdale, Betty Burns, Mildred Carter Clanton, Sarah Massie Goode, and Janet Jackson were the girls with the Lexington luck.

Since this gas rationing business threatens a great decrease in beautiful week-ends, the "Home Fronters" took advantage of the last opportunity of squeezing in a preview summer vacation. Some of these were Anne Page Francis, Lou Rowe, Mary Katherine Dodson, Betty Bradley, Helen Martin Jean Akers, Mary Wilson Carper, Dot Childress, Phyllis Akers, Ann Bradshaw, Joyce Cheatwood, Eleanor Varn, Myrtle Lee Holt, Mary Sue Palmer, Margaret Dashiell, Kitty Davis, Mary Hazlegrove, Mary Harvie, Dot Johnson, Mildred Morris, Shirley Pierce, Mary Evelyn Pearsall, Kitty Parrish, Evelyn Ruggles, Nell Shanklin, and Elizabeth Summerfield.

Miss Mary entertained the members of this years Student Council Y. W. Cabinet, House Council, etc., at a picnic supper at Longwood on Thursday, May 14.

The members of Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority had a delicious picnic at Longwood cabin on Wednesday with fried chicken and all the trimmings of supper a la outdoors.

At a reception in the Student Lounge Friday night, the members of Kappa Delta Pi entertained those students who have made scholastic averages that place them in the upper quarter of their class. The receiving line was composed of Mary Hunter Edmunds, Dr. Jarman, Eleanor Folk, Brookie Benton and Alice Seebert.

The Gamma Thetas threw another super picnic supper at Longwood on Friday 15.

The members of the Virginian staff held a banquet Wednesday night in the Tea Room. . . and Alpha Kappa Gamma members wil be entertained at an early night snack in the Honor Room tonight as a postlude to the final regular meeting.

When graduation time rolls around thoughts turn back to old friends and acquaintances so we found Charlotte Eason visiting Carolyn Harvey and Josephine Newman visiting Evelyn Thorington.

Senior Class Head Leads Prom Figure

Mary Katherine Dodson, president of the Senior class, will lead the figure at the Junior-Senior Prom in the gym on May 30, from 9 to 12, assisted by Martha Roberts, Nancy Dupuy, and Jane Engleby, the officers of the class. Composing the figure will be all the seniors and the junior class officers. All those who expect to be in the figure are requested to wear white.

Charlotte Phillips, treasurer of the junior class, is general chairman for the dance. Assisting her are Mary Frances Bowles, in charge of decorations; Ada Claire Snyder, in charge of music; Margaret Kitchin, in charge of the figure; Elizabeth Rhodes, tickets; and Leona Moomaw, chairman of the floor committee.

Tickets at the regular price will go on sale the first of next week.

Granddaughters Elect Davis New President

Lucy Davis, a junior from Lynchburg, was elected president of the Granddaughters Club this week to succeed Polly Keller. Succeeding Eleanor Folk as vice-president is Sara Jeffreys, a sophomore from Goldsboro, N. C., Mary Anne Jarrett, a freshman from Jarrett, will succeed Lucy Davis as secretary, and Julia Eason will replace Harriette Walker as treasurer.

Miss Rachel Royal was elected faculty advisor with Miss Mary White Cox as honorary advisor.

Befuddled Examites to Adopt Worried Mind as Theme Song

By MARILYN BELL

Cramming the head instead of the stomach will become necessary as well as fashionable from May 26 to 29 when students take the final exams of the regular session.

Today's typical college belle will become a sad looking creature with gnawed fingernails, straight hair in pig-tails and kerchiefs, haggard stares, and a generally worried mind. She will count the days, then hours "'till exams do cease" and at the end of it all she will step forth resplendent in all the glory she can summon after a week of concentrated thought.

It will be the last set of mind-twisters for the out-going seniors who will bid adieu to early morning studying for last minute organization of the quarter's work.

Nell Hurt, senior, remarked, "I've only got one exam; what I'm worried about is cramming four year's junk into one car."

To the majority of the student body it will mean just another four days of work and packing at the same time.

Dearing Fauntleroy, however, still insists that exam week is the best week in the quarter and should be enjoyed by everyone.

"I don't think that students who have an A or B average in their subjects should have to take examinations," said Lindsay Watkins, freshman. "That would make most of us study harder."

One consolation to all students is that when their work is through the teacher's has just begun for over three thousand-five hundred examniations will have to be corrected before grades can be sent out in June.

ganized in the fall of 1939 with Edna Harris as the first president. Her successors have included Ethel Beasley, Marie Thompson and the present president, Mildred Corvin. The club sponsors a yearly dance and was formed under the auspices of the present senior class.

Miss Ollie Craddock taught typing several years before the commercial department was officially introduced into the college curricula.

In 1938 the State authorized all the State schools to establish commercial departments. At that time Mrs. John P. Wynne had helped organize a similar department in Fredericksburg and she was largely influential in starting the one here at Farmville. In 1939 Mr. Landrum came to the college from Miami University in Ohio where he was teacher trainer, and Mr. Norman Myers, who was added to the faculty in the fall, came from Grove City College, Penn. The first regular classes had seventy-five students in comparison with today's three hundred.

French Society Issues Bids to Four

Carolyn Beard, Mary Jane Campbell, Warrick Mitchell and Gertrude Moore have received bids from Beta Pi Theta, French honor society, Jean Hatton president, announced recently.

Plans are being made for the organization of a French Circle next year which will serve as a stepping stone to membership in Beta Pi Theta. The exact requirements for membership in the Circle have not as yet been definitely outlined, but membership will be allowed with a lower scholastic average than that which Beta Pi Theta requires for membership. Beta Pi Theta will be in charge of the Circle's programs, and the two societies will work together to promote the use of French as medium for conversation, and the arrangement of the programs will make this possible.

Personally Operated Stores Thrive on S.T.C. Dorm Halls

How is business?

That is a familiar question asked a number of S. T. C. students who are enlarging their spending and practicing the art of successful business at the same time.

A regular sales lady, Josephine Starling, sophomore on third floor student, said, "My customers prefer toasted potted ham and cheese sandwiches. I even deliver them while they are still hot."

The pleasing smell of mustard and onions from White House Kitchen usually means that the good old American hot dog is on sale. Many organizations use the sale of "dogs" as a means for raising money.

"We favor the sweet tooth," remarked Emma Broyles, sophomore on third floor Annex, who has a joint candy business with her roommate, Elizabeth Duncan.

A new doughnut and pie enterprise has sprung up in Senior building with Sally Hutchinson and Jean Guy as the proprietors.

"Our customers are nice; business is wonderful and so are our pies and doughnuts," Sally offered.

Sara Cline and Lily Bec Gray remarked that they do business only occasionally when necessity calls for a boost in their financial condition.

Colonnade Crosses Continent To U. S. Private 'Down Under'

A recent letter post-marked "American Base Forces, Australia" and dated March 21, 1942 reveals that the fame of the State Teachers College magazine, The Colonnade, is fast becoming world-wide-spread.

The writer, Private John A. Jordan, stationed in Australia with the Eighteen Reconnaissance Squadron, upon receiving the January issue of the magazine which was dedicated to men in the armed forces, immediately sat down and wrote the editor, Allene Overbey, his reaction to the "recent American Publication" and especially to an editorial, "Education's Wartime Policy", which called forth a bit of philosophizing on his part. But in his own words: Dear Miss Overbey.

Through the gracious kindness of a fellow student of yours, a copy of the Colonnade for January reached my hands here, two days ago, after traveling nine thousand miles. Since then it has travelled through many hands and I do not know where it is now.

It was especially welcome here, being a recent American publication, and its readers perused it in thoughtful silence and, I think, gratitude of an intangible depth the page devoted so briefly and yet so completely to our recognition.

I had intended to add a lengthy footnote to your article, or should I say editorial — "Education's Wartime Policy", but will not attempt it without the magazine before me. What you had to say, and probably much of what you had no room to say was of especial interest to me, and, indeed, calls up the major problem that faces the world when this show is finally over.

For those of us who believe that we are capable of disigning and constructing a peace that would outlast one or more entire unborn generations, education to a system of living, perhaps a modification of our own American way of life, is the only hope. And if a good wartime policy is maintained by those who carry the candle at home, it is a sound hope. The most important job in the world rest in your hands.

I should be honored, of course, to hear from you and any of your comrades who would care to write. As my letters go through the strictest censorship there is naturally a limit to the subjects about which I can write, my locale, etc. being secret. As you can see by the stamp, which is not censored, I am in Australia. This must pass the most hazardous waters if it is to reach you—a month hence.

Meanwhile, if you kyeaah for a spot of taye- - - - -

Keep 'Em Flying, ..

Dot Childress Heads 1943 Cotillion Club

DOT CHILDRESS

HELEN WILEY HARDY

Hardy Elected Leader; Hatton, Parham Chosen

In a spirited election Dot Childress, junior from Christiansburg, was elected president of the Cotillion Club at a called meeting of the club on Friday night, May 22.

Helen Wiley Hardy, of Farmville, was chosen leader of the 1943 Spring Cotillion figure. Jean Hatton, of Richmond, was selected secretary-treasurer, and Frances Parham, of Petersburg, will serve as business manager.

Dot Childress, who will succeed Anne Boswell as head of the organization, was a member of Mardi Gras and May Day courts this year, ls the present head of the USO committee on the College War Council, and was chairman of her class production this year. She is also vice-president of Pi Kappa Sigma sorority.

Hardy Succeeds Shannon

Helen Wiley Hardy, who succeeds Mary Lou Shannon, has been in May Court for the past three years. She worked on the Sophomore Commission and is now secretary of Pi Gamma Mu and Pan-Hellenic representative for Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority.

Jean Hatton will take over the position held by Dorothy Lawrence this year. She is president of Pi Gamma Mu and Beta Pi Theta and is a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority.

Frances Parham, who will succeed Harriet Cantrell as business manager, is vice-president of the Monogram Club, was varsity basketball manager this year and is a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority. She was co-chairman of her class production in 1941.

Mr. M. B. Coyner was reelected faculty sponsor for 1943 at the same meeting, and the club members decided to name a parliamentarian in the Fall.

Two dances are sponsored each year by the Cotillion Club. This year Jimmie Cannon furnished music for the Fall Cotillion, and Barry McKinley played for the Spring dance.

The purpose of the Cotillion Club is to emphasize good dancing as a means of social enjoyment.

A. K. G. Selects New Officers at Meeting

Betty Boutchard, president of the junior class, was elected treasurer of the Joan Circle of Alpha Kappa Gamma to replace Lucy Turnbull at a meeting of the group Wednesday night, May 20.

Upon the resignation of Winifred Wright as editor of the Alumnae Magazine for 1943, Margaret Mish was selected to take over this position.

Betty Boutchard and Margaret Mish were both tapped by the honorary fraternity for leadership in the Spring tapping ceremony.

Farmville Alumna Authors Biography "Poe's Richmond"

Miss Agnes M. Bondurant, a teacher in the Farmville High School and a graduate of Farmville State Teachers College is the author of "Poe's Richmond", a book just released by Garrett & Massie, Richmond publishers. In "Poe's Richmond" to quote the publishers' statement, "the life and ldeas of Poe have been interwoven with the history and culture of early nineteen-century Richmond so as to reveal both writer and city in an unprejudiced manner". It is pointed out that in the past literary historians and writers have minimized or placed the wrong interpretation upon Poe's connection with Richmond, and Miss Bondurant hopes that her book may serve as a means of helping to correct such wrong impressions.

As the capital and largest city of Virginia, Richmond in Poe's time was sufficiently important to attract most of the well-known European travelers who visited America. The Duc de Liancourt, Moore, Dickens, Thackeray, all came to Richmond in the course of their tours. Distinguished Americans also found their way to the city. In fact, many of Virginia's first sons—Jefferson, Marshall, Madison, Monroe, and Randolph of Roanoke—were in and out of Richmond during Poe's lifetime there.

"Poe's Richmond" is an excellent biography and is thoroughly indexed. There are ten chapters dealing with: Richmond as Seen by Poe's Contemporaries; Poe in Richmond. Industry and Business; Law, Politics and Patriotism; Education: the Age of Academies; Libraries and Books; The Church; the Theatre and other Amusements; Newspapers and Magazines; Home Environment and Friends; Poe and Richmond.

Miss Bondurant is a native of Rice, Virglnia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Bondurant. She ls a graduate of Farmville State Teachers College in the Class of 1936 and was valedictorian of her class. She received her M. A. degree from Duke University in 1941. For the past several years she has been a teacher in the Farmville High School. "Poe's Richmond" is her first published work, and gives promise of a successful writing career.

Red and White Triumphs In Color Race; Winning Team Scores 70-30 Point Victory

Johnson Reveals Class Summaries In Chapel Saturday

Red and White, composed this year of seniors and sophomores, was the winner of the much coveted color cup for the season 1941-1942. After anxiously awaiting the scoring to be announced, both teams gathered in chapel last Saturday, May 23, when Dot Johnson, out-going president of the Athletic Association, presented the cup to the Red and White teams.

The cup on the mantle in the Rotunda has worn red ribbons for the past two years after green and white turned over the cup to a red victory in 1939-'40.

After the award was made, the seniors and sophomores sang their Red and White song and then cheered Green and White. Competition this year was very close in each sport by the clashing teams. The total points add 70 for the Red team and 30 for the Greens.

Those who have been associated with May Wertz have been deeply inspired by that very association, for she embodies qualities which permeate all who have known her.

It is evident that her place as a student in the college cannot soon or without difficulty be filled.

Cheatwood Tops Advanced Riders

Spencer, Scott Place in Class

Joyce Cheatwood, freshman at S. T. C., placed first in the advanced horsemanship class in the Spring Horse Show and Riding Contest held at Longwood on Saturday, May 23. Runners-up in this class were Rebecca Spicer, second; Kay Spencer, third, and Bobbie Scott, fourth.

The three-gaited saddle horse class was won by F. H. Hanbury, of Farmville with F. A. Baldwin, Farmville; Henry Newbill, Farmville, and Rebecca Spicer, S. T. C. placing second, third and fourth, respectively. F. H. Hanbury also won the five-gaited class, while T. D. Smith, Farmville; Joyce Cheatwod, S. T. C., and H. C. Padgett were runners-up in this class.

Lorraine Ginsberg placed first in the class for junior beginners, while Connie Powell took first honors in the senior beginners class. Runners-up in the junior beginners class were Jane Smith and Annie Wiseman, in the senior beginners class, Joscelyn Gilliam, Mary Hunter Edmunds, and Betty Bradley.

Riding Lindy and Beauty, S. T. C. Stable horses, Elizabeth Goodwin and Bobbie Scott placed first in the class for pairs of riders. Placing second in the class were Gloria Pollard and Henry Newbill; third place was captured by T. D. Smith and Joyce Cheatwood, and May Wertz and Kay Spencer placed fourth.

Kay Spencer took the honors in the Hunter's class. Runners-up were Henry Newbill, Bobbie Scott, and Elizabeth Goodwin. The class portraying Old Virginia Riders was won by Mrs. S. W. Putney of Farmville, with T. D. Smith and F. H. Hanbury taking second and third honors.

The class for junior intermediates was won by Martha Higgins, while Betty Gray Smithdeal, Nancy Williamson, and Harriet Levinson placed second, third, and fourth respectively. Katherine Gosney took first honors in the senior intermediate class with runners-up Shirley Kersey, Polly Cammack, and Anne Martenstein.

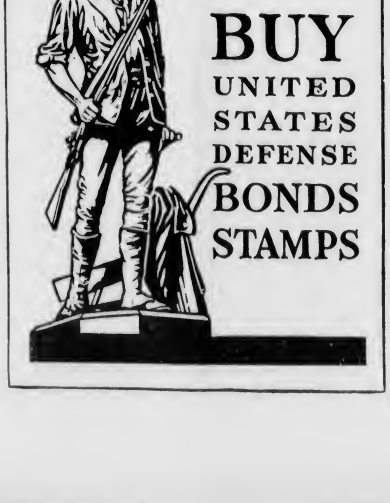
Mary Kent Withers notched first place in the class for children. Others who placed were Kenneth Overton, Charles Reid, and Margaret Ann Jones. Blanton Hanbury placed first in the class for local adults, with Mrs. Harry Lancaster, T. D. Smith, and Henry Newbill placing second, third and fourth, respectively. The class designated for students was won by Martha Sydnor, Ann Taliaferro, Jane Smith and Emma Allen were runners-up.

Nell Scott's costume "V for Victory" was judged first in the costume class. Mrs. S. W. Putney placed second, Mrs. Harry Lancaster won third honors, and Ann Berry nipped fourth place.

The programs for the horse show were attractively bound with horse shoe nails with the entrants in each class listed. Nelle White was in charge of programs.

Dugger Nips Chief Net Title In Tennis Finals Thursday

RUTH DUGGER



Ruth Dugger, sophomore, defeated Anne Payne, freshman, on Thursday, May 21, 6-4, 6-2, when they met in the final round of the singles tennis tournament on the college courts. Runners-up in the semi-finals were Sugar Baker and Frances Parham.

Winning the doubles tournament were Mildred Droste and Ruth Dugger who matched Anne Payne and Sugar Baker on Friday evening on the courts. The final score was 6-2, 6-4. These two games brought to a close the annual tournament and a victory for the Red and White color team which gained 5 points for singles and 5 for doubles.

Sugar Baker has been in charge of the tournament this spring.

Sports Editor Summarizes Year's Sports

"It's Red and White That We Now Cheer".

With flying colors of Red and White the victorious team of the color cup gladly and proudly displays the traditional COLOR CUP which was awarded in chapel last Saturday. After a full season of gathering points and clashing against their rivals, the strong Green and White freshman and juniors bowed to their friends and chalked up another year of successful activity. Competition this year was keen in every way and in each contest the GREEN and WHITE representatives kept a close match with their opponents. This year's presentation chalks up three successive years of red and white triumphs.

The Season's Sports

When we glance back over the year 1941-42 we find the sports program at S. T. C. very complete with activities in all sports desired. First came the hockey games which built a challenging urge in the two teams and spirit glowed on day of "Color Rush" . . . We leave another undefeated varsity basketball year and recognize the work and effort of Miss Iler in producing such a team. Round robin games made class competition a time of excitement with the green and white freshmen winners . . . . A fall archery tournament turned out some high scorers and targets were set out for practice in the new archery meadow . . . Swimming requirements again were clamped on the freshmen and they were determined to "learn the art of swimming". Teams were chosen for the interclass meet, a varsity squad selected, meets held, and a year of success in water activities left to remember . . . . Turning to an indoor sport we were next engaged in a tournament of ping pong which brought to light a freshman champion. Matches were played in both the senior and mainbuilding . . . . Added to the equipment of volleyball were stationery standers for the gym and when nets and ball were produced the games made quite a hit. Many a night the activity was brought to a halt because of "after hours." Class tournaments were most popular with all four classes . . . . Recently you witnessed a faculty-student baseball game and next a student color competition which brought the red team a winning score.

The physical fitness program introduced made it possible for each evening a time for recreation in the line of sports . . . . Tennis ranked at the top for the list of favorites and this year a tournament was played off at the first of the school season on the new tennis courts, but it was not placed in the color race. Two tournaments have just been completed—singles and doubles. Close matching in both caused eager spectators to wonder what the final decisions would be. Ending the matches red and white placed a lead. . . . Winding up the final activity we arrive at the spring archery tournament which allowed another bit of competition. M. K. Zehmer again scored the points and ended the clash victorious. . . . We look back on this year with longing thoughts and will carry with us the memories which it lent to us.

Riders Enter Show At Longwood

Farmville and S. T. C. students engaged in one of the largest shows ever presented last week at Longwood. Consisting of 14 classes in all types of horsemanship, the groups were scored by the judges and awarded ribbons as ranked. An impressive line-up of horses owned by persons in Farmville was also judged. Jumping proved to be the most entertaining part of the program. A large audience and an appreciative one attended the afternoon activities and found great enjoyment in a round up of riding abilities.

The ROTUNDA

Volume XXI | FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA, TUESDAY, JUNE 2, 1942 | NO. 30

A Message to the Seniors

By Dr. James Elliott Walmsley

(Reprinted from Rotunda, June 8, 1941)

'In this sign shalt thou conquer' was not spoken to one who had finished but to one who realized that great things done were but the Commencement of the greater things yet to be done. The measure of that greatness is the crying need of a world "where there is no vision," and the greater need the greater the work of the one who conquers, by virtue of a vision of what must and shall be done.

A world reeling from the onslaught of heathen fury looks askance at you, graduating seniors, and in a tone "cold, edged with dear-bought wisdom" asks "what can you do?" Your Alma Mater puts her future into your hands, for as you rise or fall so does she rise or fall. Each of you carries away with you some of the heart's blood of teachers who have worked with you rather than for you, who have joyed with you at success and grieved with you over failures. You must make good. It is the challenge of today.

And what is this great task in which you shall conquer? You must outwork the power of brute force; you must out think the minds of those inspired from below, you must give "toil and blood and sweat and tears" to what your trained mind tells you is the everlasting right. A world cannot be rebuilt with half-way measures, with paltry ideals, with petty thoughts of victory and revenge. Only a just world can survive and this is your heaven-sent task to make this a more honest world than the one we of the passing generation have put into your hands.

If you learned from science, natural or social, that there are immutable laws of nature and nature's God, and that no mere man can trifle with such laws, if you learned to think honestly, then can you lead a world into a peace of even justice.

If you learned from languages, your own winged words that move mountains, then can you give a reason for the faith that is in you, and you can lead struggling folk into the joy of a better, nobler life.

If you learned from the arts that the mission of art, music, and the drama is to uplift, to purify, to ennoble, to inspire, then can you call into the service of a new and better world that spiritual grace and power that seem to have vanished in smoke and ruin.

Finally, if four years with the traditions of the past, with those who loved you and dreamed great dreams of you, if all this and these have given you knowledge, skill, and power, your challenge is to use it all unreservedly, willingly, even joyfully, for a world that is waiting hopefully for you.

God helping, you can do no other.

Summer School Set-Up Completed

Faculty of 50 To Direct Work

Approximately the same number of students are expected to attend the 1942 summer session at State Teachers College that were here for the 1941 session, Mrs. F. N. Watkins, secretary to the president and assistant registrar revealed recently. Summer school will begin on June 15 and the first term will end on July 18; July 20 will mark the opening of the second term which will end August 20.

Special courses in library science and business education will be taught this summer during both terms.These will be under the direction of Miss Ottie Craddock, Norman Myers and Mrs. Willa Boysworth. Typing, business principles and intensive work in first and second year shorthand are the business courses offered. Mrs. Boysworth will teach school library administration and reference work.

Other courses offered in the summer will be classes in biology, chemistry, and physics under the same department heads, education and philosophy, English, and applied fine arts, geography, history, social science,home economics, mathematics, music and physical and health education. A course on Far Eastern history and current problems will be taught by Dr. James Elliott Walmsley the first term, and health education 204, a course in First Aid, is offered for the first time.

A special feature of summer school this year is the work shop in education providing an opportunity for individual teachers, supervisors, and principals to secure guidance oin developing materials for use in the school and classroom.

A second feature is the course in audio-visual education for the teachers who wish to share in the state program. This course will be taught by Edgar M. Johnson.

Approximately fifty faculty members will be on campus to conduct the classes offered, and provisions will be made for any courses not listed in the catalogue where there is sufficient demand.

39 Students Receive Recognition as Honor Graduates of 1942

Thirty-nine students at State Teachers College were recognized by Dr. J. L. Jarman at the commencement exercises this morning, June 2, as honor graduates in the class of '42. Thirty-seven were members of the degree class and two were student in the diploma class.

To become an honor graduate a student must have an average of "B" for her entire college courses during her stay at the school.

The honor graduates are Rachel Abernathy, Anne Ayers, Virginia Barksdale, Vera Baron, Sarah Chambers, Sara Cline, second honor; Mary Ann Cobb, Nahrea Coleman, Emma Louise Crowgey, Caroline Eason, Mary Hunter Edmunds, first honor; Texie Belle Felts, and Mrs. Hazel Stafford Gay.

Also Lillian German, Winifred Harrell, Myrtle Harrison, Peggy Hughes, Arlene Hunt, Jane Lee Hutcheson, second honor; Elizabeth Jennings, Dorothy Johnson,

Pilkinton Makes Orientation Plans, Selects 48 Leaders

Program Includes Freshmen, Sophs

Twenty-four seniors and twenty-four juniors have been selected to hold orientation classes next fall and to act as advisors to the incoming freshmen throughout the year. Each group consisting of not more than thirty students will be under the direction of one faculty member, one senior, and one junior.

Continuing the plan initiated two years ago, the program for the coming year will be extended over two years. It is the intention of the program to facilitate the guidance of newcomers to the college student body at State Teachers College in the choice of curriculum and personal problems particularly as freshmen and sophomores. The usual orientation classes will be held for all freshmen and new students.

The senior orientation leaders will be Susie Moore, Rosalie Rogers, Betty Reid, Jac Hardy, Ann Page Francis, Betty Bouchard, Miggie Mish, Betty Younberg, Dot Childress, Ann Elliett, Eleanor Folk, Leona Moomaw, Elizabeth Bernard, Mary Frances Bowles, Grace Hutcheson, Frances Mallory, Charlotte Phillips, Brookie Benton, Betty Sexton, Sarah Wade Owen, Lucy Davis, Jane Hatton, Nancye Aller, and Fidele Haymes.

Those assistants from the incoming junior class will be Faye Nimmo, Mary Parrish Viccellio, Mary Keith Bingham, Betty Bridgeforth, Hannah Lee Crawford, Sara Jeffreys, Mary Eveleyn Fearsall, Shirley Pierce, Jane Smith, Dottie Sue Simmons, Frances Strohecker, Kitty Vaughan, Ella Banks Weathers, Lois Aiphin, Patsy Connelly, Theresa Fletcher, Joscelyn Gillum, Vivian Gwaitney, Lucllie Lewis, Jean Arrington, Sue

DABNEY S. LANCASTER

J. EMERSON HICKS

Dr. J. Emerson Hicks of the First Baptist Church in Bristol began the fifty-eighth commencement program at State Teachers College on Sunday night, May 31, by stating to the seniors in the Baccalaureate Sermon that they, in graduating are "an invitation from a New Age to be guests of Honor, if they are worthy; that the best is theirs, if they are good enough for it".

Rev. H. Lee Scott of the Farmville Baptist Church offered the invocation, and following the scripture reading, the College choirs sang "Sing Unto God" from Handel's "Judas Maccabeus".

Senior Class Day

Senior class day exercises were offered on Monday morning with a welcome by Mary Katherine Dodson, president of the Senior class, followed by the class song, which was written by Nancy Dupuy. Allene Overbey presented a history of the class, and after the presentation of the symbol of office, the seniors were initiated into the Association of Alumnae by Miss Mary E. Peck. The farewell song written by Mary Katherine Dodson brought the program to a close. Immediately afterwards the traditional daisy chain made up of all Seniors and their little sisters was formed on the campus.

Last night Miss Mary White Cox entertained in honor of the graduates at a reception in Student Building Lounge. At 10:30 the Seniors and their little sisters joined in the traditional lantern parade with the little sisters carrying lighted lanterns.

Commencement Exercises

This morning in her salutatory address at the commencement exercises, Sara Cline spoke of enlightenment as the "citadel of democracy" and saw in it the definition of a vision of tomorrow's task. She pointed out that the school is the largest defense industry in this country employing over 1,500,000 workers and 800,000 executives.

Dr. Dabney Lancaster, state superintendent of public instruction, made the principal address to the graduating class.

Following Dr. Lancaster's address the Senior A'Capella choir presented "God Hath Now Ascended" by Gallus.

Edmunds Is Valedictorian

In her valedictory address Mary Hunter Edmunds stated that since no one knows the pattern for the world for the next generation, it is impossible to know what, as teachers, to prepare children for.

Class Day Program Presented Monday

At 10 o'clock Monday morning, June 1, the seniors of 1942 at State Teachers College presented their Class Day exercises in the college auditorium.

Following a welcome by Mary Katherine Dodson, president of the class, the entire class joined in the class song written by Nancy Dupuy, secretary of the class.

Following this, Allene Overbey presented the class history in which she outlined the highlights of the four years during which the class has been at S. T. C. Mary Katherine Dodson then presented the symbol of office of the president of the senior class to Betty Boutchard, incoming senior class head.

Miss Rachel Royall, senior classman, was then presented a gift from the senior class. To the college the class gave a check for three hundred dollars to be used in the Founders Day fund.

Lantern Parade Ends Senior Activities

At 10:30 o'clock last night, June 1, following the reception given in the Student Lounge in honor of the graduating classes, the seniors robed in their caps and gowns, and accompanied by the little sisters dressed in white, ended the senior activties during finals with the lantern parade.

At this time they sang the traditional school songs as they marched through the Colonnade and through the Rotunda carrying lighted lanterns with the letters S. T. C. and the numeral '42 cut into the sides.

Editorial Reflections

Today's Graduate

Turning to leave his college, the senior of the Class of '42 is told again that this is war. He is told that he must go out into the world to do his bit for his nation's future. And as he moves to do so, he reads the blazing headlines screaming that REDS CLAIM 15,000 NAZIS KILLED. Reading this, he must applaud, for it is patriotic to do so. But men have died that day.

Yes, the senior must join and help as men die that more men may not die too soon. He moves from the beautiful things he has known and is forced toward blood and hate. He knows that blood and hate are not too soon forgot. And he knows that there are those with him who will not be when the time comes to try to forget.

The senior will go. But going he must first stand in the quiet of midnight and feel silence pressing around. He must see an inspiring strength in the campus buildings as they tower in the mist of evening. He must remember the faces and hearts of those whom he has loved and understood, the small insignificant things, the gay pranks—the dreams he may not dare to dream again.

These things will go with the senior of today. And the senior at State Teachers College will be no exception, for through her struggles in the haze of war's bitterness and strife, she will stop to remember . . . and remembering hold tight the remnants of joy she has known. With the basis of real values which she has got from this college —real because they are in her—the S. T. C. senior can face the world with more assurance than most, for State Teachers College endows her graduates with lasting qualities of perseverance and vitality.

She has been trained for self discipline and government, with opportunities for individual decision and weighing of ideas. She has been given not only the ideals by which she might advantageously pattern her life but she has been carefully instructed toward these. Her life hais fairly teemed with life here as it might present itself as a problem later and whenever sought, guidance has been generous. So prepared, the S. T. C. senior can honestly face the future with a fair degree of confidence an an accurate realization of what lies ahead.

History of Class '42

By ALLENE OVERBEY
(Class Historian)

And so it has finally come—that day we for four years have dreamed of with a sort of unreal anticipation. June the second, 1942. And we of the Senior Class glance swiftly about us as though to catch once more the gleam of the morning sun throughout Joan Court, the sound of familiar footsteps through the Rotunda—a friendly face, a gay hello—so many little things that shall pass on to others who have come to take our places here at Farmville. e sense a familiar rustle in the trees on front campus, and we wonder at the immensity of that which lies ahead for us as compared with those joys which we have known so completely and so compactly here.

Time is a thief, and aptly so, but time is a giver of great gifts, if we but realize the expanse of passing hours. Four years—a long time—and yet, not so very long.

As Frosh

On a rainy day in September, four years ago, a large group of girls entered—some of them for the first time—the open doors of Farmville State Teachers College —a group destined to become more than a number of girls seeking degrees. Amid the hospitality of Farmville's vine-covered walls new ideas, mingled with high standards of aim and accomplishment, found their being. New faces became familiar ones, and we know the girl next door not as a stranger among us but as a friend. We chose our leaders, formulated our ideals, and accepted willingly the challenge of Joan of Arc. We were fully determined 't'o strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield." With Jane Royall as our classman, and with Anne Shirley, Nell Speight, Betty Lucy, and Mary Katherine Dodson our leaders, our program of progress and expansion was begun.

We knew for the first time the unlimited opportunities of college life. We reveled in the fun of Rat Week—and at our own expense. There were few indeed among us who failed to catch the spirit of friendliness and good sportsmanship. We shined shoes, carried laundry, cleaned rooms, and wrote record-breaking love letters to the one and only—of another girl. We attended Rat Courts with the awe becoming a lowly and unworthy freshman, and when it was all over, we hung our signs and trappings on the showy side of the wall to don our blue and white caps until Thanksgiving game time.

We were initiated in good standing. Many among us received honors during the year, achieving recognition in the fields of scholarship, Christian leadership, sports, and many others. We saw our colors, Red and White, flung high from Farmville's balconies, and we learned how to lose with the equal grace of winning.

Production was a riotous time. With Nell Speight as our director, we presented the Magic Carpet, a sort of sequel to the World's Fair of the preceding summer. How easy it is now to picture Peggy Williams, amid a room full of girls, cokes, banners, and bathrobes, suddenly swept away on the wings of her roommate's rag run to the wide and varied life of New York and the fair grounds!

There are so many things to be brought back as we thumb through the scrap book of events that mark our stay in Farmville. Circus, Mardi Gras, Founder's Day, Spring Cotillion, May Day—and many more—and in all these activities our class found its place. And the mid-nights reaped their toll in pranks, escapades, and delightful-to-remember boxes from home. Tying the bell rope, spending a chilly night on the roof, tossing feathers over the Rotunda, turning in a false alarm during exam weeks—the pages of our memory book are endless.

As Sophomores . . .

Another year saw us high and mighty sophomores, and we eagerly sought the long coveted privilege of going down town at all day time hours. Many a lesson in French

'42 Class President Cites Memories of College Days

By Mary Katherine Dodson

My most fond memories of Farmville are found in the everyday occurrences of everyday college life: strange faces each year that gradually became familiar, and later loved personalities; the winding length and foreignness of these halls, now such a small, complete world; Joan of Arc sitting solemn and meditatively, listening to the happy or unhappy lives of so many girls—still she remains an unmoved symbol for every girl who walks these halls—sending us the Seniors of '42 out to conquer; the feeling of grandness that sweeps over me as I go up the walk to the Rotunda; a quiet word with God and myself at evening Prayers; Alpha Kappa Gamma's impressive tapping services; the placid serenity of Longwood; working far into the night on things I felt worthwhile; bull sessions in which I shared ideals and hopes with others; week-ends when I returned to find so many still here; group singing under dimmed lights; the hurry-scurry of trying to get to classes; cramming for exams; the hopeful expectation around the Post Office for Uncle Sam's messages; moving to the "building"; packing and unpacking eight times my Senior year; the Color Rush; productions; sings; Lyceums; dancing. It is impossible for me to enumerate all the things Farmville has given me. I've loved every minutes of it. Though, at times, things seemed rather futile. Dr. Jarman's "Keep On Hoping" has taken care of that.

I cannot say good-bye to something that is a part of me. It is a spirit—indefinable and real—a spirit that becomes a part of every girl who has frequented these halls. My thanks to my Alma Mater for showing me how to live, for giving me something that will always be in my heart.

My apologies to my Alma Mater for taking something from her, for taking a feeling of "belonging", a feeling of love and loyalty, a feeling of confidence that I can sing with a catch in my throat—"All hail Alma Mater, dear mother to thee. Thy daughters true, faithful, and loyal will be.'

Profs Trek to all Parts Of America for Summer

"In the summer I teach in the largest woman's college in the world, but in the winter I teach in the best," replied Mr. M. L. Landrum when asked how he would spend his summer. The head of the Commercial department was referring to the fact that he is listed among the faculty of Hunter College on Park Avenue in New York City, the world's largest woman's college.

Also teaching away this summer will be Miss Margaret Booten, of the Art Department. She will be working with Miss Helen Bedford at Cape Girendeau in Missouri. Miss Virginia Bedford will teach here at S. T. C. for the first quarter and then join her sister and Miss Booten in Missouri.

Among others who plan to be at S. T. C. only part of the summer is Mr. Alfred Strick, who will spend the end of the summer in New York. New York will also claim Dr. Floyd Swertfeger part of the summer.

Dr. Francis Simpkins will join the group of those whom September will find married. However, the wedding ceremony will not prevent him from further work on his History of the South. Miss Mary E. Peck also plans to do research work part of the summer months.

Miss Mary Nichols is at this point looking, since her home in Petersburg has been closed, for a place to hang her toothbrush until time to resume her studies at Duke University. Miss Carrie Talliafero will also work at Duke this summer.

Studying this summer at New York University will be Miss Virginia Richards of the music department. Miss Olive Iler will be found nearby at Columbia University.

Among those who are going home are Miss Sarah B. Tucker and Miss Ida W. Penny to Lake Junaluska in North Carolina, Miss Mary Haynes to Tenessee, and Mr. Raymond (Charlie - Hop) French to Callao. Mr. French, the Issac Walton of the faculty, stated that since other sports were out of season he would fish for submarines in the Chesapeake Bay.

And Miss Helen Draper, head of the French department, at present plans to go to Mexico City where she will study at the University of Mexico for the summer.

War Council Aids In U. S. Defense

Makes College War Conscious

The Defense Council of State Teachers College has been instrumental in creating a vital means for aiding in the present war crisis during the past several months. It has sponsored the sale of war stamps and bonds as well as navy relief pins to aid the families of those who keep America's waters safe. It has held classes in first-aid and has sponsored a "War Week" on our campus to show how students might help in defense. In addition, the U. S. O. committee of the council has been hostess to Navy and Army boys in the Recreational Hall of the school.

The total amount lent the country by the sale of stamps and bonds amounted to approximately five thousand dollars. A booth has been kept open daily in the Rotunda to promote the sale of this means of aiding in the defense program. Special features of War Week included an instructive talk on flag etiquette given by Sara Cline. At this time, too, flags of other nations were exhibited. In cooperation with the finance committee, Hon. Robert K. Brock, state senator, made a talk in capel onh "Money for Defense". He especially vitalized the part S. T. C. students might have in helping to win this war. A trial air raid was conducted by the air raid defense committee, in case of a real raid. Throughout the week special emphasis was placed on prayers, the theme being especially adapted to the week.

A definite need for a defense council was felt here and our present council was established shortly after Christmas and the declaration of a state of war. It is especially significant in that it points out modes of aiding and gives actual and valuable instruction in how to help.

Fun-Bound Femmes Find Vacation Time Is Sun Time

As the last days of school come to an end, thoughts turn to vacation days—the time of year which brings rest, peace, and comfort to many. For the past several years anxious students closed their books and after a hurried packing journeyed home with high hopes of a summer of camping. This year shows a great decrease in camps and only a small portion of the student body will journey for a summer of camp fires, hikes, and camping fun Looking over the list we find those few ready and anxious to begin their summer at rest.

Leaving on June 28 for an eight week's stay at Camp Betty Hastings is Frances Rosebro. The camp is located at Winson Salem, N. C., and is open to girls of junior and senior high school age. Rosebro will be in charge of land sports and swimming during the camping season. Betty Hastings is a Y. W. camp which gives a training course for Girl Reserve work. When a junior in high school, Rosebro first attended this camp as a camper.

Brookie Benton and Lucy Davis have both picked the same camp for the summer season. They will arrive at Camp Alkusana located at Milboro Springs, Va., the first part of July and stay until the middle of August. This will be Brookie's first season, and she will be in charge of the campfire program, while Lucy, a second year counselor, will be in charge of the craft program. The work of each counselor is to help in recreation for the underprivileged children during their stay at camp.

Camp Farwell located at Wells River, Vermont, will have assisting on the water front Gloria Pollard. Farwell, noted for its wonderful camping spirit, is open to girls from the age of six to eighteen. This will be Gloria's first season in Vermont. For the past two years May Wertz attended this camp helping with music, swimming, canoeing, and junior sports.

Bobby Scott will spend two months at Camp Junaluska located in North Carolina, teaching riding to the campers. This will be her first season as a counselor.

Another riding instructor at Camp Sequoia in Bristol is Pat McCormick who will spend two months teaching riding.

Camp Swift Creek will open the summer season for two months with Farmville girls on the staff, Peggy Hughes, Dorothy Darracott, Mildred Droste, and Nellie Varn. Swift Creek is located just outside of Richmond, Va. These girls will be there for the first season.

Starting the season early will be Jane Sanford, Winifred Wright, Margaret Webster, and Jo Brumfield who will leave from Washington next Sunday by boat for Virginia Beach. Here they will join a group for a week of gala times.

Also Helen Wiley Hardy and Sara Hardy will join a house party at Sparta, located on the James River next Sunday.

Ann Ellett leaves on June for a week at Black Mountain in Blue Ridge where she will attend a Y. W. C. A. conference.

Miss Elizabeth Burger and Shirley Pierce are leaving on Monday June 8, for Camp Ruthers, located just outside Lynchburg for a week of camping with the Farmville Girl Scouts.

'42 Seniors Become MatrimoniallyMinded As June Appears

A. B.'s and B. S.'s are one type of degree, but predominant in the minds of a major portion of the graduating class this year has been another form of diploma: the MRS.

First in this year's senior class to ring the wedding bells was Nancy Naff, now Mrs. William Austin. Nancy, former student government president, was married on May 3 in Roanoke.

Since Christmas Jane Engleby, of Roanoke, past president of the House Council, has been wearing a sparkling solitaire and some time in the summer she will become Mrs. L. Graham Haynie. Martha Cottrell of Richmond, is another of the matrimonially minded femmes hereabouts, and she will be married to Garland Harwood some time in the fall.

Still another slipping into the ring at an early date is Allene Overbey, past editor of the Colonnade, who is betrothed to Jack Hunt. Also Beezie Townsend will become the bride of Chick Tasker, former Hampden-Sydney student, and now an army man stationed at Camp Lee.

May Turner Winn will become Mrs. Wilton Johnson in the early fall, while Jane Lee Hutcheson will promise "I do" to Blanton Hanbury in October. And Circus Queen Harriet Scott will find a king in Peter Brandley also early in the fall. The third finger, left hand of Gerald Ackiss will sport the ring of Wendell B. Coate some time this summer.

Others joining the Army and Navy are Shirley McCalley, who is engaged to Lieut. Ralph King, Marian Harvey, who is betrothed to Lieut. J. L. Smith, Jr., Buff Gunter, who will marry Lieut. R. O. Miller, Elizabeth Summerfied, engaged to Lieut. Edwin Linkenholde, and Gay Ward Brown, whose marriage to Lieut. S. G. Jones will take place this summer.

the Alumnae Association of State Teachers College, then inducted the members of the graduating class into the association and welcomed them as alumnae.

The farewell song, written by Mary Katherine Dodson concluded the exercises in the auditorium and was sung by the entire class.

From the auditorium the seniors and their little sisters marched through the Colonnade as they lined up for the daisy chain ceremony. Each senior with her little sister then marched slowly to the front campus singing the traditional school songs. In front of the Rotunda, the class formed the letters '42.

And Louise Phillips, Lula Johnson Power, Mary Lilly Purdum, Martha Roberts, Dorothy Sprinkle, Florence Thierry, Lucy Turnbull, Edith Vassar, May Wertz, and Flora Winn. These were members of the degree class.

In the diploma class Hazel May Colgate and Evelyn Jones were the honor students.

Fall Convention At Farmville October 16-18; Leadership Theme

War Conditions Cancel Spring Meet

"October 16 through the 18 is the tentative date for the thirteenth annual convention of Alpha Kappa Gamma at Farmville State Teachers College," announced Mary Katherine Dodson, regional president. The Spring meeting scheduled for May 8 through the 10 at Mrs. A. K. Child's cottage at Pawley's Island, S. C., was not held this year due to the existing war situation.

"Campus Leadership in Time of World Crisis" is the general theme of the convention as announced by Jane Sanford, president of the hostess circle. Registration of the delegates from four to six o'clock P. M. will begin the activities of the convention. A business meeing will be held that night with Mary Katherine Dodson, presiding. This meeting is for the purpose of appointing committees.

Saturday discussions will be held on four phases of leadership in time of world crisis. Each college represented will lead one of the discussions. The topics include 1. What colleges can do in time of world crisis; 2. How organizations can participate in world situation; 3. What individuals can do in war times; and 4. What can be done through the college in cooperation with the community.

Saturday after lunch will be the occasion for committee reports and election of officers. The rest of the afternoon will be reserved for entertainment.

The banquet will be Saturday night at which time the guest speaker will climax the evening.

The new officers will be installed Sunday morning at an impressive ceremony which will mark the end of the convention.

The circles are not restricted to the number of delegates sent and it is hoped that as many as can possibly come will be there.

"Consequently", she continued, "it is the duty of public school teachers to teach the children to think in order that they may happily and successfully live in the changing conditions."

Following the address made by Mary Hunter Edmunds, one hundred and forty-seven candidates for degrees and twenty-three two-year students were then awarded diplomas and degrees by Dr. J. L. Jarman.

The program ended with the singing of the national anthem, and the recessional of graduates.

FAREWELL TO THE
CLASS OF '42

You of the Senior Class of 1942, have now finished four glorious years at S. T. C. and are now ready to go forth in the troubled world of today. We have the utmost confidence in your ability to do your bit for your community and country, and know full well that your knowledge gained in our midst will be of the greatest value to you in the future.

We are proud to have had you with us, and we wish you all, the best of luck and happiness.

phonetics has been mastered over a cup of morning cuffee and a slice of buttered toast in Shannon's.

Rat Week was a big event for us that year—for we no longer had to take it—we were to give it. Second Floor Annex and Third Floor Student never saw busier days than during the week of Sophomore high authority. Rising at 6:00 to go out on the athletic field was almost as hard on us as on the freshmen, but we braved the early morning air and gave final commands to those who were fated to do our bidding. Occasionally there would be one who tried to get the upper hand on us—but we always retaliated in front of Whitehouse after chapel by making her spin like a top

Our officers for that year were Mary Katherine Dodson, Allene Overbey, Jane Engleby, and Betty Lucy. Betty left us at Christmas time and Nancy Dupuy succeeded her in office.

Circus that fall was a howling success. Dressed in the garb of our grandmothers, we presented a close-up of the Gay Nineties, featuring for the first time Zeke's Zippers—that rootin' tootin' rippling rhythm band of brass bazookas. Talent ran rampant—Marty Roberts, Nancy Dupuy, Buff Gunter, and Mary Jane Ritchie rendered a barbershop chorus of "Row, Row, Row your boat", and Polly Hughes and Frances Rosebro gave a roaring representation of Popeye and Olive Oyle—Dogpatch Style.

Close on the heels of Circus came our Sophomore production, with Helen Wentz as head director and Jane McGinnis and Peggy Bellus in the foreground. It was riotous behind stage, too. Hable was suspended from a ladder, dropping ivory flakes to create a typical mountain snowstorm—the fact that the box itself dropped too lent no less local color to our stage.

And speaking of snow, who among us does not remember the snow of our Sophomore year! We tucked ourselves in for a few hours of dutiful sleep, only to awake and find ourselves completely marooned. Those ripples out front had, the night before, been parked cars. The girls in senior building had breakfast in bed because they couldn't brave the depths between the building and Main—but not the Sophomores. We were down town before the business men could open their stores to us. Boots, jodphurs, overalls, anything wearablefrom Davidson's, Baldwin's, or the Hub, bedecked front campus, Hall, classroom. There was great rejoicing as calls came in from town saying that classes could not meet. Mr. French was heard to report in the Home Office that Dr. Simkins stepped off the front porch that morning and had not been seen since—

With added activities in extra-curriculum fields, and with such occupational interests as bridge games, friscoes, and the like, and with, of course, our classes, the year passed swiftly. It somehow got away from us before we realized it, and we saw Founder's Day come and go, and Spring elections head the calendar. In our class we welcomed Mary Katherine Dodson, president, succeeeding herself, with Martha Roberts, Nancy Dupuy, and Jane Engleby working with her. Our classman whom we, as a class, had presented to the school the year before as our bride, decided to seek the real thing, and we know now as Jane Royall Phlegar. She was succeeded by Rachel Royall as ur ever enthusiastic classhearts since she first came to us in 1940.

We were more keenly aware of the position of our class in school activities when we saw our members elected to major and minor offices for the coming year. May Wertz as editor of the Virginian, and Allene Overbey edited the Colonnade. And we were saddened, too, at the realization that with gradual growth and achievement, with becoming junior and moving into our special building, there would be graduates among us—Fran Bailey, Mary Prince Arnold, Caroline Ferguson, Nancy Moore, Helen Wentz, and many more. We had the strange feeling of being grown up, and we wondered how so many changes could take place in so short a time.

As Juniors. . .

Half of our college days behind us, we went forward into our junior year, and we were more firmly united than ever by life in our own Junior Building. The fall was an eventful one for us. Red and White were victorious in the Color Rush, and Zeke's Zippers were at their best on the field before a game, forming our own 42 and breaking in at intervals with their familiar theme—Tuxedo Junction.

After Thanksgiving we began work on our last production—Out of Nowhere. We shall never forget Betty Peerman in that riotous costume that fitted her twice over, nor Jerry Ackiss and Anne Ayers as the laziest stage assistants that ever hit our make-believe Broadway. It was then, too that Dodson, dressed in that black gym suit of 1920, showed us the art of expert contortion. Buff Gunter and Caroline Eason made as handsome men as Uncle Sam can boast of, and May Turner Winn, with her twoil to the left and a twinkle toe, brought the house down in gales of laughter. Texie Belle Felts added the final touch to our football scene of the second act, and Virginia Barksdale's beautifully directed ballroom scene, with Peggy Bellus singing "Tales From Vienna Woods" made a fitting climax to our night of all-out talent.

Time passed quickly, and we shared with some of our classmates the inestimable thrill, and—more important—the high challenge, of being recognized by Alpha Kappa Gamma for leadership in womanly service. One of the greatest privileges of a Junior is that of making Dean's list. Those long hours of burning the midnight oil were well rewarded when many of us were able to take those Saturday cuts to our favorite football game without remorse of conscience.

Junior Sing came soon after Christmas, and we went from Broadway to a Nightmare at the Oprey—or they Should Have Saved Coupons. A great melodrama with Zeke's Zippers furnishing the majestic orchestral accompaniment.

Circus, Mardi Gras, Founder's Day, Spring Elections—Elections held a special significance for us that spring, for our girls became major officers. Nancy Naff was elected president of the Student Body, Frances Rosebro of the Y. W. C. A., and Jane Engleby and Dot Johnson heads of the House Council and the Athletic Association respectively. Sara Cline was appointed editor of the Rotunda, and Anne Ayers of the Virginian.

And As Seniors . . .

And suddenly—it was our day—we wore white and marched in solemn dingnity becoming our higher rank through the pointed arch of caps, to become, officially, the seniors of 1942.

The strains of Alma Mater faded into a brief summer interlude, and we soon found ourselves gathering again at Joan's statue for first minute check-ups on holiday activity before we began the work and play of our final year. With Mary Katherine Dodson, Martha Roberts, Jane Engleby, and Nancy Dupuy leading us, and with Miss Rachel Royall who has held a place in our man, we seemed to crowd every minute until it fairly teemedwith activity.

Circus came early in the fall, and we started hurried construction on S. T. C.'s first Army camp—quarters of the 42nd Infantry.

And then, suddenly, it happened—December the 7th came and went, and in a day we found ourselves grown up. We faced the realities which the day before had been but printed facts in Dr. Walsmley's history text. We realized that ours was not an ordinary year, and we were searching for something real to cling to.

We lift our faces toward the sun— realizing that ours is a serious time, we shall face it seriously, but our hearts are light, and we know that up there near the sun the stars and stripes will wave, and we shall be among those who help to keep them flying—for such a task has fallen to our lot.

Students Receive Athletic Awards

The annual awarding of Athletic blazers and awards took place during the chapel program on Saturday, May 23. Receiving awards were Marty Roberts, Dot Johnson, Frances Parham, Anne Ellett, and Jean Carr who received blue blazers for being on a championship varsity team. This marks their second year on an undefeated basketball team.

Patsy Connelly, sophomore, also received a blue blazer at this time for being a member of the same champion team.

"42nd Battalion" Is Banquet Theme For 1942 Graduates

The seniors held their annual banquet at Longwood Friday night, May 29. The banquet theme was on the order of typical army camp procedure and was entitled "42nd Battallion meeting". The banquet tables were placed on the lawn at Longwood and were decorated with pink and red roses.

Gifts were given each member of the class by Elizabeth Ann Parker and Polly Hughes, in charge of the gifts, who read the verses that accompanied the gifts. Mary Katherine Dodson was toastmistress for the occasion. Others giving toasts were Caroline Eason, Mary Owens West, Betsy Austin, and Sara Cline. Dr. James Elliott Wamsley made a short talk to the seniors.

Among the guests included were Dr. J. L. Jarman, Miss Mary White Cox, Miss Elizabeth Burger, Miss Mary E. Peck, Mrs. F. N. Watkins, and Miss Rachel Royall.

Seniors Entertained At Reception Monday

Miss Mary White Cox entertained the seniors, their parents, and friends at a reception Monday night, June 1, at 8:30 o'clock in the Student Building Lounge.

In the receiving line were Miss Cox, Dr. J. L. Jarman, Mary Katherine Dodson, Jane Lee Hutcheson, Mary Hunter Edmunds, Sara Cline, Miss Rachel Royall, and Miss Olive T. Iler.

Officers of the student council for next year assisted in serving and receiving at the door.

Senior Side Lights

Four long years our seniors have joined in college sports life here at Farmville. A lot can happen in this length of time, and to many there were days of sorrow as well as weeks of pleasure. The activities on our campus helped bring each closer to what we know as the Farmville spirit. Yes, the seniors of '42 have a real quality which will live with them for many years. The athletic activities have helped bring on some of the histories of our "sporty seniors."

About four years ago our school welcomed as a freshman one whom we have grown to love and respect. All who have known Dot Johnson find that same quality of good spirit which is a tribute to Farmville. Her freshman year placed her on the sub varsity basketball team, hockey squad, and volleyball team. Throughout each sport season she joined the teams in action and helped her flying colors of Red and White stand out in the march for the color cup. During this, her senior year, she worked hard as president of the Athletic Association, and played basketball, hockey, and tennis. We will long remember her as the "swiftest gal on the floor.."

Martha Roberts, known to her many friends and classmates as "Marty", entered S. T. C. and at the same time the sports of the college. We will remember her and think often of her next year when our basketball season opens. For loyal, sportsmanlike,, and sincere, we found her at all time. Four long years have passed, but four and more we will remember her.

Grace and poise are fine characteristics and with them we find Mary Katherine Zehmer who played hard and gave to us many exciting days of archery skills. Each season she has entered the tournaments and led the team in victory. "Kitt" leaves us, but will carry with her that true spirit which she showed during four years of college life.

Freshmen won't forget her because she taught them the true art of swimming; sophomores remember her for the excellent water carnival presented and speed in swimming meets. Juniors recall her work with the H2O club, baseball team, and hockey squad. The seniors, her classmates, remember and hold dear the spirit and unusual quality she possesses. Each find his place in the world and that of Nancy Dupuy is high.

"Hoppy", or we should say Nancy Hopkins, is quite a golfer. Many thanks for all the work and time spent down in the golf room dodging balls, and showing interested persons how to give "that swing." With the last day of school days behind her, she will leave Farmville, but her memory for a long while will remain.

The Rotunda

VOL. XXII FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA, WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 30, 1942 NO. 1

Greetings . . .

Welcome to each and everyone of you freshmen and new girls who have chosen Farmville as your Alma Mater.

We are glad to have you not because as freshmen you will become victims of sophomore circumstances, but because we want you as our friends. In the past few days you have been told many things to expect of college surroundings, but you know that you will get out of your college days only as much as you put into them. Work hard, for it is worth it. This is a college of many and varied opportunities. Take an active part in your classes and in the extra-curricular activities, and soon you will become part of that spirit which belongs exclusively to Farmville girls.

This is to be your home for the next few years, and most of you are new to this sort of life. It may seem a little strange at first, but soon you will get to know and love this campus, the girls here, and the faculty. Upperclassmen and faculty members, of course, help you in any way and whenever possible. We cordially invite you to join our activities. We welcome you heartily and sincerely hope that each of you will be happy as part of our student body.

USO Enlistments Need Parents' O.K

Girls at S. T. C. will be allowed to go to USO dances, Dr. J. L. Jarman announced at a student body meeting last week, provided they have permission from their parents. Both formal and informal dances will be given at the Farmville Armory and at the service clubs at Camp Pickett near Blackstone.

The letters to the parents of the girls who have expressed a deslre to attend the dances have been sent from the president's office. Tentative plans are now being made for a number of students to attend a dance at tde Farmville Armory on Saturday night, October 4, if enough permissions are returned by that time.

Adequate chaperonage will be provided for the girls to and from and during the dances and transportation to the dances at Blackstone will be provided. S. T. C. girls must return directly to the school from dances at the Armory.

The girls are not permitted to leave during the dance and will not be allowed to smoke while dancing.

The first USO center in Farmville is now being prepared across from the town post office. S. T. C. girls may be allowed to help in this service center when the remodeling of the building is completed.

Dorothy Childress is chairman of the U.S.O. committee of the College War Council and Miss Leola Wheeler, is the faculty advisor. Any girl who has not signed up to go to the dances and wishes to do so should see Mrs. F. N. Watkins and have a letter sent to her parents as soon as possible.

Three Professors Added to Faculty

Four professors have been added to the faculty of the college for the 1942-43 session.

Richard G. Hallisy, a native of Wisconsin, is the head of the Business Education department and takes the place of M. L. Landrum, who is on leave of absence for war service. Mr. Hallisy received the M. A. degree from the University of Iowa and has done further graduate work at the University of Pittsburgh. He comes to Farmville from the latter where he has been instructor in business education.

Miss Emily Barksdale, of Roanoke, will be assistant professor of modern languages. She is a graduate of Randolph - Macon Woman's College and has the M. A. degree from the University of Mexico. She did graduate work in Spanish. Prior to receiving the Farmville appointment, Miss Barksdale had been a member of the Madison College faculty.

Dr. Leroy Merritt, head librarian since July, came to Farmville from the Graduate Library School at the University of Chicago where he attained his doctor's degree. He is a native of Milwaukee and received his M. A. degree at the University of Wisconsin. He began the study of library science at the Wisconsin Library School.

Mrs. Gills Presents Library 32 Books

A collection of 32 books belonging to the late Mrs. Annie Reed Elam, of Farmville, has been presented to the State Teachers College Library by Mrs. Maude F. Gill, niece of Mrs. Elam. Mrs. Gill also contributed clippings about the work of Dr. Walter Reed, famous physician and discoverer of the cure for yellow fever. Dr. Reed was Mrs. Elam's half-brother.

Attention Journalists

Try-outs for the Rotunda Staff will begin tonight in the Publication Office, Student Building, at 7:30 o'clock, and will continue for a period of four weeks.

Those interested in writing on the news, sports, feature, or social staffs, or in working on the business staffs, will report at this time.

Previous training or experience is not essential.

Alumna's Level-headed Action Prevents Workman's Death

A member of the working crew at Swift Creek Park, summer resort located in the Richmond, Virginia, area, wouldn't be alive today if it hadn't been for the quick, level-headed action of Miss Margaret Elizabeth Hughes, former State Teachers College student.

It all happened early in June when the worker, who was engaged in a painting job of a new diving stand, dropped his brush and jumped into the water for it. Fellow workers sounded an alarm when he remained under water several minutes and Peggy Hughes, one of the park's trio of feminine life-savers, hurriedly swam to the spot from another stand one hundred and fifty feet away.

After filling her lungs with a stored supply of air, Peggy made a quick surface dive, located the cramped workman, and brought him to the surface. Rapidly placing him in a prone position, she immediately administered artificial respiration while many onlookers stood bewildered.

After many minutes of continued work, the victim stirred, but blood began to stream from his nose and mouth. Peggy then located the necessary pressure points and the flow of blood to the head was checked. Later she ordered him wrapped in blankets to await the arrival of a doctor.

"It was one of the coolest demonstrations of skill I have ever seen", beamed R. L. Lipscomb, Swift Creek Park manager. "Miss Hughes did not lose her head at any time, and I doubt seriously if any better or quicker treatment has ever been administered."

Peggy, along with Dorothy Darracot, of Richmond, and Mildred Droste, of Ronceverte, W. Va., also Farmville students, comprised the guard crew at the park this summer. While at Farmville, Peggy was a member of the H2O Club and swimming teams. She is now teaching in a high school near Richmond.

College's Fall Enrollment Drops to 800

Figures Show An Approximate Decrease of Over One Hundred

Approximately 800 students registered at the end of the first week of the fifty-ninth session of Farmville State Teachers College, according to information released from the office of the registrar this week. This number is more than a hundred less than the enrollment at the same time of the 1941-42 session when 906 students were listed.

The total number of new freshmen registered this year is 317 as compared with 335 last year. Students have matriculated from nearly every county in Virginia, from many states and from Puerto Rico and Scotland.

The same general plan of orientation was used this year as in the past, with student leaders, faculty advisers, orientation classes and an orientation examination. The classes began on Monday, September 21, and ended on Thursday, September 24.

Twenty-four faculty members and 48 juniors and seniors assisted with the orientation program. S. M. Holton and Ella Marsh Pilkinton were in charge of the entire program. Those faculty and student assistants who served are N. O. Myers, with Charlotte Phillips and Vivian Gwaltney; Miss Mary E. Peck, with Margaret Mish and Frances Strohecker; Miss Mary P. Nichols, with Betty Sexton and Sara Jeffries; Miss Florence Stubbs, with Rosalle Rogers and Kitty Vaughan; Dr. F. F. Swertfeger, with Sarah Wade Owen and Jane Smith; Miss Mary Clay Hiner, with Eleanor Folk and Lols Alphin; M. B. Coyner, with Betty Reid and Mary Evelyn Pearsall; T. A. McCorkle, with Betty Youngberg and Margaret Kitchen; Miss Emily Kauzlarich, with Jac Hardy and Gloria Pollard; Mrs. Adele Watkins, with Betty Boutchard and Julia Eason; and Miss Alice E. Carter, with Brookie Benton and Dottie Sue Simmonts.

Also Miss Virginia Bedford, with Carolyn Rouse and Jean Arrington; Miss Pauline Camper, with Ann Ellett and Frances Lee Hawthorne; Miss Grace E. Moran, with Ella Marsh Pilkinton and Miss Martha Coulling Retires After 55 Years of Service to S.T.C.

By MARY FRANKLIN WOODWARD

Miss Martha Coulling, college art professor, retired in June of this year after having been a member of the State Teachers College faculty for 55 years. She has been succeeded by Miss Virginia Bedford who last year was assistant professor of art.

Miss Coulling came to Farmville from her home in Richmond, Va., in 1887 after having received her Lycientiate of Instruction diploma from Peabody College. "At that time the college, a normal school then, was only four years old with a two year course," Miss Coulling remarked in an interview. "The student body numbered only 175 and the faculty included only 12."

"When I was appointed to the position here I was notified that I was also to teach penmanship and bookkeeping, and after coming here, I found other subjects awaiting me. At different times since then I have taught Latin, physiology, history, civics, physical education, reading, and spelling besides my classes in drawing."

At first Miss Coulling taught object drawing done with charcoal. Later she did work with charcoal from cast. Still later pose drawing and design done in

Whittle Elected To Represent Sophs

Ophelia Whittle, of Petersburg, was elected at a meeting of the sophomore class last night to represent her class on Student Standards. Ophelia will replace Nellie Varn who did not return to school.

It was tentatively decided that Rat Week will be Tuesday and Wednesday, October 20-21, with Ruth Parker in charge of regulations. The freshmen will be capped by the sophomores on Thursday, October 15.

Plans for the annual circus were begun, with Gwen Sampson in charge of the stunt, and Nancy Wilkinson, chairman of the booth.

Virginian Begins Subscription Drive

Subscription drive for the 1943 Virginian has already begun, with the price this year the same as that for the 1942 annual. Gltchell's studio, of Harrisonburg, will again be in charge of pictures, Susie Moore, editor, has announced.

Both individual and group pictures are scheduled for the week of October 5 through 10 and appointments will be made at the table in the hall opposite the Town Girls' Room.

Weathers Fills Rotunda Position

Ella Banks Weathers, junior from Lexington has been promoted to the position of managing editor of the Rotunda for the session 1942-43. She replaces Mary Parrish Viccellio who did not return to school this year.

Ella Banks was a news reporter on the college paper her freshman year and has since served as news editor. She is also a junior class representative on student government, freshman counselor of the Y. W. C. A., and a member of Beorc Eh Thorn.

Jane Waring Ruffin will take over the position of news editor.

Short Story Contest To End October 9

All entries in the annual short story contest sponsored by the Colonnade must be handed in by Friday, October 9. Entries must be typed, double spaced, on regular manuscript paper, and handed to Virginia Sedgley, Jane Ruffin, chairmen of the contest, Winifred Wright, editor, placed in the Colonnade box, or mailed to the Colonnade, Box 15, S. T. C.

Judges in the contest will be Virginia Sedgley and Jane Waring Ruffin, Rosalle Rogers, president of Boerc Eh Thorn, Miss Lucile Jennings, and Mr. James Grainger, of the faculty. Entries will be judged on neatness and originality.

The writers of the three best stories will be awarded five dollars, three dollars, and one dollar respectively. In War Saving Stamps, and the winning stories will be published in issues of the Colonnade.

All students at Farmville Teachers College are eligible except members of the Colonnade staff.

Cotillion Club Elects Moomaw Sec'y.-Treasurer

Leona Moomaw, senior from Roanoke, was elected secretary-treasurer of the Cotillion Club at the regular meeting last night. Leona replaces Jean Hatton who did not return to school this year.

At the same meeting Betty Sexton was elected chairman of decorations for the Fall Cotillion, with Sara Hardy, Imogen Claytor, and Winifred Wright, members of the committee. A final date was not selected for the dance, but the nights of October 31 and November 7 were named as tentative dates.

Dorothy Childress, president of the club, announced that the music committee for the year will be composed of Frances Parham, chairman, Sarah Wade Owen, Sarah Massie Goode, and Shirley Pierce. It was decided that bids will be issued to 50 upperclassmen and 78 new students at an early date.

Cotillion Club is a social organization which sponsors two formal dances and one dansant each year. The membership is limited to 250.

The other officers of the club are Frances Parham, business manager, and Helen Wiley Hardy, leader.

Mish, Bernard Name Assistants

Margaret Mish, president of the House Council has named hall presidents for the present year.

Serving as hall president in first floor Cunningham Hall will be Eveline Looney, on the second floor, Charlote Phillips and Ann Ware Smith and on third floor, Jane Smith. In Senior Annex, Lucy Davis will take the first floor, Lilly Bec Gray, the second and Virginia Sedgley, the third. In Junior Building Mary Elizabeth Grizzard, Mildred Droste and Julia Eason, and Mary Elizabeth Harvey will serve on the first, second, and third floors, respectively.

Harrlette Moore is hall president on second floor Student, and Sally Robertson on third floor. In Annex Sara Bird Williams, Betty Agnew and Martha Higgins are the presidents on first, second, and third floors respectively.

Jean Shadle will take second floor Whitehouse, while Anne Hargrave has the third floor. In Gym Hall, Mary Williams Calvert and Roberta Davis will serve. Della Rainey is hall president on Library, Helen Crute and Dody Jones have second floor Main and Jane Johnson and Hersey Hutt, third floor.

These girls are authorized to give call downs for violation of House Council Regulations. In addition to their duties as hall presidents these girls will serve as fire marshals, Libby Bernard, Fire Chief, revealed this week. They will be assisted in this duty by Kitty Vaughan on third floor Cunningham, Marilyn Johnson, third floor Student Building, and Natalie Carroll, second floor Junior Building.

Notice

There will be an important meeting of the students on every hall of the Main Building in the hall president's room tonight at 10 o'clock. The meetings in the Cunningham Hall will take place at 10:30 o'clock. A call down will be given to those not present.

France, McCorkle Take New Offices

Upon the resignation of Elizabeth Tennent, Sara Wayne France, junior from Charlottesville, has been promoted to the position of managing editor of the Virginian, Susie Moore, editor, announced recently. Sarah Wayne is a transfer from Peace Junior College in Raleigh, N. C., and was on the business staff of the Virginian last year.

Louise McCorkle will replace Sara Wayne as photographic editor. Louise, of Farmville, was Freshman Counsellor last year and also a member of the Virginian staff.

New members will be added to the staff in the near future to supplement the present staff and to fill vacancies.

Dramatic Club Signs 97 Apprentices

Ninety-seven freshmen and new students signed up for the Apprentice period in the six departments of the Dramatic Club at a meeting on Monday night. Elsie Stossel, president, introduced the heads of the departments, Nelle White, lighting; Susan Durrett, staging; Jeanne Strick, acting; Jane Smith, costuming; Lucille Lewis, make-up, and Sally Robertson, properties.

Those who signed up will serve an apprentice term under the department heads until February, at which time those passing an examination will be voted upon by members of the Dramatic Club.

Editorial Reflections . .

Today's Challenge To College Students

Throughout the month of September many thousands of students have returned to institutions of learning to continue their education. This year, as never before, there is a noticeable difference in the enrollment because of stirring results of conflict. But to those few who are returning to school there is an even greater challenge to hold to the ideals on which this country was founded, and to the magnificent heritage that is theirs. The morale, fostered by students in their class rooms as well as outside will constitute strength and stability everywhere else. The country and nation are looking in their direction for encouragement, hope, and the "fearlessness of youth" that is sure to win an ultimate victory.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1942

A Tribute . . .

This year, Miss Martha Coulling, a revered member of the college faculty for 55 years has retired from active service in the school; nevertheless, to sophomores, juniors, and seniors, her widely felt influence will make her a part of us still. New students, also, will no doubt feel her eminent personality upon contact with work she has done. Her love for art, her friendliness, and her sincere interest in the students as individuals will always be remembered and Miss Coulling's kindness will be greatly missed by her students.

To me it is the sensitive expressiveness of her hands that exemplifies her spirit and her earnest love of art. And it is this quality that for years has permeated her career as head of the Art Department. Her personality will remain as a challenge to all for years to come.

Justified Pride In . . .

An Associated Press news release of the early summer held a story which is evidence that State Teachers College students should point with justified pride to the manifestation of valor and heroism made by Peggy Hughes, class of '42. Her intelligent, level-headed actions saved a man's life, it's true, but also brought to the foreground again the rising importance of the woman of today. Her type of courage embodies a new type of woman, the new type of woman whse precisional efficiency gets things done.

It is this type of woman, the one who faces responsibility and has the courage to 'dive into it', who will help right the world. Peggy Hughes, like this woman, took responsibility and meant it.

To the Scrappers . . .

For several weeks now following President Roosevelt's public analysis of the nation's limited metal and rubber scrap supplies, nation-wide press compaigns have been conducted to stimulate contributions of these vital materials from every home in the country. Likewise, The Rotunda joins in urging students in S. T. C. to become 'scrap-conscious'. The necessity for salvaging old metal is obvious, and this campus, like your home, hides numerous discarded articles that can be used. It's up to you to find them.

At the opening of Hampton Institute for the session this year, Malcolm A. MacLean, president, told the 350 assembled Negro freshmen that "you, I, and everybody else for the duration of the war belong to the United States of America for whatever she needs to do with us." He declared that colleges throughout the country should keep in close touch with the nation's government and its efforts, if the war is to be prosecuted successfully.

Letter . . .

To the Editor:-

Now that all of us have arrived at school, and the business of schedules and orientation is largely over, most of us are ready to make this year the best yet. I have found during the past three years that no sooner do we matriculate than our college activities begin buzzing, extra - curricular and otherwise. (Unknown to some, most of them have been buzzing at a slower rate of speed all summer).

So it is with college publications. The minute the various staffs return to school they are up to their ears in work. New students find it hard to get out of the groove of taking college publications for granted. Therefore I should like to introduce them to the three major publications on this campus.

First of all, there is The Rotunda, weekly newspaper. It gives the impression of being like other newspapers, but actually it is vastly different. The editorials, The Gatepost, its famous sports page and the photography are a few things that make it so.

The Virginian, the yearbook, is the one thing that causes so much excitement on campus with the advent of spring. It is a record of the happiest experiences we'll ever know and the real beauty of it to me is in the fact that each edition is better than the last!

Then, there's the student magazine, The Colonnade, published four times each year. It is a cross section of student talent in writing and art.

It is the aim of these staffs and of the Colonnade staff to encourage all students to do creative work and without student contributions obviously The Colonnade, particularly, could not exist. So, write for The Colonnade, or submit drawings or illustrations. As far as writing is concerned, all types of poetry and prose are acceptable. Contributions may be dropped in The Colonnade box under the Y. W. C. A. bulletin board or given to staff members.

In closing, I wish to thank you for this opportunity of introducing the new students to the campus publications, and also, incidentally, of plugging The Colonnade.

Sincerely,
(Signed) Winifred Wright,
Editor, The Colonnade

Khaki Blitz Is Here To Stay As Army Moves on Campus

By MARILYN BELL

"There's something about a soldier" goes the old saying. And there really is. Passers-by the college this time last year would have had us believe that Farmville had turned co-educational for a while when soldiers passed through town on their way to the Carolinas for maneuvers, but this year it looks like the khaki-blitz is here to stay not for a day or a week - end but for the duration.

On every hall in the dorms dressers boast photographs of "The Lieutenant" and there's not a mailbox in the Postoffice that hasn't already had a 'free'-marked letter hurriedly passed through it.

Khaki is the predominate color in the week-end scene, too, for men from Camp Pickett adorn the campus from Saturday through Sunday. Informal gatherings of soldiers and S. T. C. students are becoming a familiar sight.

In fact, our college student today has begun majoring in military tactics and techniques rather than math or science, and USO dances and entertainments have replaced the mental strain that old struggle for an A in philosophy used to cause.

New Head Librarian Realizes Dream In S. T. C. Library

"The library at Farmville State Teachers College is the kind of place I dreamed about in library school," Dr. Leroy Merritt said and interview this week. Dr. Merritt is the new head librarian at the college library.

This is Dr. Merritt's first experience in a small town and he "thinks it's grand". "I found the library very pleasant in respect to building, books collections, and staff personnel," he said.

Dr. Merritt has made several changes in the library. A collection of books that may be charged out for student reading is being maintained in the Browsing Room. There is a desk at the door where the students may sign the card but books should be returned to the main desk.

The second change is the Reference Room. To save space and to simplify classification, books are no longer listed under the department heads but are classified by subject as in the stacks. In the Reference Room will now be found bound copies of magazines for five years of the publications most needed by students for reference.

Information about the library may be received at the desk in the lobby, where a member of the staff will be on duty.

S. T. C. Girl Enjoys Patriotic "Duty"

Sizzling in the summer heat, Farmville girls still had energy to engage in various types of activity from June to September, some worked while others enjoyed a rest, but nearly everyone went all out for defense which was the cause for the following letter:

"I've really been doing my part for national defense this summer. You know how I love to dance! I've been going almost every Tuesday night down to Camp Lee to the dances. As a preview of what I go through: I rush through supper in order to get to the Jefferson Hotel to be packed like a sardine on a wreck of a bus. Three hefty girls to a seat and two on an isle seat as we leave Richmond about 7:40.

After about 30 miles of riding I arrive and then inspection - - - Clumsily I step off the bus to find two hundred men giving me the 'once over'. From there I walk through a line to a dressing room to run a comb through the hair quickly, then brazenly step into the service club to be picked up for the first dance by a short little man from Brooklyn. Soon a Colorado range boy with long gangly legs breaks in the middle of a 'Dodger' story and madly swings me around the floor until I say meekly "let's sit down for awhile". We rush madly for the edge and just as we are about to sit down a very handsome cowhand from the wild west asks me to dance. He says it's slightly hot and suggests cokes. So I swelter over a hot coca-cola which has never seen ice!

He turns out to be a rather sentimental soul in spite of his long association with deserts and rodeos, and over the coke bottle breaks into an elegy on the Southern belle he's heard so much about. Although I can see the disgust in his eyes concerning my interpretation of Georgia's magnolia-skinned beauty, he reassures me that I live up to what he expects. So I swelter some more and nod stupidly at his insane remarks which finally end.

Once again on the dance floor, I am picked up by a Mr. Five-by-Five who wants to teach me to jitter-bug. . . . my desperate attempt is intercepted by someone to a rescue—only this time it's an old man. Oh me, and it's time to go home. A nice little boy walks to the bus with me and wants to know if he can come to see me cause he's lonesome (and hungry).

I arrive home an hour late. What a night! Now don't you agree that I'm doing my duty? But it really was fun."

BETWEEN YOU 'N ME AND . . .

The Gatepost

(Who Hears An Awful Lot)

To you new girls we feel that an explanation is necessary. We have good intentions when we write this column so please don't get us wrong. It's really all in fun!

You know, it's our own personal opinion that our "rats" are rather, shall we say—? No, that's not the word we want to use—anyway we like them!

It seems that quite a few of the loves of last year have become a thing of the past. After doing a little "polite snooping" we find that Dugger and Skippy are about as far apart as Virginia and California. Not that he's in California but that he just isn't. In the same suite we learned that Rainey and Mac have drifted apart also. Droste says she hopes its not "catching."

Our Senior transfer from Mary Baldwin is losing no time—absolutely—It seems that the PiKA's won this time when Kitty accepted P. T.'s pin.

Henry Shepherd, better known to us as "Jeep", is luckier than most boys who "pop the question". He didn't have to have a personal interview with M. K.'s father. He only had to write his request to South America. Incidentally the answer was in the affirmative!

H.-S. C. is as faithful as ever. Beth Johnson takes off to Annapolis to see a Senior Grad and good old Charlie meets her at the station upon her return. "Fidus ultra finem."

A good "stand-in" for Charles Boyer is Mr. Hallisy of the faculty who talks just like him. The gals like it too! In fact, he only has two classes meeting during one period.

We can hardly wait for Jane William-on's vocalist to come down. You will let us knew when he comes, won't you?

Freshmen really missed a treat by not being here last year to meet the "romeo of the ages" Farmville's Powell Tynes. He's working in Alabama now but we kinda think that he will pop up before long to look you over.

We're glad to see that all the pairs didn't "bust up" this summer. It's nice seeing the same old faces together again this year. Theresa and Jack; Ella Banks and Bill; Betty and Sonny; Edna and Sandy; Polly Grey and Chuck; Inez and Joe; Ding Dong and Jeanette; etc. More recently, E. Mush and Tedo—We are sure that will be sad news for some of you!

All special leaves for "Techmen" have been cancelled. And as a result, a general trek Techward will begin this week-end when Homecoming looms on the horizon.

We can't close this column without bidding a "cheerie hello" to the rats at Hampden-Sydney, who together with the Picketeers have made the old campus rather "co-edish."

All you new girls had better be on your "P's and Q's" because we're gonna be snoopnig around for good old gossip! It's all between you and me and the Gatepost!

Mention the month of March to Sara Hardy and faint sighing mingled with ecstatic mutterings of one future air corps ensign will pop forth . . . Likewise mention Fort Benning to Betty Baldwin and the eyes take on a new gleam.

Faye Johnson has the advantake over the other girls for her John can say it in poetry! And does . . .

Peggy Alphin didn't lose much time in finding a double for her V. M. I. cadet! Hampden-Sydney, regardless of gas and tires, is still too close . . .

Roanoke College is still in the race despite the fact that Lady Folk has said "nay" . . . Jane Brown is sporting a frat pin from her Wayne of same institution . . .

And Lucille Lewis has that aged-old look at the thought of Tommy's frat pin, too . . . Ah, summer! . . .

Preview Practice . . .

Athletic Association President Hallie Hillsman and sophomore Ophelia Whittle get in a practice for the coming hockey season.

Frosh Entertained By Monogram Club

Due to inclement weather the freshmen hike to Longwood previously scheduled for Saturday afternoon, was cancelled. Instead the Monogram Club sponsored an informal party in the gymnasium after the sing program Saturday night.

The Athletic Association council assisted in serving and entertaining the new girls. Miss Olive T. Iler and Miss Emily Kauzlarich, physical education instructors, were present and the entire group joined in singing school songs followed by an old fashion Virginia Reel.

Riding Classes Begin This Week

Board of Directors Named Dusty Boots

Miss Stella Fox, riding instructor, is back this year and is scheduling riding classes this week. Any girl in school who is interested in riding and can work it in her schedule should see Miss Fox right away. There is a fee for riding. A Riding Club is organized for all S. T. C. girls interested in riding whether they are receiving instructions or not. Membership is not compulsory, but girls who ride automatically become members. The Riding Club Room is located to the left of the Recreation Hall in the Main Building.

Horses are supplied by the instructor at a nearby stable and rides include the trails at Longwood and work in the ring there. There is also a limited amount of work in jumping.

Following a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Riding Club on Monday it was announced that this group will be known as the Dusty Boots. They will wear a uniform, dark green tie, tan boots and tan crops.

Joyce Cheatwood, president of the Riding Club, announced that the plans for the year include an exhibition each quarter of the school year, and one activity to be stressed each quarter. In the Annual Horse Show and Rid-

Year's Active Sports Introduced To Freshmen

Students in the freshmen class, accompanied by their orientation leaders, were introduced to the college sports program last Thursday afternoon on the athletic fields. Various active sports of the college year were demonstrated for each of the groups.

On the hockey field, clad in blue and white, upperclassmen met for several impromptu games and for the new girls demonstrated the rudiments of S. T. C.'s chief fall sport.

Archery was located in the archery meadow, two games of tennis were in action on the tennis courts, and swimmers at the pool demonstrated various strokes. Basketball was played in the gymnasium by the varsity team.

Ending the program, Orchesis modern dance club, under the direction of Miss Emily Kauzlarich, analyzed various techniques used in dance.

The introduction to sports and dance was under the supervision of the Athletic Association headed by Hallie Hillsman, president, and the sports managers.

Piercing the Points

By SHIRLEY PIERCE

Emphasis on the physical fitness program carried on all over America holds an important place on our campus today. Now more than ever we must build ourselves in body as well as mind in order to perform those duties needed of us in the future.

Portunately our college offers us those facilities which make it possible to carry on such activity. In many of the state schools compulsory recreation is required; however, at Farmville various sports are offered to the students and they are expected to cooperate to the fullest.

Hockey practices are each Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons at four o'clock on the athletic field. Any girl in school may join this group. Those who do not know how to play will be instructed at this time. Class teams will soon be playing and girls are urged to begin their practices now.

Targets have been set up in the archery meadow, located behind the library. The place may be changed this week to the rear of Venable, and if so a notice will be posted. Margaret Kitchin and Sara Jeffries are assisting all girls who wish to shoot. Practices will be each Monday and Wednesday at four o'clock.

Swimming ranks a favorite past-time on Saturday nights as the pool is open for recreational swimming from eight to nine-thirty. Life guards are on duty at all times. Also in the afternoons from four until five-thirty girls may have a recreational swim period.

Keep a watch on the A. A. bulletin board for a notice concerning tennis. The courts are ready for playing. Tennis shoes are required for all those who use the courts.

Depleted Ranks Of Hockey Players Begin Practices

With much gusto general hockey practices got underway Tuesday afternoon. These will continue each Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

The somewhat depleted prospects, however, looked promising.

Among the veterans reporting for practices yesterday were Hallie Hillsman, last year's star fullback, Sara Hardy, sparkling forward, and Opdelia Wilson, Ellen Ebel, Jean Carr, Faye Nimmo, and Dottie Sue Simmons. Others who turned out in full force were Jane Ford, Frances Rainey, Eleanor Wade, Mildred Droste, Rosemary Elam, Eleanor Wade, Vivian Gwaltney, Billy Wald, Viola Surring, Betty Brothers, Carlotta Norfleet, Jane Philhower, Lela Maurer, Catty Lambert and Margaret Orange.

The varsity team members will be selected from these who show special talent in the sport.

Max Rote Scheduled For First Aid Class

Mr. Max Rote, field representative of the American Red Cross, will conduct a First Aid Instructors course here October 19 through October 23.

Required for this study is a certificate in American Red Cross Standard First Aid and Advanced First Aid. Girls wishing to enroll in the class under Mr. Rote will notify Miss Elizabeth Burger or Shirley Turner.

Mr. Rote visited S. T. C. last fall, giving the same instruction.

Papa Priority Trims Dame Fashions

Dame Fashion guided by Papa Priority demands that campus clothes be more conservative. Last Sunday, first chance to show off new fall bests, proves that black is still king and that lines are slightly altered, the skirts taking the straight and narrow path, the waists slimmer with less accent on elegance.

Hats seem smaller to fit over the feather cuts that are displacing so many Veronicas. Lipsticks appear to be coming out of their purple mourning and are a bright patriotic red.

Juke jackets that supposedly are to make their exit with the infamous zoot suits are still favorites here, far from being either gone or forgotten.

The campus uniform of sweater and skirt remains unchanged with no priority on sweater length. The skirts, however, have donated a few of their pleats to Uncle Sam for the duration.

Glad rags, literally speaking, are beginning to take leads. Patchwork and quilting are taking their places in female apparel from hats, coats, shirts and skirts to shoes and pocketbooks—nothing like variety.

On campus and everywhere else, the universal motto is "make it do". With the growing scarcity of materials, we see numerous ideas for making over—adding braid or a new binding to last winter's favorites—get some upholstery made for the cars that aren't being built this year and turn it into something wearable. It's all because Mr. Hitler has added the world to campus life. Awareness has invaded college thinking, college clothes, college fun and plans. Clothes must be rational and still possess charm in this changing world.

N. Y. A. Allotments Cut 55 Per Cent

Due to the fact that the allotment of N. Y. A. funds for Farmville State Teachers College has been cut 55 per cent this year there are fewer positions available in school and fewer girls can be aided in this way.

N. Y. A. positions include student assistants in the various departments, in the library and in the dining hall.

MISS MARTHA W. COULLING

Lyceum Schedule Includes Pianist, Cornetist, Dancers

Four lyceum programs have been scheduled for this year, Mrs. F. N. Watkins, secretary to the president, revealed this week. Included in the series is Louise Meiszner, 18-year-old pianist who gave a concert in Farmville last March. American born of Hungarian parents, Louise played the piano at three and a half, gave her first concert at five, and entered the Franz Liszt Academy of Music in Budapest at six. Miss Meiszner has appeared as soloist in the Budapest Concert Symphony Orchestra, in the Budapest Philharmonic Orchestra, in the Hilliversum Symphony Orchestra in Holland, in France in the Radio Nationale, and because of her youth and extraordinary ability is one of the most exciting of present day women pianists.

Another musical program of interest that will come to Farmville this year is Bohumir Kryle and his Symphony Orchestra. Kryle, famous virtuoso and conductor, has been called by the Los Angeles Times "the most remarkable cornetist in the world," and referred to by the Chicago Tribune as "a director without peer." In recent years Kryle and his Symphony Orchestra have appeared in more than one hundred colleges and universities.

Also scheduled for an appearance at S. T. C. in the lyceum series is Devi Dja and her Bali-Java Dancers From the distant islands of Bali and Java, so much in the public eye today, come these dancers, featuring a native orchestra and dances derived from famous Sanskrit epics.

A unique concert group consisting of four young ladies who all happen to have the name of Louise will appear in Farmville this year. Coaching the four Louise's is one of the group, Miss Louise Haydon, a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music. Miss Haydon is a concert pianist.

Attention . . .

The college pool will be open for general swimming each afternoon except Saturday from 4 until 5:30 o'clock and on Saturday nights from 8 until 9:30.

Regulation swim suits are required for recreational swimming.

black and color were added. Since then the art department under Miss Coulling's direction, has progressed steadily and during the past few years, she also taught courses in the history and appreciation of art, methods of teaching art, pottery, painting, sculpturing, and architecture.

Miss Coulling has done graduate work in art at Columbia University and for several years taught at Emory and Henry College during the summer sessions. She has traveled extensively in Europe and has spent much time in England, France, and Italy. In addition to a collection of personal art she owns an interesting collection of art relics and pieces she brought from these countries.

This year Miss Coulling will live in Farmville and she has made no definite plans for the future. She will probably go next year to Richmond to make her home with relatives.

Just Looking, Thanks

The first week-end of this session is over, social life takes its old familiar whirl. The conflict between the college world and the week-end world won't be so strong this year for obvious reasons. So for once the on-campus events out number the off-campus ones—

The game in Charlottesville between the Death Valley boys and the University lads was attended by Gracie Hutchcson, Jeannette Garrison, Barbara White, Sarah Massie Goode, Helen Wiley Hardy and Sara Hardy.

The freshman class were guests of honor at three affairs last week. Monday night the Freshman Commission of the Y. W. C. A. gave a "get together" party in the rec with games and songs under the direction of Ella Banks Weathers, Julia Bell Glenn, Anne Payne, and Pat Maddox.

Friday night the traditional Big Sister-Little Sister reception was held by the Y. W. C. A. in the gym. The freshmen had their first chance to meet Dr. Jarman, who headed the receiving line composed of Amy Read, president of the Y. W. C. A., Agnes Patterson, president of the Student Government Association; Margaret Mish, president of the House Council; Hallie Hillsman, president of the Athletic Association; Miss Sarah Poole, student secretary of the Baptist Student Union; Eleanor Folk, Frances Lee Hawthorne, Anne Ellett, Ella Banks Weathers, officers of the Y. W. C. A.; Miss Winnie Hiner, Miss Rachel Royall, Miss Grace Moran, and Mrs. Boyd Coyner.

Though old Man Weather twice delayed the A. A. picnic, it finally ended up in a party Saturday night in the gym complete with lots of fun and Longwood buns.

To you, old girls who remember them we give a summary of the S. T. C. alumnae who this summer changed their careers to matrimony: Geraldine Ackiss to Wendell Buchanan Coate, Elinor Johnson to Gafford Yancey Pleasant, Caroline Bargamin to Richard Payne Clark, Gay Ward Brown to Samuel Goode Jones, Martha Cottrell to Garland Melvin Harwood, Mary Harvie to Edward Merrill Reaves, Peggy Bellus to George D. Sands, Beezie Townsend to C. B. Tasker, Mildred Pierce to John Kerr, Mary Hunter Edmunds to Paul E. Gordon, Jane Engleby to Graham Haynie, Ann Ware to John O. Smith, Sara Currier to Bruce Burnett and Marjorie Chapman to John Glenn Brown. Jane Lee Hutcehson will marry Blanton Hanbury on October 22, and Betty Hardy's marriage to a flight lieutenant in the R. A. F. will take place later in the Fall.

VOL. XXII FARMVILLE, VA., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1942 NO. 2

Thespians to Show 'The Male Animal'

Jongleurs Supply Actors for Roles

"The Male Animal", the smash hit on Broadway several years ago, by James Thurber and Elliott Nugent, has been selected by the S. T. C. Dramatic Club and the H.-S. Jongleurs as their fall production. It is to be presented in S. T. C. Auditorium Friday, November 13, at 8 o'clock P. M.

Try-outs for the play have been held and the cast will be announced at an early date.

"The Male Animal," also a hit in the movie version, is a three-act farce set in a mid-western university town. At an important football game old friends re-meet in a very embarrassing situation and complications arise as the plot thickens. There is even a fight when a young college intellectual is accused of being a fascist.

Critics Laud Play

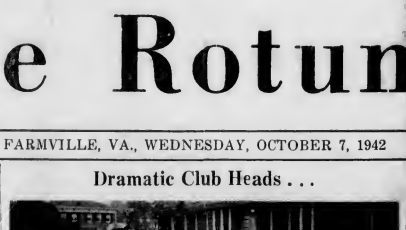
The New York Post said of the play that it is "continuously amusing" and the New York Times adds "that there is more than meets the funny bone in this scrowled lampoon on the civilized male at bay".

The play will be directed by Miss Leola Wheeler. Nelle White will attend to the lighting effects, Jane Smith will provide costumes, Lucille Lewis will supervise the make-up, Susan Durrett will be in charge of staging, and Sally Robertson will take care of properties.

The officers of the club in charge are Elsie Stossel, president; Hannah Lee Crawford, vice-president; and Helen Delong, treasurer.

Last year the S. T. C. Thespians and the H.-S. Jongleurs presented "The Little Minister" and "Death Takes A Holiday".

Black-out Reported Success at S. T. C By College Heads



In accordance with Memorandum No. 122 issued by the state office of Civilian Defense, the entire State of Virginia underwent an unannounced test blackout simulating an air raid on Monday night, October 5. The Farmville town siren blew the alarm at exactly 9:54 P. M., and the total blackout lasted one hour and four minutes.

T. A. McCorkle, Chief Air Raid Warden for the town of Farmville, and college professor of Chemistry and Physics, reported that the blackout was "entirely successful and highly satisfactory."

"It is indeed gratifying to me to be able to report that, with the exception of a small number of minor, and unintentional, violations, the test blackout on the night of October 5, 1942, was entirely successful at the State Teachers College," said S. L. Graham, business manager of the college, in a letter to Mayor Fitzpatrick this week.

"Since college opened on September 21," Mr. Graham continued in the letter, "the Student Officers have selected and trained a very efficient corps of fire marshals and air raid wardens who have worked hard to make the test a success. This fact, and the fact that wardens received the full co-operation of the entire student body, merits the commendation of both the town and college officials."

Dramatic Club Heads . . .

Colonnade Contest Closes October 9

All entries in the Colonnade Short Story contest must be submitted to Winifred Wright, editor, or placed in the Colonnade box Friday, October 9. All freshmen and new girls may enter the contest.

Prizes of $5, $3, and $1 will be awarded in War Savings stamps to those who place first, second, and third, respectively. Winning short stories will be published in one of the four issues of the Colonnade this year.

Judges for the contest are Miss Lucille Jennings, and Mr. James Grainger, of the faculty, and Virginia Sedgley, Jane Waring Ruffin, staff members, and Rosalie Rogers, president of Boerc Eh Thorn.

Choir Soars To Lift Morale With Music

Music organizations in the school are better than ever this year reported Mr. Alfred L. Strick, head of the music department, this week. In spite of the fact the the choir has lost 24 members, it is stronger than before Mr. Strick believes.

Membership in the choir has been completed with 50 regular members and nine substitutes. The Choral Club has a roll of 60 this year. Student directors in the Music Department this year are Carolyn Beard, Pat Maddox, and Beth Johnson, and accompanists Eleanor Feagens and Hazel Phillips.

From the 200 who applied for admission into the music groups Ann Blair, Carolyn Beard, Virginia Hitchins, Beth Johnson, Margaret Lovins, Lucy Messick, Marie Nichols, and Pat Maddox have been selected to make up the Madrigal Group.

Singing in the Senior A'Capella Choir are Ann Blair, Carolyn Beard, Betty Blackwell, Marie Nichols, Margaret Lovins, Margaret Page, Nancy Bell Bruce, Mary Moore McCorkle, Jeanne Strick, Mary St. Clair Bugg, Jerry Titmus, Dorothy Cummings, Virginia Hitchins, Jean Prosise, Lucy Messick, Earlene Kimmerling, Fiddle Haymes, Beth Johnson, and Pat Maddox.

The Junior A'Capella Choir consists of Nancy Hutter, Margaret Thomas, Theresa Fletcher, Esther Shevick, Frances Lee Hawthorne, Mary Sterrett, Mary Ann Jarrett, Hazel Phillips, Carolyn Rouse, Nuttie Johns, Nancy O'Bryne, Mildred Ames, Minnie Lee Crumpler, Louise Bell, Edith Lovins, Jane Brown, Mary Nancy Marsh, Eleanor Corell and Lois Mekins.

"The war seems to have brought into the school a greater need for music," remarked Mr. Strick. "More people want to sing. They look to music as an antidote."

YWCA Secures Ould As First Speaker In October

Mrs. E. H. Ould will come to S. T. C. on October 20 and 21 as the first Y. W. C. A. speaker of the year. The emphasis of her lectures will be on "Today's Need for Christian Action."

Mrs. Ould will speak in chapel on Tuesday and to the Y. W. C. A. cabinet that night. Following her talk to the cabinet there will be an open forum directed by Mrs. Ould. She will speak again in chapel on Wednesday and in the afternoon to an open association meeting.

Last year Mrs. Ould visited on the campus while in Farmville. She is a well known lecturer on personality. In her talks here she will try to tell the students how to meet the need for Christianity in the school.

During the year the Y. W. C. A. will also sponsor a return engagement of both "Scottie" Cowen and Dr. Sherwood Eddy.

Infirmary's Staff Asks Cooperation

The college infirmary personnel has asked all students to cooperate in keeping the infirmary hours and regulations.

The infirmary will be open to emergencies at all times. Students unable to attend classes because of illness will be expected to report to the infirmary for a minimum duration of 24 hours before class excuses will be given. There will be no visiting in the infirmary, but notes or letters to the patients may be left in the box under the Y. W. C. A. bulletin board. No food is to be sent to the patients except that passed by the resident physician or nurse in charge.

At present Miss Willie McKee, recently returned from a year's leave of absence, is the staff nurse in charge of infirmary rules and regulations. Her office hours will be posted on infirmary bulletin boards. A physician has not yet been appointed to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Dr. Amelia Tutles.

Hardy, Randolph To Initiate Program

Introducing this year's theme, "A New World Order", Helen Wiley Hardy and Ann Randolph will speak at the meeting of Pi Gamma Mu at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday, October 13.

Analyzing the "Paris Peace Conference" they will discuss the pitfalls of the conference and how they could have been avoided.

At the same meeting a president will be elected to fill the vacancy left by Jean Hatton who did not return to school this year.

Nobokov to Speak Here December 8-9

BET To Present Famous Russian

On December 8 and 9 Boerc Eh Thorn, honorary English society, will bring to Farmville the famous Russian author, Vladimir Nobokov, it was revealed at a recent meeting. While here Nobokov will give several lectures to various groups on the campus.

The program plans for the year were presented at the meeting. At the next meeting on Thursday, November 5, the discussion will center around Modern Trends in Literature. Other discussions include Russian literature, current columnists, and the Pulitzer Prize winners. Agnes Bondurant, Farmville author of the recently published "Poe's Richmond", will be the guest speaker at the March meeting. There will also be a meeting devoted to original writings of the members of Boerc Eh Thorn.

Eleanor Folk, at the meeting on Thursday, October 1, explained to the members of Boerc Eh Thorn the library project sponsored by Kappa Delta Pi. The aim of the project is to encourage students to build their personal libraries.

Membership in Boerc Eh Thorn is limited to sophomore, junior and senior majors and minors in English, who have a B average on six or more English courses and a C average on everything else.

Corvin Elected Junior Treasurer; Ford Circus Nominee

Mildred Corvin, of Crewe was elected treasurer of junior class last night. She replaces Mary Parrish Vicello who did not return to school this year.

Junior nomination for circus queen is Jane Ford, and those in charge of the stunt are Louise Andrews and Louise McCorkle. Betty Bridgforth will be in charge of the class booth.

Co-chairmen of the junior production will be Patsy Connelly and Sara Wayne France. In charge of tickets and programs will be Mary Moore McCorkle, and Ella Banks Weathers. Elizabeth Ann Gordon, and Ruth Dugger will write the script. Jane McFall and Virginia Mae Ellet will be art directors, and Mary Evelyn Pearsall will be in charge of properties.

War Council Meets To Discuss Plans

Following a meeting of the executive board of the War Council of the college, the committee heads and executives of the council met last night to discuss plans for the year's work.

Suggestions were made in regard to the work of the morale and physical fitness committees in particular. Entertainments on week ends will be promoted to discourage student travel from Saturday through Sunday of each week and an effort will be made to make physical training and sports activities obligatory for the entire student body beginning at an early date.

It was announced at the meeting that the USO committee of the college, which at first was a division of the War Council, will work as a separate unit this year.

The executive committee, is made up of Dr. James Elliott Walmsley, advisor; Agnes Patterson, president of the student body; Amy Read, president of the Leadership Fraternity Conducts Recognition Ceremony at Chapel

Convention of Circle Groups Canceled Because of Inadequate Transportaion

Joan Circle of Alpha Kappa Gamma, national leadership fraternity, tapped five seniors and two juniors in its annual recognition exercises in chapel this morning.

Seniors tapped were Nancye Allen, Hebron; Anne Ellett, Burkeville; Ella Marsh Pilkinton, Richmond; Carolyn Rouse, Newport News; and Rosalie Rogers, Melfa. The juniors recognized were Hannah Lee Crawford, Farmville; and Ella Banks Weathers, Lexington.

Introductory Talk

Jane Cabell Sanford, president of the fraternity, made an introductory talk to the student body before the students were tapped. She emphasized that membership in Alpha Kappa Gamma was not only an honor and a recognition for leadership in student affairs, but also a challenge to greater leadership in the future.

Nancye Allen is vice-president of the senior class, head of the service committee of the Y. W. C. A., and president of Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority. She also holds membership in the Cotillion Club, and was a fire marshal for two years.

Anne Ellett is business manager of the Colonnade, has been treasurer of the Y. W. C. A. for two years, and social chairman for one year. She has been a member of the varsity basketball team for three years and is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Boerc Eh Thorn, Pi Gamma Mu, and Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority. She is chairman of Mardi Gras this year.

Pilkinton Is Vice-Pres.

Having served as a class representative on the Student Council for two years, Ella Marsh Pilkinton is this year vice-president of student government. She edited the handbook for 1942-43 and was in charge of freshman orientation this fall. She served on the May Day committee her sophomore year, and was a member of the Choral Club for two years. She has been a member of the hockey varsity and class teams for three years and is vice-president of Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority.

Carolyn Rouse has been very active in Y. W. C. A. work, having served on the service committee her freshman year, the music committee her sophomore year and as chairman of the student day chapel this year. She has worked on the staff of the Colonnade for two years and was promoted last spring to the position of poetry editor. She has been a member of the Junior A'capella choir for two years, and is president of Baptist Student Union.

Rosalie Rogers is this year president of Boerc Eh Thorn and the Student Standards committee having been a member of both organizations for two years. She is vice-president of Kappa Delta Pi and has been a member of Those initiated were Evelyn Grizzard, Marjorie Vaughan, Lucie McKenry, Betty Little, Carlotta Norflett, Margaret Morgan, Virginia Caviness, Virginia Parson, Jeanne White, Catherine Williams, Rosa Lee Bell, Lillian Barnes, Betty Kiser, Martha Holman, Vivian Edmunds, Martha Ellen Jones, Lucy Bowling, Kitty Maddox, Glenn Anne Patterson, Margaret McIntyre, Agnes Stokes, Mildred Bailey, Ella Traynham and Kathryn Amis.

To be eligible for membership in the Granddaughter's Club one's mother or grandmother must have attended school at the college.

AKG Plans Program For Annual Circus On November 7

Plans are now underway for the annual college circus sponsored by Alpha Kappa Gamma, national leadership fraternity, in the college gymnasium on November 7 at 8 o'clock.

Each class will sponsor a stunt, and prizes will be given for the best one. There will be a number of booths also.

A circus queen will be elected from four nominees elected by the classes. Who will reign is unknown until the night of the affair.

Hallie Hillsman, president of the Athlethic Association, is acting as general chairman. Her floor committee consists of Jane Sanford and Agnes Patterson.

The other committees have been announced as follows: animal committee, Amy Read, chairman; stunt committee, Shirley Turner and Agnes Patterson; advertising committee, Ann Ware Smith and Eleanor Folk; queen and court presentation committee, Betty Boutchard, chairman; parade committee, Betty Youngberg, chairman; ticket committee, Susie Moore, chairman; and decoration committee, Winifred Wright and Margaret Mish.

Editorial Reflections . .

Blackout Bundists . . .

(News Story P. 1)

The success of the blackout and simulated air raid on Monday night in the college can be attributed to the flawless supervision of the student air-raid wardens and War Council heads and to the whole-hearted cooperation of almost all of the student body. They are to be lauded on their actions.

However, it is axiomatic that there are still some who refuse to learn. To those we address a word of warning. It has been said repeatedly during the past months that such tests as that made on Monday night from 9:54 o'clock until 11 is a serious event; its purpose is even more serious and is not to be ridiculed.

Ponder well your actions in the next. You will be no exception in the real thing, so why make yourself exceptionable now?

For the Formulation Of a World Charter

(News Story P. 1)

(Editor's note: The following is an excerpt from a paper authored by Helen Wiley Hardy which she will present at the meeting of Pi Gamma Mu next week. In citing several reasons for the failure of the Paris Peace Treaty of 1918, she commends the 14 points presented by Woodrow Wilson; she notes that the greatest fault was not in his plan, but in the people of the nations.)

The greatest fault was not with his (Wilson's) plan but with the people—the public in general of the United States, as well as the other nations—in not seeing that anything but an intelligent plan for the organization of the world peace would last.

This is where you and I as students and potential influential citizens come into the picture. An intelligent public opinion must be able to select and reject with reason the plans proposed for peace at Washington and in other capitals of the world. Discussion plans for a post war world are important in seeing the possibilities and eventualities of a new world order. Julian Huxley suggests that we might proclaim a series of charters, extending the general principles of the Atlantic charter to formulate relations between the Asiatic and white nations; a charter of welfare and services—stating the rights and duties of individuals; a charter of security; and a charter of peaceful change as a means of international political adjustment.

We may actually do it in the end. It means facing the future with full, rather than empty minds.

This Collegiate World

Colleges accelerating their programs might do well to have their men and women students study in unmixed groups to avoid time-wasting.

That is the opinion of Dr. F. Kennett Berrien of Colgate University, who draws his conclusion from a psychology department report on "How Quickly Do Students Start Studying?", as compared with a similar survey conducted by D. C. Troth of the University of Illinois.

The Colgate study, based on observation of 75 men under conditions similar to those at the University of Illinois, showed that only 11 per cent of the students began concentrating on their studies as soon as they were seated in the library.—ACP.

Gleanings

At this writing Stalingrad still stands. Forty days ago the Germans began their assault on the city. At that time almost all the newspaper men predicted an early defeat of the city and all agreed that it would be a miracle if it lasted a week. The week passed, indeed, five weeks have passed and Stalingrad still remains undefeated.

The Nazi planes demolished the buildings during the first few days of the attack only to find that the fallen stones and rubbish offered excellent Soviet fortresses in the hand-to-hand street fighting which was to come. The tanks, which had been so effective in Egypt, were of little value in capturing the city. Herr Hitler was forced to use the crack land troop that he had intended to use in the Caucasus section thus delaying his drive toward the Baku oil fields. General Rommel in Egypt was clamoring for the planes and troops that had to be sacrificed in Stalingrad and now the Russian winter has set in.

The Germans have already had a costly experience with the dreaded Russian weather when they tried and failed to take Moscow last year. The miracle might yet happen and again the winter will turn back the Germans.

Stalin has openly said that the Allies have not been very prompt in either supplying the harassed Russians or opening a second front. As Mr. Churchill has said, we should not discuss the second frnt, lest we give away a secret, but suffice to say, a second front would do much to relieve the pressure on all of Russia and Stalingrad in particular.

In fulfilling our "obligation" to send supplies, the need is obvious. Germany has air supremacy over Stalingrad for the simple reason that the Russians have few if any planes there. While we personally can not aid in a second front we can speed production. I know we do not work in factories, but on the other hand, we don't have to travel, thus giving someone else who has to ride a seat on the bus. We don't have to telephone, keeping the line busy where an important call pertaining to war production is being made.

You may be only a girl but the girls and women of Stalingrad are fighting side by side with the men. They have pledged not to give up till the Germany is dead.

Even if Stalingrad does fall, it will remain a monument to a people who were willing to fight to the death rather than submit to the Nazi rule. How little seem our efforts in the light of such patriotism and self-sacrifice.

BEHIND . . .

The Gatepost

(And Still Hearing a Lot!)

Dates and dashes—and lots of flashes! We're off on a flying start even if it is in the middle of the week.

Dot Childress and Horace Adams are looking at the moon with dreamy eyes these days—Mep seems to have forgotten about her ex and has eyes only for long-lost Herby—who incidentally is coming way down here in the country from Detroit this week-end. Happy, Mep? (Poor T. O.)

Feminine hearts are fluttering but not for uniforms. Tch, tch, gals, not very patriotic. However, Alice Nichols still holds true to that string of nearby campers. It was a lovely summer, n'est ce pas, Alice?

Love at first sight is quite the stuff according to Malcolm Yates, and Sally Johnson. They are freshmen at H.-S. and S. T. C. respectively.

The solemnity and seriousness of tete-a-tete between that Blair Chile and her Bev in the rec could indicate the sound of a frequented march in war days and bells. And I don't mean fire bells, either!

Ruthie Parker was all a-quiver after call from Vernon. Well can you blame her? He's in California. Betty Kaiser of the frosh category, and Harvey Goode are doing quite well of late. When a boy's mother calls a girl to find out where her son is, that's time enuff to call the couple a serious two-some—.

As usual—Tech's homecomings drew from Farmville a number of its belles, such as: Nimmo, Marilyn Bell, M. A. Biggs, 'lil' Hutter, Nancye Langhorne, Carol Diggs, Peggy Becker and her Eddie were there with the jingle-jangles.

Sara Wayne France is in a dither as to which dress she should wear to V. M. I.'s ring figure. How 'bout that? P. S. She was afraid complications would set in so she declined two bids this week-end.

It's a fact that one blonde was furious because Gwen's man, Tommy Leathe, didn't recognize her. And after the rush she gave him at last year's dances.

Miss Libby Heath had better watch her step—accepting a K. A. pin from Jimmy when she's tentatively engaged to Roanoke College. That tea room dinner party was very crazy though. Lucille Winston, a cute transfer from Madison had a mighty big time. She has Richmond U. on the mind—or is it Jack?

Irma Dell went to the movies Saturday all by herself. No comment.

Kitty Ritticer is pining for Langley. He's on campus. Doggone those upperclassmen!

Ben Johns, where are you? queries Lulu. Was Bebe Blair too much for you this summer? Incidentally, Bebe—rumor has it that that was a nice piece of strategy you manipulated at Longwood Sunday—And, it's such a long way to Texas says Nancy Bruce.

Too bad, Betsy Birchfield that your date had to leave eo early Martha Walsh has found her way into the heart of practically every man in Kappa Sig and Sigma Chi—Gee, Mr. Misterley, football practice comes at such inopportune times, doesn't it?? A. P. couldn't keep her mind on anything else after the week-end. HE was here—you know—.

The capital of Virginia saw a great many familiar faces over the week-end. How about it, M. K.?

Poor Nancy Moss waited and waited for Elmore. But good old Pearly Yates kept her company—Right?!!?—Cov and Big Barbara had a little trouble at the box office Monday afternoon, but it turned out all right. It's not leap year after all . . .

Elsie Thompson is happy again now that she's seen Waring. Oh! Oh! I can see where I'm becoming very complicated—so until next time fare thee well—

JUST ME

Last Minute Frenzy Of Rotunda Rush Ruins Editors' Poise

"Be sure that your article is in on time" is the most stressed admonition given to Rotunda reporters when assignments are distributed on Wednesday night. Yet on Sunday night—the "on time"—the editors are surprised if article one is in. That's why newspaper editors get old before their time. At least, that's one of the reasons. As the date for publication draws near, more reasons come to light.

The editors begin to fume when the first of the articles arrive late Monday afternoon. More anguish follows when the typing staff is studying in a body and cannot be located. Consequently, the editors, none of whom can type, are forced to "hunt and peck" until with numerous errors, a somewhat finished product is produced.

On Tuesday several more articles wander into the copy box and the authors sheepishly promise not to let it happen again. But somehow it always does.

Tuesday night arrives and the proof reading staff analyzes and corrects—the live copy.

Then the fun really begins—the paper has to be made up. The actual putting it together isn't so hard if all the articles are set up and headed. But they never are. And headlines are a headache — they entail so many "must's". They must fit exactly, just so many letters to each kind of type. They must tell the content of the article. They must contain a verb and it must not be in the past tense.

Then, too, there are always some articles that can't come in until Tuesday night—news about Tuesday night meetings. And it seems that there are more meeting on that night than any other in the week.

And so, far into the wee hours the editors struggle, writing the news that never comes in, racking their brains for another word that means the same but has just one letter less, or a new word to give an article pep, counting words to approximate the space an article will occupy, typing, forever typing. It gets later, and the editors get tired, fidgety. They even contemplate murder so there will be a big headline. They pull hair and bite nails. And then discover a three-inch blank space on the front page! When finally they get through the work—sometimes they don't—it is nearer noon than midnight.

On Wednesday every free minute is spent by the editors in the printing office, proofing newly set up articles, and giving the paper a final check.

At approximately 11:15 the paper in its entirety comes off the press for the last check for errors. At 12:15 or after the final printing begins. And, oh, how beautiful that paper always looks to those who put it together with "blood, sweat, and tears", and a lot of hard work!.

S. T. C. Girl Budgets Time To Include Eats, Looks, Study

With less men and more time to concentrate on their appearances, college girls are working over time to capture those "Available Jones's" while they are still here. In a survey taken all over the United States it was discovered that the average college girl spends 294 hours or 12 days before the mirror during a year at school.

S. T. C. statistics show, however, that "bull sessions" occupy approximately four times as much time as primping, for the average Farmville girl spends 1168 hours or 48 2-3 days a year in friendly chats.

As one girl remarked, "We talk about the boys all the time; and we see them so little."

Studying occupies 1131 hours or 47⅛ days a year for the individual girl at Farmville and 821 hours or 34 days is spent filling those empty cavities commonly called stomachs.

In general an average S. T. C. girl spends per day approximately three hours studying; three, talking; two, eating; and fifty minutes just mirror-gazing.

By SHIRLEY PIERCE

Freshman and sophomores will soon face the challenging day of hockey games. Will this special occasion find the mighty sophs in full trim or will the dashing frosh push forth victorious against their opponents? This big question is one which can easily be prepared for by both classes.

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at 4 o'clock have been scheduled as practice days for all classes to work-out on the hockey field. Sara Hardy, manager of varsity hockey, assisted by Helen Wilson, general hockey manager is in charge of the practices.

General instructions are given all girls who desire it and practice on the field on a real game. Your class needs your support in this fall sport which is offered to you at this time.

Information concerning varsity hockey games has not been released yet, but it is hoped that we might have several games during the season.

Badminton, under the supervision of Eleanor Wade, will begin in the next few days. Courts are to be located behind the library building and equipment will be furnished by the Athletic Association.

Watch the A. A. bulletin board for notices concerning this activity.

AA Plans Fun Night For STC Week-ends

Play night will have its premiere this coming Saturday night, October 10, sponsored by the Athletic Association. A night of full enjoyment will be opened to all who wish to relax and have a good time. Due to the war condition many girls will not leave for the week end, therefore, the A. A. is arranging to have various activities open for the student body to participate in.

Swimming and ping-pong head the list of sports for this Saturday. Each activity will be under the supervision of a member of the athletic council who will supply materials to be used.

The pool will open at eight o'clock and will close at nine thirty. Life guards on duty for this time are: Shirley Turner Shirley Pierce, and Dottie Sue Simmons. Music will be furnished by the H2O Club. Girls must wear their regulation swim suits at all times in the pool.

In the locker room a section has been set aside for indoor sports. Here are located the ping-pong tables. Equipment for the games will be handled by Elizabeth Walls and Jean Carr. Games can start at 7:30 P. M.

Bridge parties are a specialty on many of the halls, but on Saturday at 7:30 P. M. a big time will be had in the Student building lounge where tables will be available for quite a number of games. Bring enough for your table, a deck of cards, and enjoy this first Play Night of the season.

Pierce To Direct Water Carnival

Event Takes Place In Winter

Shirley Pierce, junior, has been named chairman of the 1943 Water Carnival which will take place the first part of winter quarter. A committee composed of members of the H2O Club is working on a theme for the affair and this will be announced at a later date.

Last year's water carnival was set on a tropical island where a United States ship had been marooned. On the island the crew was nobly entertained by the natives with feasts, music, water formations, and much gaity. The whole affair contained a patriotic note.

"Dusty Boots" Plan Fall Riding Classes

Pegasus riding club under the supervision of Miss Stella Fox, riding instructor of S. T. C. has begun its fall schedule of riding classes. Girls may still enter the classes by seeing Miss Fox some time this week.

Members of the Dusty Boots, Catherine Gosney, Gloria Pollard, Bobbie Scott, Pat McCormick, Nell Scott, Joyce Cheatwood, and Elizabeth Goodwin, are participating in the jumping classes. Girls may become members of this group by advancement of ability as recognized by the instructor.

New horses are expected to arrive soon, but until they come the faithful friends of last year will be used.

Haymes Chosen Stunt Chairman

Seniors elected Fidele Haymes chairman of the senior class circus stunt for this year at a meeting of the class last night.

The senior dance chairman elected at the same time was Margaret Kitchin, and Stella Scott, Lucy Davis, Virginia Campfield, Nell Pritchett, Ann Trotter, Dearing Flauntleroy, Carolyn Rouse, and Ann Moore were named senior chaperones.

Senior installation date was set next Wednesday, October 14, and will take place immediately after dinner in place of prayers.

Varsity swimming will begin next week and all who wish to try-out may do so by reporting to the pool when the scheduled time is announced. Mildred Droste, manager, plans to have practices at night.

The swimming pool is opened each afternoon for recreational swimming at 4 o'clock and on Saturday nights at 8 P. M. to 9:30 P. M.

YWCA To Install Freshmen Tonight

Tonight immediately after supper the freshmen will be officially installed as active members of the Y. W. C. A. All freshmen will assemble in the auditorium, wearing white. Dorothy Childress will read a portion of the scripture, after which Pat Maddox will sing "The Lord's Prayer". Amy Read will give a brief explanation of "Carrying the Torch". She will then light the candles of the cabinet, who will in turn light the candles of the freshmen until all the candles are aglow.

Singing "Follow the Gleam", everyone will march out to Joan Court where the friendship circle will be formed. Eleanor Folk will read an explanation of what becoming an active member of the "Y" involves, and the service will be closed with the Y. W. C. A. motto.

Reporter Gives Complete Blackout Instructions for All

With the whole world in a hazy stage, there are some radicals who persist in having perpetual dimouts and total blackouts to make life miserable for college girls. Why, there was one just this week, so perhaps this is a good time for a lesson in the worthy study of the womanly art of self-defense for use in future similar circumstances.

To begin with, when the whistle blows the first time, pay no attention to it. It's probably just a fire somewhere and fires are a small matter in blackouts. It is blows again, however, you can probably find some cotton somewhere, and there's a limit to endurance. Stuff your ears and ignore the noise. And keep on writing that letter that has to be finished before you can study your history assignment.

Then there'll probably be that small matter of lights. Somebody might even tell you to cut yours off. Why, that's preposterous! You were told that in college, lessons come above and before everything else. But if you want to take the time, you might stop long enough to pull down the shades.

But, look, in case this false alarm turns out to be the real thing, maybe if you live on the third floor, you had better not stay. And if you are so unfortunate as to live up there, the point is to be as fast as you can in getting downstairs, of course. Should someone get in your way, grab a hocky stick or a broom and swing. If the stairs collapse from the excess weight, make a leap for the closest person. It will break your fall and her back and it will save the expense of two hospital bills.

If by this time the executives have the lights off, the first thing for you to do is to find the switch and put 'em back on. Make all the noise you can so people will know where you are.

And if outsiders take refuge in our Rotunda, look out for the Hampden-Sydney boys!

In spite of the gas ration and war conditions S. T. C. girls journeyed to various places last week-end.

V. P. I. beckoned many girls from S. T. C. to homecoming which included the dances and a football game. Those enjoying the week-end in Blacksburg were Faye Nimmo, Nancy Hutter, Nancy Langhorn, Betty Younberg, Marilyn Bell, Mary Anne Biggs, Grace Hutcheson, Fannie Will Hall, Betty Sexton, Kendall Nottingham, and Peggy Becker.

Many girls want home—either to finish the fall shopping or just to be home with the families. Nancye Allen traveled only a short distance to Hebron; Jane Bargamin spent the week-end in Lynchburg. Journeying in the same direction were Imogene Claytor to Bedford and Brookie Benton to Locust Dale where she was bridesmaid in her sister's wedding. Among those attending the Wesley Foundation Retreat in Charlottesville were Louise Bell, Roberta Davis, Mary Elizabeth Grizzard, and Catherine May. Ruthie Dugger's homeward trek took her to Newport News.

Going in the opposite direction were Betty Bridgeforth, Lillian Barnes, and Minnie Rose Hawthorne to Kenbridge. Richmond also claimed quite a few girls: Mary Katherine Ingham, Natalie Carroll, Mary Crank, Helen DeLong, Theresa Fletcher, Jane MacChreitz, Jane Paulette, Anne and Jeanne Timberlake, Mildred Droste, Ella Banks Weathers, Myrtle Lee Holt, Nancy Duval.

Far up Washington way Anne Covington attended a football game in Annapolis.

ACP Conclave Meets Early in Chicago

The Associated Collegiate Press convention will be held in Chicago Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, November 5, 6, and 7 at the Knickerbocker Hotel. This is earlier than usual for the meets have been called late in November heretofore.

The conclave is an annual event and is attended by publication representatives from all parts of the country. For the past several years the Virginian and Rotunda on the college campus have sent three representatives each. Last year Mr. T. A. McCorkle, annual advisor, also attended the meet which was held in St. Louis. At present the Colonnade staff is considering sending a delegate to this year's convention and the Rotunda and Virginian also plan to send student representatives as usual.

State OPA Director Attended Meet Here on October 2

Brigadier General Fulmer Bright, Virginia director of the Office of Price Administration, and other prominent men took part in the discussion of the work of the OPA on October 2. The meeting was open to the public and was held in theSttae Teachers College auditorium.

The morning session of the day's meeting began at 11 o'clock with an address of welcome by Mr. W. C. Fitzpatrick, Mayor of Farmville. The main speaker of the morning was Brigadier General Bright whose topic will be "The OPA and the War Effort". Dr. Raymond B. Pinchbeck, Mr. T. Nelson Parker, state attorney, and Dr. C. Hart Schaaf, state rationing executive, also spoke on subjects vital to the efforts of OPA.

Following a luncheon, the afternoon session convened at 2:30 o'clock and included panel discussions led by Dr. Pinchbeck and others.

Virginian Photos Taken This Week

Virginian photographs are being taken throughout this week. Susie Moore, editor, has requested that those who have appointments with the photographers should meet them on time and particularly if the photograph is to be a group pose.

Each student is asked to watch the schedule on the Home Office mantle for the times of the group pictures. Sport clothes minus plaids and stripes are requested for all pictures with the exception of those indicated otherwise.

Farmville Concern Plans Bus To H.-S.

A bus line for transportation between Hampden-Sydney and Farmville will be organized to operate in the near future.

Mr. A. E. Cralle, of Farmville, owner of the service, is now awaiting the permission of the State Corporation Commission and hopes to begin the bus line October 16.

In addition to the previously announced schedules, Mr. Cralle is planning to make additional trips in the early and late afternoon and after supper for the convenience of passengers when necessary.

The buses wil leave from the Greyhound Bus Station in Farmville and from the College Shop at Hampden-Sydney.

Hannah Lee Crawford is treasurer of the Student Council and has served as class representative for two years. She is chairman of the world affairs committee of the Y. W. C. A., is vice-president of the Dramatic Club, and was town girl's representative on the Y. W. C. A. council for two years. She was a member of the Rotunda business staff her sophomore year and has been a member of the varsity hockey squad for two years. She is a member of Alpha Phi Sigma, Beore Eh Thorn, and Gamma Theta sorority.

Ella Banks Weathers is managing editor of the Rotunda, having served as reporter and news editor for one and two years respectively. She is a student government representative and freshman counselor of the Y. W. C. A. She served on both the freshman and sophomore commissions, and was a member of the Virginian staff for two years. She is a member of Beore Eh Thorn, the Cotillion Club, and Gamma Theta sorority.

Convention Canceled

Due to transportation difficulties, the regional convention of Alpha Kappa Gamma circles, which was to have met on this campus October 16-18, has been called off, Jane Sanford recently announced. Plans will be made by Joan Circle for a program to be given later in the year which will carry out the theme planned for the convention program.

Wheeler Names Jones, Cornwell Fall Play Leads

Production Slated For November 13

Miss Leola Wheeler, director of the Dramatic Club, has announced the cast of James Thurber and Elliot Nugent's "The Male Animal" to be presented by the S. T. C. Dramatic Club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs, in the S. T. C. auditorium on Friday night, November 13, at 8 o'clock.

Dodie Jones, sophomore from Radford will have the feminine lead as Ellen Turner, wife of the English professor at Midwestern University. This is Dodie's first role in plays at S. T. C.

The male lead, Tommy Turner, the English professor, will be enacted by Richard Cornwell, senior at Hampden-Sydney from Fredericksburg. Rick is a transfer from William and Mary and last year had minor parts in "The Little Minister" and "Death Takes a Holiday".

Betty Ellis, freshman from Miami, Fla., plays Ellen's sister. Among her suitors are Wally Myers, one of Midwestern's current football stars, enacted by Al Phillips, freshman from Fredericksburg and Michael Barnes, editor of the literary magazine, played by Tedo Savage. Tedo, a senior at H.-S., from Fredericksburg, has had featured parts in plays here for the past three years, and had the leading role in "The Little Minister" last year.

Jack Adams, of Richmond; Ralph Hagood, of Danville; Langley Wood, of Lynchburg; and Virginia Mae Ellett, of Crewe, are also cast in the play and representing local talent in the play will be Dixie Roundy, Dave Crute, and Frances Ferguson, all of Farmville.

14 Students Vie For Feature Section

Fourteen girls were voted on Monday for the feature section of the 1943 Virginian.

The girls upon whom the students voted were Betty Boutchard, Dorothy Childress, Anne Ellett, Eleanor Folk, Fiddie Haymes, Hallie Hillsman, Margaret Mish, Susie Moore, Agnes Paterson, Ella Marsh Pilkinton, Amy Read, Betty Read, Jane Sanford, and Winifred Wright.

Five S. T. C. students and members of the faculty and home department composed the committee to select the nominees. The eight girls receiving the highest number of votes will not be revealed until the Virginian is issued in the spring.

Janitor Enlists In U. S. Army

He may be Lieutenant Clarence Henry Brown from now on, but to those of us associated with the school, he'll still be "Turner", head janitor at State Teachers College for the past nine years. For "Turner" has enlisted in the Volunteer Officers Corps of the United States Army, and upon induction will be sent to an officers' training school following an initial training period.

As janitor at the college "Turner" has been chief electrician, official bellringer, postman, and supervisor of trunk and baggage express to and from the college. His assistance to the Dramatic Club in handling back drops and stage properties has earned for him an honorary membership in the staging group of that organization.

Born in Farmville, "Turner" received his education in local schools and later attended the Virginia State College for Negroes and the West Virginia Union University. Prior to accepting a position at the school here, he taught for several years in a Virginia high school.

50 Students Initiate College USO Work At Informal Dance

Initiating the activities of the college USO committee, 50 S. T. C. students attended an informal dance on Saturday night at the Farmville armory. They were chaperoned by Mrs. Pearl B. Turnbull, Mrs. A. H. Tabb, and Mr. Charlie French.

Margaret Kitchin, recently appointed head of the USO committee upon the resignation of Dot Childress, has announced that at present plans are being formulated for other entertainments at the armory and for dances at Camp Pickett. Assisted by Miss Leola Wheeler, faculty advisor, she will supervise the division of the students on campus into four groups of 100 each. At various times girls will be selected from these groups to attend USO dances.

Students will be unable to attend dances for service men without permission from their parents. These permissions must be handed in to Margaret Kitchin at an early date.

Contributions of furniture, pictures, and magazines have been requested by the USO committee. These will be used in furnishing the new recreation center operated by the Town of Farmville. S. T. C. students are particularly urged to hand in magazines and books, fiction or otherwise, to Lily Bee Gray in 12g Cunningham Hall whenever possible.

Freddie Lee

Freddie Lee To Lead Vagabond Orchestra At Fall Cotillion

Lynchburg's Freddie Lee and his Vagabond Orchestra will play for the Fall Cotillion Dance on October 31, Dot Childress, president, announced this week. Lee has played at dances in many colleges throughout the state and was featured at last year's Fall Cotillion. Bea Cline is soloist with his band.

Frances Parham, business manager of the club, is chairman of the floor committee for the dance. It will be composed of one girl from each social sorority on campus and one non-sorority girl. The music committee is made up of Frances Parham, Sara Wade Owen, Sarah Massie Goode, and Shirley Pierce.

Betty Sexton is in charge of decorations with Sara Hardy, Winifred Wright, Imogen Claytor, and Barbara White assisting her. The theme for the decorations has not yet been announced.

Arrington Fills Position Vacated By Youngberg

Upon the resignation of Betty Youngberg, Jean Arrington was elected secretary of the Dramatic Club at a meeting last week. Other officers elected at the meeting are Pat Garth, scrap book chairman; Jane Waring Ruffin, publicity chairman; Pat Maddox, music chairman; and Carol Diggs, town girls' secretary.

These girls, as officers, are members of the Dramatic Club Executive Committee and members of Miss Leola Wheeler's class in play production.

At the meeting the club voted to give $10 to the Red Cross for the fund for chairs for convalescent soldiers at Camp Pickett.

Classes are now underway for the apprentices who signed up at a recent meeting. Instruction is being given in staging and lighting techniques, and in staging make-up properties and in acting. The various committee heads of the Dramatic Club, are in charge of directing these classes.

Cotillion Bids 50 Upperclassmen

Dot Childress, president, announces that 50 upperclassmen will be issued bids tonight to the Cotillion Club.

These girls will be initiated in the spring with other students who will be taken into the club later this year. They will assist in decorating for Fall Cotillion.

Girls who received bids are Jean Arrington, Mary Anne Biggs, Lois Baughman, Elizabeth Butzner, Jane Brown, Mary S. Clair Bugg, Joyce Cheatwood, Betsy Caldwell, Helen Delong, Carol Diggs, Kitty Davis, Sara Wayne France, Jean Garland, Bridget Gentile, Dottie Gilmer, Vivian Gwaltney, Jean Guy, Polly Gray, Nancy Harrell, Fiddie Haymes, Marie Hedgcock Hallie Hillsman, Inez Jones, Jane Johnson, Betty Kiger, Becky Lacy, Nancy Moss, Jane Moseley, Lucy Messick, Lucy Manson.

And also, Susie Moore, Pat Maddox, Pat McCormick, Marie Nichols, Kendal Nottingham, Betsy Owens, Kitty Patrick, Anne Payne, Irma Page, Martha Patterson, "Charlie" Price, Ann Randolph, Rosalie Rogers, Alice Seebert, Ada Claire Snyder, Ophelia Whittle, Mary Watkins, Martha Walsh, Eleanor Wade, and Frances Wentzel.

Sophomores Choose Blair Candidate

Ann Blair, Portsmouth, has been named sophomore candidate for circus queen to reign over the annual circus, sponsored by A. K. G. on November 7. Ann is a member of the Sophomore Commission, Chairman of Campus eLague, and a member of the College Choir.

The Courter twins, Nancy and Alice, from Amelia, have been elected nominees from the freshman class to contest for circus queen. Phyllis Watts has been named chairman for the freshman stunt, and Lucy Harvey will serve as booth chairman.

Jane Ford, from Martinsville, has been named to represent the junior class in the contest for circus queen. The senior class has not yet elected a candidate.

Foremost Students Selected Annually

Sixteen seniors will represent Farmville State Teachers College in the ninth edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities."

These students whose names are listed are Betty Boutchard, Newport News, president of the senior class; Dorothy Childress, Christiansburg, president of the Cotillion Club; Anne Ellett, Jennings Ordinary, business manager of the Colonnade and treasurer of the Y. W. C. A.; Eleanor Folk, Salem, vice-president of the Y. W. C. A., president of Alpha Kappa Gamma and managing editor of the Colonnade; Helen W. Hardy, Farmville, leader of the Cotillion Club and president of Pi Gamma Mu; Mary Fidele Haymes, Irvington, president of the College Choir; Hallie Hillsman, Farmville, president of the Athletic Association and a member of the College War Council; and Margaret Mish, Lexington, president of the House Council.

Virginian Editor

Also Susie Moore, Richmond, editor of the Virginian; Agnes Patterson, Winston-Salem, president of Student Government and head of the executive board of the College War Council; Charlotte Phillips, Meifa, three times treasurer of the present senior class; Ella Marsh Pilkington, Richmond, vice-president of Student Government; Amy Read, Hampton, president of the Y. W. C. A.; Jane Sanford, Farmville, president of Alpha Kappa Gamma, editor of the Rotunda, vice-president of Pi Gamma Mu, and a member of the College War Council; Elsie Stossel, Front Royal, president of the Dramatic Club; and Winifred Wright, Arlington, editor of the Colonnade.

These students were selected by a committee of the faculty and administration from a large list of eligible candidates on the basis of extra curricula activities, leadership, and scholarship.

Annually a compilation of biographies of outstanding students in America is published. Only juniors and seniors and students taking advanced work are selected. The primary purpose of this publication is to bring the outstanding students in America before the business world, and before others who annually recruit students.

P. C. M. Names Hardy President

Helen Wiley Hardy, senior from Farmville, was unanimously elected president of the Virginia Gamma Chapter of Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity, last night. She succeeds Jean Hatton who now holds a position in Richmond.

Upon the resignation of Miss Grace E. Moran, Dr. Francis Butler Simkins was named an advisor of the chapter. Virginia Sedgley, present treasurer, will take over the office of secretary vacated by Helen Hardy upon the motion that the two offices be combined for the year.

Ten seniors have been issued bids today to Pi Gamma Mu. They are Nancye Allen, Eleanor Boothe, Marie Davis, Anne Morton Fitzgerald, Sarah Massie Goode, Margaret Lovins, Dorothy Marrow, Martha Hammock, Charlotte Phillips, and Mary Frances Quillen.

It has been announced that Brookie Benton and Warwick Mitchell will lead the panel discussion at the next meeting. This will be

Freshman Armed Forces Blank Counter-Attack Staged by Soph's Superior Verbal Unit

"Skip, Rat!" "What's so funny, rat?" were familiar expressions during the past two days. Doubtless, you've surmised that the traditional Rat Week has taken place at S. T. C. for the class of '46.

The 'seditious, sciolistic' freshmen for the past 48 hours have been attired in garments which completely defy every fashion convention known to man. Mismatched skirts and sweaters, black stockings, partially concealed by two socks, one white, and one green, plus antiquish pocketbooks and worn gloves were part of the motley regalia. A more cosmopolitan note was added in the white and green bedecked pig tail coiffures straight form Joe's Fifth Alley. And a large placard strapped to the shoulder of each rat attested her compulsory love for the lordly sophs: the class of '45.

Six a. m. was Reveille for the freshmen non-com (petents) and Taps blew figuratively at six p. m. for same. The unwelcome appearance of rain compelled the rat force to be taken to the college gym on Tuesday and it is feared that our regular army would suffer from concentrated shock upon hearing about said calisthenics which varied from baseball maneuvers to modern dancing.

Cleaning of soph rooms, making curtains, hanging pictures, and similar domestic tasks filled the spare moment of the frosh. Heeding commands of the soph 'loolies' literally, such as eating a square meal, provided many a brain teaser for the unfortunate lowest classmen.

Two-hour passes were followed each night by the famed Rat Court sessions. Court-marshalling constantly drained the more talented rats. Even though these were very serious occasions, laughter could not be suppressed by the austere soph officials without effort.

Letter writing was not neglected either. And freshmen journalists struggled many an hour composing letters of the sentimental type and those of the more humorous category to be sent to unknowing victims hither and yon. The letter which the sophs prize most highly, however, is the one which cleverly describes thickened soups. It evolved from a misinterpretation of the order, "Write a mushy letter". This specimen of freshman ingenuity is now on display in the Sophombore Museum of Freshman Antiques.

All in all, the untouchable pests of the college took the commando orders in their stride, while the queenly sophs basked in royal triumphs for two whole days.

"To Be or Not To Be"

"In a world whose heart beats to the rhythm of marching feet and whose pulse vibrates with the throb of bombers' motors, there is no quality so prized as youth." And today in order to keep in step with those marching feet, youth must harness its unbounding energy and utilize it in building physically fit bodies. A physically fit man or woman is the answer to our country's prayer.

American colleges and universities are beginning to realize this along with the elementary and high schools. As a result innumerable programs have been initiated to emphasize the necessity for physical education and fortitude.

Likewise, State Teachers College has innovated a sports activities program designed to promote physical activities on a campus-wide scale. Various media for student exercise were set up last year and the plan at first was totally patronized. This year interest has dwindled to a startling low, and to re-create it, the physical fitness committee of the College War Council, is evaluating a plan to establish compulsory sports participation by all students for at least an hour a day. Such a plan should be adopted. To some it may seem unnecessary, but the benefits it would obviously reap cannot be ignored.

Canada went all-out for physical training in 1934 with her Pro-Rec plan, and for many years Hitler has conducted a plan of compulsory physical training among the German nation. Subsequently, their armies are among the most physically fortified today.

America must profit by their example.

Our college with every student behind her should concentrate on developing an actual state of physical fitness among the students. If it can't be accomplished otherwise, then it should be made compulsory.

'Three R's Plus P' . . .

To the time-honored "three-R's" being taught in the public schools of Virginia the 140 teachers of Lee County have added a capital P—and it stands for patriotism.

Without fanfare or pressure from the higher-ups the teachers met at the Pennington Gap High School and agreed en masse to put 10 per cent of their pay toward the purchase of War Bonds and Stamps. The action, in itself, is not extraordinary unless viewed in the light of the small salaries received by public school teachers in rural Virginia.

The financial lot of the rural Virginia teacher is anything but a happy one, as attested by the fact that it won't be until the 1942-'44 term that the average minimum state pay of $720 guaranteed by the General Assembly becomes effective. Yet these teachers, for whom the cost of food, shelter, and clothing has soared also, saw fit to authorize their division superintendent to deduct 10 per cent of their meager salaries for war financing.

Consider, too, that the school teachers—particularly away from the big population centers—must adhere to certain rigid standards of dress, conduct, and home and public appearance; and also that his or her income virtually has been unaffected by the war boom.

So if you are one whose fixed income seem to be fighting a losing battle with the cost of living, and you are prone to let this stand as a barrier between you and the purchase of more War Bonds and Stamps, we can only advise:

Look to the teachers of Lee and learn your lesson from them.

Remembrances for the Japanese

(By S. J. PERELMAN)

Goodness knows I abhor such confidences, but when I was finishing my formal education about 1925, a phase later seized up and distorted by F. Scot Fitzgerald and Compton Mackenzie into a series of shilling shockers, my apparel was enough to congeal the blood. My entry into the classroom was heralded by a dismal noisome stench of weet tweed reminiscent of the Fall of the House of Usher, mingled with the quack of corduroy and heavily-welted shoes. A moment later I would clank in botted and spurred for the pursuit of knowledge with the general sound effect of two skeletons waltzing in a tin roof. From the crown of my tan cap to the scuffed toecaps of my bluchers, I carried more mass metal by volume than a Spanish conquistador. The gross weight of the hobnails, heel plates, and brass eyelets of my shoes, the numerals on my class pipe, the various watch-fobs, charms, amulets, revolving pencils, and key-chains I affected bowed my shoulders for life. Had there ben anything like scrap salvage at the time, I could easily have outfitted a corvette.

Give It Your Best

Why should I have to salute the flag? Why should I be compelled to lower my flag at sunset?

You do not have to salute the flag. You do not have to love the flag. You do not have to love the country. But if you do not, for God's sake go where you belong (that place is to be bombed soon).

The man in service is under compulsion as to salutes and other marks of respect for the flag. No law governs the civilian's attitude toward his flag; let us hope there will be no such law. Respect for the flag goes deeper than law, it is the reflex of your patriotism, your national conscience. You do not trail the flag on the floor for the same reason that you do not throw your mother's picture on the floor. A piece of bunting? A tinted piece of cardboard? Yes, but they signify all that life holds dear, all the best we are and that we hope to be.

Our hearts call for some visible symbol of loyalty; "national welfare" is too abstract to bring the choke in our throats and the catch in our breath that personified patriotism means to the English boy who sees his king. But to the American that flag that has flown in all our battles in America and that now flies in every land where freedom lives, that flag makes the supreme passionate appeal to our noble nature.

Learn its ritual, know its significance, snap into attention when it is flung out, have done with lackadaisical motions, stand straight and put a strong hand and a full heart into your salute, and remember that your salute and your respect tell to all the world what you are.

Could not we have the national anthem and the flag ritual as part of our assembly program at least once a week!

Question of the Week

Do you think that there should be a compulsory sports program to promote physical fitness among all students at S. T .C.?

Miss Olive T. Iler: "I definitely think we should have it. It's the thing to do in the present emergency."

Lucille Cheatham: "Yes, I think it would be a good idea in connection with the national fitness program. But the juniors and seniors have more work to do than the freshmen and sophomores and shouldn't participate in it as frequently."

Ruth M. Dugger: "There is so much time wasted here on campus and if the students participated in such activities we would have better sports teams and better looking and better acting girls. We could study better, too!"

Mary Moore McCorkle: "I don't think it should be compulsory. There should be more interest taken by students but that's the problem."

Eleanor Feagans: "It seems that a girl shouldn't need to be forced to keep herself physically fit."

Betty Burns: "It doesn't seem necessary to me; we ought to get exercise walking up and down steps."

Pat Maddox: "Yes. In time of war everybody should be physically fit. Exercise helps more than anything.' '

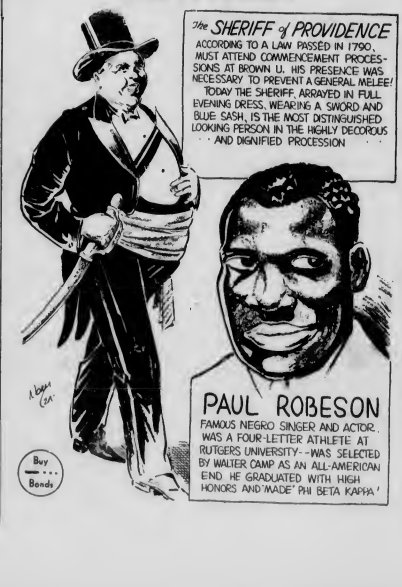
Mildred Ames: "Yes, I think it's a good idea because that's the only way we can keep physically fit."

Betty Watts: "No, I think all students should take some kind of exercise but I don't think it should be compulsory that we do so."

Mary Anne Jarratt: "Yes. During a war physical education is one way of maintaining good health."

Shirley Kersey: "We should be allowed to take exercise if we want to; if not, then we shouldn't be made to do so."

Alyce Fulton: "Yes. We should be as physically fit as possible today."



Mildred Droste: "I think everybody should have some form of physical education."

Dorothy Marrow: "Yes, if there could be individual choice. I think students should get more exercise than they do."

Ada Claire Sydnor: "I think a girl should realize the seriousness of the situation and plan her own physical education program. Doing it voluntarily will be better than having it compulsory."

Susie Moore: "It's a good idea."

CAMPUS CAMERA

LETTERS— To the Editor

Dear Editor:

In this college, it is assumed from the very first day the freshman enters here that she is an adult person—able to think for herself and to govern herself and fellow students. Thus we have the Student Government Association and House Council. We elect representatives to serve in these organizations to make our rules, to interpret them, and to enforce them in a just manner.

Certain rules have been made by the House Council that are applicable to both freshmen and sophomores—which is in itself a degrading policy. It would seem that a sophomore should have some recognition over freshmen in less stringent House Council rules. However, these present rules have been long in practice—they are traditional so we won't criticize these things too strongly. But, these present rules should be enforced strictly and fairly if a new set can not be made.

This year various actions in the enforcement of rules have been made that seem to some wholly unfair and out of keeping with the spirit and purpose of the House Council. If the same rules are to be applied to both freshmen and sophomores, the same sort of consistency used in freshman enforcement should be used in every case. Each hall student should not be punished for a minor infraction unless all other infractionists are punished, too.

After all, it is a terrible thing to be plumped down on campus for a solid week for breaking a rule that is definitely not enforced at all times. For example: the rules that reads, "Call-downs will be given for washing after 10:30" should be enforced at all times and in every case, or not at all. Then, too, members of the House Council should keep in mind that an unfair punishment can do no good as to chastisement and can certainly do great damage as far as cooperation in rule enforcement goes.

In case that a girl thinks a call-down has been given unfairly, any member of the House Council should be ready to listen to her complaints with an unprejudiced and open mind.

The writer has no personal enmity towards any member of the House Council but only wishes to see fairness, justice, and democracy continued to be administered here at Farmville.

Sincerely,

Jafon

Dear Editor:

All of us are trying to think of ways to help our nation now in its crisis. We look for great things to do and fail to see that the little things that are as easy to do may be just as important to a country at war. Today all schools and communities are concerned with keeping students and citizens "physically fit". Are we doing our part along this line?

Our school is equipped better than most—we have facilities here for almost any type of recreation. Are we taking advantage of this equipment.

Even high schools are having one hour daily of compulsory participation in full time sports programs. Is it too much to ask that college students give the same amount of time?

This week a chart is being posted on the A. A. bulletin board giving the time of each sports activity offered on this campus and the name of the girl in charge. I would like to appeal to each student to go out for one of these sports each day.

Sincerely,

(Signed) Hallie Hillsman

Max Rote Will Begin Red Cross First Aid Classes October 19

Advanced Students May Enroll

Max Rote, American Red Cross field representative, will offer the Red Cross First Aid Instructors course here at Farmville, beginning on Monday, October 19. Classes will begin each evening at the Trial Justice room of the Farmville court house at 7 o'clock.

Required for this instruction is a previous certificate in Red Cross standard and advanced First aid. Those now holding instructor's certificates may enroll in this course as a review.

Mr. Rote will conduct classes through October 21, at which time the course will be completed.

Hockey Managers

Sara Hardy and Helen Wilson, hockey managers.

Langhorne Elected Commercial Sec'y

Nancy Langhorne, junior from Ervington, was elected secretary of the Commercial Club at a meeting last week. She will replace Catherine Dunton who did not return to college this year.

A proposed plan for a second-hand book store in the Commercial Department was put before the club. Mr. Richard Halliay, new department head, will present the plan in concrete form at the next meeting.

Monogram Club Continues Hikes

Approximately fifty students turned out for the Monogram Club hike to Longwood last Saturday afternoon.

Anne Price and Roselie Rogers will be in charge of the hiking this coming week-end.

All who wish to join the group must sign up on the bulletin board no later than Friday.

Freshman Named Tennis Assistant

Phyllis Watts, freshman from Lynchburg has been named assistant tennis manager on the A. A. council. She will work with Frances Parham, manager.

The tennis courts are marked and ready for playing. As yet no schedule has been made concerning fall matches, but various class games will be played at an early date.

Library Director Addresses Students

Charles W. Dickinson, director of school libraries and textbooks of the State Board of Education, visited Farmville on Friday, October 9, to address the group of students enrolled in courses in library science. Mr. Dickinson met the group in the librarian's office and reported on the advance made in state aid to school libraries in the past twenty years.

Mr. Dickinson stated that the $12,000 spent for books in 1923 has been increased to nearly $300,000 now expanded annually for books placed in elementary and high school libraries. Of this amount $150,000 is appropriated by the State to match a similiar amount raised in each locality and county.

Mr. Dickinson also pointed out to the group the many opportunities now open in the school library field to teachers having the requisite training in library science. "There is no hope or chance of getting rich as a school librarian but the job does offer a life full of stimulating experience for both the teacher-librarian and the full-time librarian", concluded Mr. Dickinson.

Mr. Martin L. Hogan director of the bureau of teaching materials of the State Board of Education, accompanied Mr. Dickinson to Farmville.

Higgins Chosen Officer of Pegasus

Martha Higgins, sophomore, was recently elected secretary of Pegasus, riding club. She will succeed Rebecca Spicer who did not return to college this fall.

Riding schedules have been posted outside the riding club room located in the "Rec." Any changes in schedules must be reported to Miss Stella Fox, instructor.

Plans are now being made to entertain all club members at a social later in October.

Joyce Cheatwood, president of Pegasus, has announced that three colts have been added to the riding stables for use.

At the meeting of Gamma Psi art fraternity on October 8, Mary Moore McCorkle was elected treasurer and Jean Arrington was named poster chairman.

Gridiron Gourmets To Become Extinct

The football training table is also being affected by the government's Share the Meat campaign to insure the fair distribution of supplies available.

The thick steaks and juicy roasts that were set before ravenous football players at larger schools in normal times to fortify them for the battles of the gridiron may shrink in size so enough food will be available for the winning of grimmer struggles on foreign fields.

The Office of Price Administration has reduced jackers' deliveries of meat to retail outlets by about 20 percent and has asked civilians to hold their consumption at 2½ pounds per person per week, an average peacetime quota, whether he lugs a typewriter or plays a flashy left end for Podunk U.

There will be plenty of other foods, however, and there are no restrictions on liver, kidney and other delicacy meats, nor on casing meats, such as sausage.

The athletic director of one nationally-known school estimates that the members of his football squad but away at least twice the amount of food as the average civilian under the spell of the training table. Such things are gone with the wind.

Initial Fun Night Rated Successful

On Saturday night Play Night made a successful beginning when the A. A. came to the rescue of those girls who stayed in school over the week end. The project will continue as a part of the athletic program during the entire year.

Three sports will be opened for recreation this coming week end. Each sport will start at 8 o'clock p. m. and will last for an indefinite time. Members of the A. A. Council will be represented in each of the sports in order to set up equipment and help in any way.

In the locker room Dottie Sue Simmons will be on hand with plenty of material to keep three tables of ping-pong in session and in the Student Building lounge tables will be set up for all those who wish to play bridge. Patsy Connelly will be in charge of this.

Life guards will be on duty again this week at the pool for recreational swimming and a student will check out suits to swimmers. The pool will be heated and music will be furnished for swimmers.

What Other Colleges Are Doing for U. S.

Fourteen Tennessee colleges have united in a civilian defense training program and are turning out 4,500 instructors who are now passing it on to 225,000 volunteers.

Brooklyn College has made first aid a required freshman course and certified more than 2,000 students in the subject the first year.

Michigan State College's Department of Speech has helped to enlist 1,600 speakers who average 6,000 speeches a month on various phases of the war effort.

Stephens College girls have organized "flying squadrons" to stage discussion programs on war aims at rural schools and churches.

Sports Editor Reviews Festive Football Week-end

Many of Virginia's favorite football teams thrilled the hearts of their gridiron fans this past Saturday when they sped to victory and top honors.

The VMI Cadets hauled a 38 to 18 victory over the University of Virginia Cavaliers before a packed stadium of homecoming spectators. Captain Joe Muha of the Cadets was very much in the game, playing a one-man line defense. He scored two touchdowns, scored two points on place kicks, and passed for two more touchdowns later in the game. The Cavaliers were put in scoring positions three times because of VMI fumbles, but were unable to overcome their opponents.

Virginia Tech's strong rambling Gobblers defeated Davidson's Wild cats 16-0 when the two Southern Conference teams met for their eleventh match on Saturday. Tech scored in every period although the pigskin was actually carried over the goal line one time. A field goal in the first period, a safety in the second and third, and a safety before the final whistle blasted, brought the Techmen to a glorious finis. The Wildcats tried several times to tame the strong Tech backfield and several times threatened field goals, but the fighting Gobblers held their line fiercely.

William and Mary's powerful forces battled in a 7-7 deadlock with Harvard's Crimson team last Saturday. The Indians of William and Mary led in the first few minutes of the game. Recognized as the better team in almost every respect, William and Mary gambled with a lost when she enabled her opponents to cover a fumble in the payroll territory and score.

Down Richmond way Coach Taylor Sanford, of Randolph Macon, supervised the first victory for his Yellow Jackets over the University of Richmond's Spiders since 1931. A 6-0 score is evidence enough that the Yellow Jackets can sting!

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Hitler found out that his high powered mechanized and motorized army bogged down in the snow and mud of the Russian Winter. Although our Army is largely mechanized the cavalry horse is still a highly essential factor in this mounted division and in the Field Artillery. The Army also maintains remount farms where many cavalry horses are bred and raised.

These select horses cost from $100 to $165 and our crack cavalrymen are expert riders and carry on the traditions which have followed the cavalry from the earliest days of the Army. Purchase of War Savings Bonds will insure good mounts for the Cavalry. You and your neighbors buying War Bonds and Stamps regularly every pay day can help buy these horses for the U. S. Cavalry. Invest at least 10 percent of your income in War Bonds.

Just Looking, Thanks

The week-end at S. T. C. took on a very military outlook last week when soldiers from Camp Pickett and most of the Navy came to visit.

The USO on this campus held the first dance of this quarter in the Farmville armory Saturday night, October 10. Since it has not been completely organized yet, only fifty volunteers attended the dance. And from all "yours truly" can glean, everyone had a beautiful time and was very willing to carry on their USO work Sunday.

Glad to see some of the old girls back again for the week-end. Vacationing in senior building were Hattie Cantrell, Mary Lou Shannon, May Winn, and in junior building Rachel Ammen and Dreama Wade.

Most of the week-end majors remained here but some ventured forth to Charlottesville to see V. M. I. beat Virginia 38-18, and attended the Aple Harvest Ball: Betty Bridgeforth, Nancy Hutter, Anne Covington, Sarah Massie Goode, Barbara White and Sara Wayne France. Pamela Starling and Nellie Melba Scott went to Tech and Margaret Kitchin to N. C. State.

The lure of home on week-ends seems to be getting stronger now that we have been here all of three week-ends. Those who heeded the call were Gene Seymour, Florence Smith, Lorene Thomas, Jane Paulette, Lucy Manson, Ann Page Francis, Elizabeth Goodwin, Betty Boutchard, Martha Watson, Harriette Dowdy, Helen Martin, Nancy Dickerson, Kitty Davis, Anna Lee Blanton, Dodie Jones, Nancy Quinn, Betty Bradley, Madeline Sprinkle, Mary Ella Smith, Ruth Fleming, Betty Mae Martin, Betty Albright, Gwen Sampson, Elizabeth Heath, Barbara Ann Darnell, Mary Ann Dove, Eleanor Folk, Eleanor Wade and Winifred Wright. Jane Sanford spent the week-end in Pulaski and Blacksburg.

The Town Girl's Club entertained the freshmen day students with a picnic supper at Longwood on Friday, October 9. Among those present were Miss Grace Moran, faculty advisor and two honorary members, Amy Read and Hannah Lee Crawford.

Perfect Femme Sees Hears All, But Says Absolutely Nothing

(Ed. Note: The following transcribed treatise comes to you through the courtesy of a king-size Hampden-Sydney Tiger reporter.)

If you will blow the dust off your history text, and open its creaking pages to the life and exploits of Joan of Arc, you will see a picture of a very beautiful maiden in shining armor standing with the banner of France clutched tightly in her hand. This same book says that she typifies feminine honor, courage, and leadership over men.

Again, if you will merely put your head in the Rotunda at S. T. C. you will perceive another likeness of her, a statue, standing in the middle of the floor.

Joan probably beheld plenty of strange happenings in her day—and her day is not yet done. Witness the strange reactions of H.-S. freshmen to their first glimpse of the Rotunda in full swing.

Atlas Maidenswoon, freshman, swings open the door, strides in among the swirling maze of skirts, and immediately goes about the business of appearing nonchalantly unaware of the swooning femininity about him. When the dusky guardian shoots him the slip, he writes a name on it and says, loud enough for all to hear, "She's a Senior, y'know!"

Freshman Milqueteast shyly opens the heavy doors, peeks in, and hastily retires to summon additional courage. This accomplished, he slowly lets himself in, and makes a bee-line for the maid. When she confronts him with that accursed pad of paper slips, he goes all to pieces, and screams, "I only wanted to see my sister!" (this will be appreciated only by those who have done a twist or so in prep school).

Then, there is the Gang. This institution is composed of about five or six young Death Valley stalwarts, who fortified by their number, stroll boisterously in, and proceed to give every female in the place that which is usually referred to as the "Eye". These are also the gentlemen who persist in gazing skyward to the second and third floors of the Rotunda, in a none-too-futile effort.

Tragedy is added to the scene by Joe Tryagain who sends up a call for a young lady, waits forty-five minutes with no visible result, and sends up for a new and entirely different one.

Now, the reason he spends his entire life in waiting is this: every time an S. T. C. girl gets a call, she goes to the second floor balcony and peers apprehensively over the railing. (Incidentally, this practice is very gratifying indeed to the Gang and should be abolished). When she sees that it is only Joe Tryagain, her ego is mortally deflated, so she flounces back to her room. This can mean the complete wreckage of a young man's love-life.

Joan has seen a lot of Hampden-Sydney freshmen go in and out the wide doors of the Rotunda. Some go in high in expectations and come out with a crushed spirit and a burning face. While others enter full of honorable intentions and emerge daubling at their faces, volubly claiming that they were victims of circumstance.

Thus, the Lady from Arc still has the box seat for the best panorama around these parts. She sees all, hears all, and tells nothing—the ideal woman.

Victorious Vogues

Durable But Delectable Duds For Double-Duty Days, Say Models

For fashions this week we have illustrations by our own models who were nice enough to dress all up at a peculiar time of the day to be photographed.

Virginia Mae Ellett and Jeanette Garrison show us the "jeune fille" and the "femme fatale" respectively. These illustrate two of the modern schools of thought where evening dress is concerned. The first is the frilly yet demure type dress with ruffles from wrist to floor, which one wears when a Scarlet O-Hara or typical southern belle impression is desired. This one is of crisp white organdy with tiny red polka dots, bound in red. If on the other hand, one wishes to look "woman-of-the-worldish", here is a graceful black (the eternal) chiffon with a sleek over-jacket of crepe trimmed in chalk-white sequins. Black is always good and it is very becoming to most people. Some evening clothes of this "femme fatale" type are more extreme, some being severely tailored, some sharply oriental in line and design.

Barbara White and Ann Covington illustrate for us favorites for Sunday bests. Barbara models a soft wool with a smart tailored touch. As acceptable as a suit, a tailored dress can go anywhere. "Cov" wears a black dress for daytime trimmed in white sequins, which dress up any outfit. It has the new narrow skirt with very slight gathers in front.

No matter to which school of thought you belong, you know that clothes depend on the individual. They have always been a woman's chief interest since doll clothes days. But remember today we are dressing for the duration and not just this season.

Other Colleges

Northern Illinois State Teachers College has conducted 29 3-day institutes in nearby towns to train leaders of wartime forums.

Dramatic Students at Wayne University have cooperated in the development of plays on war themes for community audiences.

The War Production Board has gone on a work schedule of eight hours a day, six days a week for the duration.

Introducing... The "Y"

Everyone is enthusiastic just now over the freshman "Y" club that is to find its beginning tomorrow night. At nine o'clock all the freshmen who are interested in the Y. W. C. A. will assemble in the Student Lounge to organize their own "Y" club. This club will be their part in the Y. W. After Christmas the freshmen will join the committees of their choice and pull up their blankets until another group of freshman comes next year. Interesting programs such as fashion shows and timely discussions are being planned for each month.

Since one of the aims of the Y is to promote a spirit of cooperation toward the churches in town, let's look into the various groups to see what is going on. Over at the Baptist Student Center at the Cactus Inn, Miss Sarah Poole, the student secretary, is keeping that "homey" atmosphere, and even has a kitchen for the girls. She encourages visitors, too.

The Wesley Foundation officers came back from a retreat at Charlottesville October 3, with new ideas for this year.

Just one block down the street at the Presbyterian Church there is to be a reception at 8 o'clock on Thursday night for all Presbyterian girls.

With a new minister in the Episcopal Rectory and plans galore taking their place in his mind, let's look for action from that front. Already they are having Young People's meetings at the Rectory on Sunday night and there is to be an early morning Corporate Communion just this next Sunday morning for all students interested.

To begin the new year with the usual enthusiasm and to really start with the highest ideals in mind, extensive plans for all committees are having a thorough going over and revision. All the plans laid out will be centered around the general theme for the year, Today's Call for Christian Action. Every program will have this broad topic as its basis.

Home Economics Club Organizes For Year

Reorganization of the Home Economics Club took place last week, it was announced by Virginia Firesheets, newly elected president. Other officers are Louise McCorkle, vice-president; Sue Harper, secretary, and Ada Clark Nuckols, treasurer.

The Home Economics Club has been inactive on campus for some time. Its purpose is a means of assisting the students teaching. All majors in home economics are eligible for membership.

It's not a pleasant picture to contemplate, but War calls for "blood and sweat and tears." And the Army Medical Corps, with its efficient nurses and its volunteer Red Cross "Angels of Mercy," needs thousands of surgical beds for field and base hospitals on every front.

These beds cost approximately $22 each. They are the latest thing in modern hospital beds, with elevating springs. In some instances surgical cots are used in temporary field hospitals and there is a folding bed which may be used in ambulances. Your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps can buy many of these beds for the Army. You'll sleep better if you know our boys have every hospital comfort. Buy War Bonds every pay day. Invest ten percent of your income.

Dr. Tertius Noble Requests S. T. C. Choir To Come to New York for Second Concert

Freshman Frances Lee Captures Number 1 Office In Class of '46

Brothers, Patterson Cop Gov't Positions

Frances Lee, of Richmond, won the presidency of the freshman class in a closely contested election last night, and Betty Brothers, of Suffolk, and Glen Ann Patterson of Winston-Salem, N. C. were selected student government representatives.

Frances, a graduate of Thomas Jefferson High School in Richmond, was a class officer three years in high school. She was also cheer leader and a member of the tennis team. At S.T.C. she is an apprentice for the acting group of the Dramatic Club. Betty was a member of Sigma Honor Society in high school and served as editor of the high school annual. Glen Ann, was an officer in the "Y" in high school and a member of the Dramatic Club there.

Others who were nominated for class presidency were Jo Eades of Roanoke; Louisa Dawson, Lynchburg; Libby Heath, Richmond; Marjorie Hewlett, Richmond; Eleanor Bisise, Norfolk; and Phyllis Watts, Lynchburg.

Nominees for government representatives were Betty Lee Scott, Jane Phillhowere, Lucy Harvey, Rosalie Jones, Nancy Quinn, Shirley Crusser, Nancy Lee Weeks, Dot Overcash, Frances Satterfield, and Isobell Wilson.

Agnes Patterson, president of student government and Faye Nimmo, president of the junior class assisted the freshmen with the election. Other officers will be elected tonight.

English Honor Group Issues Bids Tonight To 10 Upperclassmen

Bids were issued tonight by Boerc Eh Thorn, honorary English society, to ten upperclassmen.

Seven of the girls are sophomores, Virginia Lee Abernathy, Cockran; Nancy DuVal, Richmond; Katherine Johnson, Dolphin; Alice Nichols, Lynchburg; Jean Prosise, Wilson; Jane Waring Ruffin, Holdcroft; and Mary Franklin Woodward, Barboursville. Two of the students Agnes Patterson, of Winston - Salem, N. C., and Susie Moore, of Richmond, are seniors, and one, Helen Shaw, is a junior.

Eligibility for membership in Boerc Eh Thorn is based on scholarship in English. An average of B on six or more English courses and a C average on all other work is required. Only those majoring in English are eligible.

Officials To Decide Vacation Question

The State Board of Education will meet October 30 in Richmond to decide whether there will be any change this year in the length of Christmas vacations for students.

Dr. J. L. Jarman, president of the college, has announced that a lengthened Christmas vacation will necessitate a probable elimination of the Thanksgiving and Easter holidays.

At present Thanksgiving holidays are set for November 26-29.

AKG Postpones Date Of Annual Circus; Final Plans Unknown

Due to unforeseen difficulties, the annual circus, sponsored by Alpha Kappa Gamma, has been postponed from November 7 to a later date to be announced soon.

The newly bid members of Alpha Kappa Gamma have been assigned to work on committees for the circus. Hannah Lee Crawford will work with Jane Cabell Sanford and Hallie Hillsman, general chairman for the circus, on the floor and booth committee. Ella Banks Weathers and Carolyn Rouse will assist on the animal committee with Amy Read, and Nancye Allen will help Betty Boutchard on the committee for the queen and presentation of the court. Assisting Susie Moore with tickets will be Ella Marsh Pilkinton, and Rosalie Rogers will work with Betty Youngberg on the parade committee Anne Ellett will assist Winifred Wright and Margaret Mish with the decorations. Other committees are Eleanor Folk and Anne Ware Smith, in charge of advertising, and Shirley Turner and Agnes Patterson, who will supervise the skits.

Plans are being made for 13 booths to be opened the night of the circus and sponsored by the classes and various other organizations on the campus. Chairmen of these booths are Ann Price, Monogram Club; Ruth Parker and Ann Blair, student government; Charlotte Phillips, YWCA; Eleanor Wade and Bobbie Scott, A. A.; Carol Diggs, Town Girls Club; Lucy Harvy, freshman class; Nancy Wilkinson, sophomore class; and Elizabeth Walls, senior class. Other organizations that will have booths at the circus are the Granddaughters Club, the Choir, the Riding Club and the Home Economics Club.

ACP Obtains Noted Foreign Commentator As Featured Speaker

Seven student members of publication staffs on this campus will represent State Teachers College at the Associated Press Convention in Chicago from November 5 through November 7. Winifred Wright and Anne Ellett will be sent from the Colonnade staff, Susie Moore and Sara Wayne France will represent the Virginian, and Jane Cabell Sanford, Ella Banks Weathers and Elva Andrews will represent the Rotunda.

Arrangements were finalized this week for an address at the ACP convention by Dr. Gerhard Schacher of London, eminent central European staff correspondent and economic expert for the London News Chronicle, the Economist, the Financial News and the Manchester Guardian Commercial.

Dr. Schacher will address the opening convocation of the three-day convention on Thursday, November 5 in Chicago's Knickerbocker Hotel. One of several internationally famed figures on the convention program, Dr. Schacher is a well-known historian and speaker and the author of several European best-sellers "Central Europe and the Western World", "Germany Pushes Southeast", and "Germany Pushes West".

ALFRED H. STRICK

Senior Dance Set For December 7

Margaret Kitchin, who has been elected general chairman of the Senior dance, slated for Saturday, December 7, announced her committee heads this week.

Ada Claire Snyder will be head of the music committee; Imogen Claytor will be in charge of decorations, while Frances Mallory will be chairman of the floor committee. The figure will be directed by Betty Sexton; Elizabeth Walls will be in charge of tickets; and flowers will be handled by Leona Moomaw. Grace Hutcheson will be in charge of the refreshments and Charlotte Phillips will be chairman of programs.

The receiving line will consist of the class officers, the chairman, Miss Olive Iler, Dr. J. L. Jarman, Miss Mary White Cox and the honorary class member, Mary Katherine Dodson, who will return to lead the figure.

The chaperones for the dance will be Mr. and Mrs. M. B Coyner, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Graham, Miss Ruth Gleaves, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Johnson, Mrs. Mary Rives Lancaster, Mrs. Hallie Laing and Mrs. Eva Warren.

STC, Duke, Harvard May Rrender Requiem Palm Sun.

Dr. T. Tertius Noble, organist and choir master, of St. Thomas Episcopal Church, New York, has invited the College Choir to sing with the choirs of Duke and Harvard Universities and the choirs of that church in St. Thomas on Palm Sunday, April 18, 1943. The sacred concert will be given at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The choirs will sing "Brahm's Requiem," which the S. T. C. group broadcast from New York last Spring with the Princeton and Duke choirs.

Arrangements are now being made for the choirs to broadcast on a second nation wide hook up from New York City on the night preceding Palm Sunday.

While it is still uncertain whether or not the STC choirs will make the trip, due to transportation difficulties, Alfred H. Strick, choir director, considers this "the greatest honor the choir has yet received". The church choir is made up of 40 boys and professional musicians who are trained in the St. Thomas choir school under the direction of Dr. Noble. It is probably the largest church choir in the country and its members are selected from all over the nation. Dr. Noble is former organist of the New Minister Cathedral in Yorkshire, England.

If permission is given for the choir to accept, only 45 members will make the trip. They will go to New York by train.

The College Choir is under the direction of Mr. Strick and Miss Virginia Richards.

Noted Lecturer Terminates Visit On Campus Today

Mrs. E. H. Ould, noted lecturer from Roanoke, was on the college campus yesterday and today.

Mrs. Ould's subject for her two days' visit was "The Need For Christian Action Today". In chapel Tuesday morning she spoke on personality, while Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, she discussed at an open forum, problems familiar to all Y. W. C. A's.

This morning Mrs. Ould spoke again in chapel and terminated her lectures here this afternoon

Apprentices Present "Will of the Wisp"

A one act play, "The Will of the Wisp" will be presented by the apprentice group of the acting department of the Dramatic Club at the regular meeting of the club tonight. Based on the Irish superstitution that the Will of the Wisp is a phantom that influences people to do strange things even to the point of committing suicide, the play brings out the fact that poets are out of this world and nearer the next, for the poet understands the phantom spirit and protects it.

Cast in the play are Lula Moss Betty Cock, Jo Cooper, and Nancy Piqua. The play is directed by Jeanne Strick, head of the acting group.

Assistants will be Nelle White, head of lighting; Jane Smith, in charge of costumes; Lucille Lewis, make-up director; Sally Robertson, head of the properties committee, and Susan Durrett who will supervise staging.

Rotunda Again Rated "Excellent" by ACP

For the third consecutive time the Rotunda has received the rating of "First Class-Excellent' by the Associated Collegiate Press. The "sports department is particularly good", commented Fred L. Kildow, ACP critic.

"Good news sense is generally indicated," continued Mr. Kildow. However, he advises that the news writing be brightened. Although the features are generally "treated in an apropce manner", it was suggested that the whole editorial page could be strengthened.

News values were rated 195, news writing 245, headlines 210, and editorial and sports pages 225. This gives the Rotunda a total of 875, which is 75 points below the rating All-American. The 1942 spring issues under the management of the present staff were entered in this contest.

During the sprinf of 1941 the Rotunda first received the first-class excellent rating by the ACP critical service.

Leading Lady Loves "The Male Animal", Drunken Scene Is Favorite

By JANE WARING RUFFIN

Going into the third week of play rehearsals, Dodie Jones, sophomore from Radford, feminine lead in "The Male Animal", reflects that "it is the most fun I've had since I hit Farmville. It's lots of hard work, too, but it is the kind of hard work you don't mind—I just love it!" she continued.

Dodie, new to the STC stage has had dramatice experience before, in high school plays and with the Little Theater in Radford.

Richard Cornwell of Fredericksburg, who has the male lead as Tommy Turner, English professor at Midwestern University, took part in both "The Little Minister" and "Death Takes a Holiday" last year. Rick is a senior at Hampden-Sydney and a transfer from the College of William and Mary.

Tedo Savage, of "The Little Minister" fame, portrays Michael Barnes, editor of the Literary magazines at Midwestern in "The Male Animal". Tedo admitted last year that in spite of his experience on the stage—in high school, and in "Dear Brutus", "First Lady", "What Every Woman Knows", "The Little Minister", and 'Death Takes a Holiday"—he always has stage fright.

Dave Crute who plays the part of Ed Keller, chairman of the Board of Trustees at Midwestern, had the male lead in "Jane Eyre", the senior play at Farmville High School last year. Frances Ferguson, who played opposite him in the play last year portrays Mrs. Keller in the play.

Others in the cast are Betty Ellis, of Miami, Fla.; Al Phillips, of Fredericksburg; Jack Adams, of Richmond; Ralph Hagood, of Danville; Virginia Mae Ellett, of Crewe; and Dixie Roundy, of Farmville.

"Play practice is coming slowly, but surely", remarked Dodie in the course of the interview. When queried as to her favorite scene she immediately replied "The drunk scene—I'm not in it, and I love it."

Date set for the play is Friday, November 13 at 8 o'clock in the STC auditorium.

Write | Right
It Out

By now the readers of this paper know that it is a weekly publication attempting to cover and uncover the major events on the State Teachers College campus. They know by now that its policies of writing and editing campus news hinge on one thing: the student. Therefore as a medium of student expression the Rotunda should reflect student opinion.

If in your classrooms daily conversations, and after-lights-out-chats, certain complaints or grievances spring up against campus, or any college events, why not write your observations and submit them to student organizations students affairs or to the Rotunda for publication? If you have suggestions to make, revolutions to instigate, or even if you feel tribute should be paid where it has not been, your statements, if reasonable ones will be printed. Particularly if your comments concern this paper, for example, they will be genuinely welcomed. One warning though, such articles cannot be accepted if unsigned, although it is not essential that the name of the author be printed.

So sharpen your wits and pencils. The letter-to-the-editor column is one which can become most important in influencing you and others.

To the Scrappers:
Second Call

Recently the staff of the Rotunda, following the precedent set by newspapers throughout the country and the collegiate world urged the students on this campus to join in making worthy contributions of scrap to aid in replenishing the nation's scrap metal and rubber supplies. The staff now adds another item to the lists of scrap-conscious college citizens hereabout: furniture, old or new. The Farmville Service Center recently opened to service men: the recreation committee of the local defense organization, although in many respects far superior to most of its kind, can be made even more complete with the addition of useful furniture.

For example the game room now furnished with ping pong table and similar facilities for entertainment needs pictures, wall mirrors, and small tables and magazines. Culinery utensils of all sorts could be used in the adjoining kitchenette and a large mirror would make a luxurious addition to the bath. A small radio and victrola (plus records) could be used in either of the lounges. Books and magazines are always welcome.

Individuals and groups, particularly sororities, if in the mood for scavenge" hunts, could no doubt uncover numerous articles such as these on campus. Why not do so now and help the nearby Johnny Doughboys find a home in Farmville?

Keeping Warm with Fuel
And | Or Banana Oil

Mr. Whiskers has asked me to get along with less fuel oil this winter, because a lot of our tankers have a date elsewhere. I've stopped making mistakes, because I gave my eraser to the rubber scrap drive, so in my big-hearted way I said, "Sure."

I took a tour of our 16th floor Manhattan apartment and the first discovery I made was that there was no wood-shed.

My first impulse was to put lights in the East River, causing ships to pile up at the foot of 54th St., spreading burnable wreckage everywhere. I remember, during the last war, how deliberately misplaced lights wrecked a rum ship off the Irish coast and the inhabitants of the entire country got plastered. Then I realized the plan was impractical because our Navy isn't allowing any enemy ships up this way. So it seemed only intelligent to use my past experience as a sports writer to keep warm by exercise.

Our first move was to set up a running track that goes from the bathroom through the bed-room, living room, kitchen and return. Since this is a typical, spacious Manhattan apartment, two leaps around the course covers a full 39 steps. In fact we call it, appropriately, the John-Buchan-39-Steps-Memorial-Race-Course. It's a real sporty affair providing a garbage can, a coffee table, an umbrella stand, and a commode for hurdle races. When things get cool we do four laps around the Buchan Bowl read one chapter of Mein Kampf and open the windows to let out the heat.

Gleanings

Like Fred Waring, let's ask ourselves, "What's with the major league war news today?"

News is both good and bad. The Japanese are amassing forces in both the Solomon Island regions and in Alaska. And those two places are not so very far apart, either, just look at a globe and measure distances, you'll be surprised.

General MacArthur has reported that his men have been carrying out heavy bombing raids in the Buin-Shortland region of the Solomons but, on the other hand, the Japanese have also made a raid on Henderson Field. News from that source is still uncertain but watch your papers: a big battle is in the making.

In Alaska, Japanese forces are believed to have left the two outer islands of the Aleutian chain, Attu and Agattu Islands, and moved those forces to Kiska where a much better harbor is at their disposal. Army bombers are thought to have sunk two more Japanese destroyers off Kiska.

In Russian, Mr. Hitler seems to have changed his mind and is again attacking Stalingrad, though at a great sacrifice. The Soviets are holding firm. Also in Europe, Hitler is going to scold two of his henchmen, Laval and Mussolini. It seems that Pierre Laval had promised 150,000 French workmen to labor in German factories. However it seems that the workmen had a different idea. Now Laval has to explain why. Mussolini's crime was that he let Italian morale sink to an all-time low and in punishment Hitler has German troops marching through the Brenner Pass to take the Italian ports of Fiume and Trieste. Italian marel has never been high where the Germans are concerned, and it is especially low when the subject of Mussolini and his party are being discussed.

Here in the United States, the drafting of 18 and 19 year olds is the big question. It is hoped that older men, not so well adapted for fighting can thus be released for work in the defense factories. We can use middle-aged men to make guns but it takes a young, strong, fearless lad to man the rifles and tools of war.

Though one is not supposed to discuss the weather, lest we give information to the enemy, rumor has it that it has been rather damp up near Fredericksburg. Even the Appomattox was swollen and has flooded the fields on both sides. Damage from the flood and the fire which followed is estimated in the millions of dollars.

Opinions On Ideal Girl Uncovered As Reporter Travels to Pickett, H-S.

By MARILYN BELL

Wake up and take notice, girls, for you are being analyzed! To answer this week's queries your reporter traveled a la post to nearby Camp Pickett and Hampden-Sydney College to get the army career-man's opinion versus the college undergraduate's verdict on the essential qualities of an ideal girl.

Corporal Charles Murray Clemons, of Pickett and New York, attended Clark School in Massachusetts and was graduated from the Fordham Law School. Admitted to the New York State Bar in 1933, he practiced law in New York City on his own until 1939, at which time he took on a partner. Since then he has spent most of his time traveling extensively in the United States.

Richard Cornwell, senior at Hampden-Sydney from Fredericksburg, attended the College of William and Mary for two years and transferred to Hampden-Sydney his junior year.

The following answers to the questions asked do not necessarily reflect the true opinions of all men, but they do give a cross-section of viewpoints concerning the ideal girl.

What type of personality should your ideal girl have?

Cpl. Clemons: A vibrant, though not too obtrusive, personality is a prerequisite of any man's ideal girl. In addition she should possess a good sense of humor, be amiable, and most important—be tolerant.

Cornwell: A girl's personality must be constant. It should not change with the weather or the occasion. It should be genuine, reflecting her true make-up. Girls with false personalities will end up as the Christmas tree, when its trimmings are removed, the tree is usually discarded.

Must she be pretty?

Cpl. Clemons: Note the above mentioned personality will more than atone for any deficiency in beautiy. Admittedly, a man is attracted to a pretty face. But if the girl has a vapid personality, he soon tires.

Cornwell: The word pretty is ambiguous. Naturally a girl should not be repulsive in looks and should be 'pretty' enough to demand not only a second look, but a third, fourth, fifth, etc . . .

What kind of clothes should the ideal girl wear?

Cpl. Clemons: Almost anything suitable to the person, with the accent on suits, preferably tweed. Evening gowns, of course. But, please, no short socks with skirt and sweater combinations! (Editor's note:!)

Cornwell: The girl should definitely find out which clothes make her look most attractive—to men as well as women. She should not be afraid to try new styles and ideas in making herself attractive. The "clothes horse" is taboo.

What style of hair-do should she wear?

Cpl. Clemons: That will depend entirely on the girl—she must choose the type most attractive to her appearance, the type that will enhance, rather than detract. Again an exception: not the affected, over-one-eye, Veronica Lake sort of thing.

Cornwell: The feminine hair-do should be worked out in the same manner as above. It definitely should always be arranged in some pleasing style when there is "anyone around" to see it.

What is the minimum degree of intelligence the ideal girl should have?

Cpl. Clemons: ..She should be none intelligent than myself, but sufficiently intelligent to hide her light under the well-known bushel. In other words, she should permit me to retain my delusions of omniscience.

Cornwell: The ideal girl should not be so intelligent as to make boys feel that they are first-class morons in her presence. Feminine intelligence should not be spouted out or convenient occasions as a machine gun spits bullets. The male likes to feel that he is the only encyclopedia present.

What interest should she have?

Cpl. Clemons: I should like her to be interested in music, travel, sport, dancing, books, and current events.

Cornwell: Her interest should vary from the simplest to the more aesthetic things: from sports (particularly bowling, riding) and movies to good literature and classical music. If The Man shows an interest in a certain field, then his ideal girl should develop interest in the same.

What qualities—if any—should she develop in order to become the ideal wife?

Cpl. Clemons: Just add up the answers to the six preceding questions.

Cornwell: An even temper added to a knowledge of how to cook, keep house (and the budget) the willingness to sacrifice some of her individuality, and above all, cooperation, thrown in with the above qualities and traits should make her the most perfect wife ever.

Reporter's note: The staff sincerely hopes that no lefts or rights to the chins will be sustained by the authors of these questions, Cpl. Clemons particularly, 'or, in his own words, "if you and your cohorts should pounce on me now, it would be something like shooting a sitting duck." He's in the station hospital with a broken leg!)

BETWEEN YOU 'N ME AND . . .

The Gatepost

(Who Hears An Awful Lot)

Picketed:

Flash! Camp Pickett was entranced Saturday night by a bevy of beauties from S. T. C. . . . Baylis Kunz, Winnie Wright, "Mag" Kitchen, Brookie Benton, Ada Claire Snyder, Bridget Gentile, Lilly Bec Gray, Ann Rogers, Sara Jeffries, Glenn Ann Patterson, Sara Wayne, Ann Randolph, France, Miggie Mish, Jane Smith, and Amy Read were among those present. From all reports it was the rushiest dance in years. Orchids to the men in khaki!

Pinned:

Kendall Nottingham is now the proud possessor of Tech's G.rman Club pin, only this particular one belongs to a simply marvelous male.

Providing

Umm! "Cuddy" is providing stiff competition for Bill Hoge as far as Martha Walsh is concerned, but that is all right with Bill, for he belongs to a "Hill" in Richmond . . . Louise McCorkle is all a-twitter with Jimmy Overton of Sanford, N. C., fame here for the week. Love must be grand.

Pleased

Kitty Patrick was dumb-founded by a much desired telegram recently. Well, can you blame her? Even tho' collect . . . it was from a uniform.

Proved

These kid brothers are proving to be very nice. Betty Bridgforth's brother Dick had her up to V. M. I. Openings. Miggie's brother from W&L came to see her this week-end, dated Jane Brown, and lo and behold asked her up to the dances 'n everything

Popular

University of Richmond was delighted to see Cillie Winston and her Jack at Openings this past week-end. Becky Lacey had a big time there as did Lucille Lewis, Frances Wentzel, and Virginia Terrell.

Partying

Freshman Eula McClean seemed to be having quite a time in the Rec Sunday night. Let's have no more of this!

Martha Hite was at the height of Cupid's Bow—Walter trekked down from Pickett. Her summer romancer, I might add, is six feet five inches. (Why don't more come like that?)

Myrtle Lee's "Beau" changed his plans this week-end. So she went home to see him.

Prejudiced

Ruth Williams' heart definitely belongs to F. U. M. A. "Wigam" is just wonderful"—she says.

Alice, one of the cute Courter twins, swished up to V. M .I. while Nancy's man's mother brought her a box of food. Frankly, I don't know which is better right now—food or Julian.

B. Reid really got around last week-end. Home and W&L, etc. What more could you ask for? What are her plans this week-end? Incidentally, ask her

Just Looking, Thanks

After an entire week of rain, Mother Nature smiled on us to the extent of a long week-end of October's bright blue weather and S. T. C.-ers came out from under raincoats and boots and kerchiefs for a bit of concentrated play.

The Light Fantastic—

Farmville was represented this week-end at V. M. I. Openings, University of Virginia rush parties, the W. and L. I-F-C celebration, and at University of Richmond homecomings. Blacksburg's V. P. I. turned the tables on us and was well represented here for a change.

Attending the Maryland-V. M. I. game in Lexington Saturday and opening dances at V. M. I. were Nancy Ingle, Shirley Kersey, Jocelyn Gillum, Marie Nichols, Jeanne Richardson, Betty Repass, Peggy Ross, Shirley Turner, Sara Trigg, Betty Bridgeforth, Peggy Alphin and Alice West Courter.

Betty Pat Lewis and Pagie Francis went to Charlottesville to University of Virginia rush parties, and among the 250 dates at W. and L. for the I-F-C formal and H.-S.-W. and L. gridiron clash on Saturday were Agnes Patterson, Lillian Goddin, Gertrude Wright, and Betty Reid.

To University of Richmond homecomings went Frances Lee, Irma Dell Moore, Frances Wentzel and Ella Marsh Pilkinton. Theresa Edwards took in Randolph-Macon this week-end and Bernice Copenhaver, the dances at Virginia Episcopal School in Lynchburg.

Pickett Posse - - -

Around a hundred and fifty S. T. C. girls attended the dance Saturday night at Camp Pickett which was also attended by approximately seven hundred and fifty soldiers from the Medical Corps at Pickett. You can put your own two and two together.

Red n' White Stuff - - -

The junior class entertained the members of the freshman class at a party in the Rec, Thursday night. Mildred Droste, mistress of ceremonies with the aid of her "rat court" introduced "Zeke Zippers", noted orchestra and the featured performers of the evening. Ruthie Dugger with her rendition of "Chiggers" and Mary Wilson Carper and Betty Repass who sang several songs added a swish note to the altogether gala affair. In honor of the occasion, everyone wore class colors, red and white.

Homeward Ho! - - -

The Home Guard who took over in mass this week-end included Mary Eugenia Crank, Anne Timberlake, Kitty Patrick, Anne Hamlin, Anne Pettis, Betty Woodward, Mary Franklin Woodward, Margaret Morgan, Eugenia Burke, Nancy Dickerson, Helen Martin, Jean Akers, Ruby Stewart, Anne Payne, Julia Glenn, Jean Arrington, Margaret Finney, Alice Belote, Jackie Parden, Ann Cawthorne, Nancy Quinn, Martha Ellen Jones, Jane Adams, Margaret Bowling and Mary Ann Biggs.

Wedding Bells . . .

Much informal entertaining has been done during the past week by S. T. C. students for Jane Lee Hutcheson, class of '42, whose marriage to Ensign Blanton Hanbury, both of Farmville, will take place tomorrow evening. On Wednesday Jane Sanford was hostess at a small luncheon in the College Tea Room in her honor. The guests included only Jane Lee's wedding attendants. Saturday afternoon Louise McCorkle entertained in Jane Lee's honor and last night Elsie Stossel was hostess at a kitchen shower at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Todd Smith, in her honor.

Death Valley Homecomings . . .

Highlight of the 1942 homecoming celebration at Hampden-Sydney this Saturday will be the football game between the Death Valley team and Roanoke College at 2:30 o'clock.

The Opening Dances of the Hampden-Sydney College German Club will open the official social season on that campus on Friday night. A second dance will be given Saturday night. Johnny Satterfield and his orchestra, of Chapel Hill, N. C., will play for the dances. Approximately 50 S. T. C. femmes will attend.

Dobbin Dames

Hitching "ole Dobbin" to ye old wagon for a turn around the block, Lilly Bee Gray and Miggie Mish pause for a grin at the camera.

Jeep Hats Replace Bonnets, But Horses Are Still Horses

Put on your old grey jeep hat and hitch old Sea Biscuit to the sleigh, for S. T. C. girls must resort to original horse power or operate on their own kilocycles for the duration.

The horse and buggy days are staging a come-back, and spooners are all for it. Those one arm drivers from Tech, Hampden-Sydney and all points around are incorporating the other arm for offense and letting man's second-best friend worry about curves and traffic lights.

Bicycles built for two emphasize the national cry for cooperation. Some girls are elated over their being especially cozy for double dates.

Because of the leather and rubber shortage, walkers may find their feet out in the cold, but cold feet aren't stopping American hep-cats.

A few ask what will happen to the old story, "We ran out of gas." Young moderns have already thought up an answer, "the horse ran out on us."

Continuing the "Y"

Mrs. Ould has been such a wonderful speaker this week that the only thing left to say is that she was "tops".

We must "put in a plug" for Prayers. Nothing does quite what prayers do. The one moment where the day, the world and one's self may be viewed in quiet meditation. The full significance of the sign "Prayers—Quiet" hasn't been realized this year, yet.

The Freshmen "Y" club meeting was a success from all that could be seen or heard. Those who were there Thursday won't miss the next one.

It could never be said that the "Y" at Farmville did more retreating than going forward. The damp weather Friday had nothing to do with the minds and spirits of those present, because the Retreat was one long stride toward the goal for the year.

All the Young Peoples' groups Sunday night are to join the Church Cooperative committee of the "Y" in their vesper service for this quarter. There is a program of interest for everyone who will attend.

State Bond Chairman Makes Chapel Talk

Initiating a series of Student Day chapel programs to be based on the student's part in war bond and stamp activities, Mrs. E. H. Lane, of Altavista, State chairman of the committee on the woman's part in these activities, made a brief address to the students in chapel today. She was introduced by Mrs. Mary Rives Lancaster, local chairman of this committee.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock, Mrs. Lane spoke at the meeting of the Farmville Woman's Club which was held at the Farmville High School.

17 S.T.C. Girls Respond To Tech's Call To Arms For Ring Dance

Among the 17 students who will represent S. T. C. (and incidentally their own int.rests) at the tenth annual Ring Dance to be held at Virginia Tech Friday and Saturday night will be Jane Crump with Billy Moore; Margaret Thomas with W. W. Stone; Julia Eason, R. W. Mercer; Dot Childress, Rowland Hill; Shirley Fierce, Dan E. Pfluger; Ruth Parker, Irving Gentry; Anne Watts, Don Parker; Barbara Buchanan, Everett Wisman; Anne Pettis, Fred Burton; Theresa Hutt, George Hall; Faye Nimmo, Jack Webb; Mildred Ames, Johnny Prince; and Jo Cooper, Robert Burger.

With the exception of Mary Washington College whose students will number 18 at the Ring Dance, this college will send more delegates than others.

Victory is to be the theme of the dances with the halls decorated in blue and red. More than 440 juniors at Tech will take part in the figure at which they will receive their coveted class ring and a kiss from the best girl.

In keeping with the theme, a large gift will be presented the USO. The money is the result of savings made by the class in making dance arrangements and also includes individual contributions. During the presentation, which is to be made Friday night immediately after the figure the orchestra will play the national anthem, and following the presentation, the V. P. I. Glee Club will sing "Moonlight and V. P. I."

Van Alexander, composer of the famous "A-Tisket a-Tasket" and other songs, and his orchestra will furnish the music.

Famed Alumna Views STC With Approval On Return Visit

By MARTHA PATTERSON

"Farmville is a very democratic school, and possesses one of the best all-round programs for a college of its type that I have seen", stated Mrs. E. H. Ould, noted youth guidance lecturer and teacher at press interview Tuesday afternoon.

"One of the greatest memories of my life," recalled Mrs. Ould, "was the view of the intrigueing and awe-inspiring red brick buildings surrounded by a white picket fence that was the State Normal School in Farmville at the turn of the century." Mrs. Ould came to Farmville from a small Virginia town, and she states "was possibly the most home-sick freshman that ever walked through the Rotunda." Some of the happiest hours she recalled at school were those she spent practicing with the glee club, while the most dreaded were the agonizing ones before the slips came out stating whether one had passed her year's work or not. She stated that the girl of today has deeper roots, is more concerned about her future, and investigates her ideals more thoroughly than the college girl several decades ago.

"To develop a personality integrated around worth - while ideals," stated Mrs. Ould, "is the greatest need of young people today. Youth is a time of choice," she cited, "and to question ideals is healthy, for then when one draws a conclusion it is his personal choice and will be better suited to the individual's need. The purpose of the youth worker today is merely to guide the thoughts of young people so that their convictions, standards, and objectives will be worth while."

Mrs. Ould is very fond of her home, although she does not spend very much of her time there. She is a collector of antiques and is especially fond of three pieces of Louis XIV in her living room, a marble top table, chair and gold candle sticks. She saw them at an auction of a French collection and immediately bid on all three, only securing the chair. The following morning the purchaser of the candle sticks gave them to her as a gift. To complete the set, her nephew sought the owner of the table and gave it to her the following Christmas.

Each year Mrs. Ould sets aside the month of August and three weeks before Christmas for her vacation. Except for a few scattered weeks, she spends her entire time lecturing and teaching on college campuses, youth conferences and conventions throughout the south. She has been doing this specific type of work for the last six years.

Leaving Farmville Mrs. Ould will go to Asheville, N. C., where she will lecture at colleges in that vicinity.

Traditional Service For Capping Seniors To Be Held Tonight

Senior Installation will take place tonight at 8 o'clock in the large auditorium. At this time the senior class will become seniors.

Dr. W. T. Williams of Hampden-Sydney will open the program, after which the senior class wearing their senior gowns and led by Betty Boutchard, class president and the other class officers, Nancye Allen, vice-president; Libby Bernard, secretary; and Shirley Turner, treasurer, will march into the auditorium. Accompanying them will be their little sisters, who will carry their caps.

After capping the seniors, Dr. J. L. Jarman, president of the college will give a short talk to the seniors.

For the rest of the year, the senior class will enter chapel every Friday marching to the Alma Mater, and robed in their caps and gowns.

Presbyterians Meet In Richmond Friday

Presbyterian students from many colleges of Virginia will gather in Richmond Friday, October 23, for their annual Presbyterian Student Conference. This conference will be held in the Ginter Park Presbyteria Church, beginning Friday afternoon and continuing through Saturday morning.

The opening address will be made by Dr. Blanton Belk, pastor of the St. Giles Presbyterian church in Richmond. Dr. J. R. Cunningham, president of Davidson College, will speak at the Fellowship banquet Friday night.

The Saturday morning program will begin with an address on student work by Rev. J. M. Garrison, director of student work in the Presbyterian Church, U. S. The closing speaker will be Rev. J. H. Marion, Jr., pastor of the Grace Covenant Church, Richmond. Rev. J. H. Fischbach, of Charlottesville will conduct the Communion service.

Six girls who will represent S. T. C. are Lois Alphin, Eleanor Folk, Faye Johnson, Agnes Stokes, Elsie Stossel, and Ella Bank Weathers. Eleanor Folk is secretary of the conference this year, other officers being Cary Suter, Hampden-Sydney, president, and Betsy Rice, Westhampton, vice - president.

Pledge Service Held For New KDP Girls

Last night at 9 o'clock Kappa Delta Pi held a pledging service for the 18 students recently bid into the society.

Following the pledging, Virginia Kent Sedgley opened the program with a talk on how children may be helped to adapt themselves through extra-curricular activities into the world that will follow this war. Lois Steidtman continued the subject with the part classes should play.

The topic for the year for Kappa Delta Pi is "How Education May Conserve the Spiritual Resources of our Social Heritage and Sustain it in Time of Crisis." The program has been broken down into definite channels of education including the arts, religion, the sciences, and the classics.

Swimming, Ping Pong Practices To Begin for Season Next Week

College Swimmers Urged To Go All-Out In Backing Squads

General swimming practices will begin next week for all girls who would like to swim on class squads.

On Tuesday and Thursday nights the pool will be open from 8 o'clock p. m. until 9 for recreational swimming and 9 o'clock to 10 for varsity swimming practices. Any girl may enter this group. All students are urged to attend practices in order to promote a larger class participation.

H2O club members will be on guard duty each night. The pool also remains open on Saturday nights from 8 o'clock p. m. until 9:30, for recreational swimming.

Ellen Ebel is manager of general swimming, and Mildred Droste is varsity swiming manager.

Plutocrat

Theresa Fletcher, the plutocrat, has a week's leave—He's going in the army next week.

M. K. Ingham is well aware of Virginia's recent flood. On her way to Washington, she was forced to wade thru two feet of the esesntial liquid. Where were her four Hampden-Sydney "Sir Walter Raleighs"?—

Jo Cooper was a little more than upset when Robert Burger dated another S. T. C.'er during the past week.

Hazel Phillips finds H.-S. very intriguing of late—But! The "Joy" of his life is coming down for Openings—Too bad!—

Eleanor Wade is excellent at trapping people in closets. Her poor roommate, Sara Eschan, was locked in for almost an hour recently. Mr. Reed finally had to come to her rescue.

DOTTIE SUE SIMMONS

Manager Sets Up Ping Pong Equipment Throughout School

Ping-pong will open its fall season this coming week when the first practices for the regular fall tournament will begin.

Dottie Sue Simmons, manager of ping pong, has arranged for several tables to be available for playing. In the locker room there are two tables for use. Girls may play here whenever they wish by securing ping-pong balls and equipment from Bobbie Scott, on first floor Annex, room 8.

Also, tables are always available in the Recreational hall of the main building. For necessary equipment to be used here see the Courter twins. Juniors and seniors have access to the senior Rec, where Elizabeth Walls, 134 Senior Building, is in charge of equipment.

Twice each year an intramural ping-pong tournament is held between the classes representing the two class colors, green and white, and red and white. Contestants play off scheduled matches, and points toward the color cup are awarded the winners.

WPB Orders States To Begin Mandatory Tin Can Collection

The War Production Board yesterday ordered mandatory collection of tin cans in more than 400 municipalities.

Nation-wide collection on a mandatory basis will go into effect when additional shredding and detinning facilities beccme available.

The order requires that all trash-collection agencies in municipalities over 25,000 population in 15 states must collect and keep segregated all "prepared" cans offered in usual trash collections.

The states are Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, VIRGINIA, and West Virginia. In addition the order applies to St. Louis, Md., and Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Duluth, Minn.

All citizens were urged to "prepare" tin cans and keep them separated from other trash. In preparing the cans labels should be removed, food particles should be washed out, tops and bottoms of the cans should be cut off and the cans should be flattened.

While mandatory collection will be made only in cities of 25,000 or more, WPB suggested that smaller communities in the States, covered by the order, set up collection systems to feed prepared tins into nearest cities.

Recently appointed to the A. A. council were Rosalie Rogers, social chairman, and assistant Lucy Manson.

An Editorial . . .

On Educating The Consumer

By BETTY COCKE

Webster gives as his definition of the world "conservation" as follows: "Conservation . . . a preserving, guarding, or protecting; a keeping in a safe or entire state." And all this is true, but to Americans it now has a more definite, a more real, a more must-be-realized meaning in a deeper intensity of the word. To us conservation stands for preserving, yes; preserving all the things we've been used to, and guarding all our petty luxuries so taken for granted in our happy-go-lucky American way. We're spoiled, we Americans girls. We "pop a run" in a stocking, lose our temper, and dash to the nearest lingerie department to buy another pair. Or so we used to. But now there's a war on, remember? And the stocking supply is definitely at the lowest ebb thus far.

Naturally stockings aren't the only things that we must conserve during this period of doing without, even if they are one of the things that will "hit home" hardest around here. Let's take a look at some of the other things our Uncle Sam has cautioned us about, and get an idea of his views on today's most important topic, "How to Conserve".

Back to those hose again, keep an eye on 'em, girl. See that you rinse them carefully after each wearing. Don't wear one pair to death, either . . . no wonder they give up and run. Silk's cousin rayon is doing its best to keep our legs covered while Nylon does its great bit for defense, and it's up to us to keep the rayon in condition.

And skirts and sweaters . . . wait 'til you realize how scarce they're gonna be! Keep every scrap of wool you own. Keep your knitted wear in the pink of condition, and let the moths starve. They're one thing we can stand a shortage of in this country. And dig out Father's old suits to have yourself a trim new outfit made. Many a Dad will see his daughter joining forces with the Army in the self-same stripes he put aside for his own Khakis in the last War. Above all, when you buy a blended fabric, pay strict attention to directions for treatment, and keep in mind the fact that that's a sheep of a different breed you're dealing with this time. And that goes for all the substitutes on the market today.

Saving tooth-paste tubes isn't a gesture. It's a definite attribute to the War effort, and should be recognized as such by everyone. Add your metal lipstick tubes and cold-cream-jar tops to the stack, too. They will be used! As for hair-pins . . . be a second Veronica if you have to, but save those "bobbies" for a rainy day.

Shade-rollers, too, are soon going to be the things of the past. Keep them when you change your shades . . . you'll be tacking your new shades to the same old rollers.

Nor are material things all that need to be conserved, either. How 'bout your health and energy? Keep yourself even fitter and trimmer than ever before; be a Minute-Maid to the nth degree! Ready to go whatever comes, whether it's a sox for the Sailors or arms for the Army. These days we're dancing for defense, and it takes pep to do it! Eat the right foods in the right amounts, and go to bed at a fairly decent hour. Your country needs you, not only to help in the conservation of vital war materials, but in the conservation of yourself, your good spirit, and your fitness in the jobs that you can do.

Go to it girl. Next time you pop a run, ten-to-one you can't buy a new pair, so this time don't even lose your temper. Put on socks, and step to it. These days, the head of the list says "Conserve the U. S. A." . . . keep it safe in 48 entire states, and guard its democracy with everything you've got!

By SHIRLEY PIERCE

For recreation, sport, and enjoyment, the Monogram Club sponsors a hike each Saturday afternoon. Girls have enjoyed the walks to Longwood and may continue to do so by signing up on the A. A. bulletin board by Friday afternoon.

Elizabeth Walls and Ann Price will be in charge of the hike this coming Saturday.

Longwood buns are served to all hikers.

Virginia teams again trampled all outstanding interference of the gridiron this past Saturday as the pride of Virginia football crops staged three outstanding events in our local world of sports.

Shattering all opposition, the strong and mighty Virginia Military institute pushed forth into the unexpecting Maryland line to chalk up a 29 to 0 score. Captain Joe Muha, the season's wizard, didn't leave a hole in his line of action. Such spectacular play was backed by his mighty squad to produce a day of football thrills before a crowded Lexington stadium. Another figure to keep an eye on is the footloose Dick "Taz" DeShazo who played a fast game all afternoon. The Maryland defeat removed the Old Liners from the ranks of the nation's undefeated football teams and a hit at this season's Southern Conference title. (Incidentally Anne Seay's brother, Buck, was one of the touchdown scorers for V. M. I.)

Kentucky, favored over Virginia Tech, was burled under a 21-21 score by the Tech Gobblers. The Kentuckians having bowed only to Georgia and Vanderbilt by a one-point margin were considered too much of a big-time football power for the Techmen to handle, but the V.P.I. team had a different idea.

University of Virginia Cavaliers met the Spiders of University of Richmond at the Richmond City Stadium to pull a tie of 7-7. Both teams striking with unusual strength plunged once each to a touchdown and successful extra point. Numerous indications of scoring were made, but each team held the other down.

Up at Lexington, we find Hampden-Sydney Tigers defeated 20-13 when they encountered the bucking Washington and Lee eleven. Opie Thomas, H.-S. center, dashed through the territory gaining 65 yards for the final score.

Bowles, Sink, and Smith Nip Top Honors In The Colonnade Short Story Contest

"Do Unto Others" by Mary Frances Bowles of Richmond captured first prize in the Colonnade short story contest that closed October 9. Second place was won by Jane Lee Sink of New York City for her "In a True Light", while Jane Smith of Franklin triumphed as third prize winner with "The Amber Earrings."

"Do Unto Others" depicts the change that religion brings into a reform school. Mary Frances pictures one girl who by her Christian love lights up the lives of her fellow inmates of the school.

True Story

Jane Lee Sink's "In a True Light" is the true story of a blind girl in this school whose unusual personality throws her handicap into the background. The strength of that girl and the passing on of that strength to others may be felt in this story.

"The Amber Earrings" by Jane Smith follows a portrait that gets back to it's original family through a pair of amber earrings in the portrait.

Many Entries

There were other entries which ranked high, but they were eliminated because of content, technique, or manuscript.

MARY FRANCES BOWLES

JANE LEE SINK

The prizes of five dollars, three dollars, and one dollar in war stamps will be awarded to the winners at an early date, and the winning stories will appear in forthcoming issues of the Colonnade this year.

Judges in the contest were Jane Waring Ruffin and Virginia Sedgley of the Colonnade staff, Rosalie Rodgers, president of Beore Eh Thorn, and Mr. James M. Grainger and Miss Lucille Jennings of the English faculty.

Bellaire To Talk To Press Delegates

Seven To Represent S. T. C Publications

Word has recently been received by the Associated Collegiate Press that Robert Bellaire, Tokio manager of the United Press, will appear on the banquet program of the A. C. P. convention Friday, November 6, in Chicago.

Mr. Bellaire, who has been interned in Japanese prison camps for seven months, has just returned in an exchange of prisoners. This well-known American correspondent will have the latest material for his audience at the convention.

The convention, which will last from November 5 to 7, will have as its principal speaker the famous European writer, Dr. Gerhard Schacher. The entire session will be held in the Knickerbocker Hotel in Chicago.

It is quite possible that this year's convention will be the last one until the war is over. Seven editorial chiefs from S. T. C. will attend this final convention. They are Winifred Wright, Anne Ellett, Susie Moore, Sara Wayne France,

No. 5 District WAVES Seek Enlistments For Training Course

Volunteers are now being taken for a new class of WAVES midshipmen, who eventually will become ensigns, according to an announcement yesterday by Lieutenant Bernice Lill, in charge of WAVES recruiting at the Office of Naval Officer Procurement in Richmond.

This new class, known as V-9, will begin training February 12 at Smith College, as midshipmen. After one month of indoctrination and three months of training they will emerge as ensigns.

Forty young women will be sworn in from the Fifth Naval District, said Lieutenant Lill, and applications are being received now at the Naval Office Procurement Office at Norfolk and Altamont streets, Richmond.

December 15 is the latest date for filing applications.

A college degree is preferred for candidates but those with only two years of college may apply, provided they have had business experience. The prospective midshipman must be at least 20 years old, but must not have reached their 30th birthday.

Several S. T. C. graduates are now in the WAVES.

New Air Raid Alarm Used In Farmville

W. C. Fitzpatrick, Civilian Defense Coordinator has arranged to use the Buffalo Shook siren as the official air raid siren. In addition to the official signal, the fire siren will sound thereby giving two signals for air raids. The Buffalo Shook Company will use the siren formerly used for air raids.

"This arrangement has been made with the Buffalo Shook Co. for the duration of the war," Mr. Fitzpatrick said. "And it is hoped that this double signal will operate successfully."

New Girls Try Out For Debate Club

Ann Randolph, president of the Debate Club, announces that approximately eleven girls have tried out for membership into the club.

At eight o'clock Thursday night, October 29, in the Honors room, these girls will make a three or four minute talk on some current topic. Such a talk is a prerequisite for membership in the Debate Club.

Mardi Gras Set For February 6

Costume Ball Is Annual Fete

Mardi Gras dance, which is sponsored each year by Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity, will be held on Saturday, February 6, Brookie Benton, chairman of the Mardi Gras committee, revealed at the Pi Gamma Mu meeting last night. A queen will be selected by the student body to reign over the festivities, and her court will consist of eight girls. Chairmen for the various committees will be announced at a later date.

Last year Mardi Gras, falling on February 14, followed a Valentine theme. Formerly on Tuesday night, the Mardi Gras dance was changed to Saturday last year to enable more people to attend. It is the only costume dance given at S. T. C.

Pi Gamma Mu has as its program theme this year a study of "The New World Order". The social, political, economic, educational, and religious aspects will be developed at various meetings during the year. At the meeting last night Brookie Benton and Warwick Mitchell assisted by Miss Mary E. Peck, led a panel discussion, centered around the talks given by Helen Wiley Hardy and Anne Randolph at the initial meeting. The theme for discussion was the Paris Peace Treaty.

Commercial Club Initiates Project

At the regular meeting of the commercial club last night, plans were begun for a survey that is to be conducted among all alumna of the commercial department. An effort will be made to determine the number of graduate students who are teaching, and the number who are using their commercial training in some other work. A series of questions will be prepared for each girl to find which classes she considers most important in the department here, which she considers unnecessary, and what classes she thinks should be added

The purpose of this survey is to see the needs of the department here, and make revisions that seem pertinent in better preparing the commercial students to meet the requirements of the business world. Betty Jackson will be chairman of the committee to conduct this survey, while Mr. Richard G. Hailsy will act as faculty advisor.

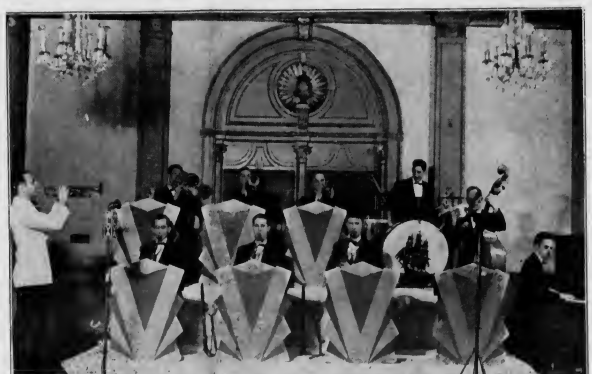
Cornwell Combines Hard Work And Fun For Role in Fall Play



"This is the most fun I've had in two years", exclaimed Richard Cornwell, male lead in "The Male Animal" when it was necessary to repractice the very last scene a number of times at a recent rehearsal. (The last scene is a kiss.) Cooperating—or perhaps not cooperating—with Rick, who portrays Tommy Turner, is Dodie Jones, in the role of Ellen Turner.

In a more serious tone, Richard remarked that the play "is very difficult to work up because it is the first time the college has attempted a comedy with such a reputation as has "The Male Animal" from the recent stage and screen versions".

Among the least of the difficulties connected with the play is the fact that the cast boasts only three return actors—Tedo Savage, Rick Cornwell, and Twitch Eliett. Several scenes—the drunken one, when the fateful letter is read, and the very last scene—still have barriers to be crossed. However, in the third week of practice the play has taken definite form and promises to be the traditional success.

The play—James Thurber and Elliott Nugent's "The Male Animal"—is a rip-roaring comedy centered in a midwestern university town. Complications begin for Tommy Turner, English professor, and his wife, Ellen, when Joe Ferguson, (Jack Adams), former football star and school sweetheart of Ellen, returns for Homecoming Day. Matters became worse when Ed Keller, (Dave Crute) Chairman of the Board of Trustees, complains about a letter that Tommy plans to read to his English class, maintaining that the professor is a fascist. Tommy has definitely become a bookworm and Ellen is thrilled by Joe's return and, as the plot thickens, plans to leave with him. In the end, as in all good comedies—except "Arsenic and Old Lace"—the yarn unravels to reveal all problems solved, for Tommy, realizing that he is losing Ellen, decides to be a real man—the male animal.

Clockwatchers:

No More 8:05's; No More Alarms!

Beginning Monday, November 2, the traditional 8:05 blinking of eyes and smothering of early morning yawns on campus will be no longer. That is until March 20 or thereabouts. For S. T. C. in accordance with the schools of Prince Edward County is adopting a "Shove It Up An Hour Plan." Under the new system breakfast will be served at 8:15 o'clock, lunch at 1:45, and dinner at 7 o'clock. Classes will begin at 9:05 o'clock and extra-curricular activities and meetings will be held an hour later accordingly.

The action has been taken by the college to avoid a conflict between the schedules of student teachers and those in Farmville schools and surrounding rural communities beginning Monday.

So let the old alarm run down. You won't be needing it for some time.

Editorial Reflections . .

Thanksgiving Vs. Uncle Sam? or Giving Thanks to Uncle Sam?

At the present, the chief question of interest seems to be whether or not S. T. C. will have Thanksgiving holiday. Naturally, everyone voices the desire for vacation so that she might go somewhere to participate in holiday revelries. But—our nation is at war; all transportation facilities are needed for defense. We have been asked to remain in school and thus save that extra space on the train or bus for Uncle Sam—he is a large man, as we should realize gratefully.

But whether we remain in school or leave for the favorite turkey feast or football game, let no one say that S. T .C. girls are unpatriotic enough to gripe about giving up a few luxuries. Our boys in the camps, on the ships, across the seas, or in the skies, will not be given a convenient little leave for Thanksgiving. But they are not letting it be known that because of this they are poor, persecuted men .They realize the plight of our country. They take pride in putting their all into winning back her freedom and in saving her ideals. Griping is old fashioned, a form of amusement only for the weak and the cowardly. It is hoped that S. T. C. girls will never be classed under either of those heads. If they wish to steer clear of such names, they will find it necessary to initiate a little of that spirit of sacrifice, though it seems trivial to call a loss of little Thanksgiving vacation a sacrifice. It is a trivial matter.

The question still remains, unanswered for a while. But when the answer comes, we may join in hoping that our president will be proud of the way "his girls" react to the final degree. And if we remain in school—let him rejoice in the spirit of cooperation of "his girls" and in the participation in the school activities that will take place on that day in the event we do not have the vacation. And also—it can be thanks giving day wherever we are.

Honor the Honor Code

Last night freshmen and transfers began signing the Honor Code, pledging themselves to live according to the rules set up by Student Government and to do their part in helping others to do the same. To the new girls it was a novel experience, and should be considered seriously, for it is upon observance of the Honor Code that all activities here are based. To the old girls it should be a renewal of the pledge made one, two, or three years ago.

The simple ceremony was dignified, and impressive. It was significant, too, in that it represented the confidence placed in the students. That confidence is characteristic of our democratic way of life. It is one of the privileges and honors our brothers and friends are giving their lives that we may continue to have. It is a responsibility too, for when we sign the Honor Code, we not only promise to abide by regulations, but to see that others do also.

What then will we do with that confidence and responsibility? Will we accept the responsibility placed on us, accept it, and fulfill it? Will we respect that confidence and abide by all regulations, large or small?

If the Honor Code were really fulfilled, not only would we be giving the boys at the front a definite aim, a real purpose for their suffering and sacrifice, not only would we be more congenial with them on their return, and better suited to complete the task that will fall to us of rebuilding a civilized, democratic world from the chaos which inevitably follows a war, but our life here would be fuller and happier.

—J. W. R.

New Slant—1942

One becomes tired of reading the usual "run of war news", after a certain length of time. It is particularly gratifying to run across some current periodical or magazine with an entirely new "slant" on the situation.

The character and events of the war will definitely shape the peace following it. It is with this realization that we must "chart our course" for a lasting peace. Only then can we build our society back to what it was before. For ninety-nine years, from the Battle of Waterloo (1815) to 1914 there were only minor uprisings—nothing that could be compared with the first World War. We are entitled to say that the years 1815 to 1914 were a good peace, in one sense of the word.

The weakness of the Versailles Treaty brought about the general lust for more power in every nation in Europe. Being deprived of the land which they considered to be their own added to the unsettled conditions. Every country was broken up and "human nature" made them rebel. Twenty years of preparation, under the very noses of the one they eventually attacked, made for some gain in their early sea and air mastery.

We must not allow deceptions, of any type, to erase the peace which must come. Through thinking more clearly, and helping to shape our own place in the "scheme of things," we may help to insure that peace.

A few lines from Norman Roston's "Poem of the Year" (New Yorker), to better sum up our position:

No words like pain, or love or home;
Your mind is a waving flag,
A continent of banners,
While the pounding of your heart Reminds you of your body."

—Loline Warner

Guard That Protein!

By EDDIE CANTOR

When my wife and I got married, we decided on a plan for a successful partnership: she would take care of all the little things, and I would handle all the big things. It worked out fine, because for twenty-seven years no big things came up! That is, not until this war. Then I took over. I started holding family conferences at which we would discuss the War Effort and our individual jobs. Such a meeting, in fact, took place one evening two weeks ago at the dinner table.

Conversation among my five girls and Ida was going full force. I rapped on my water glass for ten minutes to get their attention.

Gradually silence came.

"Girls, I have something important to discuss with you," I said "Share the Meat!"

Some time after the first of the year, the Government will inaugurate meat rationing. In the meanwhile, we are being asked to Share the Meat by eating other foods.

"There is another problem, too. When we do not have meat from now on, we must eliminate wastefulness."

Someone had an idea. "Let's make a game of it! Anyone who leaves meat on her dinner plate must pay a fine."

We all approved and I adjourned the meeting to allow Mrs. Cantor to have a heart-to-heart talk with the cook about making tasty substitutes for the meat course.

That was two weeks ago. And now, we have a confession to make: it's fun to be patriotic!

Artful Coquettes Invent Means Of Getting By House Council Rules

By BETTY COOK

The scene is any hall in S. T. C.—preferably White House. The hour, anywhere from 7:30 to 10:00 p. m. . . . study hour, remember? Ah! Let's listen in:

First thing that impresses us is the radio-vic symbolically blaring forth "Night and Day", and we note the nearest umdrtone, a perpetual trickle from that eternally leaking faucet "down the hall". The two standard greetings echo 'round us from all sides as we enter on tiptoe . . . "Got two nickels for a dime?" and "What's our English assignment for tomrrow?" Naturally nickels are first on the shortage list, and nothing's quiet enough for study so there's no need to find out the assignment anyhow, but that doesn't stop either enthusiastic query.

"Busy Signs" are hopefully hung out and artfully broken in any of a variety of ways. The pet trick is to poke one's head gently inside a door and murmur sweetly, "Would you-all give me an ol' calldown if I kinda broke your busy-sign?" (What can victim say?) And there have been known those who stand outside a fast-closed portal and announce loudly and mournfully, "Oh . . ooo! They've got their busy sign up!" until the tender-hearted inmates of room in rmonstration scamper quickly to the offending door to extend a cordial, if cool, invitation to the disappointed individual outside.

After marveling over the numerous ways these bare amateurs have already discovered to get around our rules, we shake our heads and wend our quiet way down the hall. Half-way we hear a warning shriek from the rear, and wheel around just in time to jump the Coca-Cola bottle juggernauting down the corridor, and even dare to emit a stifled scream that hurries the flustered hall-president to her door. Her flighty "Shhhh" merely serves to bring forth a bevy of heads from every squeaky door on the floor, and we leave unobtrusively as excitement reigns victorious over the Challenge to Study ,and the hall motto immediatey becomes "Fun first, study if possible, and great each diversion with a welcome."

Letters to the Editor . . .

Dear Editor:

Are we going to have Thanksgiving holidays?

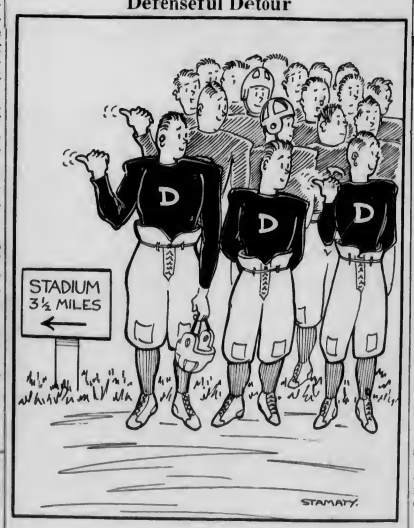
There are many things which add up to why we should, but after talking with many students, I believe that the majority of girls are in favor of an extended Christmas vacation instead.

The nation is already overburdened with problems of transportation; why should we tangle it more? Besides, giving the man in uniform the privilege of uncrowded traveling during week-ends it is the patriotic thing to do. The majority of students live too far away to have time to make a Thanksgiving week - end trip worth while. And those fares will mount up!

I, for one, am in favor of canceling the Thanksgiving holiday. But we should know "which way the wind is blowing" in order to make or break our plans accordingly early enough.

Sincerely,
An Interested Fellow Citizen

Dear Editor,



Although most of the changes made in the library this year have been helpful, there is one that seems more confusing than helpful; the new system in the Reserve book room. In order to find a book, if you don't know its author, you must look over the whole row of shelves until you happen to run across the desired book. Classifying the books according to authors instead of putting them on separate shelves for each teacher was done for our convenience. However, the old system seems more accessible to me than the new plan.

Sincerely,
A BOOKWORM

Editor's Note:

Each faculty member's book list is posted on the reserve book room bulletin board with the name of the book, author, and call number. After referring to the board, the student then will be able to find her book in alphabetical order on the shelves.

Our Neighbor's Plight - - -

Students of Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg have had to endure many hardships as a result of recent record rains and the resulting flood conditions. Routed from their dormitories by rising waters, many of the girls found it necessary to "double-up" with other girls who roomed in the dormitories that stood on higher ground. Last Friday, breakfast was prepared and served by candlelight after the electricity failed. Paper plates and cups were used instead of chinaware.

Last week's issue of the college paper, THE BULLET, was a mimeographed emergency issue. An excerpt from the paper read, "Our printing press, together with a year's supply of paper, was last seen floating down the river".

While conditions were well under hand, it was nevertheless being urged that all girls be particularly careful to avoid colds.

Practical Day Time Glamorous Nights

By JANE SMITH

Cotillion this week-end will give you an opportunity to show you haven't lost all your femininity even though nearly all signs of grace and beauty are covered up by day in rain coats and kerchiefs. The beauty schedule now is practical by day, glamorous by night, according to some beauty editors.

The first dance of the year should bring out originality as far as coiffeurs are concerned. Bring out your favorite jewels, real or phonies, and wear them in your hair. Even the simplest daytime hairdo takes on a party attitude with the addition of a pretty doo-da d. Decorations suggestions range from diamond bow-knots, flowers and black velvet bows to bunches of blue grapes, luscious looking but strictly unedible.

Perhaps you've been neglecting most of your make-up because of so much work and such busy days but remember that when evening shadows fall, a little more than a smear of lipstick is required for glamour gals.

This week-end is Hallowe'en with its traditional witches and spooks and ghosts but remember Cotillion isn't a masquerade.

Jane Lee Hutcheson Weds Ensign Hanbury

The marriage of Jane Lee Hutcheson to Ensign Burton Blanton Hanbury took place Thursday night, October 22 at 7:30 o'clock in Johns Memorial Episcopal Church. The Rev. A. Campbell Tucker and the Rev. O. Worth May officiated.

The bride was attired in a gown of ivory satin embroidered with seed pearls. Her long veil was caught by a wreath of orange blossoms, and her flowers were a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and orchids.

She was given in marriage by her cousin, Irvin London, of Farmville and Richmond. Her matron of honor, Mrs. F. H. Hanbury, Jr. and her junior bridesmaid, Martha Dillard Sydnor wore gowns of dull gold taffeta and carried bouquets of gold chrysanthemums and talisman roses.

Norma Lee Rippard, Jane Sanford, Louise McCorkle, Elsie Stossel, Marcella Blanton and Helen Reiff, bridesmaids, wore gowns of dull blue taffeta and carried bouquets of gold chrysanthemums and yellow roses.

The groom had as his best man his father, F. H. Hanbury, Sr. The groomsmen were William Hanbury, brother of the groom; Ensign Fred Hanbury, Jr.; J. Luckin Bugg, Jr.; Hoskins Schlater; Charles Ivey Smith, Jr.; the Rev. James Blanton, and

Flashes From Afar Reveals Others' Impressions, Activities

Skimming over items of interest from the various collegiate weeklies on the exchange list, S. T. C. found more than one campus-caper by which it could profit. Camouflage is being taught at Queens College and Columbia University in New York. On the less serious side, a criticism of American co-eds is offered by R. Fernando Alegria, graduate student from Santiago, Chile He says that "they are always trying to act. They should be themselves instead of trying to impress—I don't know whom." Otherwise they would be wonderful. The 24 year old South American also objects to "the uniformity with which college girls dress." And girls! he prefers no make-up!

Carey Wilson, Hollywood ace script writer, believes that the great American public knows too little about college life. He thinks college literature should be encouraged; all sorts of articles, stories and poems should be written about college life while youthful writers are still on the campus. It would not only be good practice but our misinformed adult world would be enlightened.

Speaking of writing, each cadet at Tech has been assigned a War Buddy and is expected to begin writing to him as soon as possible. Penciled instructions on the back of envelopes separates War Buddy letters from other mail. Thus they are held over and sent out together in a pack twice a month.

Continuing the "Y"

The Red Cross center in town is making a plea for aid in rolling surgical bandages. The quota is so great that it is often necessary for the ladies now occupied to work all day. College girls who are willing to help relieve the situation are asked to find time for it in their schedule so that they may report when the meeting is called for volunteers. The service committee of the "Y" has taken the responsibility. Betty Agnew and Jane Moseley are in charge.

A special reminder—"Y" committee meetings tonight. Remember where each committe meets? Refer to the "Y" bulletin board. Some other things to be seen there are the headlines and leading news articles of the day for those who may want to know about the condition of the world outside. Thanks go to the Public Affairs committee.

The Presbyterians came back from the Student Conference at Richmond with lengthy tales about "the fun we did have". It is hoped that some knowledge was gathered among other things. Mrs. Farrar Shelton is now serving the organization in the capacity of adviser.

A new minister at the Methodist church is creating some excitement. His service bore inspection at any rate. Something else new—there is the appointment of Miss Mary Clay Hiner as teacher of the college class.

Virginia Colleges To Initiate Archery Tourney

An Archery Mail Tournament is being initiated by several Virginia colleges to promote interest in archery and to enable colleges to compare their archery status with other school teams.

Dorothy Harrison, of Randolph Macon Womans College, Lynchburg, is general chairman of the tournament. Colleges which will compete in this weekly event are Farmville S. T. C., Sweetbriar, Mary Baldwin, Hollins, Randolph Macon, Mary Washington, Radford, Westhampton, and Madison College.

Each of these colleges will enter two groups in the contest, a beginners class and an advanced class. In each group teams will consist of six members. Any number of teams may be organized.

Shooting from a distance of 30 yards contestants will be allowed 36 arrows in scoring. Any arrow rebounding or going through the target scores 5 points regardless of where it hits. Arrow touching two colors score as the higher color.

When plans are completed, the tournaments will run each week from Wednesday morning to the following Tuesday afternoon. Scores will be mailed to the managers on the final night of the "shooting week" and team standings and scores will be listed and returned to the colleges the following Monday.

Sara Jeffreys and Margaret Kitchin, managers of archery, are in charge of the teams on the S. T. C. campus.

Sport Scoops About . . .

Interclass Swimming . . .

Interclass swimming practices will begin tomorrow night, October 29, at 8 oclock. Girls who wish to try-out and support their class teams may meet at the scheduled hour and begin work-outs. Ellen Ebel, manager of general swimming and director of the interclass meet has urged all students to participate in the practices.

Freshman Basketball . . .

Freshman basketball practice, under the supervision of senior Jean Carr, is now underway with full force. Practices are held each Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the College Gym. The first group reporting was given instruction in the techniques of handling the ball and a summary of the general rules of the game.

Any first year students who have not done so and are interested may report to practice this week. Last year several games with other schools and college frosh teams were scheduled by the first year team.

Ping Pong Tournament . . .

The ping pong tournament will be played off some time before the Christmas holidays. Dottie Sue Simmons, manager, has placed adequate equipment for practicing in the Senior Building Rec, in the Main Rec, and in the locker rooms of Student Building. A series of matches between contestants in each of these areas will be played off in the tournament, the winners to meet in a final match. Five points will be given as color cup points.

Badminton . . .

Eleanor Wade, manager of badminton, has announced that badminton courts will be set up in the college gymnasium rather than out of doors as previously reported. Games may be played from 4 o'clock until 5 on Thursday and Friday afternoons.

elected faculty advisor for the coming year. Mr. Myers came to S. T. C. last year.

A committee was appointed to revise the constitution along the lines of membership. Plans are being made for the opening of a second-hand book store in the department. This will be the second project of the year.

Mildred Corvin, president; Opal Nelson, vice-president; Caroline Caldwell, treasurer; and Nancy Langhorne, secretary; are the present officers of the club.

Students Complete First Aid Course

Rote Awards 6 High Rating

Max Rote, field representatives for the American Red Cross, conducted an instructors course in American Red Cross First Aid during the period from October 19 to October 23.

The course was offered to town people and college students who had previously been certified in the Red Cross standard and advanced course of first aid. College students completing the requirements were Dorothy Marrow, Alice Duncan, Dorothy Anderson, Betty Love, Betty Laird, and Carroll Pugh.

Mr. Rote, while speaking in chapel last week, summarized the progress made in the field of first aid and the increase in membership in it since December 7, 1941. He emphasized the value of instructed training in the field of water safety as well as the other divisions in the field.

If sufficient requests are made a similar course may be offered in the college at anytime.

This practice would be even more effective on a non-male campus because letters from the ladies are certainly the most sought after.

Madison College has an old custom to help girls get acquainted and to "mark the union of the entire student body" called the old girl-new girl wedding. The president of the Senior class acts as groom and the bride is elected from the new girls. The pair and their elected attendants are fully dressed in marital garb, wedding songs are rendered, the famous Lohengrin March played and a mock ceremony is performed by a girl-minister. At the marriage are both families of the couple. After the nuptials, the newlyweds make a tour of the campus—followed by a banquet in the dining hall. It's all lots of fun and it does give a closer feeling of comradeship and understanding between classes.

Racquet Wielders To Vie In Tennis Matches This Week

Tennis will occupy the spotlight in sports on campus this week end when a series of tennis matches will be played off on the college courts.

Students who wish to enter this group should meet on the tennis courts Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock where arrangements will be made to accommodate all entering the matches.

Each week a series of games will be played off in a similar manner.

CELEBRATE THANKSGIVING WITH ANNUAL CIRCUS

VOL. XXII FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA, WEDNESDAY, NOV. 4, 1942 No. 6

A. K. G. Names Nov. 28 Final Date For Circus

Time Changed To Holiday

The college circus sponsored each year by Alpha Kappa Gamma, national leadership fraternity, will be held on Saturday, November 28, at 8 o'clock in the college gymnasium.

Because of the change in the holiday schedule providing for a holiday here only on Thanksgiving Day and eliminating the usual four day holiday, it was decided that it would be well to furnish special entertainment for the students and their friends during that time.

Hallie Hillsman, president of the Athletic Association, is general chairman of the affair this year.

Her floor committee consists of Jane Sanford and Hannah Lee Crawford.

The other committees have been announced as follows: animal committee, Amy Read, Ella Banks Weathers, and Carolyn Rouse; stunt committee, Shirley Turner and Agnes Patterson; advertising committee, Ann Ware Smith and Eleanor Folk; queen and court presentation committee, Betty Boutchard and Nancye Allen; parade committee, Betty Youngberg and Rosalie Rogers; ticket committee, Susie Moore and Ella Marsh Pilkinton; and decoration committee, Winifred Wright, Margaret Mish, and Ann Ellett.

VIPA To Convene By Mail In Winter

Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association has announced that its annual convention will be held by mail in January.

Previous plans called for the conclave to be held in Richmond on November 6, 7, and 8, with the University of Richmond as host. Transportation difficulties have necessitated the change.

The collegiate members of the association will be contacted by mail. Copies of publications will then be sent to Richmond where they will be judged by officials selected from the staffs of the Richmond Times-Dispatch and Richmond News Leader.

Guy Friddell, president of the VIPA for 1942 has recently been drafted into the armed services of the country. In his place are acting the minor officers of the association.

The VIPA meeting last year convened on this campus with S. T. C. and Hampden-Sydney College as joint hosts. In the contests The Rotunda, at that time edited by Sara Cline, was judged first prize winner among collegiate weeklies throughout the State, while The Virginian and the college handbook received honorable mention.

Sanford Adds 16 To Rotunda Staff

Try-outs Complete Apprenticeship

Jane Cabell Sanford, editor of The Rotunda, has announced that 16 students have been added to the staff of the college weekly. Twelve have received appointments to the business staff, three have been added to the editorial staff and one has been added to the photographic staff.

Betty Cock and Mary Franklin Woodward are the new members of the editorial staff along with Virginia Sedgley, who has been made the Gleanings columnist.

Betty Jones, Ruth Brooks, Betty Overcash, Lucille Lewis, and Lillian Elliot have been added to the business staff as members of the group in charge of circulation. Mary Sterrett, Bobby Scott, and Jeanne Strick have been transferred from the circulation group to the advertising staff.

Serving on the business staff in the capacity of proof readers will be Loline Warner, Frances Quillen, Virginia Radogna, Lelia Halloway, and Margie Hewlett. The new typists are Anne Blair and Jane Ford.

Phyllis Watts has been appointed assistant photographic editor.

Choirs To Introduce New Patriotic Song By Strick In Chapel

"America—Thy Name", a new song, written and composed by Mr. Alfred H. Strick, head of the music department, especially for the forthcoming teachers meeting in Richmond, will be introduced to the college at chapel during American Education Week by the Junior and Senior A Capella Choirs.

In connection with the program plans for the meeting it was suggested that Mr. Strick write a song relating to the theme of the 1942 meeting, "Education and the War" to lend interest to the convention. Mr. Strick complied with "America—Thy Name". Copies of the song have been placed in the hands of Dr. Luther A. Richmond, State Director of Music, and the song will be presented at the teachers convention in the latter part of November.

Eleanor Folk will read the text of the song to the student body when it is offered in chapel next week. Mr. Strick has written another patriotic song, "Faith In America", which was dedicated to the Student Cooperative Association of Virginia.

Freshmen Complete Elections Thurs. Royall Is Classman

Eleanor Bisise Is Vice-President

Freshman class elections were completed last Thursday night with the election of Eleanor Bisise of Norfolk, vice-president; Shirley Cruser, also of Norfolk, secretary; Betty Jones, treasurer; and Martha Jean Levitte and Margie Hewlett, Student Standards representatives.

While in high school Eleanor was president of the Girl Reserves, secretary of the senior class, and on the business staff of the annual. Shirley served as editor of her high school yearbook, and vice-president of the Girl Reserves. Here at school Betty is a member of the Rotunda circulation staff, while at high school she was president of the freshman class and treasurer of the sophomore class, a cheer leader and a member of the Hi-Y.

Martha Jean is the freshman swimming instructor here and took an active part in sports in high school.

Margie is a member of the college choir and plays each Monday for freshman chapel. At high school she was a Junior and Senior senator and was a member of the Quill and Scroll, and the National Honor Society.

Miss Rachel Royall was elected to serve as classman for the class of '46.

Candidates for the Freshman Commission are Dot Overstreet, Jane Philhower, Marjorie McIntyre, Louisa Dawson, Rosalie Jones, Leah Jordan, Glenn Ann Patterson, Minnie Lee Crumpler, Lucy Harvie, Agnes Stokes, Helen Stites, Ann Martin, Frances Satterfield, Ann Jacob, Nancy Courter, Kitty Maddox, Jackie Pardon, Margie Hewlett, Peggy Ross, Billy Waid.

"Murder of Lidice" Reviewed In Chapel

Sponsored by the finance committee of the college war council, a movie short, "Our Way of Life" was presented in chapel this morning. The program was introduced by Alice Nichols with a brief review of Edna St. Vincent Millay's new poem, "The Murder of Lidice". Alice not only reviewed the poem, but also gave the actual facts connected with the destruction of the Czech city and the annihilation of its people last June by the German Gestapo on the unproved suspicion that the assassins of Heydrick the Hangman, hated Gestapo Chief, were sheltered in the small, peaceful village.

Following Alice's talk, the patriotic movie short was presented by Mr. Wright of the Coca Cola Company, which produced the picture. Virginia Sedgley led the devotions.

Kitain, Violinist Returns Nov. 24

Lyceum Features Classical Music

Robert Kitain, distinguished young violinist, will be the guest artist at the first lyceum program, which will be held in the college auditorium one night during the week of November 24.

Kitain is the son of the well-known professor and composer, Mihail Kitain. At the age of ten he won the Alexander Glaznonow scholarship to the Imperial Conservatory of St. Petersburg, where he studied under Professor Leopold Auer and graduated with first prize. At 17, he made a triumphal tour of Russia. The critics immediately acclaimed him as the "leading and foremost violinist of Russia."

In 1925, he made his last consecutive sell-out tour of Russia and Siberia, giving 200 concerts. He continued his tour in the Far East, where he gave 185 concerts in Manchuria, China, Japan, the Philippines, and Dutch East Indies. In Tokio he made a veritable triumph before 10,000 people, and was immediately re-engaged for recitals.

European fame caused him to have a record-breaking box office for his American debut in Carnegie Hall, New York, in 1939, where he was greeted with tremendous enthusiasm by capacity audiences. Kitain immediately established himself as the most exciting new artist the music world has brought forth in several seasons.

Kitain has been enthusiastically received at the Stage Door Canteen in New York this past season. He appeared at a lyceum program last November in the State Teachers College auditorium and made a tremendous impression on his audience.

Following Kitain, the next Lyceum will feature Kryle and his Symphony Orchestra. Others scheduled for appearances this year are the Divi Dja Dancers, the Four Louises, and Louise Meiszner.

ACP Convention Features Schacher, Bellaire Nov. 5-7

Addresses by Dr. Gerhard Schacher, famous European economist, and Robert Bellaire, war correspondent, will highlight the Associated Collegiate Press Convention which will be held in Chicago's Knickerbocker Hotel on November 5-7.

Dr. Schacher, well-known in Europe for his books on current world affairs and as a foreign correspondent on the London News Chronicle, will address the convention delegates at the opening convocation on Thursday night. His subject will be "Why Hitler Cannot Win This War."

Robert Bellaire, former Tokio manager of the United Press, will speak at the Victory Banquet on Friday night. "I Was a Japanese Prisoner of War" will be his topic. Bellaire spent seven months interned in Japanese prison camps and has recently returned to this country in an exchange of war prisoners.

Among other speakers at the convention will be Herb Graffis, columnist on the Chicago Times; Howard Taylor, telegraph editor of the Chicago Tribune; Eddie Ricker promotion manager of the Chicago Sun; Turner Catledge, editor of the Sun and Vaughan Shoemaker, Pulitzer prize-winner.

On the lighter side of entertainment for convention delegates, among whom will be Winifred Wright, Ella Banks Weathers, Susie Moore, Anne Ellett, Elva Andrews, Sara Wayne France, and Jane Sanford, representing S. T. C., will be a surprise show on Thursday night by Lyres Players of the University of Chicago, a trip to the studios of WGN in Chicago, and an informal dance in the ballroom of the Knickerbocker Hotel.

The convention will also feature roundtable discussions on newspaper, magazine, and yearbook work. These will be led by various authorities in the fields.

Due to war conditions, this year's convention will probably be the last for the duration, and therefore is of extreme value to publication heads.

NOTICE:

There will be a meeting of all students in the hall presidents rooms tonight at 10 o'clock in the Main building and at 10:30 o'clock on Cunningham Hall. All students are required to come, as a tabulation of points for Student Standards will be made

A call down will be given anyone who fails to report.

23 Day Leave Cuts Fall Holiday

Christmas vacation will begin at noon December 15, Dr. J. L. Jarman, president of the college has revealed after attending a State Board of Education meeting in Richmond last week. Classes will be resumed on Thursday morning, January 7.

The extended Christmas holiday necessitates the elimination of Thanksgiving and Easter vacations for State Teachers College students. This applies to all institutions in the State under the jurisdiction of the State Board. The change in the holiday schedule has been enacted to help relieve the transportation difficulties during the vacation weeks.

Thanksgiving Day will be observed as a one-day holiday at S. T. C, but all students are expected to remain at school. No class cuts will be allowed at this time.

According to the present plan there will be no vacation in the spring.

The 23 day Christmas holiday demands that the examination schedule be moved forward several days As a result examinations for the fall quarter will begin on December 11, and all work will be completed by noon Tuesday, December 15

Students Make Plans For Programs During Education Week

Chapel programs, library exhibits, and prayers will mark the observance of American Education Week, November 8-12, at S. T. C. The programs will be centered around the theme "Education for Free Men", and will be introduced in chapel on Tuesday, November 9, by Hallie Hillsman with a talk on "Building Strong Bodies". Hallie is the president of the Athletic Association and chairman of the physical fitness committee of the college war council.

The theme will be further developed on Wednesday by Agnes Patterson, who will use as her topic, "Developing Loyal Citizens". On Thursday, Amy Read will speak on "Establishing Sturdy Characters", and Eleanor Feagans will talk on Friday on "Cultivating Knowledge and Skills". The programs will be concluded on Saturday by Eleanor Folk, whose subject will be "Strengthening Morale for Victory".

The devotions at chapel during the week will be led by students and will be selected to complement the educational theme. The morale committee of the college war council will place a collection of books and articles which deal with the problems of education in wartime on the exhibit table in the Browsing Room of the library.

American Education Week is promoted each year by the National Education Association. The programs here will be provided by Kappa Delta Pi.

Latin Honor Society Bids 4 Students

Four students have been bid recently by Sigma Pi Rho, honorary Latin fraternity. They are Frances Lee Hawthorne, Mary Wood Stone, Mary St. Clair Bugg, and Marjorie Culley.

Sigma Pi Rho was founded on the S. T. C. campus by Miss Minnie V. Rice in 1930. For two years it remained a local organization, but more recently has spread until it is now represented nationally by ten chapters. It is the only Latin fraternity in state teachers colleges.

FRESHMAN . . . . . HIGHLIGHTS

The freshmen join the upperclassmen on the way to a recent reception. The expressions of happiness and expectation are characteristic.

Editorial Reflections . .

Editors Armchair . . .

(Released by Associated Collegiate Press)

(The following rather salty lamentation was made by Joe Neiman, editor of the Connecticut Campus. At the time his paper was conducting a campaign against undesirable conditions in the college dining hall, thereby making relations with members of the administration somewhat strained.

Needless to say, what Neiman says, applies to almost all other editors, that of The Rotunda included.)

We have seen the dawn four times this week, and some day shall wax literary over the bright blue colors in the sky and the cold shivers that run up and down the spine at that hour. We have come out of exams with an empty feeling that betoken no good unless by divine intercession.

We have seen the time for reports come and go, and have watched helplessly or worked feverishly toward the deadline and torn the pages still hot from the typewriter scant minutes before class time. We have met our faculty, and looked up guiltily and wondered if they knew we had just cut the class.

We have gazed enviously at engineers because they work as hard as we do, but nobody gets mad at them. We have envied the chem students because they can leave the lab and it does not follow. We envy the football players because they are bruised physically; our soul is seared.

For an editor's life is not a happy one.

We have said kind things about people because they deserved to be said and unkind things because they were true and people have remembered only the unkind things. We have 99 mistakes and have corrected them, and the hundredth has slipped by and been there for all to see.

We have run a "campaign" to correct that which we have found is bad and have found that we are imperfect ourselves. Yet we cannot remain at peace with this world; for people view us as knights on white chargers who must bear the never-ending crusade against wrong and injustice.

We have had to judge and weigh the doings of life on this campus to put out a paper each week and every interest group has thought that its doings were the most gosh-awful important things that were happening. And there have been souls best let alone whose privacy we have had to disturb.

We have given groups more publicity than they have ever had before, and they have clamored that it is not enough. We have not always given credit where it is due, for we too are unjust . . . but not from intention. We have heard words of praise, and it has given us heart to say:

Damn the torpedoes! Full speed ahead.

We have had to smile when we were angry, and to placate where we would rather fight. We have watched sincere people inflict great hurts because they were not tolerant, and have tried hard to be tolerant of them. And we realize keenly our privilege to get so great an opportunity for self discipline.

We have tried to teach our staff the ABC's and been often discouraged; and realize that we will be lucky to learn them ourselves by the time of graduation. We have been promised "copy" by Sunday, and it has come in on Tuesday; and we have been blamed for not being able to find and correct the errors in the rush to get a paper out at all.

We are tired in mind and exhausted in body. Willingly would we transfer the cares and duties of office to other shoulders so that we may sleep. But man must accept his destiny; there are no other shoulders.

At least, this week, we hope WE shall make no enemies. In our editorial column we publish a piece on "The Beauties of Autumn". It is written in basic English, with the kind help of Professor Tilley, so that hidden meanings and implications may not be found there by those who would look for them.

About . . . The Holidays

Perhaps enough has been said concerning the Thanksgiving Day holiday. But one thing more: Remember the college circus on Saturday of that week-end.

Ask The Best Date down for that and give up those ideas of traveling.

A Thing of Beauty . . .

Across from the campus of our school on the lawn of Johns Memorial Episcopal Church stands one of God's miracles — a comely tree. When Mother Nature created this tree she must needs have made it a favorite child, for asuredly it has he best in shape, coloring and situation. Not long ago the doting mother began work on its autumnal wardrobe, and a glorious one it is, now completed.

But already the tree has begun to disrobe, dropping a gorgeous leaf now and then. In few weeks the tree will be bare, cold looking, and stark. How then do we justify Keats' immortal lines,

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever;
Its loveliness increases; it will never Pass into nothing?"

Gleanings

By Virginia Kent Sedgley

World news, on the whole, looks very promising for the Allies. We are, at least, holding our own. Here in the United States the situation isn't as rosy. Congress can well afford to hang its head in shame after the deliberate delay of the teen-age draft bill until after Tuesday's election. It seems that there are still some "patriotic" Americans who put their own job above the welfare of the country as a whole. Not only are the American people losing faith in their representatives but the United States is losing faith and trust in the minds of the people of other nations. It is especially noticeable after Mr. Willkie's speech of October 26.

In this speech he urged greater cooperation, especially in the field of production. He also emphasized the need for a global peace. This global peace will mean a fair consideration of both the victor and vanquished person's viewpoint. He said that we must build up the attitude of a global peace if we wanted a permanent peace.

In the South Seas the big news is that the Aussies have recaptured from the Japanese the tiny but important town of Kokoda and its airfield in Eastern New Guinea. Berlin, on the other hand, reports that the American tanks have been repulsed on Guadalcanal in Solomon Islands. The dispatch said that the Americans have withdrawn to the eastern part of the island. The inference is that Henderson Field has fallen to the Japs. However, no official word has been received on the matter.

Stalingrad still holds though both sides have suffered heavy losses. The Germans are now driving toward the Caucasus oil fields hoping to reach them before Winter sets in.

Spanish Teacher Relates Thrilling Experiences Connected With Work

By ELIZABETH McCOY

"It's fun to know Spanish!" exclaimed Miss Emily Barksdale, in reply to my probings into the "past" of our new assistant professor of modern languages. "It grows and leads from one exciting thing to another," she continued in her spontaneous manner, eyes dancing. "It has led me to Puerto Rico, Spain, and Mexico,—and has drawn me into many unusual experiences."

And then she related the delightful story of her career as a teacher. An intriguing offer of a position as an English teacher in a Puerto Rican high school piqued her curiosity, and became the launching of her interest in Spanish. She told me that all Puerto Rican students are required to take all of their subjects in English after they reach high school. While there, Miss Barksdale took an extension course, and received credit in Spanish from the University of Puerto Rico.

Prior to the Spanish Civil War, Miss Barksdale travelled all over Spain. She, and her friends, were nearly always mistaken to be French, because they were so few American tourists in Spain at that time. Imagine the thrill of spending the night in an ancient monastery at Montserrat, and of visiting the colorful Spanish night clubs.

"Out of one summer vacation in Mexico," Miss Barksdale went on, "grew the desire to return to that country for a more prolonged visit." This, she accomplished by enrolling at the historical University of Mexico, which is the oldest University in the western hemisphere, having been founded in 1551. There, the morning and early part of the afternoon is reserved for research and study, and classes are conducted from four o'clock 'til eight o'clock. The main reason for this unusual schedule is that most of the professors are professional and business men, who conduct their business during the day, and teach in the evening. These men, due to their direct contact with their chosen fields, make excellent professors.

Upon leaving the University, Miss Barksdale taught in a fashionable girls' academy in Mexico City. This school for Mexican, French, German, and English girls was organized like our American high schools.

Miss Barksdale's next venture was as professor of Spanish and English at Pan-American School in Richmond. Only to one familiar with Spanish could such unusual things happen as did to Miss Barksdale there. She had the opportunity to interpret a speech over the radio for the famed Spanish surrealist artist, Salvador Dali. But, to cap the climax, she became entangled in a murder case! A Cuban boy was held for murder, and she was asked to interpret for the boy's mother when the verdict was given. Even after the boy became a member of the chain gang, she translated letters from his family before he was allowed to receive them.

"The present enthusiasm over the Spanish language is not just a flurry of interest," Miss Barksdale assured me, "it is of real importance, and will continue to grow. And remember it's such fun! Why don't you enroll for a course?" she accosted me suddenly.

"I'm sold" was the only answer. Who can resist such fascination?

Breaking Dishes in Male Animal Creates Properties Problems

By MARILYN BELL

Old dishes and R-C Cola bottles return to dust rapidly when the animal instinct displays itself in the fall production of "The Male Animal". One scene calls for the breaking of three plates, which are obtained for practice from the dining room discards, and the smashing of a thermos jug, represented by the cola bottle.

Sally Robertson, property chairman, remarked that it is difficult to keep the cast furnished with dishes because they not only break them but play a football game with them on the floor. Among the other interesting properties there is a most essential hot water bottle and a favorite record of several seasons ago, "Who".

Under the chairmanship of Susan Durrette the staging will not be varied, for the scene of the entire play is laid in the professor's living room. Pieces of furniture from all over the school are being borrowed for the set.

Nelle White, lighting chairman, added that the lights will be primarily like those found in the average living room. There will be little dimming and no blackouts.

The play is under the direction of Miss Leola Wheeler, director of the S. T. C. Dramatic Club.

Letters to the Editor . . .

Dear Editor:-

The majority of the changes in school this year are quite admirable, but one condition exists that I and a number of students wish to change.

Last year the infirmary was a place that one could go when she was sick without any quaims and with assurance that she would be treated as nearly as possible as she was at home. This year girls have gone there to stay as much as a week without seeing anyone except the hospital staff. People seriously ill in hospitals are allowed some company, while we go in the infirmary for days without any contact with the outside world.

Now, I am not advocating visiting for people with contagious diseases, but if anyone had anything "catching", would the authorities put them in wards and in rooms with other girls? This excludes practically all cases that the school hospital cares for. Therefore, why aren't we allowed visitors?

I realize that continuous visits throughout the day would upset the hospital routine, but why can't there be visiting hours as there were last year?

Can't something be done about this situation to keep girls who have a horror of spending lonely hours shut up in a room for days from cutting classes and dragging around the halls when they should be in the infirmary?

Sincerely,
A Healthy Student

BETWEEN YOU 'N ME AND . . .

The Gatepost

(Who Hears An Awful Lot)

What a week end! What a week end! From all accounts everyone had a lovely time anyway.

Orchids to Betty Sexton and her cohorts, namely, the Cotillion goats, for their super duper decorations in the gym Saturday night. Pulses ran high that night anyway, what with V.M.I., V.P.I., W. and L., Death Valley, Camp Pickett, and other points far and wide sending their choicest male animals for the occasion.

Taking good care of at least one V. P. I.er was Judy Eason, and who would blame her? After all, he is Sonny, of the Ring Dance fame. Barbara White, however, seems to be of the opinion that there is nothing wrong with V.M.I. (Who said there was, anyway?)

When the roll was called, A. P. was in there with bells on and a young man from W. and L. in the bargain.

The Death Valley mob was as always prominent.

Ruthie Parker deserted V. P. I. for a Tarheel this past week end and there is talk that she and Evelyn Christian heading Chapel Hill-wards for the fall German.

Does anybody—or does everybody—know why Langley Wood is never where he should be when he is wanted?

And could somebody tell me what Tedo Savage was doing with Budgie Butzner's blanket a little while back?

It was really tough about Jane Smith's date for the dance—he got hung up in Lynchburg, and frantically called Jane here at S. T. C. But for what must have seemed hours he could only talk with another "jane".

Speaking of Tedo—we were a while back—it seems that Tedo has a brother, and that this brother likes to play bridge . . . . But then that's a long story.

the "Y"

By LOUISE BELL

Since the election of the Freshman Commission yesterday, the Freshman class will be looking to the commission leadership and for class connection with the Y. W. C. A. itself. It is a treasured opportunity to be able to serve on the commission and most certainly a big responsibility.

Plans have not yet been completed as to the rolling of surgical bandages. However, it is hoped that there may be a special room at school where the work may be done in order to avoid a trip to the Red Cross room downtown. The Service Committee asks that those expecting to volunteer have their schedule arranged as to the time when they may help.

The Church cooperative committee has something new to offer. Beginning this Sunday, November 7, there will be a poster on the Bulletin Board each Saturday night announcing the pastor of each of the four main churches.

For several years the Catholic Church at Crewe has been sending a priest to Farmville for Mass on Sunday. This year the service is being held in the Small Auditorium at 10 A. M. College girls, soldiers, and the surrounding community are attending.

Since next week is both Prayer and World Fellowship Week and American Education Week, Prayers programs will center around both. There will be special programs for each, including a talk by Eleanor Folk on "Serving Wartime Needs", in connection with education, and an inter-country dialogue, emphasizing World Fellowship. There will be special music at some of these programs.

Betty Boutchard and Pagie Francis are snapped at a recent USO dance, combining their patriotic duty with pleasure.

Finders–Please Return

Perched in outstanding solitude on the long-suffering Home Office mantel sat a solitary ear-ring. Parked outside the door in the Rotunda was a lone, tan suitcase, sadly lacking identification tags. Silent aftermaths and the only known casualties of another S. T. C. week end.

The lost-and-found situation in this school is one of ever-increasing complications. The above mentioned items are trivial in comparison to the usual line of lost articles turned in at the home-office. At the first of this week a half-knitted sweater was returned to a grateful owner, and it hasn't been so very long ago that a pocketbook containing a considerable sum of cash was restored to the rightful person. (Note: 'Tis a happy thought to keep full means of identification somewhere inside your current catch-it-all.) Nor is the knitting confined to sweaters, or the pocketbooks to the large variety. Oh, no . . . there's quite an accumulation of half-done socks and numerous small change-purses, waiting to be reclaimed.

And should you wish to check on a missing fountain-pen, or perhaps a misplaced kerchief, Miss Mary's box is about the best bet yet. Her collection also includes eye-glasses, pencils, hankies, a few books, an occasional bracelet or so, and, the latest addition, a little black hat with a tantalizing veil. On dance week ends, especially, evening-bags and wraps predominate, but trench-coats hold their own, too, in everyday campus life.

Despite the fact that a weekly list of found articles is posted on the main bulletin board, these and any number of other carelessly strewn objects are patiently reposing in their place in Miss Mary's office until the time shall come when repentant owners meekly inquire as to whether "anyone has turned it in here?"

'Tis a commendable thing to add that nine times out of ten that particular treasure has been "turned in here", and it isn't hard to be convinced that honesty is the best policy.

BEWILDERED----

Or One Night In a Brawlroom

By KATHERINE HUTCHINSON

Soldiers, girls, cokes, cigarettes, soldiers, bumpy bus rides, jeeps, soldiers, jitterbugs, dreamy waltz, soldiers, songs, soldiers, ad infinitum are some of the characteristics of a dance at the Service Clubs at Camp Pickett.

Come and see for yourself. We guarantee to one and all a wonderful time.

It is 7 o'clock on Saturday night. You are dressed in your best bib and tucker and your second-best shoes. (It would be fatal to wear those new high-heeled red ones that pinch just a tiny bit.)

Along with some 50 others S. T. C'ers you pile into three buses. If you belong to that type of people who always have fate against them you will land on the back seat. Keep your chin up, however, and join us in singing "I've Been Working on the Railroad." and other bus-happy classics.

At long last you see the little sentry house appear. Here you are stopped by the sternest sort of M. P. given the once over, and allowed to depart.

Then comes what is known as the "ordeal", or "running the gauntlet." Your bus creaks to a stop, and, weary and windblown, with your heart in your mouth, you descend the steps of the bus and ascend the steps of the service club through a staring crowd of soldiers six or seven deep.

Then there comes that mad rush for the powder room. Coats come off, lipstick goes on, and hair-dos get adjusted. Chaperones keep urging you to hurry. You finally join the line for the grand march.

Here by some prearranged plan with destiny, the short girls draw the very tall men, the tall girls the very short men, and the middle-sized girls the less than middle-sized men.

Then the fun begins.

"Paul's the name. What's yours?"

"Jeanne."

"Where are you from?"

"Roanoke."

"I've been to Roanoke a couple of times. What part of the city do you live in?"

"Break, please?"

"Thank you."

"Thank you."

"So you are going to be a teacher?"

"Oh, no, I couldn't possibly."

"Then why go to a teachers college?"

"Its this way—"

"Break?"

"Thank you."

"Thank you."

"Where have you been all evening, honey, I've been looking for a real southern doll like you."

"Thank you, but I'm from New Hampshire."

Look of baffled bewilderment covers his face.

"Break?"

"Do you jitterbug?"

"A little but I'm not very good."

He jitterbugs. A committee member comes up.

"Sorry, but we're not allowing jitterbugging".

"O. K. soldier."

"Break?"

"I've got two degrees from the Univeristy of Ohio. I studied law. Only practiced three months when the draft came along.

"I reckon they can use good legal minds like yours in the army."

"Break?"

"Have you ever realized the full significance of prehistoric man?"

"No, really, it must be most interesting."

"According to analytical study we have ascertained that the Neanderthal man—"

"Break?"

"Wouldn't you like to have a drink or something?"

"I certainly would!" (You've had two cokes and a sundae but this one is cute.)

So the evening passes, one khaki-clad man after another. Short or tall, large or small, they want a date. Somehow it finally ends.

Back on the bus, you retreat to the comfortable back seat.

Goodbye. It's been wonderful!

Just Looking, Thanks

Hallowe'en was celebrated at S. T. C. by music and merriment. Saturday night featured Cotillion with music by Freddie Lee and his orchestra, yellow and green decorations by the goats and attractive dates contributed by various members of the club

In addition to the first dance of the year here, many girls attended the dance at Camp Pickett which according to reports was as super as usual.

And then, of course, there were the ones who spent the week-end at home. Among them were Nancy Myles, Mary Frances Moon, Cecile Parr, Marie Davis, Spotswood Hunnicutt, Dorothy Anderson, Betty Brothers, Anna C. Bugg, Edna Brown, Aloise Boswell, Frances Cleaton, Minnie Lee Crumpler, Ann Cawthorne, Virginia Corbin, Joyce Cheatwood, Charlotte Corell, Evelyn Chenault, Harriette Dowdy, Eloise Galloday, Betty Jackson, Faye Nimmo, Marian Orange, Ann Robins, Kate Thompson, Nannie Webb and Betty Ann Wimbish.

22 Students Attend Church Conferences

Twenty-two students will represent S. T. C. at several Student Church conferences this week end. Going from S. T. C. to the Episcopal Youth Conference in Richmond will be Jane Waring Ruffin, Mary St. Clair Bugg, and Betty Cock, who is secretary of the Youth Division. The Youth Division of the Convention of the Diocese of Southern Virginia will be held in the Church of the Good Shepherd in Richmond on November 6 and 7. The program will be based on the theme "Conversion to Christ for Worship and Service". Several representatives are expected from Hampden-Sydney, and Rev. O. Worth May, Episcopal rector will accompany the students and lead one of the discussion groups.

Those girls planning to attend

Color Cup Traditions Add Spice To Sports

An introduction to the Color Cup is one of great importance as the well-known cup is one of symbolism and tradition to those of Farmville S. T. C. To the freshmen and new girls who have just arrived on our campus, we want to impress the ideals and meaning of the cup which is located on the mantle in the Rotunda.

As each class enters S. T. C they are at once known as Green and White or Red and White, and a sister class is the class of the corresponding color. The sports program set up in the school is arranged so that practically all girls may take some part in one or more events. In many of the sports, contests provide entertainment and preceding practices enable a better developed skill. Therefore, in order to promote a greater spirit of competition the different contests in each leading sport are held.

Points are given the winning color in the contest and at the end of each season a total of points for Red and White and Green and White reveal the yearly winner. To the winning color goes the honor of carrying the colors on the cup. Today you see those of red and white because of a victory over their opponents last year.

Victory for the color cup does not come out of one or two working hard to bring a high score, but requires each color working as a group in a good clean sportsmanlike way. All makes for a team and real fun.

You are now hearing about color rush and the "big hockey games". These are two important events in the college life of freshmen and of all upperclassmen. Although the Color Rush, which is displaying of color banners on each building, does not give points toward the cup, it does set forth that real spirit before the traditional hockey games of the sports season. Freshmen competes against their sophomore friends in the big game and if the losers are required to continue the waring of Rat Caps until Christmas. But, with a victory—off go the caps!

You can see now that there is a meaning and strong feeling towards the little cup you pass by many times a day. Its years have required to continue the wearing the streamers and to those of Farmville, it's the tradition.

Practice For Class Swimming Teams Begins This Week

An all out call has been sounded for girls in becoming members of their class swimming team. Practices have begun and will continue each Tuesday and Thursday nights at 9 P M. at the College pool.

Ellen Ebel, manager of general swimming, will select girls from each class to head the class practices. In order to qualify for a team, eight practices must be had by each girl. The pool is open on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 5 P. M. for general swimming and practices may be made at this period. Each half hour of swimming counts as a practice.

Relays, races, and diving events comprise the contest which entitles the winning color to ten points on the color cup.

Simmons Manages Ping Pong Tourney

A ping-pong tournament under the supervision of Dottie Sue Simmons, manager, is now underway. The tournament will be conducted over a period of several weeks, ending in mid-December.

Arrangements have been made for three sections of the school to conduct games, the winners in each group will then compete. Therefore, for the benefit of all girls in Annex, Student, and White House, the shower room tables are available: Bobby Scott has the equipment needed.

On Main, Gym, and Library the main recreational hall has several tables for contest matches and the Courter twins are in charge of equipment. Juniors and seniors play in the senior "rec" and secure necessary balls and nets from Elizabeth Walls.

On the A. A. bulletin board there is a poster for all who wish to enter the tournament to sign up. Note the section you are scheduled for, and begin practicing for the big games

Town girls use the shower room tennis tables for all games.

Added To Staff

These appointments have been made as a result of a four week's apprenticeship during which time these girls were given experience in the fields in which they were interested.

Try-outs are now being held for membership on the editorial staff, and try-outs for all positions on the staff will be held in the winter quarter.

V. P. I. with the loss of only one game this season, is well on the way to a real take-off for the oncoming Thanksgiving clash with V. M. I. The traditional gridiron classic will be played in the Victory Stadium at Roanoke on Thanksgiving Day. The usual large crowd is expected. Both Hobblers and Keydets have proved they can play ball this year, despite heavy war odds on team players; and their seasonal clash will show two teams on the twenty-sixth of this month.

Looking back over the past few weeks we note the excellent fighting spirit and team work shown by both schools. This past Saturday found the Virginia Tech eleven monopolizing the Virginia Cavalier goal line as the University team was set back 20 to 14 before a large crowd in Norfolk.

And in Lexington the Davidson team upset the Virginia Military eleven 24 to 6. The Keydets were off to a bad start because of the absence of their captain and star football player, Joe Muha. Fullback Muha remained on the bench most of the game with an injured ankle received during earlier practices. Dick DeShazo, promising sophomore triple-threader led the attack and began by chalking up a score of 6-0. But, interference from Davidsons' alert passing offense overwhelmed all V. M. I. threat and in spite of the fine playing of Ward, DeShazo, and Arthur Seay of the Keydets, the oncoming Wildcats took the ball in pay roll territory.

In the Big Six competition we find the University of Richmond Spiders one win to the good as they scored an 8-6 victory over the Generals of Washington and Lee last Saturday. Jack Wilbourne sported his great kicking ability and played excellent football throughout the game with his broken-field running and accurate booting all over City Stadium. The Spiders couldn't make a dent in the W. & L. line, during the first quarter, and it was not until the second period that the decision to "go around" was decided. With a safety from the Richmond team, the Generals were defeated and no further score was made.

Noted Hockey Prof Will Teach Here

A general hockey instruction class under the supervision of Miss Appleby, noted English hockey professor, will be conducted this week over a period of several days. Miss Appleby has been invited to our campus and will teach techniques and give personal instructions during regular practices.

Miss Appleby is director of a hockey camp at Mount Pocono, Pa. during the summer season. Here girls from all over the United States are trained in hockey techniques. Several Farmville girls have had such instructions at this camp.

Preceding her visit here and while on tour in Virginia, she will visit nearby colleges giving the same general instruction.

All girls are invited to attend the classes under her direction.

Class hockey managers have been appointed for each of the four classes. Heading the senior class team will be Elizabeth Walls, Mildred Droste for the juniors. Helen Wilson, sophomore team, and Margaret Orange with the freshmen.

General practice begins at 5 P M. each afternoon, and girls may meet on the athletic field at this time to receive general coaching and instruction.

Teams from each class have not worked together, but as soon as the leaders organize the classes general games will be played between each of the class teams.

Election Returns Reveal 12 Winners

Commission Meets To Elect Officers

Twelve freshmen were elected yesterday to compose the Freshman Commission of the class of '46. From the twenty girls who were nominated at a recent class meeting, twelve were chosen members yesterday by secret ballot. These girls are Alice and Nancy Courter, Minnie Lee Crumpler, Lucy Harvie, Glenn Ann Patterson, Jane Philhower, Frances Satterleid, Helen Stites, and Agnes Stokes.

The Freshman Commission is the division of the Y. W. C. A. that concerns itself with the freshmen in their Y. W. relationship. The commission is elected each November for the period of one year. The new members will plan and carry out all Y.W. orientation plans for the freshman of next year. This year, they will have charge of the freshman "Y" Club, and of other freshman activities. The first meeting of the new Commission will be tonight in the cabinet room at 9 o'clock.

Frances Lee, as class president, is also a member of the Commission, while Ella Banks Weathers, Freshman Counselor, is advisor of the group.

Versatile Scottish Student Praises American Vitality

By JANE WARING RUFFIN

"Americans want so much from life," remarked Margaret Pattle, freshman from Glasgow, Scotland, in a recent press interview. "Perhaps," she added, "that is because they have always had so much."

"I love America", Margaret went on, "and if my parents could be with me, I'd like to live here." She came to America two years ago upon the invitation of her cousin, Dr. Raymond Adams, English professor at University of North Carolina, following severe illness. She graduated from high school in Chapel Hill, N. C., and her comment about American schools was that "they are more informal than those in Scotland. We follow a text book more strictly and have very little reference work", she continued.

Margaret's father lived in the States for ten years so she was prepared in a way for the American way of life. She saw this continent first at Halifax, Nova Scotia, and was awed by the lights. "Lights had been out in Scotland for a year, and I just stood on deck and stared. It was wonderful!"

"I miss the mountains so very much," Margaret continued in her precise accented English. Her eyes shone when she described her home in Scotland where she looked upon snow capped mountains most of the year. "But I've been thrilled by the friendliness of everyone here."

Many were the adjustments, Margaret had to make in America. The foods are different—she had never eaten sweet potatoes, corn, fried chicken, spoon bread, nor had she drunk iced tea. She told of an embarrassing experience when she first ate spoon bread at a party given for her by one of her cousin's friends in Chapel Hill.

"And I can't get used to so many cars and such great distances", Margaret remarked. The drive from Canada to New York she described—"We went miles and miles and seemed to get nowhere".

Margaret's pet peeve is that people in America inevitably think of England and not of the British Isles or that they make no distinction between England and Scotland. Someone even went so far once as to ask her if Scotland were in the war!

The vivacious Scottish student has a four year leave from her native land and plans to work with children on her return home. Registered as a special student at S. T. C., she is taking the courses she thinks she will need most for this work, and courses in fields she has not had the opportunity to study before.

Asked why she selected Farmville, Margaret immediately replied, "because it was the nearest school that had what I wanted."

Side by side in her dormitory room wave the stars and stripes, and the combined crosses of St. Patrick, St. George, and St. Andrew.

To Appear In "The Male Animal"

Theme Centers On Mississippi

Anne Ellett, senior from Jennings Ordinary, was elected general chairman of May Day at a meeting of the student body last week. Assisting her as business manager will be Rosalie Rogers, from Melfa; Winifred Wright, from Arlington, in charge of transportation; Charlotte Greely, from Roanoke, as chairman of the costume committee; Susie Moore, from Richmond, in charge of staging and properties; and Betty Sexton, from Raleigh, N. C., chairman of the dance committee.

River Theme

The theme of this year's May Day will be a river, the Mississippi. As the backbone of the United States, the theme will be developed symbollically by a portrayal of the people who live on the great river, and who work there. The influence of the different nationalities and races represented will be shown as well as the varied physical and climatic conditions. Beginning at the source of the river in the north, the dance groups will follow the course southward to the mouth in Louisiana, picturing this life as the core of the United States. The effects will be developed by dance, music and costume. Music will be centered around the songs of Stephen Foster.

Miss Emily Kauzlarich, of the physical education department, will be the faculty adviser for May Day.

Last year the theme for May Day, was colonial, and the story centered around Alexander Spotswood's trip across the Blue Ridge mountains.

Debate Club Initiates Nine New Members

Nine girls were issued bids and initiated into the Debate Club last Thursday, Ann Randolph, president announced. The girls are Mary Brenson Walker, Betty Cock, Kathryn Hutchinson, Betty Adams, Virginia Via, Mildred Alice, Shirley Easterley, Virginia Terrell, and Barbara Surface.

Following the initiation, the Debate Club members made plans for the year, and discussed the question for the Pi Kappa Delta, national honorary forensic fraternity.

Combined Choruses To Present Concert

The Glee Club from Camp Pickett will join the College Choir and Choral Club in the annual Christmas concert in the S.T.C. auditorium on December 13. Alfred L. Strick, head of the Department of Music, revealed recently.

Included on the program will be prominent radio and concert artists who are stationed at Camp Pickett. Commanding Officer Colonel John Marky has made the arrangements in cooperation with Mr. Strick.

The Christmas concert is given annually by the choirs of the school on the Sunday night before vacation begins and the program is made up of Christmas carols and other sacred music prepared by the music groups. Traditionally the program is followed by the students carrying the Christmas spirit to the people of Farmville in carols, but the date of the concert has been moved backward because of the extended Christmas holiday.

Circus To Arrive Here November 28 For One Night Stand

November 28 marks the date of the annual circus to be held at 8 o'clock p. m. in the College gymnasium.

Head of the stunt committees are Fiddle Haymes representing the senior class, Louise Andrews and Louise McCorkle from the junior class, Betty Kiger of the sophomore class, and Phyllis Watts representing the freshman class.

Tickets will go on sale sometime within the coming week. The prices will be ten cents for S. T. C. students and fifteen cents for outsiders.

The theme of the circus will be announced later.

Town Girls Compile Plans for Projects

Plans for the year were presented at a meeting of the Town Girls Club last week. In connection with war work two immediate projects were formulated, the completion of the afghan for Camp Pickett before Christmas, and the assembling of ten First Aid Kits. Louise McCorkle and Ruth Brooks will be in charge of this work and further plans will be made later.

Sixteen new members were formally initiated into the club at the meeting. Hallie Hillsman read the constitution to the prospective members and Mary St. Clair Bugg, president, stated the objectives of the organization.

Upon the resignation of Rosemary Elam as secretary, Carol Diggs was elected to fill the position.

Service Men Honored on Second Night Of Two-Night Dramatic Production

Starring Dodie Jones, of Radford, and Richard Cornwell, of Fredericksburg, the S. T. C. Thespians and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs open the dramatic season at 8:30 Friday night, November 13, with James Thurber and Elliott Nugent's "The Male Animal". The play will be repeated on Saturday night and will be sponsored by the Lions Club of Farmville for the benefit of the Servicemen's Center.

A rip roaring comedy, one of last season's Broadway smash hits, the play is directed by Miss Leola Wheeler. Assisting her are Nelle White, in charge of lighting; Jane Smith, costume chairman; Susan Durrett, directing the staging; Sally Robertson, in charge of properties; and Lucille Lewis, who will supervise make-up.

Education Week Observed at S.T.C.

Leaders Discuss Character Building

Education Week on the Farmville State Teachers College campus began Tuesday, November 10, with an address in chapel by Hallie Hillsman, president of the Student Athletic Association. She spoke on "Building Strong Bodies".

Emphasizing the fact that a sound mind in a sound body is still fundamentally necessary today, Hallie stressed the fact that students should take advantage of the excellent facilities in the athletic department. She stated that the ultimate success of any nation at war depends upon the physical strength and endurance of its people.

Wednesday morning Agnes Patterson, president of the Student Government, spoke on "Developing Loyal Citizens". She developed this topic by citing eight specific points: that a citizen should first be loyal to himself as a human being of dignity and worth, that he should be loyal to the principle of human equality and brotherhood, and that he must be loyal to the process of discussion, criticism, and group discussion. The citizen should also be loyal to honesty, fairmindedness, and the scientific spirit;

Library Regulations Revised, Simplified By Head Librarian

All of the books shelved in the Browsing Room of the S. T. C. Library may now be taken from the library for the same two week period in effect at the main desk of the Library, announces LeRoy C. Merritt, librarian. A self-charging system has been placed into effect which requires only that the student sign and leave in the Browsing Room desk the card found in the pocket of the book. Books are then due two weeks from the date they are taken, and must be returned to the circulation desk on the main floor of the Library.

The books in the Browsing Room will this year be made up of two distinct collections which will change from time to time as it is discovered which books prove interesting to the students and which books might just as well be shelved in the library stacks. One of these collections, located in the large section of shelving above the magazines, will consist of the world's great books, of those books which are generally recognized as being well worth reading for the intellectual stimulation and general culture to be gained from them.

The other collection will consist of general recent and popular books of fiction, biography, travel, poetry and drama selected almost

The New York Post has said of the play that it is continuously amusing and the New York Times added "that there is more than meets the funny bone in this scrawled lampoon on the civilized male at bay".

The play is the English story of an English professor, Tommy Turner (Richard Cornwell) who almost loses his wife Ellen (Dodie Jones) to her former sweetheart, Joe Ferguson (Jack Adams) who returns to the Homecoming game at Midwestern University where Tommy is on the faculty. The matter is further complicated by the fact that Tommy's position on the staff is endangered by his determination to read a letter of which the Board of Trustees does not approve. To increase the difficulty, Tommy gets drunk with one of the students, making a hilarious scene, and ends in a fight with Joe.

Large Cast

Others cast in the play are Ralph Hagood, of Danville, as Dean of English; Al Phillips, of Fredericksburg, as Midwestern's current football star; Tedo Savage, of Fredericksburg in the role of the editor of the Literary Magazine; Betty Ellis, of Miami, Fla., as Ellen's younger sister; Frances Ferguson of Prospect, as wife of the president of the Board of Trustees; Virginia Mae Ellett, of Crewe, as wife of the Dean of English; David Crute, of Farmville, as the president of the Board of Trustees; Dixie Roundy, of Farmville, as the colored maid, and Langley Wood, of Fredericksburg, as reporter for the Literary Magazine.

Officers of the club in charge of the play are Elsie Stossel, president; Hannah Lee Crawford, vice-president; and Helen DeLong, treasurer.

Lyceums To Feature Kitain, Kryl In First Programs of Year

Robert Kitain, who will appear in Farmville on Saturday evening, November 21, on the first lyceum program will open his program of violin music with Tartini's "The Devil's Thrill", followed by Mozart's "Concerto No. 5 in A Minor".

The second part of his program will be composed of "Clair De Lune", by Debussy; Tchaikovsky's "Melodie"; Moussorsky's "Hopak"; "Palba" from The Golden Age" by Shastakovich, and "Schenzo-Tarantella" by Wienlowski.

The second lyceum program to be presented the following week will feature Bohumin Kryl, who will bring his symphony orchestra to State Teachers College on Tuesday, November 24.

Kryl, known to Americans of half a century ago as the world's 'greatest cornetist' is a former student of the late John Phillip Sousa, The March King. He is still recognized as one of the world's best authorities on arrangements and symphonic music.

Will "The Animal" Make History?

In attempting to dissect "The Male Animal" in their opening performance this year, S. T. C.'s Dramatic Club and the Jongleurs of Hampden-Sydney College have selected a hard nut, one that will not easily be cracked. Their presentation of the well-known comedy will have to be better than best, for the audiences on Friday and Saturday nights will be particularly critical ones, and justly so. They will be using Broadway and Hollywood as standards for judgment and comparison. The S. T. C.-H.-S. presentation will have to surpass even the heights of sound college dramatic production to which they have heretofore soared.

When the curtain rises on the dramatic talent in these two colleges Friday night, the score will be 0-0 in the last minute of play, the first down, one foot to go for the critics in the audience. If they are to thwart this attack, the college dramatists will have to exhibit All-American play and players.

Re Patria . . .

If American armies decided to 'put off' fighting for a week; if our naval forces determined to halt the hunt for enemy submarines until next month—how long would America remain free? This is a war of minutes; procrastination has become synonymous with perfidy. While we can't think of one person who hasn't said "I'm going to start buying War Stamps without fail!", we can think of numerous cases in which they just 'forgot' to do so.

It is vitally important for students to invest their dimes, quarters, and dollars in the United States as regularly and as systematically as do their parents and friends and friends invest their pay-dollars. It is vitally important that they do so wholeheartedly.

So enlist now one hundred percent in the 10 per cent Allowance Plan being instigated by the College War Council. Your support in making this a success will mean one more slap at that Jap.

The Rotunda REVERBERATES

Statistics are fast proving that this column is the product of evil, sinister, maneuvertings, that it is manhandled by a prejudiced clique of mordacious reporters. Formerly labeled The Gatepost, it proceeds incognito until further notice. Its authors are stooping to an all-time low in 'dirt journalism' and are now requesting their readers to make suggestions for a more novel John Henry and more novel material to fill its lines. The motto from now on is "You Name It and We'll Print It".

We meekly mention the fact that the delegation to the ACP convention in the Great Lake City last week escaped The Loop unharmed. Ricardo's held no horrors for two of the venturesome seven: Wright and Ellett. Nor did near-by Glenview Naval Air Base harbor unpleasant memories for Moore, Sleepy Sanford, and Ellett again. Tales of Toledo intermingled with sighs 514 were just about all Weathers and France brought back. And Active Andrews, completely showered by orchids, telegrams, and specials while there, returned from Chicago quite elated over Bill and Jonesy.

Some anonymous genius inquired about Bee Reid from a S.T.C. girl in the "Do you know who" game. He wanted to know, quite seriously, if Bee was crazy. - - - - - - True to Maroon and Orange, the loyal supporters traveled down to Richmond for the game. Dee-dee Parker sported two escorts, and with a shortage of men, too. Gracie Hutchison showed more than just interest in a certain V.P.I. player, namely Horace Pearce. Having a private Ring Figure is the thing to do. Ask Marilyn Bell; she had one last week end. - - - - - - Pagie Francis was seen at the bus station with none other than Johnny last Sunday. Um, old flames never die. - - - - - Ordinarily, Eleanor Biese's boy friend in England would have got the anniversary telegram she sent, but this is war, and Eleanor is worried for fear he didn't. - - - - - Giggy Smith Quadruple dated with three other Smith's Saturday night. Smell world, ain't it? - - - - - Droste's Tom was here this week end. Need I say more? - - - - - The fires still burn for Kendall Nottingham, and that miniature is there to prove it. - - - - Sherry Knight and her prospective husband paid a visit. The big event is going to be Christmas, we hear. - - - -

Question of the Week

What Improvements Would You Like to Have Made In Your College Paper?

Ed. Note: This question was originally asked to satisfy the incessant curiosity of the editors as to how The Rotunda can be improved. It was not intended for publication, but since its content has been one of frequent comment among may students recently, the answers now warrant public display.)

Virginia Shackelford: I like the Rotunda just as it is and look forward to it every Wednesday.

Betty Sexton: I would like to see more news about the different organizations on campus. I'm for a dirt column but not one that refers to the same group all the time.

Madge Sprinkle: I would like to see more humorous articles.

Betty Youngberg: The Rotunda is one of the best college papers I have seen, but the dirt column seems a bit naive for the mentality of college students. Certainly, there ought to be more variety.

Alice Seebert: It's an excellent college paper. But I think the underclassmen should be played up, too.

Warwick Mitchell: I would like to see more features, especially those which bring to our attention things that are happening around school.

Jane Danby: It's a darn good paper. Let's have more letters to the editor. We are always complaining among ourselves about things around school. Why not put it on paper?

Patsy Connelly: I like the editorial and sport pages very much. I cast my vote especially for Gleanings. But there should be more variety in the dirt column.

Frances Craddock: I think the Rotunda is a good paper. There are so many people here, so it seems that the dirt column should be more inclusive. The photos are fine.

Sarah Massie Goode: Take Tedo Savage out of the dirt column. There is too much repetition here. But the paper is super anyway.

Phyllis Ann Butler: I like the paper as a whole because it includes a little bit of everything. Sometimes, though, the dirt column goes too far: it always refers to the same people.

Eileen Bowles: I would like to see more features. I don't think the Gatepost is a suitable name for the dirt column. The editorials are very good.

Nannie Webb: I think the paper is complete. I like the way the dirt column is written.

Shirley Easterly: The Rotunda is unusually good for a college paper.

Virginia Terrell: Why not combine the gossip columns? I think they should be more varied to include freshmen and other new girls.

Blanche Steele: I think on the whole, the paper is very good, but the Gatepost is always about the same people.

Jane Lee Sink: According to the Gatepost there are only about 50 girls around school who ever do anything. If we are going to have a dirt column, let's have more variety.

Letters to the Editor . . .

Student Challenges Criticism Of Infirmary Treatment

To the Editor:

In last week's paper, "The Letter to the Editor" regarding conditions in the infirmary I felt was critical and unfair most likely due to the lack of imagination on the part of the writer. When I returned to school this fall I had to spend almost an entire week in the infirmary. I was sick enough to want to be alone. I had come there for peace and quiet. I could not have been more kindly treated by my own mother.

I think instead of complaining we should marvel at the immaculateness of the infirmary, of the sincere consideration for our aches and pains shown us, and above all we should be filled with admiration for our nurse who unassisted carries on for us. One does not stay in the infirmary for such a long spell that she cannot do without the comradeship of her friends. After all the infirmary is for the sick, if you want to have peace and quiet it is just the place to go, but if you simply want to make it a social event then I would say that your choice was unwise.

May I ask that those who heretofore have been dragging themselves around school when feeling ill instead of reporting to the infirmary please feel free to go, for I assure you of excellent care.

Well, then, let's have a little more consideration for our nurse, and fellow classmates who are sometimes sick enough to want to find a quiet restful place to get well and please accept my above statements in the spirit given, for, believe me, it is well meant.

Sincerely,
Jane Lee Sink

Head Librarian Clarifies Reserve Book Rules

Dear Editor:-

Although your answer to "A Bookworm" in the Rotunda of two weeks ago covered nicely the major difficulty she was having with finding books in the Reserve Book Room, I am wondering whether I may add some few details to assist your readers in using this department of the Library.

The faculty reserve lists are arranged alphabetically on the Bulletin Board according to the faculty member's name. When a certain professor has placed books on reserve for more than one course, the several lists are arranged under his name according to the number of the course. Books on the lists are arranged alphabetically by author, and the books on the Reserve Shelves are also arranged in one alphabet according to the name of the author.

The Reserve Collection is shelved immediately to the left of the entrance to the Reserve Book Room in the section of shelving between the entrance and the window at the end of the room. These books may during the day be used only in the library, but may be withdrawn for overnight use at 10:30 in the evening, and for the week end at 5:30 on Saturday afternoon.

Since the Reserve Collection occupied so small a portion of the shelving in the Room, a number of other collections of books have been placed in the room to make those collections more available to the students and to fill with books otherwise empty sections of shelving.

The first of these collections, continuing around the room from the window at the south end is made up of the library's collection of individual biography. The second collection is entirely devoted to juvenile literature, and extends around the north end of the room. The third, immediately to the right of the entrance, is the Morrison Memorial Collection. Books in all three of these collections may be withdrawn from the library for the usual two-week period. The accident of their location in the Reserve Book Room does not make them Reserve Books.

One more word to "A Bookworm" in the event that she or her colleagues should have further trouble in using this or any other department of the Library: A professional member of the library staff is on hand at all times for the specific purpose of assisting students with their library problems.

Sincerely,
Dr. Leroy Merritt

From Capitol To Campus By A. C. P.'s Jay Richter

WASHINGTON (ACP)— Need for nurses is most urgent. Some 55,000 are wanted immediately. A survey of two-thirds of the country's nursing schools reveals that we're going to fall about 19,000 nurses short of that quota.

The only way to reach the goal would be for 19,000 new girls to enroll in nursing courses in January and February.

Decision to become a nurse doesn't necessarily mean an interruption of your college course. Perhaps you can do it simply by including biological, physical, medical and social science courses in your schedule at the start of a new term this winter.

Estimates of the number of nurses needed have kept growing throughout the war. Some 3,000 a month have been taken from civilian life for army and navy duty. That's 36,000 a year, as against an original estimate of 10,000 for 1942.

Those figures add up to a migraine headache for local hospitals throughout the nation.

Symptomatic of the trend is the announcement of the Civil Service Commission here recently that liberalized rules would permit the nurses who completed their training as long ago as January, 1920, to apply for government nursing jobs. The jobs pay $1,620 a year and are open to all who have had nurses training. Apply to the Commissions here, or by way of your postoffice.

For general information on nurse recruitment, write Miss Florence Seder, National Nursing Council for War Service, 1790 Broadway, New York City.

Other Jobs

The Government wants photographers and motion picture technicians to fill jobs paying $1440 to $3800 a year. Women especially are desired, although men may apply.

Free-lance experience may be enough to qualify for any of the jobs and amateur experience is enough for $1440 and $1620 positions. Apply to the Civil Service Commission.

Education Elsewhere

It is not wrong to state that in the martial arts lie the moral principles of our nation. Tokyo said recently via shortwave.

That's what we'd gathered.

Every Saturday and Sunday afternoon and night the town churches are open to service men. The members of the churches are very anxious for S. T. C. girls to assist in entertaining and cordially invite them to do so. It is a wonderful way to meet a choice private, corporal, sergeant, or looking from his point of view,—a swell girl to talk with.

This is Prayer and World Fellowship Week. It is being observed in Prayers by inspirational programs.

Sunday was a big day for the Methodist Wesley Foundation. The University of Virginia was well represented at the afternoon discussion. This was followed by a delicious supper, delightful group singing, and the regular worship service. It was well worth the sacrifice of a walk to Longwood most people agreed.

At the Baptist Student Union State Conference held at Blacksburg last week end S. T. C. contributed a second vice-president, Eileen Bowles.

On their way to Chicago for the Associated Press Convention last week, S. T. C.'s publication heads paused long enough at the train station to have their picture snapped. Betty Cock, freshman from Hampton, was elected president of the Canterbury Club, newly organized Episcopal Young People's group last week. Jane Waring Ruffin will serve as vice-president, Mary St. Clair Bugg was selected secretary, and Jeanne Strick is the treasurer.

Betty was re-elected to the Executive Council of the Youth Division of the Diocese of Southern Virginia at the conference in Richmond last week-end. Betty, Jane, Mary St. Clair, and Jeanne attended the conference representing the young people in Farmville and in the college.

Pickett Turns Tables, Entertains Seniors At Dance, Banquet

Fifty seniors will be the guests of the Quartermaster Corps of Camp Pickett at a formal banquet at Longwood this Saturday night. The girls have been selected from the seniors who have permission to participate in USO activities.

Following the banquet the girls will be entertained at a private dance in the Farmville armory. An orchestra from Camp Pickett will furnish music for the dance.

S. T. C. Observes Week of Prayer

This week, November 8-14, has been designated "Prayer and World Fellowship Week". Special programs have been planned for Prayers during this week.

On Monday there was a special program at which Alice Parkhurst sang, and Eleanor Cordl drew a landscape. Tuesday, Carolyn Bobbitt spoke on "Place Prayer Has in Our Everyday Life."

Eleanor Folk will discuss "Serving Wartime Needs" tonight, and Thursday night there will be a discussion of "The Power of an Ideal". The series will conclude on Friday with Dorothy Anderson's dicussion of "World Fellowship—1942 and After."

The Faculty: By Their Idiosyncrasies Shall the Student Body Know Them

By FAY JOHNSON

The particular idiosyncrasies of various professors on our campus certainly help in making our life here a more humorous one. Their ability in being individualistic, in every sense of the word, has surely engendered much (unknown to them) laughter. When a student first arrives and is becoming acquainted with the sundry techniques of our professors, they are continually going into gales of laughter as they describe "Dr. Simp's" latest, for instance.

Of course this more gleeful amusement eventually wears off into a continuous quiet chuckle, into a deep appreciation of the antics of our most beloved faculty members and lastly, into a fathomless scorn of any who dare ridicule a single disconnected, peculiar, or laughable action.

Let us give a few examples of these ridiculous, endearing, and oft-repeated anecdotes concerning these oddities, those nine-day wonders—Farmville college professors.

Dr. F. B. Simkin's unique method of scratching his head when dubious over some point is quite famous. If an area on the left side of his pate needs to be attended to, he uses his right arm, extending it upward and over the ticklish spot. Why he has to go to all the trouble nobody has ever been able to decide.

Mr. Charlie French, Dr. Simp's mortal enemy on anything argumentative, is limitless in peculiarities. When he sees somebody he knows who might be five paces away, he springs up on his toes, raises his hand in a Heil Hitler manner and screws his face into a thousand wrinkles centered around a beaming smile. If the person addressed is only two paces away, he screws one fist into the palm of his other hand to show his enthusiasm and repeats the thousand wrinkles. But these facial expressions are nothing compared to those on his face when that blank-blank bell interrupts his choicest discussion on hydrogen. But you know what we mean.

Then there's Dr. F. F. Swertfeger's cunning little trick of ending all his sentences with a question mark. His classes are continuously nodding or shaking their heads to every single remark he makes. He also has a favorite expression—"By and large"—at the end of every fifth sentence (or so it seems) the next is prefaced by "By and large."—Maybe it means something real important in psychology—maybe.

And Dr. J. P. Wynne—his drawings (?) on blackboards can be described as the best examples of ultra-modern art in the college. They can neither be explained nor interpreted but if Dr. Wynne says "The apple was good", he draws a diagram to prove it beyond a doubt.

Miss Grace Moran plays football in each and every class! She is eternally getting into position to catch that forward pass or intercept that quarterback's next move. Don't mistake us—these antics are always done in the most graceful, ladylike poses; but they are amusing.

At the end of a discussion on Einstein's Theory of Relativity or on Dagwood's latest episode in the bathtub, Mr. T. A. McCorkle would be sure to question, "You see what I mean?" You see what we mean!

Bashfulness personified! Mr. M. B Coyner's clever trick of stealing glances at his classes keep his subjects' minds on anything except educational psychology.

Yes—they all are eccentric. People other than a Farmville student would not understand, would think we were in one of those bug houses—but we know them and we appreciate them. They are part of the institution and spirit of Farmville. They are indispensable.

H-S Member of Cast Previews "Male Animal" Favorably

by Langley Wood

Upon previewing "The Male Animal" it is found that the comedy tends to the subtle rather than the slapstick. Every member of the cast seems to have been well-seasoned previous to this show, having acted in the productions of their various high school or college Alma Maters. The direction of Miss Leola Wheeler has developed the group into an accomplished clique of performers. The play itself is a cleverly written bit of dramatics, and S. T. C. Dramatic Club and the Jongieurs more than prove themselves worthy to present it.

"Tedo" Savage exhibits his unusual skill in rendering well-balanced performance. He, incidentally, is the boy who starts the ball of cataclysm rolling on Thomas Turner, the apparently meek English professor who is played by Dick Cornwell.

"Dodie" Jones ably carries the female lead as Mrs. Turner. Efficiently portrayed the rollicking part of the ego-infested ex-football player is Jack Adams, who is key man of the plot. "Twitch" Ellett is excellent in the role of Dean Damon's domineering, crochety wife.

By viewing the performances of the entire cast, it can be safely guaranteed that "The Male Animal" is a well-rounded evening's entertainment.

The Humble Reporter

Only a reporter? That's all I am. Only the fellow who chases after news from dawn to midnight. Only the man who is entrusted with the great responsibility of finding out what took place and presenting it vividly in story form, when news is inaccurately reported, suppressed, or distorted, the people flounder in the darkness. They form false opinions and the result is disastrous.

The reporter who knows what to look for, and can write an honest, firsthand account of what he has experienced, renders a valuable service to society. Straightforward reporting makes clear thinking possible, and is the basis of sound judgment and wise action.

Only a reporter! Need anyone be ashamed of so honored a profession? Everyone must look to the humble reporter for a true account of events of social significance and as long as he does a good job, society rests on a firm foundation.—David Boyd.

Conventioneering S. T. C.'ers take the spotlight this week with the return of delegates from the press convention in Chicago—The "Seven Glad Sisters" were Sara Wayne France, Anne Ellett, Susie Moore, Winifred Wright, Elva Andrews, Ella Banks Weathers and Jane Sanford.

Attending the Baptist Student Union conference at Blacksburg were Gertrude Moore, Rachel Joyner, Louise Mills, Ellen Hudgins, Violet Woodall, Alice Lee Davis, Eleanor Corell, Frances Griffen, Ruth Kersey, Caroyn Rouse, Mary Elizabeth Fuqua, Eileen Bowles, Eleanor Booth, Marjorie Fetts, Ella Pool, Loulee Putney, and Virginia Treakle.

Lexington proved very attractive this week — Catherine Trower, Jane Scott, Peggy Ross, Kendall Nottingham, Rosalie Rogers, Ilene Finck, Nancy Pitts and Lillian Geddin journeyed there for Washington and Lee Homecomings and to see Wake Forest defeat V. M. I. with such a tidy little score of 28 to 0.

Beatrice Jones and Will Hall went to Richmond to the University of Richmond-V. P. I. game and Carrol Costello attended the Medical College dance this week-end—To Jac Hardy goes the distance award for going to Davidson for the Davidson-North Carolina game and dances.

The Home Guard was more numerous than usual—Some of the Home Sweet Homers were Jane McFall Bobbie Scott, Jane Taylor Bentley, Myrtle Lee Hoit, Frances Mallory, Ernestine Morgan, Dorothy Anderson, Bernice Blair, Marjorie Louise Vaughan, Marilyn Johnson, Julia Glenn, Ann Payne, Margaret Anne Horto, Anne Williams, Sarah Trigg, Martha Higgins, Jane Philhower, Freddie Ann Butt, Pauline Barnes, Jean Garland, Martha Watson, Ellen Ebel, Ann Page Francis, Mrily Bell, Betty Boutchard, Amy Read, Lilly Bee Gray, Nell Holloway and Christine Eddins.

Farmville affairs featured a cabin party for the Athletic Association Council at Longwood cabin Saturday night. Lucy Manson, head of the food committee supervised the camp fire meals which from all reports lived up to the reputation that all delicious outdoor-cooked food has—Miss Olive Iler, adviser for the A. A. council, chaperoned the party.

The Catholic students on campus were entertained at an informal tea Sunday afternoon by Miss Emily Kauzlarich at her home. Charlotte Greeley and Margaret Thomas assisted in serving.

The members of Alpha Sigma Tau held their Founder's Day banquet at Longwood Saturday night at 6 o'clock. Among the guests were Dr. J. L. Jarman, Miss Mary White Cox, Miss Virginia Bedford, faculty adviser for the sorority. Miss Ruth Gleaves, Panhellenic adviser, Miss Mary Nichols and the active members and pledges of Alpha Sigma Tau.

Fifty girls attended the U. S. O. dance at the Farmville Armory Saturday night.

American Library Association. He will draft a policy concerning the publication of public documents and the preservation of national library records. The Library Association will then present the policy to Elmer Davis for consideration by the Office of War Information.

Due to recent trends in public criticism, pressure has been exerted on government offices concerning the censorship of war news which the public deems vital to later records. As a result the American Library Association is formulating a policy to be used as a standard by the Office of War Information in publishing war news.

Dr. Merritt was chosen to outline this policy because of his research on "The United States As Publisher", the subject he selected for his dissertation prior to receiving his doctorate in library science at the University of Chicago.

Will "The Animal" Make History?

In attempting to dissect "The Male Animal" in their opening performance this year, S. T. C.'s Dramatic Club and the Jongleurs of Hampden-Sydney College have selected a hard nut, one that will not easily be cracked. Their presentation of the well-known comedy will have to be better than best, for the audiences on Friday and Saturday nights will be particularly critical ones, and justly so. They will be using Broadway and Hollywood as standards for judgment and comparison. The S. T. C.-H.-S. presentation will have to surpass even the heights of sound college dramatic production to which they have heretofore soared.

When the curtain rises on the dramatic talent in these two colleges Friday night, the score will be 0-0 in the last minute of play, the first down, one foot to go for the critics in the audience. If they are to thwart this attack, the college dramatists will have to exhibit All-American play and players.

Re Patria . . .

If American armies decided to 'put off' fighting for a week; if our naval forces determined to halt the hunt for enemy submarines until next month—how long would America remain free? This is a war of minutes; procrastination has become synonymous with perfidy. While we can't think of one person who hasn't said "I'm going to start buying War Stamps without fail!", we can think of numerous cases in which they just 'forgot' to do so.

It is vitally important for students to invest their dimes, quarters, and dollars in the United States as regularly and as systematically as do their parents and friends and friends invest their pay-dollars. It is vitally important that they do so wholeheartedly.

So enlist now one hundred percent in the 10 per cent Allowance Plan being instigated by the College War Council. Your support in making this a success will mean one more slap at that Jap.

The Rotunda REVERBERATES

Statistics are fast proving that this column is the product of evil, sinister, maneuvertings, that it is manhandled by a prejudiced clique of mordacious reporters, formerly labeled The Gatepost, it proceeds incognito until further notice. Its authors are stooping to an all-time low in 'dirt journalism' and are now requesting their readers to make suggestions for a more novel John Henry and more novel material to fill its lines. The motto from now on is "You Name It and We'll Print It".

We meekly mention the fact that the delegation to the ACP convention in the Great Lake City last week escaped The Loop unharmed. Ricardo's held no horrors for two of the venturesome seven: Wright and Ellett. Nor did near-by Glenview Naval Air Base harbor unpleasant memories for Moore, Sleepy Sanford, and Ellett again. Tales of Toledo intermingled with sighs 514 were just about all Weathers and France brought back. And Active Andrews, completely showered by orchids, telegrams, and specials while there, returned from Chicago quite elated over Bill and Jonesy.

Some anonymous genius inquired about Bee Reid from a S.T.C. girl in the "Do you know who" game. He wanted to know, quite seriously, if Bee was crazy. - - - - - - True to Maroon and Orange, the loyal supporters traveled down to Richmond for the game. Dee-dee Parker sported two escorts, and with a shortage of men, too. Gracie Hutchison showed more than just interest in a certain V.P.I. player, namely Horace Pearce. Having a private Ring Figure is the thing to do. Ask Marilyn Bell; she had one last week end. - - - - - Pagie Francis was seen at the bus station with none other than Johnny last Sunday. Um, old flames never die. - - - - - Ordinarily, Eleanor Biese's boy friend in England would have got the anniversary telegram she sent, but this is war, and Eleanor is worried for fear he didn't. - - - - - Siggy Smith Quadruple dated with three other Smith's Saturday night. Smell world, ain't it? - - - - - Droste's Tom was here this week end. Need I say more? - - - - - The fires still burn for Kendall Nottingham, and that miniature is there to prove it. - - - - Sherry Knight and her prospective husband paid a visit. The big event is going to be Christmas, we hear. - - - -

Every Saturday and Sunday afternoon and night the town churches are open to service men. The members of the churches are very anxious for S. T. C. girls to assist in entertaining and cordially invite them to do so. It is a wonderful way to meet a choice private, corporal, sergeant, or looking from his point of view,—a swell girl to talk with.

This is Prayer and World Fellowship Week. It is being observed in Prayers by inspirational programs.

Sunday was a big day for the Methodist Wesley Foundation. The University of Virginia was well represented at the afternoon discussion. This was followed by a delicious supper, delightful group singing, and the regular worship service. It was well worth the sacrifice of a walk to Longwood most people agreed.

At the Baptist Student Union State Conference held at Blacksburg last week end S. T. C. contributed a second vice-president, Eileen Bowles.

Question of the Week

What Improvements Would You Like to Have Made In Your College Paper?

Ed. Note: This question was originally asked to satisfy the incessant curiosity of the editors as to how The Rotunda can be improved. It was not intended for publication, but since its content has been one of frequent comment among may students recently, the answers now warrant public display.)

Virginia Shackelford: I like the Rotunda just as it is and look forward to it every Wednesday.

Betty Sexton: I would like to see more news about the different organizations on campus. I'm for a dirt column but not one that refers to the same group all the time.

Madge Sprinkle: I would like to see more humorous articles.

Betty Youngberg: The Rotunda is one of the best college papers I have seen, but the dirt column seems a bit naive for the mentality of college students. Certainly, there ought to be more variety.

Alice Seebert: It's an excellent college paper. But I think the underclassmen should be played up, too.

Warwick Mitchell: I would like to see more features, especially those which bring to our attention things that are happening around school.

Jane Danby: It's a darn good paper. Let's have more letters to the editor. We are always complaining among ourselves about things around school. Why not put it on paper?

Patsy Connelly: I like the editorial and sport pages very much. I cast my vote especially for Gleanings. But there should be more variety in the dirt column.

Frances Craddock: I think the Rotunda is a good paper. There are so many people here, so it seems that the dirt column should be more inclusive. The photos are fine.

Sarah Massie Goode: Take Tedo Savage out of the dirt column. There is too much repetition here. But the paper is super anyway.

Phyllis Ann Butler: I like the paper as a whole because it includes a little bit of everything. Sometimes, though, the dirt column goes too far: it always refers to the same people.

Eileen Bowles: I would like to see more features. I don't think the Gatepost is a suitable name for the dirt column. The editorials are very good.

Nannie Webb: I think the paper is complete. I like the way the dirt column is written.

Shirley Easterly: The Rotunda is unusually good for a college paper.

Virginia Terrell: Why not combine the gossip columns? I think they should be more varied to include freshmen and other new girls.

Blanche Steele: I think on the whole, the paper is very good, but the Gatepost is always about the same people.

Jane Lee Sink: According to the Gatepost there are only about 50 girls around school who ever do anything. If we are going to have a dirt column, let's have more variety.

From Capitol To Campus

WASHINGTON (ACP)— Need for nurses is most urgent. Some 55,000 are wanted immediately. A survey of two-thirds of the country's nursing schools reveals that we're going to fall about 19,000 nurses short of that quota.

The only way to reach the goal would be for 19,000 new girls to enroll in nursing courses in January and February.

Decision to become a nurse doesn't necessarily mean an interruption of your college course. Perhaps you can do it simply by including biological, physical, medical and social science courses in your schedule at the start of a new term this winter.

Estimates of the number of nurses needed have kept growing throughout the war. Some 3,000 a month have been taken from civilian life for army and navy duty. That's 36,000 a year, as against an original estimate of 10,000 for 1942.

Those figures add up to a migraine headache for local hospitals throughout the nation.

Symptomatic of the trend is the announcement of the Civil Service Commission here recently that liberalized rules would permit the nurses who completed their training as long ago as January, 1920, to apply for government nursing jobs. The jobs pay $1,620 a year and are open to all who have had nurses training. Apply to the Commissions here, or by way of your postoffice.

For general information on nurse recruitment, write Miss Florence Seder, National Nursing Council for War Service, 1790 Broadway, New York City.

Other Jobs

The Government wants photographers and motion picture technicians to fill jobs paying $1440 to $3800 a year. Women especially are desired, although men may apply.

Free-lance experience may be enough to qualify for any of the jobs and amateur experience is enough for $1440 and $1620 positions. Apply to the Civil Service Commission.

Education Elsewhere

It is not wrong to state that in the martial arts lie the moral principles of our nation, Tokyo said recently via shortwave.

That's what we'd gathered.

* * *

Twenty-five professors of the University of Amsterdam have been dismissed in reprisal for a bomb attack on general headquarters of the Nazi student front.

Will severance pay?

* * *

German professors have been made department heads at the University of Riga in Latvia.

* * *

More than 95 Czech teachers, priests and physicians were arrested by the Nazis last month in continued reprisals against Slovak intellectuals.

Can't stand mental pressure, eh?

Letters to the Editor . . .

Student Challenges Criticism Of Infirmary Treatment

To the Editor:

In last week's paper, "The Letter to the Editor" regarding conditions in the infirmary I felt was critical and unfair most likely due to the lack of imagination on the part of the writer. When I returned to school this fall I had to spend almost an entire week in the infirmary. I was sick enough to want to be alone. I had come there for peace and quiet. I could not have been more kindly treated by my own mother.

I think instead of complaining we should marvel at the immaculateness of the infirmary, of the sincere consideration for our aches and pains shown us, and above all we should be filled with admiration for our nurse who unassisted carries on for us. One does not stay in the infirmary for such a long spell that she cannot do without the comradeship of her friends. After all the infirmary is for the sick, if you want to have peace and quiet it is just the place to go, but if you simply want to make it a social event then I would say that your choice was unwise.

May I ask that those who heretofore have been dragging themselves around school when feeling ill instead of reporting to the infirmary please feel free to go, for I assure you of excellent care.

Well, then, let's have a little more consideration for our nurse, and fellow classmates who are sometimes sick enough to want to find a quiet restful place to get well and please accept my above statements in the spirit given, for, believe me, it is well meant.

Sincerely,
Jane Lee Sink

Head Librarian Clarifies Reserve Book Rules

Dear Editor:-

Although your answer to "A Bookworm" in the Rotunda of two weeks ago covered nicely the major difficulty she was having with finding books in the Reserve Book Room, I am wondering whether I may add some few details to assist your readers in using this department of the Library.

The faculty reserve lists are arranged alphabetically on the Bulletin Board according to the faculty member's name. When a certain professor has placed books on reserve for more than one course, the several lists are arranged under his name according to the number of the course. Books on the lists are arranged alphabetically by author, and the books on the Reserve Shelves are also arranged in one alphabet according to the name of the author.

The Reserve Collection is shelved immediately to the left of the entrance to the Reserve Book Room in the section of shelving between the entrance and the window at the end of the room. These books may during the day be used only in the library, but may be withdrawn for overnight use at 10:30 in the evening, and for the week end at 5:30 on Saturday afternoon.

Since the Reserve Collection occupied so small a portion of the shelving in the Room, a number of other collections of books have been placed in the room to make those collections more available to the students and to fill with books otherwise empty sections of shelving.

The first of these collections, continuing around the room from the window at the south end is made up of the library's collection of individual biography. The second collection is entirely devoted to juvenile literature, and extends around the north end of the room. The third, immediately to the right of the entrance, is the Morrison Memorial Collection. Books in all three of these collections may be withdrawn from the library for the usual two-week period. The accident of their location in the Reserve Book Room does not make them Reserve Books.

One more word to "A Bookworm" in the event that she or her colleagues should have further trouble in using this or any other department of the Library: A professional member of the library staff is on hand at all times for the specific purpose of assisting students with their library problems.

Sincerely,
Dr. Leroy Merritt

The Faculty: By Their Idiosyncrasies Shall the Student Body Know Them

By FAY JOHNSON

The particular idiosyncrasies of various professors on our campus certainly help in making our life here a more humorous one. Their ability in being individualistic, in every sense of the word, has surely engendered much (unknown to them) laughter. When a student first arrives and is becoming acquainted with the sundry techniques of our professors, they are continually going into gales of laughter as they describe "Dr. Simp's" latest, for instance.

Of course this more gleeful amusement eventually wears off into a continuous quiet chuckle, into a deep appreciation of the antics of our most beloved faculty members and lastly, into a fathomless scorn of any who dare ridicule a single disconnected, peculiar, or laughable action.

Let us give a few examples of these ridiculous, endearing, and oft-repeated anecdotes concerning these oddities, those nine-day wonders—Farmville college professors.

Dr. F. B. Simkin's unique method of scratching his head when dubious over some point is quite famous. If an area on the left side of his pate needs to be attended to, he uses his right arm, extending it upward and over the ticklish spot. Why he has to go to all the trouble nobody has ever been able to decide.

Mr. Charlie French, Dr. Simp's mortal enemy on anything argumentative, is limitless in peculiarities. When he sees somebody he knows who might be five paces away, he springs up on his toes, raises his hand in a Heil Hitler manner and screws his face into a thousand wrinkles centered around a beaming smile. If the person addressed is only two paces away, he screws one fist into the palm of his other hand to show his enthusiasm and repeats the thousand wrinkles. But these facial expressions are nothing compared to those on his face when that blank-blank bell interrupts his choicest discussion on hydrogen. But you know what we mean.

Then there's Dr. F. F. Swertfeger's cunning little trick of ending all his sentences with a question mark. His classes are continuously nodding or shaking their heads to every single remark he makes. He also has a favorite expression—"By and large"—at the end of every fifth sentence (or so it seems) the next is prefaced by "By and large."—Maybe it means something real important in psychology—maybe.

And Dr. J. P. Wynne—his drawings (?) on blackboards can be described as the best examples of ultra-modern art in the college. They can neither be explained nor interpreted but if Dr. Wynne says "The apple was good", he draws a diagram to prove it beyond a doubt.

Miss Grace Moran plays football in each and every class! She is eternally getting into position to catch that forward pass or intercept that quarterback's next move. Don't mistake us—these antics are always done in the most graceful, ladylike poses: but they are amusing.

At the end of a discussion on Einstein's Theory of Relativity or on Dagwood's latest episode in the bathtub, Mr. T. A. McCorkle would be sure to question, "You see what I mean?" You see what we mean!

Bashfulness personified! Mr. M. B. Coyner's clever trick of stealing glances at his classes keep his subjects' minds on anything except educational psychology.

Yes—they all are eccentric. People other than a Farmville student would not understand, would think we were in one of those bug houses—but we know them and we appreciate them. They are part of the institution and spirit of Farmville. They are indispensable.

H-S Member of Cast Previews "Male Animal" Favorably

by Langley Wood

Upon previewing "The Male Animal" it is found that the comedy tends to the subtle rather than the slapstick. Every member of the cast seems to have been well-seasoned previous to this show, having acted in the productions of their various high school or college Alma Maters. The direction of Miss Leola Wheeler has developed the group into an accomplished clique of performers. The play itself is a cleverly written bit of dramatics, and S. T. C. Dramatic Club and the Jongleurs more than prove themselves worthy to present it.

"Tedo", Savage exhibits his unusual skill in rendering well-balanced performance. He, incidentally, is the boy who starts the ball of cataclysm rolling on Thomas Turner, the apparently meek English professor who is played by Dick Cornwell.

"Dodie" Jones ably carries the female lead as Mrs. Turner. Efficiently portrayed the rollicking part of the ego-infested ex-football player is Jack Adams, who is key man of the plot. "Twitch" Ellett is excellent in the role of Dean Damon's domineering, crochety wife.

By viewing the performances of the entire cast, it can be safely guaranteed that "The Male Animal" is a well-rounded evening's entertainment.

The Humble Reporter

Only a reporter? That's all I am. Only the fellow who chases after news from dawn to midnight. Only the man who is entrusted with the great responsibility of finding out what took place and presenting it vividly in story form, when news is inaccurately reported, suppressed, or distorted, the people flounder in the darkness. They form false opinions and the result is disastrous.

The reporter who knows what to look for, and can write an honest, firsthand account of what he has experienced, renders a valuable service to society. Straightforward reporting makes clear thinking possible, and is the basis of sound judgment and wise action.

Only a reporter! Need anyone be ashamed of so honored a profession? Everyone must look to the humble reporter for a true account of events of social significance and as long as he does a good job, society rests on a firm foundation.—David Boyd.

Conventioneering S. T. C.'ers take the spotlight this week with the return of delegates from the press convention in Chicago—The "Seven Glad Sisters" were Sara Wayne France, Anne Ellett, Susie Moore, Winifred Wright, Elva Andrews, Ella Banks Weathers and Jane Sanford.

Attending the Baptist Student Union conference at Blacksburg were Gertrude Moore, Rachel Joyner, Louise Mills, Ellen Hudgins, Violet Woodall, Alice Lee Davis, Eleanor Corell, Frances Griffen, Ruth Kersey, Caroyn Rouse, Mary Elizabeth Fuqua, Elleen Bowles, Eleanor Booth, Marjorie Felts, Ella Pool, Louise Putney, and Virginia Treakle.

Lexington proved very attractive this week — Catherine Trower, Jane Scott, Peggy Ross, Kendall Nottingham, Rosalie Rogers, Illene Pinck, Nancy Pitts and Lillian Goddin journeyed there for Washington and Lee Homecomings and to see Wake Forest defeat V. M. I. with such a tidy little score of 28 to 0.

Beatrice Jones and Will Hall went to Richmond to the University of Richmond-V. P. I. game and Carrol Costello attended the Medical College dance this week-end—To Jac Hardy goes the distance award for going to Davidson for the Davidson-North Carolina game and dances.

The Home Guard was more numerous than usual—Some of the Home Sweet Homers were Jane McFall Bobbie Scott, Jane Taylor Bentley, Myrtle Lee Holt, Frances Mallory, Ernestine Morgan, Dorothy Anderson, Bernice Blair, Marjorie Louise Vaughan, Marilyn Johnson, Julia Glenn, Ann Payne, Margaret Anne Horton, Anne Williams, Sarah Trigg, Martha Higgins, Jane Phillhower, Freddie Ann Butt, Pauline Barnes, Jean Garland, Martha Watson, Ellen Ebel, Ann Page Francis, Mrily Bell, Betty Boutchard, Amy Read, Lilly Bee Gray, Nell Holloway and Christine Eddins.

Farmville affairs featured a cabin party for the Athletic Association Council at Longwood cabin Saturday night. Lucy Manson, head of the food committee supervised the camp fire meals which from all reports lived up to the reputation that all delicious outdoor-cooked food has—Miss Olive Iler, adviser for the A. A. council, chaperoned the party.

The Catholic students on campus were entertained at an informal tea Sunday afternoon by Miss Emily Kauzlarich at her home. Charlotte Greeley and Margaret Thomas assisted in serving.

The members of Alpha Sigma Tau held their Founder's Day banquet at Longwood Saturday night at 6 o'clock. Among the guests were Dr. J. L. Jarman, Miss Mary White Cox, Miss Virginia Bedford, faculty adviser for the sorority, Miss Ruth Gleaves, Pan-Hellenic adviser, Miss Mary Nichols and the active members and pledges of Alpha Sigma Tau.

Fifty girls attended the U. S. O. dance at the Farmville Armory Saturday night.

American Library Association. He will draft a policy concerning the publication of public documents and the preservation of national library records. The Library Association will then present the policy to Elmer Davis for consideration by the Office of War Information.

Due to recent trends in public criticism, pressure has been exerted on government offices concerning the censorship of war news which the public deems vital to later records. As a result the American Library Association is formulating a policy to be used as a standard by the Office of War Information in publishing war news.

Dr. Merritt was chosen to outline this policy because of his research on "The United States As Publisher", the subject he selected for his dissertation prior to receiving his doctorate in library science at the University of Chicago.

Langhorne Replaces Dunton In Election

Nancy Langhorne, junior from Irvington, was elected secretary of the Commercial Club at a meeting last week. Nancy will replace Catherine Dunton who did not return to college this year.

A proposed plan for a second-hand book store in the Commercial department was put before the club, Richard Halliay, department head, will present the plan in concrete form at the next meeting.

To Call Attention To

The exhibit in the Browsing Room of the library, sponsored by the Morale Committee of the College War Council, Books and articles of current interest will be placed on the table to help the students keep abreast of world affairs. The exhibit will be changed from time to time as war theaters rise and decline in importance and new material is obtained.

The books may be charged out to students who wish to browse longer than library hours permit.

at random by the library staff as being of possible interest and enjoyment to the students of the college. This collection, too, will change from time to time as the reading interests of the students become better known to the library staff.

"Should any of the students or members of the faculty be interested in selecting books for this collection, their interest and assistance will be very much welcomed," Dr. Merritt has stated. "The Browsing Room is meant to be just what the name suggests; a pleasant place to browse through many books, to read the one book that fulfills the mood of the moment, and from which to carry away the one book that 'I just must finish'."

The Browsing Room is open at all times when the Library itself is open, and is kept open on Sunday afternoons from two until five through the courtesy of the Library Committee of the College Y.W.C.A.

Connelly Will Direct Bridge Tourney To Begin Next Week

Patsy Connelly, secretary of the Athletic Association, is managing a bridge tournament which will begin next week. Twelve girls have signed up on the chart posted on the bulletin board and others who are interested may do so before the first of next week.

Tables will be setup in the Student Building lounge and games played off on Saturday nights during Play Night period.

Already entered are Hallie Hillsman, Ruth Dugger, Betsy Birchfield, Elizabeth Butzner, Jane Brown, Margaret Thomas, Mary E. Harvey, Jane Knapton, Frances Quillen, Viola Turner, Eleanor Wade, and Helen Wilson.

Monogram Dance Set For Saturday

Color Cup Points . . .

Previously points have been given in each sport to the winning team entered in the contest. According to this system many girls from the four classes went out for the sport and participated in the event. A new suggestion has been made that the class having the largest number of girls out in that sport be awarded the color cup points. This will cause the classes to bring more out for a sport, and the same time allow that team with the most out to be 5 points to the good. In such a case, however, at least five practices must be on record for each individual before she can be counted in the class group.

General Basketball . . .

Practices for general basketball began on Tuesday and will continue each Tuesday and Thursday afternoon from 6 P. M. to 7 P. M. Freshman, under the coaching of Jean Carr have already begun their work-outs on Friday afternoons and more are urged to join this group. All upperclassmen may start their practices and meet in the gym at the scheduled times. Bobbie Scott is general basketball manager this season.

Pin-Pong Tourney Starts . . .

Tomorrow will be the last day in which you can sign up on the A. A. bulletin board for the Pingpong tournament. Remember that this is a color award and points for that cup will be needed. Many girls who are inactive in the outside sports may aid their class by entering and at the same time enjoy the game. Note where each group is to play and a chart of contest matches will be posted the last of the week. Between the winners in each building, a final contest will be played off to determine the color winner for this fall tournament.

Dec. 2 Set for Meet . . .

Swimmers should grab those tank suits and report to the pool on Tuesday and Thursday nights for swimming practice for class teams. The date December 2 has been set as the day of clash between the classes in the swimming meet. A class captain will be appointed and the pool will be open for practices each afternoon at 5 o'clock and two nights a week. Also, during the recreational swim period on Saturday nights, practice may be obtained. Events will consist of freestyle racing, backstroke, breast stroke, relay, and diving events. Join your class now.

Frosh Compose Team . . .

Freshmen who are taking archery will have an archery tournament. All the girls entered in the freshman archery classes will participate in the event and a record of score kept in order to determine the high scores. Girls from these classes are urged to enter the archery tournament between th various schools entered in the Mail-tournament. Results of scores each week are sent in from each school and rating sent back. Randolph-Macon College is sponsoring this event.

Scoops From Other Colleges

AUSTIN, Texas—(ACP)—A cooperative training program for the Boy Scouts of America has been worked out between University of Texas officials and Boy Scout executives, T. H. Shelby, dean of the university's division of extension, has announced.

The division will install training courses for scout leaders and executives in such fields as health education and recreation leadership, while two branches of the division—the package loan library and the visual education bureau—will acquire and supply to Scout troops library materials and films relating to Scout training and activities.

Also under consideration is a proposal that the Interscholastic league, another university extension agency, will supervise first aid and other emergency training for the Scouts.

WASHINGTON (ACP) — The first co-eds—five of them—have appeared to take police science since this field was introduced a year ago.

Professor V. A. Leonard reports the manpower problem in the police fields is becoming critical and that a number of posts in police organizations ca be handled by trained women, while, of course, they are indispensable in handling cases involving women and children.

HAMILTON, N. Y. — (ACP — Hoping to save at least 50,000 mile of driving annually, Colgate University has established a clearing house for automobile transportation.

Staff members and students going out of town notify the business office as far as possible in atvance of trips, giving date and hour of departure and the space available. Persons wishing transportation phone the business office or consult a special bulletin board.

Automobiles have been the prinlipal means of transportation for Colgate's 1,000 students and faculty members since the local railroad abandoned passenger service more than 10 years ago.

CLINTON, S. C.—(ACP)—If the armed forces get as much officer material in proportion from other parts as from Presbyterian college, the country can be assured of having its ramparts well named.

A recent survey revealed that 20 per cent of the student body is receiving advanced training in the reserve officers' training corps, leading directly to commissions in the army. Another 10 per cent are a part of the enlisted reserve, a pre-induction program qualifying them for officers' candidate school upon graduation.

Still other members of the student body are listed in the various programs offering officers' training in the navy, air corps and marines. Only a small portion of students have no military connection whatsoever. This group is composed, for the most part, of first year men.

This Collegiate World

By Associated Collegiate Press

When the cheerleader plead hoarsely for a "Fight, fight, Siwash" and then does a cartwheel through the rain, don't question his intelligence—he's probably a little brighter than the average.

That's the findisg of a survey conducted at Colgate University. The investigation was aimed at determining what relationship, if any, existed between intelligence of Colgate seniors and participation in extra-curricular activities.

The results throw a little cold water on the "big campus man", the fellow who belongs to all the clubs and appears at least a half-dozen times in the group pictures in his class yearbook. Statistics show it's not the fact that he participates, but what he takes part in—that gives a clue to his gray matter.

And as for the meek little student whose name never appears on a committee, he's 3 per cent smarter than the average.

Long suspected, the fact was established that the varsity letter for skill in major sports usually adorns a strong back and an I. Q. 11 per cent below average.

The survey reveals that 30 per cent of the nearly 800 seniors engaged in no extra-curricular activities. The most intelligent group, 16 per cent above the average, worked on publications.

Ratings for men participating in social, religious, dramatic, musical, managerial and cheerleading activities were found to be "slightly above average."

Men in the student government were second only to those men on publications. The rating for men in minor athletics coincided with the average, while the standings of the men in departmental clubs dropped 6 per cent below the average.

Sports Techniques Taught Each Week

Freshman Basketball Attracts 21 Girls

Twenty-one freshmen have reported for freshman basketball practice, coach Jean Carr has announced. Fundamental skill and techniques of the game are being taught.

The freshmen hold practices each Friday afternoon at five o'clock in the gym. Last year approximately twice as many girls reported as compared with this year's group.

Those reporting were Anne Carmines, Anna Crittenden, Lucille Jones, Iva Kernodle, Ruth Brooks, Frances Lee, Annie Ellis, Libby Mountcastle, Catherine Lambert, Lucy Bowling, Nancy Courter, Jane Philhower, Nancy Lively, Jane Anderson, Rosa Hill, Lillain Elliott, Martha Jean Levitt, Rebecca Graham, Jackie Pardon, Margaret Smith and Billy Wald.

'The Male Animal' To Go On Road

Play Showing Now In Lynchburg

Following the successful opening of James Thurber and Elliott Nugent's three-act comedy, "The Male Animal" at S. T. C. on Friday and Saturday night, November 13 and 14, the S. T. C. Thespians and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs, on the invitation of the Lynchburg Little Theater League, presented the play last night and tonight in the Little Theatre in Lynchburg.

The entire cast left Farmville yesterday on the 1:40 o'clock train, accompanied by Miss Leola Wheeler, director; Elsie Stossel, president of the S. T. C. Dramatic Club, and Sally Robertson and Pat Maddox, in charge of properties and staging. They will return to school tomorrow morning by bus.

Plans are now underway to take the play to Camp Pickett on November 24 for the entertainment of the soldiers on the post.

In the cast are Dodie Jones, Richard Cornwell, Al Phillips, Ralph Hagood, Tedo Savage, Betty Ellis, Jack Adams, Dixie Roundy, Dave Crute,, Virginia Mae Eliett, Frances Ferguson, Jack Cross and Langley Wood.

Stage assistants for the play were Susan Durrett in charge of staging; Nelle White, lighting; Lucille Lewis, make-up; Jane Smith, costumes; and Sally Robertson properties.

K.D.P. Sponsors Personal Libraries

Contest To Run Through April, 1943

To encourage students in college to build personal libraries, Kappa Delta Pi, honorary education fraternity, is sponsoring a Personal Library Contest, beginning this month. The contest will run through April, 1943. Eventually the contest will cover the collection of four years, but the first part, this year, includes only acquirements of eight months.

Any student in college is eligible in the contest and must pledge that the books entered have been collected during the time limits set. The book collections will be exhibited in the Honors Room in the spring.

Similar contests have been successfully conducted at both Westhampton College and Randolph-Macon Woman's College The latter collections were observed by members of Kappa Delta Pi last

Stokes, Crumpler Named Officers

On November 10 following the election of the Freshman Commission, the new Commission members elected Ann Martin, of Suffolk, chairman.

Minnie Lee Crumpler, also of Suffolk, was named treasurer while Agnes Stokes of Kenbridge, won in the election of secretary of the Commission. Nancy Courter and Alice Courter were elected co-chairmen of the Y Club, and Glenn Ann Patterson was named publicity chairman.

Other members of the commission are Dot Overstreet, Helen Stites, Frances Satterfield, Margie Hewlett, and Jane Philhower. Frances Lee, class president, is an ex-officio member.

Educators To Meet In Richmond Soon

Tuesday, November 24 marks the opening of the annual convention of teachers in Virginia at the John Marshall Hotel in Richmond Mr. S. M. Holton, president of the local branch of VEA, announced yesterday. The meeting will continue through November 27 with sectional meetings on Tuesday Wednesday, and Thursday, and the final business session on Friday. The convention is part of the program of the Virginia Education Association.

Dr. James Elliott Walmsley will represent the local unit at the convention. Plans for the program have not yet been received but will be announced at a later date

Wright Announces For December 5 Of Fall Colonnade

Highlighted by the first prize winner in the recent Colonnade Short Story contest, "Do Unto Others," by Mary Frances Bowies, and Jane Smith's story, "The Amber Earrings", the fall edition of the Colonnade will be released by Thanksgiving, Winifred Wright, editor, has announced.

"Corregidor," the edition's feature written by Mrs. John Wood, who was formerly Mary Robeson, an alumna of S. T. C., is the story of her husband's and her experiences on Bataan Peninsula. In it she gives a detailed description of the place that held the world's attention so long last winter.

Other articles to be featured are "Write Mrs. X" by Mary Stuart Walmsley, a member of last year's junior class; "Portait—of Elizabeth" by Loline Warner, a sophomore; and "How Not to Become a Success as a School Teacher," a humorous essay by senior Ann Fitzgerald. Several essays written by freshmen during rat week will also be included.

The middle pages will include pictures featuring students modeling fashions from Baldwin's department store.

Book reviews will include "Poe's Richmond", by Agnes Bondurant; Chevalier's "Drivin' Woman"; "Just and the Unjust" by Couzens ;and "Song of Bernadette" by Franz Werfel.

Major contributions of poetry in this issue were made by Virginia Hall. Imogen Claytor, Lois Alphin, Mary Harman, Fay Johnson, Jane Knapton, and Betty Cock.

S. T. C. - H.-S. C. Version of "The Male Animal" Makes Hit With Enthusiastic First Nighters

The notices have stopped, the excitement has died down, there is an air of general relaxation everywhere—"The Male Animal" is over, and congratulations are in order.

Under the tireless direction of Miss Leola Wheeler, members of the S. T. C. Dramatic Club and the Hampden-Sydney Jongleurs have "done it again," combining old talent with new in a winning attempt to revive interest in a play that this time would have been far more appropriate five to ten years ago than it is at the present day.

But despite the somewhat outmoded and complicated plot which evolves around a unique combination of college officials, a student editor, husky All-Americans, a weepy wife, and "rabid" Red propaganda, the sturdy thespians managed to put across in their two night stand last week end the general idea of why where should be academic freedom.

Generally outplayed by the gentlemen from Hampden-Sydney College, the feminine members of the cast nevertheless turned out creditable performances. Dodie Jones, as the feminine lead, "Ellen Turner" was very impressive, and Betty Ellis, as "Patricia Stanley", and Frances Ferguson as "Myrtle Keller", exhibited talent which can possibly be corraled to a better advantage in later productions.

Virginia Mae Eliett never had an opportunity to display her acting ability, which she evidently possesses a great deal of, in the relatively insignificant role of "Mrs. Blanche Damon", and Dixie Roundy as "Cleota", the colored maid, wandered in and off the stage cleverly injecting spots of humor here and there to win the hearts of the audiences by tickling their senses of humor.

Richard Cornwell with his subtle interpretation of "Tommy Turner", the chief male animal in the comedy, turned out a neat bit of first rate acting. Cornwell was particularly good in the drunken scene of the second act, but lacked force in delivering the otherwise impressive letter of Vanzetti in the final scene.

Jack Adams as the flashy "Whirling" Joe Ferguson, one-time football hero, threatening several times to monopolize the stage, was the chief scene-stealer.

Making his final appearane before State Teachers College audiences, Tedo Savage as "Michael Barnes", the troublesome college ed, was poorly cast. However, he handled the part exceptionally well, and was unusually good in the drunken scene when co-anaiyzing male animals with Cornwell.

Raiph Hagood made a delightful "Dean Damon" with his husky voice and creaky walk, and David Crute as the stuffed and stuffy "Ed Keller" and Allen Phillips as "Wally", unnoticed suitor of "Pat

Kitain To Initiate Lyceums; Kryl To Continue Program

Artist Studied Under Famous March King

Bohumir Kryl and his symphony orchestra will appear in the State Teachers College auditorium at chapel Tuesday morning, November 24 at 11 o'clock.

Kryl has been called by celebrated critics one of the most magnetic and forceful orchestra directors before the public. He is himself a renowned musician and violinists and a virtuoso cornetist. The latter talent was discovered in his youth by no less than John Phillip Sousa, the march king, who engaged him for his band as cornet soloist when 19 years of age. Kryl thus began his career.

Touring Nation

The history of Bohumir Kryl's symphony orchestra is an instant claim to universal recognition on the North American continent. Now entering its 38th year, the tournee this year follows not only its established course, playing at leading colleges, universities, and under auspices of other noted patrons of the fine arts, but will embrace a circuit of army and navy camps by special arrangement with the national government.

Kyri on his concert tours has traveled 1.400,000 miles, has given over 13.000 concerts ,and has appeared before at least 100 leading educational institutions annually.

Seniors Secure Lynchburg Cavaliers Publication Date

Preparations are now underway for the Senior Dance which will be held on Saturday night, December 5. Margaret Kitchin, general chairman, recently announced. Music for the annual prom will be furnished by the Lynchburg Cavaliers.

Chairmen of the various comtees are Ada Claire Snyder, music; Imogene Claytor, decorations; Frances Mallory, floor; Betty Sexton, figure; Elizabeth Walls, tickets; Leona Moomaw, flowers; Grace Hutcheson, refreshments, and Charlotte Phillips, programs.

Wynne Investigates College War Program

Dr. J. P. Wynne, head of the department of education, has recently returned to the college from a series of investigations of college war programs at Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio, and Northwestern University in Chicago, Illinois. At Ohio State, Dr. Wynne discussed with the faculty members and committee heads the plans for a war program in the college. The program planned at Northwestern deals particularly with the part of college women in the war, and Dr. Wynne's investigation of the details is particularly pertinent at this time.

Dr. Wynne is one of the foremost authorities on education today and is a well known disciple of John Dewey. He is a charter member of the Philosophy of Education Society and the author of textbooks of education used in this college.

The significant proposals for war emergency training or college women are under consideration here and college publications and college war councils are urged to cooperate in the effort for making the most efficient use of the college woman.

18 Upperclassmen Pledge Sororities

Eighteen upperclassmen pledged social sororities at the close of fall rushing last week.

They were, Sigma Sigma Sigma, Mary Watkins; Gamma Theta, Ann Blair, Mary Ann Biggs, Lucy Davis, Vivian Gwaltney, and Rebecca Irey; Mu Omega, Marion Orange, Alice Wooding; Alpha Sigma Alpha, Pat Garth; Pi Kappa Sigma, Will Hall, and Augusta Himes; Theta Sigma Upsilon, Iris Ferguson, Alyce Fulton, Katherine Hutton, Betty Love, and Elizabeth McCoy; Phi Zeta Sigma, Mary Elizabeth Grizzard and Mary Sterrett.

These girls will be duly pledged and initiated in the near future.

Statewide Blackouts Will Be Unannounced In the Future

Virginians must be ready for unannounced blackouts and air-raid tests at any time, John J. Howard, director of air-raid precautions, announced Monday.

Mr. Howard said arrangements for calling blackouts have been made, whereby it will be impossible for the public to know the day or the hour. He called attention to the fact that it is unlawful to give a false report which might cause panic or confusion.

"There is no possible way of any person's acquiring any definite knowledge of a coming blackout test", Mr. Howard said, "but we want the public to be conscious of the fact that an actual air-raid may come at any time.

Because of this it may be necessary for unattended lights to be put out at all times and that all other reasonable precautions be taken."

Mr Howard advised that those hearing rumors regarding blackouts should not only not believe them, but should do their best to trace the origin.

Frosh Exhibit Talent At "Y" Club Meeting Thursday Night

Tomorrow night at 10 o'clock the new Freshman Commission will initiate its first project — namely, the "Y" Club. Hitherto the "Y" Club has been under the direction of the outgoing commission. At its first meeting the new commission will sponsor a program of freshman talent, directed by chairman Lucy Harvie.

As mistress of ceremonies, Frances Satterfield will provide entertaining asides and flowery introductions. Setting the program off to a musical start, Connie Ozlin will play a piano solo. Alice Parkhurst will continue the mood with a song of her own choice. Mildred Altice will vary the evening's entertainment with a serious reading, while Minnie Lee Crumpler, accompanied by Margie Hewlett, will carry on in musical terms. Carlotta Norfeet's monologue will add a note of humor, and Emily Carper's "boogie-woogie" will contribute the light touch.

Following the impulse of all, Aloise Boswell will give vent to her feelings with a tap dance, accompanied by Connie Ozlin. Minnie Rose Hawthorne and Linda Crowder's rendition of a popular song will be the final musical talent of the evening, and Libbie Heath's skit will complete the fun.

Famed Violinist To Give Concert On Saturday

Robert Kitain, distinguished young violinist, will be the guest artist at the first lyceum program which will be held in the college auditorium Saturday night, November 21, at 8 o'clock.

Kitain is the son of the well-known professor and composer, Mihail Kitain. At the age of ten he won the Alexander Alazonow scholarship to the Imperial Conservatory of St. Petersburg, where he studied under Professor Leopold Aver and was graduated with first prize. At 17, he made a triumphal tour of Russia. The critics immediately acclaimed him the "leading and foremost violinist of Russia."

Far East Tour

In 1925, he made his last consecutive sell-out tour of Russia and Siberia, giving 200 concerts. He continued his tour in the Far East, where he gave 185 concerts in Manchuria, China, Japan, the Philippines, and Dutch East Indies.

European fame caused him to have a record-breaking box office for his American debut in Carnegie Hall, in New York, in 1939, where he was greeted with tremendous enthusiasm by capacity audiences. Kitain immediately established himself as the most exciting new artist the music world has brought forth in several seasons.

Appeared Here Before

Kitain has been enthusiastically received at the Stage Door Canteen in New York this past season. He appeared at a lyceum program last November in the State Teachers College auditorium.

Included in his program will be "Preludio" by Bach, "Spanish Symphony" by Lalo, Debussy's "Clair de Lune", "Melodie" by Tchaikowsky, "Hopak" by Mousarsky, "Polka" from the "Golden Age" by Shastakovitch and "Scherzo-Tarantella" by Wieniawski.

Full Work Begins For Circus Stunt

Work began this week on the class stunts to be presented at the annual A.K.G. circus on November 28. Phyllis Watts is in charge of the freshman stunt, Betty Kiger is the sophomore chairman, Louise McCorkle and Louise Andrews head the junior committee, and Piddie Haymes is preparing the senior stunt.

Nominees for circus queen will be voted upon next week. The

Are We Capable of Making Sacrifices?

One of the hardest things to understand about students' attitudes toward the war is what their idea of self-sacrifice really is. A good example of this is found here at Farmville. We are anxious to save a little scrap and go to USO dances as long as it is no inconvenience to us at the time, but when we are asked to aid in some way that would actually aid in a major problem, our personal interests usually come first.

When it was decided that we would have a longer Christmas vacation, because in that way we would help the transportation problem at the time, there was much rejoicing. However, the attitude about staying here for Thanksgiving was entirely different. We forgot about the reasons for this request. We, as college students are supposed to see the reasons for the necessity of such a request as this one. We are supposed to look for the causes of things and to judge our actions according to what we believe will be the best outcome for the most people. But have we done this when we consider leaving school on Thanksgiving? Have we not thought only of ourselves and not what will be the effect of our riding in a car, or on a bus or train on the transportation problem? Do we realize that in order to have our own personal pleasure for one day, we will be using unnecessarily tires and gas, or that perhaps we are preventing some soldier from a brief respite because we have that seat?

Many people have given up years of their life unselfishly to aid in the present conflict, but we do not seem to be able to give up even one day.

—Agnes Patterson

Attention: Opportunists

If you're one of that prevalent species of time-biders, you should make a mental note right now: a special opportunity is being offered State Teachers College music lovers this week end and again on Tuesday.

Initiating the lyceum programs of the season on Saturday night will be Robert Kitain, renowned virtuoso, who is making a return appearance on this campus. Kitain in his concert at State Teachers College last November received a tremendous ovation from the student audience. This year he has selected a varied and well-balanced program, one that should appeal to lovers of light and heavier composition of Bach's preludes as well as Debussy's better known melodies.

No more interesting chapel program could be chosen than one produced by Bohumir Kryl and his symphony orchestra. His fame as a cornetist is superceded only by his ability to interpret the marches of the late John Phillip Sousa.

The opportunity that is being offered a S. T. C. with the coming of these two artists is not one to be overlooked.

The lid is being clamped down even harder in Norway. No church hyms may be sung which contain the word "Devil" because Quisling believes the reference is to Nazis, a logical enough assumption on his part.

"I cannot believe that the things which have been considered important for 2,000 years will be tossed into the scrap-heap when this war is over. As a matter of fact, the study of liberal arts is suffering no curtailment now. The navy, in its V-1, B-5 and V-7 training programs for students, is insisting upon the maintenance of just these studies. It is realized that a broad, well-rounded education is productive of precise thought, which is of utmost importance now."—Dean Herbert E. Hawkes of Columbia College asserts the liberal arts are essential now as in the future.

Without sacrificing editorial independence or their right to make independnt judgments, editors and staff members of this newspaper agree to unite with all college newspapers of the nation to support, wholeheartedly and by every means at their command, the government of the United States in the war effort, to the end that the college press of the nation may be a united Voice for Victory.

Gleanings

By Virginia Kent Sedgley

Wendell Willkie, the President's globe-trotting, outspoken messenger of peace, made an open criticism of Winston Churchill last night, the first open break between the two nations. Here is how it all came about.

On November 10, Prime Minister Churchill said in an address: "Let me, however, make this clear, in case there should be any mistake about it in any quarter: We mean to hold our own. I have not become the King's first minister in order to preside over the liquidation of the British Empire."

Wendell Willkie while urging the United Nations to develop a plan to make the economic products of the world available to all, retaliated by saying "this (economic self-government) cannot be accomplished by mere declaration of our leaders, as in the Atlantic Charter, particularly when one of the two principals of that instrument has . . . seemingly defended the old imperialistic order and declared to a shocked world 'We mean to hold our own'."

Certainly the problems of the post-war world must be discussed now. The first phase to be considered is the peace which will follow this war.

The peace made at the end of the last war is, in great measure, responsible for the present chaos.

The countries came to Paris filled with hate and revenge and the old imperialistic idea of nationalism. In a short time, in fact the total of some 40 hours in secret conferences, the history of the world for the next twenty, or so, years was decided. It is up to us to see that this mistake is not repeated a second time.

First of all, let us be sure that this is a negotiated peace, not a dictated peace. Yes, exactly that. Have the Japanese, Germans, and Italians all meet and work out their own peace. That seems very radical, but if we substitute Christian ideals for the old ideas of hate and nationalism this can be done. Then, also, we must take more time to consult more experts before we sign any treaties. This will take time, several years, perhaps, but certainly world peace is worth that.

One of you may be called upon to work on this peace after the war is over. Certainly our generation will furnish the brains for the plan. If we think now along democratic and Christian lines, we will find that we have re-created a democratic and Christian world.

Maneuverings . . . .

ARMY . . . . .

Miggie's Esquire type lieutenant is an amazing species of homo-sapien. With red boots, Stirling Hayden features and shiny medals, all he lacks is - - - well, nothing. He has his pipe.

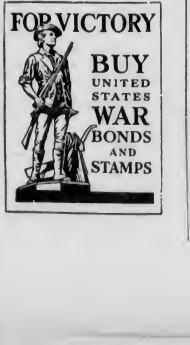
NAVY . . . . .

Once again the Navy's gain is a lass' loss as Sarah Massie loses Kossen to Northwestern University, where he will take his basic training.

Naval cadets don't get their wings for several months, but Susie's Ed is "all up in the air", or so we gathered from his ten-page special delivery air mail letter. From his description of the frigid gales to which he was exposed in getting his blanket, he must have been either "drunk, crazy, or a poet", as Susie said.

And MARINES . . . .

Shep (jeep) is soon to join the ranks and give M. K. the thrill of seeing him in a uniform. But what will the Episcopal Church do without his car being parked at its side each afternoon? One more familiar sight will be removed by Uncle Sam.



On Jazz and James

Jazz—the modern plaything to which Harry James has the key—is an amazing element. From strenous boogie to catchy congas, from congas to intricate Shorty Georges, its progress upward in the groove has necessitated the instigation of a new language, and to use it, a jazz generation. Now hepcats, aware gents, solid citizens, and jivers as au root as a tree, have sprung up to gently edge out less swinging souls (soles). Jazz has become just what Doctor Sam ordered.

Fast as jass is coming into its own, so is Harry James swinging along in front as its master. He and his orchestra are proving themselves "syncapable" of becoming the first-call band of America. From blue rooms to gold, his trumpet is heralding the royal advent of swing. Perhaps his variety of moods as shown in his ability to catch every emotion accounts for the rapidity of his success. Not only is his music the inspiration for hep-cats, but also the delight of listeners. His "Strictly Instrumental" puts sparkle into the toes and the James' version of "Poem Set To Music" brings back all those meaningful moments.

Before imposing their opinion, the authors queried three students as to their impression of Harry James' music. One girl is well versed in modern syncopation, one likes to dance but is not a jass enthusiast, and one likes music but does not enjoy toeing it. From all three alike came high praise for Harry. Girl number one exclaimed that James has the "certain something that wins and holds dancers and listeners alike"; girl number two sighed, "Harry James just gets me! His recording of "You Made Me Love You" is the best recording I've ever heard". And the third usual nonconformist broke down and joined the forces with "Harry James? He's great!"

It's the hoofer's heaven, the homer's haven: it's Harry James!

Letters to the Editor . . .

Dear Editor,

With as interesting programs as we usually have in chapel each day, it seems a shame to take attention away from the speakers with such outstandingly unpleasant backgrounds as usually visible in the audience. Instead of listening to the speaker of the morning, we find ourselves trying to identify the numerous flags dangling from the gigantic stand that overlowers everyone and everything on the stage. Instead of concentrating on a new hymn we find ourselves searching the face of the chapel choir to locate that high soprano. It's pretty awful, really.

During the past week or ten days, due to the stage setting for the Dramatic Club play, the front curtains have been drawn, and the chairs and the lectern set on the apron of the stage. This makes a more attractive and less diverting background for the speaker, and the whole program is more effective in its simplicity.

If the objection is "No place for the choir", put them behind the curtain. The object is that they are to be heard, isn't it?

And if there's a chapel committee or something that insist on an open stage, how about a little improvement in the backdrops?

And no hard feelings.

Sincerely,
Discursive

Dear Editor,

Reading is the greatest aid in informing us as to current problems, conditions, and peoples, and through our reading we come to know many books that we should like to own. Why not then start a personal liberty? Or if you already have begun one of your own, renew your interest by adding a few of the latest books?

Many schools, such as Westhampton, have found a personal library contest to be successful among students in creating interest in both reading and collecting books. This week on our campus marks the beginning of such a project, sponsored by Kappa Delta Pi. With the purpose of encouraging the building of personal libraries, the contest is open to all students, whether freshman or senior. In this way all four classes are put on equal footing, as books for the contest must have been selected since the beginning of this school year. Also, any student can enter throughout the year, until the last week in April when the contest closes. Books will be judged on range of interest and quality.

We hope that this Personal Library Contest will be a challenge to many students here at S.T.C. to renew interest in good reading and personal library building.

Sincerely,
Eleanor C. Folk.

To the Editor:

Bouquets to Jane Lee Sink for her excellent letter appearing in this column last week. Although I do not entirely agree with her policy of no infirmary visiting hours she certainly expressed clearly and tactfully the primary function of a school infirmary. It is not a place for social events but a haven for the sick. Don't misunderstand me when I say haven, and slip down for the day when a test is in the offing. That isn't sporting! However, when you're feeling "under the weather" because of various reasons the infirmary is an ideal spot in which to recuperate.

So you want visiting hours? From experience, I can honestly and with deepest regret say that without full cooperation from every member of the student body—THEY WILL NOT SURVIVE! When I say I speak from experience it is only fair to you to illustrate my statement. Visiting hours were experimented with last year. They were, I believe, an hour in the morning, from 4:00 until 5:00 in the afternoon, and an hour in the evening. During the winter I had a rather bad fall and spent two days in the infirmary feeling non too chipper at any time.

From the time breakfast was over until lunch, screaming mobs of girls dashed in and out constantly with absolutely no regard for those really ill. From lunch till dinner and from dinner until late at night the same procedure followed each day. You definitely could not rest, much less sleep. Irregardless of the administration's pleas for quiet and less frequent visits the girls came and went as they wished. Now, I ask you in all sincerity, is this the situation you would have existing in a sick room in your own home? No, it isn't, and you do not want it here, either.

Instead of all this controversy, why not have a plan devised with

Classes To Vie For Colors Thanksgiving

. . . . . .

Hockey Teams Will Clash On Same Day

Annual Fete To Begin Early Thursday Morn

Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, November 26, has been selected as the date of the Color Rush at Farmville S. T. C. for this season. With the holiday canceled because of transportation difficulties, students will once again remain in the vicinity of Farmville as previously done many years ago when Color Rush was originally held on Thanksgiving Day.

The Rush will begin immediately after breakfast on Thursday morning. Every student is expected to clear the halls in every building and is expected to be outside of the various buildings before the whistle for the runners is sounded. The runners for each class and color will then vie in races to decide where the color banners will be placed.

As stated in an amendment to the Athletic Association constitution five points will be given the winnig color. Previously no points were awarded in this event.

Last year Green and White triumphed over Red and White with a score of 3 1-2 to 2 1-2.

A. A. Constitution New Amendments Are Announced

The following amendments have been passed by the Athletic Association Council and after being published herewith will be added to the constitution of the association

1. Five points will be awarded to the color that wins the most banners in Color Rush.

2. A point will be given each student for the number of practices she attends in each sport, but in order for these practices to count she must have at least five in each respective sport. This will be done in proportion to the number of girls enrolled in Red and White or Green and White. The color having the highest percentage would get five points for her colors towards the color cup.

a definite time for visiting in the infirmary? I feel sure that the nurse will offer her full cooperation if we will. Any violation of the rules for visiting should be handled in the same manner as the House Council rules. Will we do our part in keeping visiting hours orderly if they are enforced? Remember' it's up to us!

Orchesis Bids 3 Sophomores

Orchesis, honorary dance group, extended bids last night to three sophomores. Edith Lovins, Betty Jane Hunt, and Ruby Steward. Betty Sexton, president, announced today. These girls have shown special skill and interest in modern dance in the fundamentals classes.

At present members of Orchesis are working on their annual Christmas Sing program. Other projects for the year include the annual recital in January and work on May Day in the spring.

Miss Emily Kauzlarich is adviser for the group.

"Y" Notes

By LOUISE BELL

It is good to see the Freshman Commission taking over their new duties these days. From now on Prayers will become quieter; nearly everywhere one looks there will be evidence of the commission in action.

The Chapel Committee is cooperating with the musical organizations in presenting special programs for chapel. The result should add a great deal to the Wednesday morning chapels.

The Tuberculosis Christmas Seals are being sold on campus this year. The Public Affairs Committee of the Y will handle them. Everyone is asked to patronize the sale. Buy them to decorate Christmas mail and to help win the fight against the dreaded disease.

The Baptist Student Union is sponsoring the traditional Thanksgiving Sunrise service this Sunday. It is fully worth the early rising hour and chilly walk in the dark to witness the rising of the sun and to feel the fellowship and inspiration from the service.

Archery Tournament Scheduled For Frosh

An archery tournament has been scheduled for all freshmen entered in any of the archery classes. The contest will be played off on November 30 and December 1 and 2.

Practice outside of class periods may be secured in the afternoon during regular archery practices. Arrows and targets may be secured from Margaret Kitchin or Sara Jeffreys, managers of archery, who are in charge of the tournament.

Potpourri of W's Forms Query Basis For Reporter

By FAY JOHNSON

Whereas we have introduced this little bit of silliness in the manner most detested by the English Department, we shall continue in similar vein. Why isn't something done to people who put powder, shoes, crackers, hammers, egg shells, lamps, bolts, waste paper, rocking chairs and other like objects on other people's beds? And why do people have water bottles, mecurochrome fights and boxing matches during study hour? And most important, why isn't something done about these people?

Just when does the laundry close and open anyway? And why is one's laundry put in 116 when one's number is 452? Why?

Not "why"—but where does Miss Kay pick up those cunning shoes of hers?

Did you know that the Dramatic Club wholly obliterated the hocus-pocus about Friday the thirteenth being "unlucky". The play was presented on the thirteenth with thirteen mempers in the cast, and - - - the witty thespians tickled (you guess it) 213 times the first night and 313 times the second py count.

Sh-h-h don't dare tell this to a soul—but somepody innocently remarked the other day that Dr. Jarman really prefers yellow roses to red put that he hesitates to disinform his doting girls. Could it be?

Have you met Emojean? She inhabits the second story of one Annex. To get her attention just shout "Whut you doin' Emojean? The answer will be surprising.

Has anybody ever read the Honor Code in its entirety? No one ever sees a copy—but such a document does exist because somebody found it on the bulletin board in Miss Nichols' classroom. Needless to say 'twould be well to find more of such copies in conspicuous places.

Have you noticed, you, the way in which the people at Table 24 play "Pig"? Instead of the convention finger to the side of one's nose, these wide awake young women make the V for Victory sign with their forefingers. A small gesture to be sure—but it proves to be a good reminder that a war is on.

Have you noticed, lov, the emptiness of that Colonnade box in the hall? A really good institution going to waste—why? Lack of talent? No. Indifference? Yes.

Lastly—why does there have to be such uproariousness in the dining room at mealtime? But really that is bringing up a subject too great for discussion here. The English professors, if they have wandered this far, will be tearing their hair and stampin' the floor. Now Why? ? ?

Fete To Decide If Frosh Doff Caps To Sophs

The traditional hockey clash between teams representing the freshman class and the sophomore class will be played off on Thursday afternoon, November 26, beginning at 3 o'clock. The junior-senior game will be played later.

The clash between the frosh and sophomores is a traditional rivalry on campus. If the freshmen win, they are allowed to take off their rat caps. If the victory goes to the sophs the freshmen will be forced to don the rat caps until Christmas.

Two points are given to team that wins, and in case of a tie, both teams receive one point.

Last year the freshmen were defeated by a 2-0 score, while the juniors chalked up a 2-0 win over the seniors.

candidates are Alice and Nancy Courter, freshmen class; Ann Blair, sophomore class; Jane Ford, junior candidates; and Sara Wade Owen, senior representative.

Plans are being made for 13 booths to be opened the night of the circus and sponsored by the classes and various other organizations on the campus. Chairmen of these booths are Ann Price, Monogram Club; Ruth Parker and Ann Blair, student government; Charlotte Phillips, YWCA; Eleanor Wade and Bobbie Scott, A. A.; Carol Diggs, Town Girls Club; Lucy Harvy, freshman class; Nancy Wilkinson, sophomore class; and Elizabeth Walls, senior class. Other organizations that will have booths at the circus are the Granddaughters Club, the Choir, the Riding Club and the Home Economics Club.

Her floor committee consists of Jane Sanford and Hannah Lee Crawford.

The other committees have been announced as follows: animal committee, Amy Read, Ella Banks Weathers, and Carolyn Rouse; stunt committee, Shirley Turner, and Agnes Patterson; advertising committee, Ann Ware Smith and Eleanor Polk; queen and court presentation committee, Betty Boutchard and Nancye Allen; parade committee, Betty Youngberg and Rosalie Rogers; ticket committee, Susie Moore and Ella Marsh Pilkinton; and decoration committee, Winifred Wright, Margaret Mish, and Ann Ellett.

Tech Trek

Openings at Virginia Polytechnic Institute created great migratory trends toward Blacksburg for the young ladies at State Teachers College, Farmville, the past week-end.

Some of the S. T. C.ers who journeyed up for the occasion were Rosemary Elam, Elizabeth McLean, Marie Nichols, Faye Nimmo, Dorothy Overstreet, Amy Read, Evelyn Renfro, Lucille Jones, Sarah Taliaferro, Catherine Lynch, Jacqueline McCoy, Carlotta Norfleet, Lucie Ellen McKenry, Ophelia Whittle, Betty Brothers, Anne Covington, Lois Sheppard, Janet Davis, Elizabeth Grubb, Marie Hedgecock, M. K. Ingham Betty Sexton, Pamela Sterling, Jane Scott Annin Seay, Kate Thompson, Virginia Terrel, Sarah Woodward, and Betty Wood.

Miscellaneous Meandering

Betty Bradley, Evelyn Christian, and Shirley Horsey at Chapel Hill and Mildred Louise Mease at V. C. State kept up Tarheel morale, while Beatrice Jones attended the dances at Randolph-Macon.

To Christine Pate goes the distance award for her trip to West Point.

Alma Mater Matters

Loyal Teejay and John Marshall alumnae journeyed homeward to see John Marshall defeat Thomas Jefferson 25 to 7 Saturday afternoon. Mary Eugenia Crank, Mary Brinson Walker, Kitty Patrick, and Frances Lee were some of the Richmonders who attended the big game.

Sorority Parties

The eight sororities on campus entertained the new pledges at parties in the various chapter rooms on Wednesday night at 11 o'clock.

U. S. O.'—ers

The 136th Quartermaster Corps from Camp Pickett entertained fifty members of the senior class at a formal banquet at Longwood and dance afterward on Saturday night.

The decorations carried out a patriotic red, white and blue theme and from all reports, a merry time was had by all.

Home Again

And then there were the girls, who following Roosevelt's example, set Thanksgiving homecoming up a few weeks. Jacqueline Showalter, Irene Pomeroy, Nancy Lee Weeks, Leona Moomaw, Jean Akers, Anen Rogers, Jane Adams, Frances Parham, Mary Ella Smith, Jackie Parden, Eleanor Biscoe, Shirley Crusar, Helen Wilson aJne Bargamin, Natalie Carroll, and Vivian Gwaltney were some who took time off to "see the folks."

Sigma Sigma Sigma To Entertain National Head This Week-End

Miss Mabel Lee Walton, national president of Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority, will arrive on this campus Friday night to spend the week-end as guest of Alpha chapter of Tri-Sigma.

On Saturday morning Miss Walton will hold conferences with the officers of the local chapter after which she will be their guests at a small luncheon in the college tea room.

Saturday afternoon the entire chapter of the sorority, including actives and pledges, will be hostesses at an informal tea in the Senior Building lounge in honor of Miss Walton. Other guests will include Miss Mary White Cox, Mrs. H. A. Tabb, Mrs. Eva Warren, and Miss Pauline Camp, adviser of the chapter.

At the tea a Harmony Hour discussion on leadership will be led by Jane Sanford, assisted by Sarah Massie Goode, Hacky Moore, Louise Bell, Agnes Patterson, Anne Eliett, and Shirley Turner.

On Sunday afternoon or that night Miss Walton will met the entire Tri-Sigma group for a brief discussion. She will return to her home in Clermont, Fla., on Monday.

Officers of Alpha chapter of Tri-Sigma are Jac Hardy, president; Shirley Turner, vice-president; Betty Bridgforth, corresponding secretary; Margaret Kitchin, recording secretary; and Patsy Connelly, treasurer.

Pi Kaps Observe Founder's Day

The members of Pi Kappa Sigma sorority held their founder's day banquet Tuesday night, November 17 in the tea room. Toasts were given by Kitty Patrick to Miss Iler, by Emily Wescott to the new girls, by Martha Higgins to the president, Betty Boutchard, and by Hersey Hutt to the old girls. Among those attending the turkey dinner were the old girls and new pledges. Pi Kappa Sigma alumna, Miss Rachel Royall, and sorority advisor, Miss Olive Iler.

Stanley", turned out creditable performances. Langley Woods as "Nutsey Miller" and Jack Cross as a persistent news reporter were not on stage long enough for even a hasty comment.

Altogether the play was refreshingly humorous and presented to Farmville audiences new talent on the collegiate stage.

On Being the Innocent Victim

By BETTY COCK

"First Aid is the immediate, temporary treatment given in case of accident or sudden illness before the services of a physician can be secured." It's also the bane of existence for anyone sufficiently equipped with floppy collapsible qualities.

To clarify the above statement, suppose we take a look into the little gym on any Tuesday or Thursday afternoon, and watch Miss Barlow's Health Education class hard at work.

As we open the door, we have to stop a minute, to regain our composure and wipe the startled looks off our faces. For lying all over the floor are people . . . real honest-to-goodness girls, and they all look unconscious. So we're scared just for a minute. Just long enough to see that they seem to be in capable hands, and then we get a grip on ourselves and go on in, trying to appear careless as we step over the still, prone figures, and dodge in and out among the hustling, upright ones.

Squares and triangles of unbleached muslin are everywhere. Bulky boards occupy the chairs in which we are wont to sit, and long rolls of gauze bandages mingle with queer little bottles and round little sticks in a near-by "typically equipped kit". All this is noted in a hasty survey, just before we turn our attentions to the scene before us.

"What's wrong with this girl?", we finally venture, pointing to the relaxed figure sprawled at our feet.

"Fractured leg, severe bleeding of the head, and sprained ankle", comes the curt reply, and the speaker is off again, in the direction of the muslin triangles.

"This one hurt bad?", inquires another of our healthy party.

"Asphyxiation and wounded thigh", is the short answer, and we stop here to see which will be remedied first. But this tragedy is six of one and half dozen of the other . . . while one efficient First-Aider confidentially applies a turniquet, two others prepare to go through the motions of artificial respiration. Not even a groan comes forth from the resolute victim. She's playing her role well.

The next group has discovered a broken back, and is carefully endeavoring to place its patient on an improvised stretcher, namely a board and a blanket. The first comic relief comes here, when ye sufferer is a wee bit too broad for ye sapling, and everyone chuckles at the seemingly futile attempts to get her aboard. When finally she is situated, and wrapped and strapped and immovably tied, she gives so much the appearance of a well-nourished papoose that the whole group, including the jolly instructor, gives way to rollicking mirth, and even the other victims sit up among their traction-splints and slings to see what's going on.

This breaks the ice and gives us a chance, and we turn to a finally sober cripple whose right arm is stretched grotesquely out in a half-ring splint and ask her how she feels.

"Feel!", she says scornfully. "Why, I've had so many concussions and cuts and breaks and bruises that there isn't an inch of me left that's able to feel. I've been treated for shock 'til I'm practically immune; I've had so much traction applied that I'm longer on one side than I am on the other, and I've been from a completely drowned condition to a physical mass of torn flesh, all in one period. It's a hectic life!" But she smiles down at her chubby self, and for once the smile is less rueful than usual. "But I know one day they won't ask me to be the victim!"

"Yes?", we ask politely.

"Answer pretty obvious', she grins. "The day we hafta practice transportation of the injured!"

Lecturer Returns For S.T.C. Visit

Dr. MacArthur To Talk To "Y"

Dr. Kathleen MacArthur, a member of the national staff of the Young Woman's Christian Association, will come to the State Teachers College campus next Wednesday, December 2, to lead discussions with the Y. W. C. A. members. On Wednesday afternoon she will meet the members of the Y.W.C.A. cabinet and committees, and other members of the association in the "Y" lounge. This meeting will be followed by the annual cabinet Christmas supper.

Dr. MacArthur, whose topic for discussion while here will be "What Is Christian Action?", is particularly quaified for the work she has taken with the national board of the Y.W.C.A. She has taught philiosophy and religion at Hollins College for five years, and at the College of the Churches of Christ in Toronto, Canada, and at the Anglo-Oriental girls school in Tokyo, Japan.

Native of Canada

A native of Toronto, she spent her undergraduate days at the University of Manitoba in Winnipeg. She obtained her master's degree in philosophy, theology, and ethics at the University of Chicago, where she also earned a Ph.D. degree.

This is Dr. MacArthur's second trip to Farmville. She was a guest on this campus last year for a week in December.

Juniors Plan Dance For January 22, '43

Floor Show, Dance Replace Production

Instead of the annual class production the juniors will sponsor a dance on Friday night, January 22, 1943. Part of the proceeds from this dance will go to the U. S. O.

Several unusual features have been added to the junior dance program, Patsy Connelly and Sara Wayne Frances, general chairman of the dance committee, are arranging a floor show to be given at intermission. Another added attraction will be the serving of refreshments in the little gym.

No definite plans have been completed for obtaining an orchestra for the occasion, but the committee is trying to contract a college group to furnish music. Mary Keith Bingham is chairman of the committee, which includes also Caroline Caldwell and Elizabeth Ann Jordan.

Other committees for the dance are decorations, Sara Jeffreys, Emma Broyles, Nancy Hutter, and Theresa Fletcher; publicity, Jean Arrington, chairman, Jane McFall and Sara Trigg; refreshments, Josceiyn Gillum, Sue Harper, Frances Strohecker, and Frances Rainey. The program itself is in the hands of the general chairman assisted by Jane Smith.

Wright Adds Five Students To Staff Of Colonnade

Winifred Wright, editor of The Colonnade, recently announced the appointment of Jane Smith, of Franklin, to the literary staff, and Jean Arrington, of Lynchburg, to the art staff of the college quarterly.

Fay Johnson, of Vinton; Lelia Holloway, of Emporia; and Betty Cock, of Hampton, were appointed members of the Contributor's Board.

Jane is social editor of the Rotunda; Fay and Betty are reporters, and Lelia is on the business staff.

Pan-American Circus Arrives Saturday; Unknown Queen To Rule Under Big Top

Behind the scenes directing the various class stunts for the circus are Louise Andrews, Phyllis Watts, Louise McCorkle, Betty Kiger, and Fiddie Haymes.

Circus queen candidates Sara Wade Owen, Jane Ford, Ann Blair, and Nancy and Alice Courter are in the midst of big time campaigning as a preview to the Big Top opening on Saturday night.

* * *

Saturday night, November 28 marks the annual S. T. C. circus, sponsored by Alpha Kappa Gamma. Hallie Hillsman, general chairman, revealed this week that the theme of the entire program would be Pan-American and that the class stunts, botohs and the parade on Saturday afternoon will center around the main theme.

Competition for the coveted position of circus queen is keen with Sarah W. Owen representing the class of '43 for the second consecutive year, Jane Ford, the junior representative, Ann Blair as the sophomore's choice, and the Courter twins, Alice and Nancy, fighting for the frosh. The student body will select the queen of its choice sometime this year, but the outcome of the voting will remain a secret until the opening of the Big Top in the gym on Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

Patriotic Stunts

The senior class stunt, directed by Fidele Haymes, is a patriotic one done in red, white, and blue, with all the trimmings. The juniors will Hell Mr Hitler in a most ridiculous fashion and the sophomores will recall the spirit of World War I in contrast. Louise McCorkle and Louise Andrews are co-chairmen of the junior class stunt, and Betty Kiger is in charge of the soph's. A little off key from the main theme, but definitely patriotic will be the freshman minstrel show under the direction of Phylis Watts.

Also highlighting the sideshows will be the bull fight staged by the rush Spanish class under the direction of Miss Emily Barksdale This will be featured in the animal tunts under the direction of Amy Read

Midway Features

Following the main action in the one-ringer there will be dancing, frotune telling, bingo, and refreshments all served on the midway.

The ringmaster of the circus will not be revealed until Saturday.

Nobakov To Speak Here December 7-8

BET Sponsors Noted Russian

Rosalie Rogers, president of Beore Eh Thorn, local honorary English society, has announced that Vladimir Nobakov, famed Russian author and lecturer, will appear on the college campus December 7 and 8.

Nobakov was born in St. Petersburg, Russia in 1899. His grandfather had been Minister of Justice to Alexander II and Alexander III. His father was a well known statesman of the liberal party and a member of the first Russian Parliament.

Taught in Berlin

As a boy Nobakov attended the Tenisher School in St. Petersburg. After emigrating from Russia to England in 1919, he went to Cambridge University, Trinity College, where at the age of twenty-three he obtained a first-class degree in foreign languages.

NOBAKOV

The following fifteen years he spent in Berlin where he taught language. In 1937, he found it necessary to leave Germany.

Makes Translations

Nobakov started his literary career in 1923, by transiating into Russian "Alice in Wonderland" and the poems of Rupert Brooke. Between 1925 and 1939 he published eight novels among which were "Mashenka", "King, Queen, Knave", "Lujius' Defense", "Camera Obscura", "The Exploit", "Despair", "Invitation to a Beheading", and "The Gift". He also published two collections of short stories and two plays. Most of his novels have appeared in English, French, German, Czech and Swedish translations.

Nobakov will lecture on 'A Century of Exile" at 8 o'clock Monday night, December 7, in the large auditorium. Tuesday morning, December 8, he will speak to the student body at chapel on either "The Art of Writing" or "Short Stories".

Marion, Austin Secured By YW For Religious Emphasis Week

Religious Emphasis week, sponsored annually by the Y. W. C. A., will begin this year on Tuesday, January 26 and continue through Friday, January 29. Eleanor Folk, chairman, announces that two speakers have been obtained for the week. The Rev. J. H. Marion, pastor of the Grace Covenant Church in Richmond, will speak the first two days. The speaker for the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth will be Dr. John Rustin, pastor of the Mt. Vernon Place Methodist church in Washingon, D. C.

These speakers will discuss topics related to the principle theme, "The Christian Student in the World Scene." Louise Bell and Ella Banks Weathers are working with Eleanor on this committee to make detailed arrangements for the week.

Forthcoming Issue Of Alumnae Magazine Has Service Theme

The Alumnae Magazine will go to press on December 15, Mrs. Boyd Coyner, editor, has announced. It will be sent to each of the 6300 alumnae of the college as a bulletin.

The general theme of the material for this year's issue of the magazine is "Service in War Time".

Included in the tentative table of contents are a message from Dr. J. L. Jarman, president of the college, a message from Miss Mary E. Peck, president of the Alumnae Association, and reports from many of the 50 aiumnae chapters.

Also included will be a report of alumnae gifts to the college during the last several years; letters from the reunion classes of 1893, 1903, 1913, 1918, 1923, and 1933; a history of the Lynchburg Alumnae chapter, and an appreciation from the New York City chapter.

A part of the issue will include news of aiumnae, such as weddings, war activities, and deaths. Campus news will include pictures depicting "War in Curricular and Extra-Curricular Activities in College" and pictures of the new members of the Grand-

Y. W. Committee Sponsors Stamp Sale

Chrismas seals and bangles will be sold this week by the Public Affairs committee of the Y.W.C.A. This is being done in cooperation with the annual tuberculosis seal drive. Because of the shortage of material used in making the pins used in previous years, the 1942 emblems will be different.

The sale of these stamps and bangles will begin next week, with Hannah Lee Crawford in charge of the drive.

Hall Becomes Head Of Spanish Club

Lucille Hall, freshman from Hampton, was elected president of the Spanish Club at the organization meeting yesterday. Emily Carper was chosen vice-president; Alice Parkhurst, secretary; Eleanor Wade, treasurer; Ella Banks Weathers and Jane Sanford, reporters. Nora Beauchamp was appointed chairman of the program committee and Olive Bradshaw will head the social committee.

Miss Emily Barksdale is faculty sponsor of the newly organized group which will meet on the fourth Tuesday of each month at 5 o'clock.

Town Service Center Open To Pickett Men

Cooperating in the state-wide effort to provide entertainment for Camp Pickett men, the Farmville Defense Recreation Center has announced a series of biweekly dances to which all servicemen are invited. Music for the dances, the first of which was held last Saturday night, will be provided by popular Camp Pickett orchestras, and students from the State Teachers College will be present at many.

The Farmville Defense Recreation Center, operated under the auspices of the Works Projects Administration, is not a USO affiliate, but is conducted along the same lines, according to Mrs. Shelton Whitaker, director.

Professors Attend "V" Convention

V. E. A. Convenes In Richmond

Dr. J. E. Walmsley, Miss Olive T. Iler, and A. L. Wingo are representing the local chapter of the Virginia Education Association at the VEA Victory Convention which began today in Richmond and will iast through Friday, November 27.

Governor Colgate W. Darden, Jr., will make the opening address in the John Marshall High School tonight at 7:30.

Mr. Wingo, one of the consulants for the large high schools will assist in the work conference on Friday, November 27. Miss Iler, reporter for the group of Physical Education directors, will assist in the discussion of the part that physical and health education will play in the wartime program of education in Virginia.

Dr. Edward G. Gammon, president of Hampden-Sydney College, is the chairman of the representatives of colleges and teacher training institutions and will take part in the discussion of the group.

"Education and the War" is the general topic for discussion at the Victory convention.

Y. W. C. A. Will Begin Rolling Red Cross Bandages Wednesday

Beginning next Wednesday night, December 2, and continuing each Wednesday thereafter, the Service Committee of the Y. C. W. A. under the direction of chairman Nancye Allen, will sponsor a project of bandage rolling in cooperation with the Farmville chapter of the National Red Cross. The meetings which begin at 8 o'clock and end at 10 o'clock, will be held in Room 223 in Student Building and will be open to all members of the student body.

Mrs. M. Boyd Coyner, Miss Margaret Hall, and Mrs. Farrar Shelton, will act as instructors and will be assisted by various student members of the Service Committee.

On Monday night following prayers, a meeting of all students interested in this project will be held in the large auditorium. At that time a schedule of the times when each student will work will be formulated and posted on the "Y" bulletin board.

The students who volunteer to roll bandages are requested to wear cotton dresses or smocks and as little lipstick as possible. Student volunteers must wear kerchiefs or a similar covering for hair, and must wash their hands before preparing the bandages.

Kitain . . . Kryl . . .
Artists Prove Spell-binding On Stage and Off

Russian Violinist Supports Democracy

"I'm not a Communist. I like democracy," Robert Kitain, Russian born violinist repeatedly said at the reception at Professor Alfred H. Strick's home following his evening performance last Saturday. "I did not—I do not like my country's government," he continued in his slow, heavily accented English.

"No, I am not yet an American citizen, but I hope to be," he replied to inquiries, and repeated, "I like democracy. I like America better than any country I've ever lived in".

Coming from a long line of musicians, the distinguished violinist explained that at the age of nine he picked up a violin, "and just played". At the ripe age of twelve the boy was giving public concerts throughout Russia. His fame was growing when the revolution broke out and separated the family and caused the loss of their fortune. Homeless and penniless the artist played for his very life, often receiving for a concert but a bit of meat or a few pounds of sugar, the latter being one of his weaknesses, he confessed.

When forced to leave the country Kitain fled to China and was a great success in Peking. "But it seemed as if revolutions pursued me", he rather wistfully remarked. An outbreaking in China hurried his footsteps to Japan and Tokyo. There he received wide acclaim, and thence continued to

Kryl Concert Delights Audience

Bohumir Kryl and his symphony orchestra received an enthusiastic ovation from an audience of spell-bound S. T. C. students on Tuesday, November 24, at 12 o'clock noon. All 12:40 classes were excused, giving the students a just cause to be grateful to Mr. Kryl even before they had witnessed his performance. After listening, enthralled, to the overture to "The Marriage of Figaro" by Mozart, sentiment shifted from gratitude to sincere appreciation.

The following number on the program was "Legende" by Francois Thome, featuring Many Randolph, harpist. Miss Randolph very graciously granted to her au-
